Alkali Soils.

In the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture for 1878, we find an interesting paper upon the agricultural resources, etc., of California, from which we take the following extract as applicable to our own section:

The soils of the Mojave desert seem on the whole to be rather light, whitish silts, of whose possible productiveness little can as yet be said, except that without irrigation culture is hopeless. In striking contrast with these close soils of the San Joaquin Valley are those which prevail south of the Sierras, San Fernando, and San Gabriel, in the Los Angles plain and its tributary valleys, the home of the orange, lemon, and olive in their perfection. The fine rolling uplands ("mesas") of that region are generally covered with a brownish, gravelly loam, from eight to twenty feet in thickness, which, with tillage, assumes the most perfect tilth with ease. It is a generous, "strong" soil, varying locally so as to adapt itself to every variety of crop, yet readily identifiable by its general character from Los Angeles to San Diego. In most respects it may be considered a variety of the red soils of the Sierra slope already described, like which it appears to be pre-eminently adapted to fruit culture.

The soils of the plain to seaward of Los Angeles, and of the coast plains south of Santa Barbara generally, so far as not modified by the sediments of the streams, seem to be uniformly characterized by a very large amount of glistening mica scales, distributed in a rather sandy dark-colored mass, destitute of coarse materials. They are easily cultivated and highly productive when irrigated, although not unfrequently afflicted with a certain taint of "alkali." This, however, when not too strong or salt, is here readily neutralized by the use of gypsum.

"Alkali" soil is the name used in California to designate any soil containing such unusual quantities of soluble salts as to allow them to become visible on the surface during the dry season, as a white crust or efflorescence. They are of course found in low, level regions, such as the Great Valley, and the plains to seaward of the Coast Range; sometimes in continuous tracts of many thousands of acres, sometimes in spots so interspersed with non-alkaline land as to render it impossible to till one kind without the other. The nature and amount of salts in these soils is of course very variable. Near the coast the alkali is often little more than common salt, and can be relieved only by drainage or appropriate culture. At times we find chiefly magnesian salts, when liming will relieve the trouble. But in the Great Valley the name "alkali" is in most cases justified by the nature of the salt, which almost always contains more or less carbonate of soda, and sometimes potassa. The presence of these substances, even to the extent of a fourth of one per cent., while it may do but little harm during the wet season, results in their accumulation at the surface whenever the rains cease, and the corrosion of the roof-crown, stunting, and final death of the plants. But when stronger, as is often the case, the seed is killed during germination. Moreover, land so afflicted cannot be brought to good tilth by even the most thorough tillage. Fortunately, a very effectual and cheap neutralizer of this, the true alkali, is available in the form of gypsum, which transforms the caustic carbonates into innocent sulphates. Wherever the amount of alkali present is not excessive, the use of gypsum relieves all difficulties arising from the presence of the former. Moreover, analysis shows that in many cases large amounts of important mineral plant food, such as potash, phosphates, and nitrates, accompany the injurious substances: so that when the latter are neutralized, the previously useless soil may be expected to possess extraordinary and lasting fertility. Abundant deposits of gypsum have been shown to exist in many portions of the State since attention has been directed to its importance in this connection.

On the eastern affluents of the Sacramento river, the American, Bear, Yuba, Feather, and other streams heading in the region where hydraulic mining is practiced, a new kind of soil is now being formed out of the materials carried down from the gold-bearing gravels. The enormous masses of detritus washed into the streams, filling their upper valleys to a height of 60 feet and more with bowlders and gravel, while a muddy flood of the finer materials overruns the valley lands in their lower course, having given rise to a great deal of complaint on the part of farmers; and the "mining debris question" has been the subject of numerous lawsuits, and of much angry debate in the legislative halls. In some cases the lands so overrun are definitely ruined; in others the new soil formed is of fair quality in itself, but as yet unthrifty; in many, the best quality of black adobe is covered many feet deep with an unproductive "slum." By the same agency, the beds of the Sacramento and its tributaries have become filled to such an extent as to greatly obstruct navigation and to cause much more frequent overflows, whose deposit, however, appears to improve, in general, the heavy lands of the plain as well as the tules. It is difficult to foresee a solution of this question that would be satisfactory to all parties concerned; the more as the navigation of the bay itself is beginning to suffer from the accumulation of deposit, the reddish sediment-bearing waters of the Sacramento being always distinguishable in front of the city from the blue water brought in by the tides.

Ouray's Report, and the Prospect.

Indian Chief and Commissioner Ouray has returned from his visit to the White River Utes, where he went to secure the Indians engaged in the Massacre of Father Meeker and the other people of the Agency, according to the demand of the Commission—Hatch, Adams and himself—and reports that the Utes of that section had at present declined to surrender them. He had given them until the 22d to comply with the demand. He says that if they shall not be surrendered by that time, he will join in calling for troops to make war upon them, and says that he will aid in war against Chief Douglass, the scoundrel who is believed to have incited and led the attack upon the good Agent Meeker, who had been so friendly and fatherly toward them. Ouray says the feeling among the White River Utes is very strong and bitter against giving up the Indian murderers, and is of opinion that the war faction will prevail. Having done all he could to carry out the peace policy of the Government, and having failed, he is ready now to assist the War Department whenever the war shall commence.

It is barely possible that this result of all the expensive measures taken by the Secretary of the Interior to settle the White River Indian troubles, and mete out punishment to the assassins, may convince him that he does not know everything about the Indians. He may come to the conclusion that the military men have a better knowledge of the character of the Utes than he has, and that when they have deliberately, and as with one voice determined upon assassination and robbery, and carried that resolution into practice, they will not readily consent to give up their companions for trial and punishment for a crime in which they all participated and are equally guilty. They would be worse than Indians if they did. It is honorable for them to do so, rather than save their own necks by yielding their kindred as offerings of punishment. Better have let the military settle the question at once, while they were upon the ground and the Indians within striking distance. It would have been cheaper, and perhaps more merciful. The army has evidently got to do it at last, and all the dangerous negotiations amount to nothing-practical.—S. F. Alta, Dec. 27.

EATING DOGS FLESH.—Hard times in Berlin have led to dog stealing and dog eating by the hungry poor. Plump terriers have mysteriously disappeared in considerable numbers. The fate reserved for these domestic pets was unsuspected by the general public until a distressing incident, which happened to Prince Henry XII, of Reuss, revealed the ghastly truth. His Highness had lost a poodle of extraordinary talent, which, alas! was as portly of body as it was intelligent of mind. He offered a handsome reward to any one who would restore his favorite, and "no questions asked," but in vain. Day after day passed in sorrow unbroken by any hopeful tidings, until one fatal morning the Prince received a postal card, unsigned, but bearing the following heartless inscription: "Serenity! The poodle sends his respects, and begs to inform your Highness that he has been eaten."

"HAVE you any boned turkey?" asked a hungry customer in a Nevada restaurant. The proprietor laid his hand on his revolver and cried: "No insinuations here, young man! We're honest here, and don't 'bone, nothin'."

AN old farmer, whose zeal at grace was hardly sufficient to repress his appetite, used to end his prayer in the following unpunctuated manner: "And bless us for Christ's sake Joe pass the potatoes."

Chocolate in the Rough.

The cacao tree is about as long in attaining its growth as the orange tree; it may produce in the third year from the seed, but does not reach its full bearing period until the age of seven or eight. It is a tender plant during the first stages of its growth, and like the coffee, must be shaded by some broad leaved plant, like the plantain or banana, which, of quicker growth, are set out near the seed at the time of planting. Heat and moisture are indispensable to its existence, but one without the other proves fatal to its growth. Once started in life with an acre or so of cacao trees, the negro asks for nothing more; his wife and children gather the harvest, and he enjoys an idle existence as only a negro knows how. The fruit of the cacao resembles somewhat an overripe cucumber about six inches in length, oval and pointed. Many of the pods grow right out of the trunk of the tree, hanging by short stems, and remind one of tailless rats. Some are green, some yellow, crimson, or purple, some variegated by veins of different colors. Each pod is divided into five longitudinal cells containing a sweetish, agreeable pulp, in which are enveloped the seeds, from twenty to thirty in number—a white, pulpy substance in a thin shell. When the first is mature it is gathered and the seeds removed and dried. Sometimes they are buried in sand or dry earth, for the purpose of absorbing the moisture and pulp. Great care is necessary in curing them, as they mold easily, and the planters generally provide large platforms on wheels on which the seeds are spread, which they run out from under shelter on sunshiny days. The native method of preparing chocolate from the seeds is to roast them and grind finely on a warm, smooth stone. When well kneaded it forms a tenacious paste which, with the addition of a little sugar, is made into small rolls or sticks. —From "Camps in the Carribbees."

THE workmen at the Virginia & Truckee machine shops in Carson have lately been making experiments to ascertain how much electricity is generated by the machinery. Harry Rice, who runs the Corliss engine, has found "dead loads" of electricity in the big belt which runs over the driving wheel. It is over a foot wide and runs at a high speed. By holding the hand within about four inches of the belt a pricking sensation is observable, and on nearing the belt another inch slender lines of electric fire play between the belt and the finger ends. These streams of light appear to be drawn from the finger to the belt, but probably go the other way, as electricity always travels from a body overcharged with the fluid to one which carries a less quantity. In the night a blue halo mingled with white lines of fire surrounds a hand held under the belt, and a crackling sound is heard. Two or three hands held near the belt generate light enough to read a letter by. Mr. Rice draws off the electricity in a Leyden jar, and invites callers to handle the same. One man was so shocked by a discharge from the jar that he staggered back against the wall like one paralyzed. The apex of the jar had been held under the belt about five minutes in order to collect so much electricity. Rice is making experiments and thinks he can light the shops with the electricity generated by the machinery.—Virginia Chronicle.

THROUGH the politeness of Mr. H. H. Dickinson, owner of the Lake District and Round Valley Toll Road, the Times is enabled to give a few facts concerning the same: The road has never been in better condition than at present, the late storms having a tendency to pack and harden the otherwise loose, sandy soil, making the road as smooth as a waxed floor. The snow only extends to a point half a mile below Mineral Park. Mr. D. has been busy for the past few days in constructing bridges at Rock Creek, having built four bridges in that locality, which for strength and durability are said to be par excellence. He has also the material on the way for the erection of a bridge at the old saw mill, which will be pushed to completion with all posible speed. Mr. D. is determined that the road shall be not only passable, but that no one shall have a chance to growl—which will be the height of perfection.—Mammoth Times.

THE catfish planted in Tulare Lake two years ago by the Government Fish Commissioner have increased considerably in numbers. A few of them have been caught in the streams of Kern county, but we had not heard of any being seen in this county till a few days ago. The heavy rains of the past few days caused the streams to rise and fill all the irrigating ditches, and last Monday Ed. Van Valer caught one of these fish in his garden, that had come down his irrigating ditch. He took it to the dam at the flour mill and turned it into mill creek.—Visalia Delta.

THE Chinese are said to be crowding into the Sandwich Islands. The treaty of reciprocity with the United States has given a wonderful impetus to the cultivation of the sugar cane, and this has drawn to the islands large numbers of Chinese as laborers. The native population are a lazy, worthless race, and the Chinese are rapidly marrying the native women, and it is hoped will greatly improve the breed.

"DOES he know anything?" anxiously inquired a friend, bending over the body of a man who had just fallen from the roof of a house. "Don't know, I'm sure," the physician replied. "He never did know anything, but you can't tell what effect the fall may have had upon him until he regains consciousness,"

SATURDAY, JANUARY 3.....1880

THE railroad accident at Dundee Scotland, on 28th ultimo, is one of the most horrible we have ever been called upon record. A train of cars, with no less than 315 persons on board, was suddenly launched into the river from a bridge which had been blow down in the center, and engulphed in 45 feet of water. The descent was so unlooked for and sudden that not a living soul on board escaped. The locomotive and cars doubtless went to the bottom of the Tay like lead, and there was no chance for any of the passengers to try and save themselves. A hurricane was blowing at the time, and the presumption is that the great gap had been made in the bridge before the cars came along. The gap in the bridge was a half a mile long, comprising eleven of the longest spans, each about 245 feet in length, and one span 145 feet in length. The distance from where the train went over to the water was 88 feet. The bridge was two miles long and it had 85 spans. Just imagine a train in full motion, loaded with human freight, plunging into such a chasm at the dead of a stormy night!. This railroad accident stands unprecedented. Nothing of the kind has ever before occurred in which some one was not left to tell the tale. No doubt the British authorities will make a rigid examination into this dreadful affair, but it seems to have been one that no human foresight could have provided against.

THE annual issue of Prof. Tice's Weather Forecasts and American Almanac for 1880 is this year greatly improved, both as to extent and variety of contents, and mechanical execution and appearance. A first edition of over 20,000 copies was called for, we learn, in less than eight days of its appearance, and a second and larger edition was put to press at once. The work, in addition to the usual contents of a complete almanac, and also a number of elaborate scientific dissertations touching weather forecasts, cyclones, the plague, etc., contains a great many things relating to practical, every-day matters, such as the amount of pork from a given weight of feed, comparative differences of various kinds of feed, planting, interest, measuring and other similar tables and useful facts. A copy can be procured by inclosing 20 cents to Thompson, Tice & Lillingston, St. Louis, Mo.

HAVING been asked to speak at a meeting in Washington, in aid of the scheme to colonize negroes from North Carolina in Indiana, Fred. Douglass answered in this manner: "I cannot but repeat the opinion, already often expressed, that all organized efforts at the North designed to prompt and promote further stampedes of this sort, should be discontinued. These poor people should not be deluded and allured from their homes, especially at this season of the year, by promise, expressed or implied, of pecuniary aid. I see no wisdom, but much folly, no good, but much evil in bringing to this city multitudes of these people under the impression that when they reach here money will be raised and furnished them to pay their traveling expenses to the North, or to the West, or elsewhere."

ON Monday next begins the twenty-third session of the California Legislature, the first under the new Constitution, and which is to continue its labors for one hundred days. It is to hoped that the revision committee appointed by Governors Irwin and Perkins will, through their reports and drafts of bills necessary to conform the codes to the new instrument, pave the way for comparatively easy and intelligent legislation. But it is hard to tell upon what line of action the new Solons may hit upon; confusion may be left worse confounded.

THE palatial residence of ex-Senator Stewart, of Nevada, formerly of Panamint, but now of Bodie, took fire on the evening of the 30th ultimo, from a defective flue, and was completely gutted. It was a handsome structure, and was familiarly known as "Stewart's Castle in Washington."

GOLD has been discovered on Goose Creek, near Hawk's Corners, and about 18 miles from Lodi, San Joaquin county. So far it pays 25 cents to the pan.

THE train which was precipitated into the Frith of Tay, Scotland, on the 28th ultimo, has not yet been found. Six bodies have been reported recovered.

GEO. M. PINNEY'S suit against C. F. McGlashan, editor of the Truckee Republican, has been dismissed.

THE small-pox has broken out in Amador county.

THE MAINE BUSINESS.

It would not be in the least surprising that the next breeze that swoops down on us from the "way down East State of Maine," brought the clash of resounding arms. Certain it is that the so-called "Maine muddle" has assumed a phase of a decidedly warlike character. Intense excitement, said to be growing daily stronger, prevails in every part of the State.

The cause for all this is stated to be as follows: It seems that the Supreme Court of that State has always in its decisions held the validity of elections down to the strictest conformity with all the technicalities of the law. This rule has been carried out to such an absurd extent that it is deemed to be a practical impossibility to hold an election in that State in which declared results may not be reversed if subjected to the test of these hair-splitting decisions.

Parties in that State this year consist, nominally of but two, viz: Republicans and Fusionists, the latter being a combination of Democrats and Greenbackers. Last year these were separate organizations, each with its own candidate for the Governorship. By a peculiar train of circumstances and force of a still more peculiar law of that State, a Republican Legislature, in default of an election by the people, was, that year, compelled to choose a Governor from the ranks of one or the other of their opponents. In that way, Garcelon, a Democrat, became Governor, though he was in fact the representative of a party which for its general ticket polled the lightest vote of the three. The recollection of these facts tends to intensify Republican feeling in the matters now before the public.

At the late election the Republicans carried the election by considerable majorities, both for State officers and Legislators. The Fusionists alleged at once that it was done by bull-dozing, bribery and all manner of frauds. An investigation was immediately set on foot to get at the bottom facts of these sweeping allegations, probably with the view of instituting legal proceedings to change results as affecting party supremacy in the State Government. As the Supreme Court decisions, as before stated, and the statutes under them, were particularly well calculated to give encouragement to that mode of redress on proper grounds for undertaking it, it is reasonable to suppose that the inquiry did not reveal anything of sufficient moment to legally sustain those allegations. At all events, no such proceedings were instituted.

Garcelon and his abettors adopted another and surer plan to attain their ends. This was by resolving himself and Council into an unscrupulous Returning Board, that of Louisiana serving both as a model and as a justification. As such Board, they began by denying access to any of the returns on file, either for the purpose of correction, comparison, information on which to frame a defense, or for any other purpose whatever. This being something quite new in the political history of that State, indignation and alarm began to develop at once among the Republicans, although the act itself was not in excess of the Governor's strictly technical powers under the law. His defense, in addition, was that to do otherwise would be to incur the chances of having the returns doctored to suit the purposes of those desiring to make such inspection. This broad intimation by the Governor that he believed his opponents to be scoundrels did not tend to smooth the way for his counting out scheme, which but lately became an accomplished fact.

When so accomplished, the counting out footed up thus: A Republican majority of 7 in the Senate and 29 in the House was changed to a Fusion majority of 9 in the Senate and 17 in the House, and five Republican towns—Portland, Lewiston, Bath, Rockland, and Saco—absolutely disfranchised and denied the right of even a new election. To aggravate the feelings of the counted out parties still further, it turns out that the returns from every Fusionist precinct in the State affecting the legislative status in the least were found by this model Returning Board to be all as straight as a shingle.

So far as yet appears, the grounds for all this most extraordinary proceeding are of this sort: In one instance that the signatures of three of the signers to one set of returns were written by one and the same person—an assumption subsequently denied under oath by the Selectmen in question; in another, throwing out the vote of the city of Portland, because the word "scattering" was used to cover a few votes, of themselves not sufficient to change results, no matter where credited; in another, because the names on the ballots were printed in two columns instead of one; in another, that the sum total of all the votes (of Farmington) were not correctly added up, though the error did not amount to enough to effect results shown by the separate columns, or minor totals. So far as reported, all the remaining pretexts for counting in so many minority candidates, were precisely of the same flimsy character.

We have here given a true outline of the now much talked-of "Maine muddle," so far as can be done in so few words, and in accordance with all the facts yet presented. We do so, believing this of itself comparatively insignificant transaction in partisan sharp practice involves some momentous national political results; and, in any case, it is bound to demand too large a share of public attention for some time to come for anyone not to take some interest in it, one way or the other. We will now simply add by way of opinion that unless Garcelon and his co-parceners can offer a better justification or defense for this transaction than has yet appeared, they will, ere long, be as bitterly denounced as fools by many of their own party as they now are condemned as scoundrels by their partisan opponents.

THE ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

We are informed by certain scientific gentlemen, but whose names we don't happen to know, that on the 11th of this month the moon will do her utmost to hide old Sol completely from our view—in other words, on that day there will occur a total eclipse of the sun, consequently things will appear frightfully shady to those persons who do not subscribe for their local paper, therefore won't know what is the matter. Some three months ago we alluded to this same expected event, saying that our own section offered superior facilities for observing this burnt cork show of old Sol's in all its elaborateness. We are now pleased to learn that instead of this town of Independence being some little distance from the central line of totality, as then stated, it is almost exactly on the said central line. So our local scientists will have rather more time than anybody to make scientific observations.

The eclipse will be invisible east of a line drawn through St. Joseph, Missouri, and Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Visible to the western quarter of North America, the Pacific ocean and extreme northern edge of Australia—being central and total along a line distant twenty miles south of and parallel to a line drawn through Monterey in this State, thence east to Salt Lake City. That statement we find in an exchange. Assuming it and our maps to be correct, Monterey is from 15 to 20 miles north of this place, therefore the central line running east and west will strike through between this place and Georges Creek. The eclipse will come on here at about 12 minutes before 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and hold on more or less complete till after sundown. This will be one week from to-morrow—set for a Sunday "so as to give the hired men a chance to rest," as a certain pious old lady used to pray with reference to the best time for rain. We are further given to understand that the moon will hold her place between the earth and sun all the long night through for that portion of the earth extending from California to Australia, the sun, at Victoria in the latter country, rising on the morning of the 12th partially eclipsed and continuing so for fifteen minutes more or less.

Next year we are to have no less than six eclipses of the sun and two of the moon, and of one or more Presidential aspirants.

Two murderers in the jail at Monmouth, Ill., are peculiar moralists. They are a man and a women, and they killed the woman's husband. The man made a failure of suicide, after writing a confession in which he said: "I am not a bit sorry for what I did, for God will never punish a man who only does what is in his heart." The woman says: "My only regret is that my husband was such a bad man. I am afraid he has gone to hell. If he had gone to heaven there wouldn't have been any sin in murdering him."

GATHERING abalone shells is getting to be quite an industry in Southern California. These shells are worked into jewelry, buttons, etc., and are getting to be somewhat scarce and rather high, bringing readily $55 per ton. Several small schooners are engaged in gathering the shells on the lower coast where they are most plentiful.

IT will get so after awhile, the Atlanta Constitution thinks, that when a man wants to be elected President, or anything of that kind, he will be compelled to buy a controlling interest in all the railroads in the country.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 22.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The American eagle has gone to rest until the 6th of January, 1880, and many of the American statesmen, who have been twisting its tail to make it screech, have folded their tents, like the Arabs, and silently stolen—away. When they have felt the pulse of their constituents, and learned just how the President's legal-tender "pleasant purgative pellet" has operated, they will return to the National Capital, and to use the classic language of a frontier statesman, "make Rome howl."

Now that the intrigue and war of factions are temporarily suspended in the halls of Congress, nothing occurs to ruffle the smooth sea of legislation, save now and then a little spurt of eloquence from Garfield, or a ripple of mirth from the humorous and rotund Horr, of Michigan. We had a sample of the latter on Wednesday, when the Committee of Agriculture reported a resolution, to be entrusted to the Legislatures of the several States, proposing an amendment to the Constitution granting to Congress power to pass all necessary laws in relation to trade-marks. Some of its members spoke in favor of its reference to the Judiciary Committee, when the jolly Horr, with great deliberation and apparent seriousness, informed them that he was a member of that committee; that, so far as he could learn, this was the only child ever born to that committee, and he did not want to see it strangled at its birth. Little Sam. Cox, of New York, who aspires to be the chief jester of the House, threw some jokes at the venerable humorist from Michigan, which called from him a volley of broad, good-natured humor that started a grin, then a giggle, which finally broke into a roar of laughter and clapping of hands, which the Speaker's gavel could neither abate nor silence.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON MILITIA

Are considering the subject of revising the militia laws of the United States, which have not been revised since the original enactments of 1792. If the National militia were to be armed and equipped to-day in accordance with the law as it now is, the soldiers would have a flint lock and a powder horn, and the officers a sword something like a pruning-hook.

There is no city in the United States where one can find collected together so many scientific and literary men as in Washington. As a consequence of this there are a number of scientific and literary societies at the National Capital, whose intellectual feasts are not always prosy and speculative, but often instructive and entertaining, For instance, this week the "Anthropological Society" met and listened to an interesting paper on "turtle back celts," with which the Utes dig roots and herbs for medicine, and a discussion on cannibalism, in which the opinion was general that cannibalism never did exist among the North American Indians, and that such ideas were repugnant to them. As twelve of these bloody savages are to visit Washington soon, the vindication of their forefathers by these solemn scientists will doubtless be highly gratifying to these anti-cannibals, and give such assurance to the "timid creachas" at the Capital that they will not be chawed up like a sirloin steak in the jaws of an alligator, that they will get up a "boom" for their reception. As Ouray, the chief of the Utes, receives $1,000 per annum from the United States under a treaty, his efforts to submit the guilty to trial, rather than trust to the hazards of war and the loss of his stipend, shows that the "poor Indian" is actuated by the same motives that are so potent with the bad white men.

The completion, by Mr. Andrews, of his copy of Sully's

PORTRAIT OF ANDREW JACKSON,

In the Corcoran Gallery, and its delivery at the White House, completes, with two exceptions, the portrait gallery of Presidents at the Executive Mansion. Those of Buchanan and Andrew Johnson are still wanting. It is advocated by one of the Washington papers that the portraits of the wives of the Presidents should also adorn the walls of the White House. At present there are but two who are accorded this honor—Mrs. Tyler and Martha Washington, the latter of which hangs by the side of Gen. Washington. If a President should happen to be a widower three or four times, posterity might look at the group and brand him as a villainous Mormon.

The constant changes of dress and costume which fashion induces, renders the pictures of ladies of all countries and ages much more attractive than those of their husbands, even though their faces may be as uninteresting as the blank wall on which they are hung, and we venture to say that the portrait of Mrs. Madison, owing to the lead she took in fashion, would invite more comment to-day from visitors to the White House than the combined pictures of the Presidents, arrayed in their solemn, unvarying black.

One day this week the usual throng of distinguished visitors at the White House was broken by a whole seminary and four or five bridal couples calling. X. Y. Z.

Western Nevada Railroad.

Our well-informed contemporary, the Mammoth City Herald, in a late issue, thus indulges in paper railroad building:

Articles of incorporation were filed on the 15th instant for a narrow gauge railroad to run from Wadsworth to Walker Lake, passing through Washoe, Lyon, Churchill and Esmeralda counties. The capital stock is $500,000, and is divided into 5,000 shares. The Board of Directors is composed of good men, with two of whom we are personally acquainted, J.W. Holmes and A. J. Rhodes of Belleville, both of whom are men of great energy, and when they put their shoulders to the wheel something is very apt to move. Both of the gentlemen named are pioneers in the portion of the county through which the road is to be built, and know the resources thereof. The road as now proposed is only to be run as far as Walker Lake, a distance of fifty-five miles. But even should this incorporation run it no farther, it is a starter toward opening up one of the richest mineral countries in the States of California and Nevada. The mountains surrounding the lake are rich in the precious metals, and to the south and west there is an abundance of argentiferous ores, and the hills abound with copper ledges. While it is true that some of the lead-silver ores are of rather low grade, it is no less the fact that some of the richest base metal ledges in either Nevada or California are to be found in the region south and west of Walker Lake; but the lack of cheap transportation, the scarcity of water and in some places the want of fuel for reduction purposes have been the great causes of so little work having been done. Then again there are immense areas of ground covered with the finest salt and borax marshes, with enough of these most valuable articles in sight to supply this part of the country for an indefinite period, but which for want of a railroad cannot be put upon the market at as low a figure as it can be done from other places nearer the Central Pacific. As we have already remarked, there are immense quantities of lead and copper ores, but the low prices ruling for these articles during the past two years, and the difficulties and cost of getting them to market, have been the main causes of the non-development of the mines. The country through which the road is to be run will require but little grading, as it avoids all of the high mountains; and there is an abundance of timber on or near the whole line. It could also be extended southerly through the valleys passing by way of New Boston and Rhodes' salt marsh to Belleville, Candelaria and Columbus; thence skirting the Eastern side of the famous White Mountain range, which is well known to contain almost inexhaustible quantities of the baser metals, as well as lead-silver and base-gold ores, by way of Fish Lake Valley to Alida Valley, thus opening up Silver Peak, Montezuma, Log Springs, Deep Springs, Sylvania, Death Valley and the many other districts in the vicinity and the vast mineral region south to the Mojave, thus making it a grand trunk with branches extending westerly by easy passes to the Benton and Indian District mines; thence to this place. A branch line could also be built down the valley between the White Mountains and the Sierras through the fertile lands of Bishop Creek and Owens River, skirted on both sides by mountains rich in gold and silver, passing in close proximity to the rich gold and silver mines of Cerro Gordo, Beveridge, Old Coso, Slate Range, Panamint, Lookout and Searles' Borax Works to a connection with the Southern Pacific Railroad, thus affording both a northern and southern outlet for this vast rich but almost unexplored country. Should this be done, and there is no reason why it should not, it would open up one of the most promising portions of this western country, and every mile of the road could be put upon a paying basis immediately upon its completion. We wish the company who have this great enterprise in hand the most unbounded success.

SUICIDE.—The Bodie Standard of December 29 has the following sad item concerning a former resident of this place, who was for a long time in the employ of Al. Rose:

Lawrence L. Homer, discover of the Homer District mines on Mill Creek, twenty-miles southwest of Bodie, committed suicide in San Francisco, on Christmas night. On Christmas evening he told his wife good bye at the Hancock House on Mission street, and went away. About 7 o'clock next morning his body was discovered lying on Union street, near Van Ness avenue, with a bullet hole in his head and his revolver with one barrel discharged lying near him. The body was quite cold. That morning Mrs. Homer received a note in the hand writing of the deceased, to the effect that he left all of his effects to her. He was a native of the United States, 32 years of age. Financial troubles are supposed to have led him to commit the rash act.

A PERCEPTIBLE change of front is visible in the Democratic newspapers, concerning the Maine crime. Some of those which were at first disposed to defend it are now condemning it, and some which have not hitherto been able to express any opinion have found voice against it. Thus the Buffalo Courier grievously belied its well-earned reputation for fairness by upholding the outrage when it was first announced, but it vindicated itself now by declaring that "great partisan wrong" seems to have been committed. The Courier-Journal is enabled, by its warm devotion to Tilden, to see that this Maine transaction completely silences the Democratic cry of fraud, and declares boldly that the act is suicidal, and that the Democratic press of the country must "wholly repudiate" it or the party will be ruined. These are honest confessions, but they come a little too late. If the repudiating had been done before the crime was committed, there might have been some use in it; but, though the crime was known to be decided upon weeks before it was committed, there was scarcely any Democratic protest against it from any quarter. It was looked upon as a good joke. Condemnation comes now only when it is discovered that the joke is bound to react disastrously on its perpetrators.—N. Y. Tribune.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, JANUARY 3.....1880

GOT NIPPED.—We have been hearing a great deal here of late of the desperate measures to which the good people of Leadville, Colorado, had finally to resort to rid themselves of the legions of cutthroats and robbers who had been terrorizing that region for months previously. After almost a general battle, the Vigilantes finally got so much the better of the desperados as to make life and property about as secure now in Leadville as in any large mining town. But to show how bold the robbers were, we need but describe what they did to our old friend, ex-Sheriff A. B. Elder, who has been for some months past, and is now running a set of furnaces in Leadville. While standing one night near the Company's office door and within eighty feet of the furnaces where twenty men were at work, a gang of the robbers closed in on him, and "holding him up," relieved him of some $450 without the least unnecessary ceremony. Yet Elder is not at all the kind of a man to stand being "held up," only when it is obvious to himself that such submission is just what circumstances imperatively demand.

FINE.—If the weather for the first day of the new year is to be accepted as a fair sample of that which is to prevail through the remainder, "it's a moighty foine sayson we'll be afther havin'." Its brightness, stillness and warmth, though by no means exceptionable for Winter weather in this region, was all the more noticeable and appreciable by reason of the unusually cold and boisterous character of that which ruled so imperiously and disagreeably during the preceding week. Through the warmer hours of New Year's Day, the mercury in the shade stood above 50°. If the press dispatches tell the truth, the good people, also the bad, away up in Wisconsin and thereabouts, exist after a fashion with the mercury marking 48° below zero, or nearly a hundred degrees lower than ours here for an average Winter day.

TEXT BOOKS.—In connection with a late article in this paper concerning the school text book matter, as provided for in the new Constitution, Charles Keppler, Esq., of George's Creek, suggests as follows: "It strikes me that it would not be difficult to come to a satisfactory conclusion as to the choice of a series of text books, provided that parents—whose interest it is to have their offspring properly instructed—are called to meet with said Supervisors and County Superintendent, and give their opinions. I am convinced that amongst those who have families can be found as much common and valuable sense as among our officers as a whole." Mr. Keppler's ideas are sound, and if practically carried out would divest the text book controversy of much of the unadulterated jobbery which now characterizes it.

MINING SALE.—Yesterday deeds were recorded conveying to Chas. J. Barber 1,000 feet in the Gold Hill mine and the whole or 1,500 feet of the Lucky Joe mine. The selling party is Joseph Diaz, and the consideration $15,000. The property is situated about a mile and a quarter northwest from Cerro Gordo, and is probably best known as the Palma gold mine. This sale is under what was known as the "Barber bond." We shall next week essay a description of the mine, so that our readers may have a fair understanding at the start of a property destined to furnish many items hereafter and a steady yield of gold from and after the completion of reduction works.

IN TOWN.—Uncle Billy Walker, of Olancha, who claims to have made a "mash" in certain high circles.... Wm. Barrows, of San Francisco and formerly of Cerro Gordo, is also here.... Chas. J. Barber, formerly of the Modock, but now operating in Cerro Gordo, left here for the latter point this morning.... Peter Taylor, of the Beveridge country, was in town last Thursday; his new mill is to start up "in about ten days," and certainly promises a big showing for the gold quartz interests of Inyo.

THANKS.—The managers of the Lone Pine Dramatic Society request us to publicly express their sincere and appreciative thanks to those who so well assisted them in getting ready the hall, stage and fixtures for their recent exhibition. The favors and courtesies received will be remembered by the company and duly reciprocated upon the first opportunity.

A GOOD WAGON.—The attention of farmers and teamsters is directed to the advertisement of Curt Harvey, offering for sale cheap a fine new wagon. The workmanship is first-class and is vastly more durable than if the parts were put together in any other climate.

STAR SALOON.—The genial and well-known Billy Hutchings, of Bishop Creek, whose advertisement appears in this issue, is again in charge of his saloon property. He says that no more leasing goes with him.

THE TIME.—Monday evening next is the time appointed to organize the Good Templar's Lodge for this place. At this writing we cannot designate the place of meeting, but it will be made known to all in time.

DIRECTORY.—The attention of those interested is directed to the new Directory of stated meetings for the ensuing Masonic year, Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M.

COURT.—The new Superior Court is to be formally opened on Monday next, to be always open for business, and in effect remain in continuous session for five years.

FARM FOR SALE.—See notice of a well-improved farm for sale, in one of the best locations in the valley.

The Entertainment.

The theatrical entertainment tendered by the Lone Pine Dramatic Society to the citizens of Independence took place at Mairs' Hall on New Year's Eve. The attendance was quite large, considering that a number were kept away in order to complete preparations for the other festivities to follow. The theatrical entertainment was proposed as a part of the general festivities of the occasion, and as such was appreciated highly and most heartily welcomed, as were each and all of the pleasant young people as guests and visitors. In this regard, and no less so for their successful efforts in amateur theatricals to add to our enjoyments of the occasion, these young ladies and gentlemen from our neighboring town have placed us all under decided obligations.

Two pieces were played, viz: "Simpson & Co." and "Turn Him Out," with casts as follows:

"Simpson & Co."—Jas. Sutcliffe as "Mr. Simpson," Miss Blanche Meysan as "Mrs. Bromley," Miss Minnie Lasky as "Mrs. Simpson," Miss Julia Meysan as "Mrs. Fitzallen," Mike Lasky as "Mr. Bromley," Miss Mary Meysan as "Madam Lattrya," and Relles Carrasco as "Foster." "Simpson & Co." is not a play of striking effects or denouements, and none but those who can play its every part with that perfect abandon, which rarely comes except by long practice, can hope to make a play of its verbose type a very brilliant success. Nevertheless, there are but few unpracticed or strictly amateur players who, together, can present it any more pleasingly than did our young friends on this occasion. No prompting was necessary in any part, most of which were rendered quite naturally and and easily, therefore very well. In this respect we think Miss Blanche Meysan and Mike Lasky did rather the best.

In the interlude, Miss Julia Meysan, aided by her sisters in a chorus, and with an organ accompaniment, sang a song in a manner and voice to show that she is a remarkably fine singer for one so young.

The farce, "Turn Him Out," was then presented with this cast: Paul Houard, "McIntosh Moke," Mrs. A. C. Harvey, "Mrs. Moke," Jas. Sutcliffe, "Roseleaf," Miss Minnie Lasky, "Susan," and W. B. Harvey, "Snobs." Snobs and Susan both made good hits, while McIntosh was credited with having "done well," and the whole play as being very pleasingly rendered.

A number of songs and by-plays in the original programme as first played a week previously at Lone Pine, were omitted for fear some of the audience might think it would be trenching too much on their ball-room time, set for the same evening.

RACES.—New Year's day, Independence Track, considerable fun. A 600-yard race having been arranged, the winner to take purse, pools and entrance money, following entries were made: Black Nell, by Fields; Blackbird, by Dee Gill; True Blue, by Tommy Kehoe, and Victor, by Jimmy Graham. A fair start was had and the four came tearing down the track in a bunch, Victor slightly ahead; but as he is a young animal and having decided convictions of his own in some matters, at about a hundred yards from the outcome he sought to leave the crowd, fly the track, as it were, but was pulled in by Jimmy and whipped up to the front. Taking the lead he came up half a length ahead until within eight or ten feet of the wire, where he wheeled about and sailed through a small gate at the side of the judge's stand, to the imminent risk of his rider's neck and to the wonderment of all as to his sublime mulishness. The three others passed through, Black Nell first, Blackbird second and True Blue last, in close order.

F. & A. M.—The following officers of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., were duly installed into their respective offices last Saturday evening, to serve during the ensuing year: A. R. Conklin, W. M.; J. W. Smith, S. W.; J. C. Irwin, J. W.; O. I. Mairs, Treasurer; H. M. Isaacs, Secretary; John Shepherd, S. D.: G. W. Brady, J. D.; P. A. Chalfant, Tyler; T. F. A. Connelly and H. P. Cartier. Stewards, and James E. Parker, Marshal. The installation was public, concluding with a neat address by the W. M., followed by the spread of a fine collation in the lodge room, which, with the preceding ceremonies, was enjoyed by quite a number of ladies and gentlemen guests. It was a very pleasant affair.

THE BALL.—The ball in the court-room on New Year's Eve was the most brilliant, most agreeable and participated in by a larger number, especially of the younger votaries of Terpsy, than any we have had here for several years. The music (five pieces), under the lead of Curt. Ober, was just first rate. Big Pine, Black Rock, Georges Creek, Lone Pine, Olancha and the country around, each sent several excellent and highly welcome representatives, and to these much is due for the pleasure and success of the festive occasion.

COUNTY FUNDS.—At the monthly examination of Funds in the County Treasury, December 31, by the County Judge and Auditor, there was found in warrants redeemed $674 83; certificates of deposit for $4,918 68, and cash, $293 41—balancing with the Auditor's demand of $5,886 92.

NOT KNOWN.—One of the striking beauties of the New Novel under which the great State of California is now politically existing, is the fact up to the present time no one really knows who will, after next Monday, be Sheriff, District Attorney, Treasurer or Assessor of this county.

SCHOOL.—Two weeks from Monday next concludes the half term of the public school in this place, at which time Mrs. May, pursuant to her own desire, will give place as teacher to Mr. Daniel Crough, who will conclude the term.

SERVICES TO-MORROW. — Sunday school at half-past 1, and preaching in the evening at the usual hour by Rev. F. M. Willis.

LETTER FROM MAMMOTH.

MAMMOTH CITY, Dec. 30.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Perhaps a line from the Alpine regions of Mammoth City will look well in the columns of your paper, as times and things in general have materially changed since my last letter.

THE WEATHER.

On the 19th instant the snow began to fall and the wind blew viciously. For four days and nights the storm raged with unmerciful violence, and everything stood still except the human pulse. For nine days we had no communication from the outside world. Notwithstanding the persistent efforts of the contractors to bring in the mail, yet no mail came. On the 24th the storm calmed down and the question arose in regard to the rider, Wm. Haines, who was expected in on the 19th, and who failed. Messrs. Bullis and Bowen were dispatched on snow shoes over the route to ascertain his whereabouts if possible. They arrived at Dead Man's Station, 13 miles north of here, but no rider was there. They then pushed on, and when about one-half mile beyond the station they found the rider, whose story is as follows: At 2 o'clock on the 19th he left King's Station, on Mono Lake, hoping to reach Dead Man's Station by night; but the storm raged so furiously that night overtook him three miles beyond that place and his mule was completely worn out and refused to go. He was therefore compelled to stop, which he did. He unsaddled the mule and put the saddle and mail bag up in a tree, and proceeded on his course. He had not proceeded far when he became very cold and tired, and stopped, built a fire, intending to remain over night; here he stayed two days and nights, when his fire went out. He began to freeze, and summoning all the energy he possessed, pushed on and reached the place where Bullis and Bowen found him, having stayed there two nights. His last day's journey amounted to a distance of ten feet. When he was found he was lying on a half blanket, and said that he had just prayed that he might go to sleep and never awake. His feet were frozen above the ankles, and his hands frozen up to the wrists. After five days' hard labor he was conveyed to Mammoth, where he receives medical attendance, and it is hoped he will not lose his limbs. Reports are that another man, who left here on the 19th for Bodie, is also lost, his track having been seen in the vicinity of Dead Man's Station. Two men who were working on the True Blue, viz: Thos. Tregono and Youlton, came off shift at 3 o'clock on the morning of the 20th, and have never been seen since, and it is the general verdict that they are lost on the east side of Mineral Hill somewhere. It is now fine weather and coasting on snow shoes is the rage, and Mammoth avenue is full of men, women, boys and girls, gliding down in away that would make Snowshoe Thompson ashamed of himself.

There is no road to come into this place now except by way of Bishop Creek, there having been two large ox teams, three mule teams and two small horse teams gone out that way since the storm. To-morrow Mr. Blackmore, the mail contractor, starts to Bishop with the mail.

Where is Frank Hutch? We will all want beef soon. THE DUMP.

MY son, enjoy yourself. Have a good time; pleasure is eminently right and proper, but a good time isn't secured by a headache that lasts all the next day. The simple pleasures are the most lasting. After you have spent two years in Europe, you will come back and sit down by your own fireside and think of a picnic you went to down at the Cascade one afternoon in June, that cost you just sixty-five cents. The "good time" that you darn't take your wife to, my son, that you would lie about rather than have your sister know about them, the "goodness" of them comes back to refresh you and gladden your heart as does the memory of that sixty-five cent picnic, when you chattered nonsense with the girl you loved, and laughed just as the leaves rustled, because you couldn't help it. The "good time" that awakes in the morning and wonders where it was and who saw it, and where all its money is gone; the good time that tails itself off with a headache, there's precious little fun in that. And it only takes a very little bitterness of that kind to poison and cloud the memory of the past. It doesn't take any such good times, to mingle tears with your bread, and gall with your drink. The sting is the smallest part of the bee, but when you pick him up by it, though the rest of the bee were as large as an omnibus horse, yet would the sting outweigh all the good, sweet, harmless, honey-laden portion of the bee, and you would think about it oftener and longer.—Hawkeye.

A MAN named Watson went down into the Star of the West mine at Como last Tuesday. In a drift on the 50-foot level, and about 40 feet from the shaft, he came upon a heap of dunnage which he prospected with good results. The first thing he found was a roll of blankets, musty and rotten with age. Next he came upon two suits of clothes, then pieces of harness and a razor and brush, a Seth Thomas clock with tin dial and wooden cases, a Bible marked Mary Jane Divenney, Sugar Creek, Armstrong county, Pa., one Sargent's Standard Speaker, marked J. J. Stanley, June 6, 1863, a Webster's High School Dictionary and a copy of the census of 1860. The Bible was printed in 1850, and the other books in 1860. The razor was spotted with rust. The wooden frame dropped off the clock before it could be got to the surface. It was wound up and started off as regular as "My Grandfather's Clock," and has run ever since. It was run down when Watson found it. He is making a case for it and intends to keep it for a curiosity. It wore better than the books, which were very musty and the backs dropped off. The different articles had been placed there fifteen years ago.—Reno Gazette.

THE commencement of crushing at the Noonday mill, which occurred yesterday, is an auspicious event in the history of Bodie. Up to this time the milling facilities of the district have been behind the development of the mines, and until those of the Noonday were set to work, not to exceed fifty-four stamps have ever been employed here. The last acquisition is a thirty-stamp, and has a crushing capacity of 100 tons per day. It is anticipated that the Noonday rock will yield between $25 and $30 per ton on the average, and as there is plenty of it, the good effect of the enterprise must be felt all along the line.—Bodie Free Press, Dec. 26.

THE stage for Mammoth City, which left here on Monday last, in care of the driver and with two passengers, finally returned on Wednesday evening, after an unsuccessful effort to reach its destination. The men were compelled to cut their way through the snow foot by foot, and, after three days of incessant toil, succeeded in reaching King's ranch, thirty miles away. From there they returned to Bodie, over their beaten track, in one day.—Bodie Standard, Dec. 26.

A STRANGER in Bodie one day last week, in eating a plate of hash at one of the restaurants, being very hungry, unguardedly neglected to chew it carefully, and swallowed a large coat button. They doctored him three days for the pneumonia before he was able to explain. Then they fed him a big button hole tied to a string and fished it out in no time. He screens all his hash now very carefully before eating. —Gold Hill News.

A LETTER from a British soldier at Cabul, states that one of Yakoob Kahn's Generals told Sir Frederick Roberts that Yakoob Kahn himself signed the death warrant of the Embassy, and ordered the bodies of the murdered men to be dragged through the streets of Cabul. The same letter reiterates the statement that eighty thousand pounds' worth of Russian gold was found in Cabul.

THE mail rider between Bodie and Mammoth City, Wm. Haines, left the latter place on the 20th instant, and was five days in reaching King's ranch. His hands and feet are frozen, and his life is despaired of. He says that the snow between King's and Mammoth is five feet deep on a level.—Bodie Free Press, Dec. 27.

THE zeal of postal authorities in withholding lottery correspondence has had an unexpected result at New York. An enterprise intended to realize funds for building a church has been completely broken up. The Devil will laugh when he hears of this—through the columns of some of our contemporaries.—S. F. Chronicle.

SECRETARY SCHURZ has decided that any time prior to patenting, if land purchased from the Government as agricultural land is found to be more valuable for mineral, all previous proceedings will be canceled and it will be disposed of only under the mining laws.

AND now it is stated, on the authority of Don Cameron, that Gen. Grant has signified his acceptance of the Republican nomination, next year. But he doesn't want much foolishness in the Convention. The nomination must be the next thing to unanimous.—Eureka Sentinel.

IT is asserted that D. F. Verdenal, of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, has gone to New York for the purpose of establishing a similar paper in that city.

IT is said that a pumpkin varnished over will keep for ten years. This is almost impossible, for ten years is one decade.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 3.....1880

ONE of the necessities of a new country is more mail facilities. Mammoth has been neglected shamefully in this respect, and it has been only about two months since the present route to Bodie was established. We need a mail service between this place and Bishop Creek, thence by the Aurora and Independence route to the Southern Pacific Railroad. The shortest way by which our mail can be forwarded to Bishop Creek is, first to Bodie, thence Aurora and Benton, finally reaching Bishop Creek in three days' time. Bishop Creek is the natural source from which we draw our supply of grains, flour, etc., our freight principally comes that way, and as a matter of course a means of speedy communication is necessary. Mr. H. H. Dickinson, of the Lake District and Round Valley Toll Road, informs us that he will charge the contractor no tolls over his road. Now let the business men of Mammoth and Bishop Creek circulate a petition to the Post-office Department asking that such a route be established, send a copy to Round Valley, and thus secure quicker communication with these localities. It is a subject that needs attention, and that right speedily.—Mammoth Times.

WENDELL PHILLIPS says that let him edit the newspapers of a country and he would not care who made its laws. Mr. Phillips is a very clever man, and what he does not know about the English language is not worth knowing; but if he were to go into the newspaper business, he would find that there is more in editing a newspaper than is dreamed of in his philosophy. One thing is certain, that with the opportunity to exercise his pure talent for invective in the columns of a daily paper, he would quickly get himself into such hot water that he would wish that he had never seen the interior of an editorial sanctum.—Eureka Sentinel.

"How long have you lived in America?" asked a schoolmarm yesterday of a small boy.

"Don't know."

"How old are you?"

"Eight years."

"Then you've lived in America eight years, haven't you?"

"But I lived in Empire part of the time."—Carson Appeal.

Now let the laughing hyenas of the Nevada press take down their tails and subside for a little season. They have been giving Bodie a "game" about the prevalence of pneumonia the past two months, but now their occupation is gone. There were no deaths this week and only two last week. This is as healthy a condition as the town could possibly hope for.—Bodie Free Press.

THE retirement of McCrary is the first vacancy that has occurred since Hayes formed his cabinet. The President has managed to secure harmony, either by not being a very positive man himself, or by a fortunate selection of men capable of getting along well with him, and with each other. In Grant's cabinet, during his first term, there were seven changes.

ACCORDING to West End, London, gossip, the libels in Town Talk on Mrs. Langtry and Mrs. Cornwallis West, for which Mr. Rosenburg is undergoing imprisonment, are the work of a rival beauty, who found herself eclipsed by their superior charms. Her father's name appears in the baronet's list, and money and influence were successfully interposed to prevent exposure.

CLERGYMAN—"So I hear you've got married again, Jacob." Jacob—"Ees, sur; I thought as now as Winter was coming on, and Betty she's got one blanket and I got t'other, we might as will make 'em a pair, and be more comfortable like.

LOG-ROLLING in political assemblies is a term introduced by backwoodsmen. When the people clear the aboriginal forests they unite their labor in removing each others' heavy logs.

A MAN may have courage enough to walk right up to the cannon's mouth, and yet not have the courage to hand his wife a letter he has carried in his pocket for a week.

FIVE months of solid fret and worry before he can know his fate—who yearns to be a Presidential candidate with that prospect before him?—N. Y. Tribune.

The Beastly Utes.

CHEYENNE, (Wy. Ter.), Jan. 4.—Now that the Ute delegation under Ouray and their prisoners are en route East through Southern Colorado, the following from the Cheyenne Leader of this date will explain whether they will reach their destination if the people of Colorado can intercept them. The letter is to the Pueble Chieftain:

GREELEY (Col.), Dec. 30.

To the Editor of the Chieftain—DEAR SIR: I arise from a sick bed to state a few facts which you and the people of Colorado demand. We three, captives of the Utes—Mrs. Price, myself and daughter—were all interviewed separately, being put under oath by the officers of the Government to tell our treatment by the Indians, and if they had outraged our persons, and each one of us gave in our testimony in answer in the affirmative against the Indians. I gave in my testimony for the use of the Government, to do with it just as they should see fit. There was nothing said about its being suppressed on either side. I just simply gave my testimony to the Government officers, innocently supposing they knew their duty and would do it. I also thought I had done all that belongs to me to do by telling these officers the sickening and most humiliating misfortune that befall a woman, and if they and the Interior Department have not done their duty by the people of Colorado, it is they who are to blame and not I. On arriving at my home in Greeley I found myself completely broken down in mind and body, and have had a long spell of severe sickness, from which I am just recovering.

Yours, truly,

MRS. N. C. MEEKER.

This direct evidence from Mrs. N. C. Meeker, that herself, daughter and Mrs. Price were outraged by the hostile Utes, has awaked the people to a proper sense of the enormous crimes committed by the hostiles. The people had hoped and were prepared to believe that the persons of the female captives remained unharmed; but the truth is out in full, and the indignation is strong and widespread. It seems fortuitous that Mrs. Meeker's letter was first published in Pueblo, for the Government designs transporting the Indians over the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé road, in order to escape the fury of a prospective mob in Denver. But we mistake the temper of the people of Southern Colorado if they do not capture the hostiles in the band under Gen. Hatch and kill them instantly. It is not improbable that the publication of Mrs. Meeker's letter in Pueblo at this time involves an intention to post people and bring about the desired result.

Newspaper men here have long known of the inside history of the captivity of the women, but refrained from using the same tn deference to the women themselves. But now that Mrs. Meeker has made public the story of her terrible wrongs, there can be no harm in telling it all. Immediately after captivity the women were forced, under threats of torture and slow death, to yield to the lust of their hideous captors. The women, suffering untold agony on account of the murder of their husbands and fathers, were dazed and bewildered, and were powerless to resist. Poor old Mrs. Meeker, over sixty years of age, and suffering from a flesh wound in the rear portion of her thigh, became the victim of Douglass, who afterwards boasted of his protecting care. Josephine Meeker was held by Persune, and Mrs. Price by Johnson. The unbearable indignities were simply augmented by other Utes, friends of the three mentioned. In the hellish outrages the bucks were assisted by the squaws. These women savages seemed to gloat over the horrors perpetrated upon the white captives of their own sex. During their captivity the sufferings of the three women were indescribably horrible. The hellish fiends renewed their crimes time and again. The poor women feared they never would be delivered from their thralldom, worse than death, for death is unconsciousness, while their existence was a living death and earthly hell every day. As if all this were not sad enough, the woes of young Josephine are increased by a condition horrible in the extreme. Female acquaintances say that a knowledge thereof causes a shudder to rack the frame of every one who hears the sad tale. Under all these circumstances would not the lynching of the guilty hostiles be justifiable. Would men—men in whom pulsates the generous throb of humanity—stop in the work of exterminating these beings who are worse than brutes of the jungle, although of "the human form divine (?)" Judge Lynch has already sufficient evidence to condemn the guilty ones with Gen. Hatch, and we hope to have the extreme pleasure of recording their death by the hands of indignant citizens. Lynching is but their just due, and we think it is their doom.

Edison's Electric Light a Success.

MENLO PARK (N. J.), Dec. 31.—Edison's laboratory was to-night thrown open to the general public for their examination of his electric light. Special trains from the east and west were run, and, notwithstanding the stormy weather, visitors came in crowds. The laboratory was lighted up with twenty-five electric lamps, the office and counting-room with ten, and the street and adjoining houses with some twenty more. The method of operating the lights from a central station was shown in the laboratory in detail, and the lamps were subjected to a variety of tests. One of the lamps was placed by Edison in a large glass jar filled with water and the current turned on. The little paper filament emitted its customary beautiful illumination without the slightest diminution on account of the water. It was kept burning in the water for several hours. Another light was turned off and on as many times as it was calculated it would be in actual household practice in thirty years, and without any perceptible injury to the light. The process of sub-division was illustrated by the inventor in detail, as was also the method of measuring the amount of electricity consumed. The latter is an exceedingly simple system, and consists in the electricity depositing minute particles of copper upon plates placed in an electric meter, the quantity of copper deposited representing, when weighed, the amount of electricity consumed. A motor, operated in connection with the electric light, and by the same current, was also shown, running a sewing machine and pumping water. The inventor regards this part of his system as furnishing an assurance of the greatest economy, as electricity will be consumed largely in the daytime; whereas gas is used during only five or six hours at night, and all machinery used in its production is idle and eating up in expense during the balance of the twenty-fours. Among the visitors were a number of prominent gas stockholders, who subjected the system to the severest scrutiny; and as the bright and beautiful light, burning without flame or flicker, stood all their tests, their skepticism was considerably shaken. Ex-Secretary Robeson, Hon. Wm. E. Chandler and Senator Plumb, of Kansas, were among the notables present. The inventor and his assistants afforded all who came every opportunity to inspect the system, from the making of the paper filament to the production of the light. The exhibition was in every respect a success. The laboratory will remain open to the public a few days longer. Then Edison proposes to review his work and get all in readiness for general use throughout the country.

ON the 31st ultimo, about six or seven miles from the town of Watsonville, in a cabin, there died a person 67 years of age, well known to old timers around that section and stage drivers and stage men generally throughout California as Charley Parkhurst. He was one of the best drivers in early days in various parts of the State from Stockton to Mariposa, from Oakland to San José, and from San Juan to Santa Cruz. For 15 or 20 years past he has been engaged in farming, working in the woods, etc., and it is said he accumulated several thousand dollars. The immediate cause of his death was a cancer of the tongue. He died without conversing with any one, except to express various wants. It was discovered when friends were preparing the body for burial that Parkhurst was a remarkably well-developed woman. It could scarcely be believed by persons who had known Parkhurst for a quarter of a century. It is said by several who knew her intimately that she came from Providence, Rhode Island.

THE project is revived of creating a Board of Railway Commissioners, to consist of nine members, with a salary of $3,500 per year, who shall fix the maximum of rates to be charged by railroads between States, subject only to review by the U. S. Courts. An amendment is proposed to create also nine new Judicial Circuits, to be filled by Judges who shall hold office during life—unless impeached—and whose duty will be confined to the adjudication of railroad cases.—Eureka Sentinel.

IT is nice when a wife gives her husband a box of cigars on his birthday; but it somehow takes the romance all out of it when she quietly observes the next morning: "You'll have to give me some money to pay for those cigars; I spent all mine for other things."

The Coast for 1879.

It cannot be said that the Pacific Coast has been especially prosperous during the year just closed. In California they had a dry season and crops generally were short. The adoption of the new Constitution in that State was also productive of much immediate harm. It checked all kinds of enterprise, and for a time tended to drive capital from the State. It is fortunate that the conditions are not to be regarded as permanent. The injury resulting from the panic which ensued is not likely to last. With wise legislation by the incoming Legislature, coupled with the assurance of bountiful crops next season, our sister State may well anticipate a period of unparalleled prosperity.

Oregon and Washington Territory were more fortunate than any other part of the coast during 1879. There has been a steady stream of population in that direction—a consequent development of new enterprises and industries.

Idaho and Arizona have probably held their own, though there may have been a slight improvement in the latter, owing to the approach of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

IN Nevada, speaking of the State as a whole, the year has been one of disaster. Mining, our chief industry, has not been attended with the same gratifying results as in former years. With, perhaps, the single exception of Eureka, not a district in the State maintained the standard of 1878. The Comstock, especially, has held a doubtful position. Notwithstanding the vast amount of capital, energy and well-directed effort expended in the lower workings of the great lode, it cannot be said with truth, so far as the public is advised, that the developments have been either satisfactory or profitable. Certain it is that the wrecks of the stock market are strewn all over the coast. Of course there are promising indications at several points on the Comstock, and we are not wholly without hope that in the near future there will dawn a brighter era. Mining men and operators generally, however, will gladly shut their eyes upon 1879, trusting that its like may never be seen again.

The bullion output of the coast for the past year, stands, approximately, $24,000,000, as against $39,000,000 for 1878, and $65,000,000 for 1877.—Eureka Sentinel.

SHOOTING AT BODIE.—On the 3d instant, at Bodie, a stabbing and shooting affray took place in front of a hurdy-house, the participants being Thos. Dillon and Thos. Travis. It appears that they had had a quarrel some time previous in an opium den, and had been watching for each other ever since. Coming face to face last night, Dillon remarked, "Are you as good a man as you were in the opium den the other night?" Travis replied, "Yes," when in an instant Dillon drew a singled-edged dagger, eight inches long, and stabbed Travis in the left breast, clear through the heart. Officer Black rushed at them, but before he could reach them, Dillon struck Travis another blow, the knife entering his back, the latter being on the ground and Dillon over him. As the officer started to move down the street with Dillon, Travis asked to be raised up, and in a half-sitting posture, the blood gurgling in his throat, drew his self-cocking pistol, and with steady aim fired, the ball entering Dillon's back, and passing through the kidneys, leaving him in a critical condition. Travis expired almost instantly after firing the pistol. Travis was a young man about 23 years old, a native of Newark, N. J. Dillon is about 30 years old, a native of Ireland, and formerly a molder, but of late a sport.—Dispatch to the S. F. Chronicle.

A SUB-EDITOR and a reporter were quarreling in the editor's room. "You are a donkey," said the sub-editor. "You are another," replied the reporter promptly. "Well," said the sub-editor, "you are the greatest donkey I know!" "Gentlemen! gentlemen!" said the editor, looking up from his desk, "you forget, I think, that I am present." The sub-editor apologized.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 10 1880

WE regret to note that so good a newspaper as the Sacramento Record-Union has taken to "yaller kivered literatoor" of the most vapid style. It has begun the publication of an interminable love story, set on stilts, in which the leading young lady is named Evangeline; and as if that wasn't load enough, this young lady has a bad habit of expressing her emotions back-handed, like this: "So loved I him until——". At least, that's the style of the talk in general in the prologue, though it might not have been 'Vangy who used those particular words. But for the sake of the rising generation, we hope this prize story may turn out like a singed cat—better than it looks.

IT appears that Tilden has been interviewed by a New York newspaper reporter. In answer to the question of Gen. Grant's candidacy, Mr. Tilden replied: "It is the duty of every true lover of republican institutions to prevent the re-election of Grant. For my part, I will do everything I can to secure the election of a man who may be agreed upon by the opponents of a third term, as the best candidate to unite the conservative elements of all parties If a third term can be conferred upon Grant, a fourth and fifth will be. In short, Grant's installment in the White House in 1881 means Empire."

THE Mining and Scientific Press has just closed its thirty-ninth half-yearly volume. In its line there is no better paper than the Press. It is a journal worthy of the support of reading people of all classes, regardless of occupations, for its columns always contain something of interest and value to all callings. Subscription, $4 per annum. Address Dewey & Co., 202 Sansome street, San Francisco.

AN exceptional transaction in the purchase of gold for export to America was recorded in London on the 6th instant, £35,000 having been taken from the open market for that purpose. It is understood arrangements are in progress for the transmission of considerable amounts of bonds in partial liquidation of liabilities on account of grain.

THE corps of learned men, fifty-two in number, have not yet completed the new revision of the Bible. It is expected to be ready for sale soon, and the cost is estimated at $200,000. Several years have already been spent on this great work and a few more weeks will be required to complete the revision.

CONGRESSMAN BERRY, of the Third Congressional District, has introduced a bill in Congress, asking that a half a million dollars be appropriated for the purpose of preserving the navigable waters of the State from injury by the deposit of debris from mining operations.

WOOL-GROWING has come to be a very important industry in California. During the year just closed 53,590,674 pounds of wool were grown, of which 50,705,078 pounds were exported, leaving 2,885,596 pounds as the quantity consumed at home.

THE California Legislature was organized in both branches by the election of Republicans to all the offices. Of these we will only mention that J. F. Cowdery was chosen Speaker of the House and M. D. Boruck Secretary of the Senate.

GEODETIC SURVEYING.

A few days since a party of men passed through this place, going southward. It was said they were a detachment of the "U. S. Geodetic Survey." "But what is a 'Geodetic Survey?'" was a question oftener asked than properly answered. While it turns out that the party of men above referred to did not belong to the geodetic, but to another branch of Government survey, it will be interesting to some to know something about geodetic surveying, etc. "Geodosy is that branch of surveying in which the curvature of the earth is taken into account, as in the surveys of States and long lines of coast." "Geodetic line—the shortest line that can be drawn between two points on the ellipsoidal surface of the earth." Those are Webster's definitions of the terms.

In a lecture recently given in San Francisco, Prof. Davidson, the head of Geodetic Survey on this coast, gave an interesting explanation of the methods, uses and results of this survey. A full synopsis of the lecture is given in the Scientific Press, December 27th, from which we condense these facts:

Geodetic surveying is a system of triangulations. The design is to connect triangulations clear across the continent from ocean to ocean, thereby establishing a series of points along the entire line; the latitude and longitude of these points being determined with absolute accuracy, they become of great value in all State surveys, giving standards for all measurements in the country. This makes one uniform system for all the States in place of the thirty-eight separate systems now in use.

In carrying forward this net-work of triangulations, it has been considered necessary to establish unusually long lines, much longer than any ever laid out in Europe or India. In 1872 Prof. Davidson made examinations upon the feasibility of observing long lines from the Coast range to the Sierra Nevada in one long leap. In 1876 he occupied Mt. Diablo and Mt. Helena as the fundamental line from the Coast range, and this year he occupied two stations in the Sierra Nevada.

The original base line in Yolo county, 11 miles in length, will be the longest in the world. This year the heliotropes were observed over unusually long lines. Under favorable atmospheric conditions the image of the sun, reflected by a seven-inch heliotrope, was seen at 160 miles with the naked eye. With the telescope these images, looking like stars, were seen through even the thick smoke of the Sacramento valley; and upon one occasion the heliotrope was seen on Mt. Shasta, 169 miles distant, when Lassen's Peak, 96 miles distant, could not be seen on account of the smoke and haze. The longest line observed upon was 192 miles—from Mt. Shasta to Mt. Helena.

Some four years ago, Capt. MacGowan, 12th Infantry, then in command here at Camp Independence, proposed to adorn the highest pinnacle of Mt. Whitney, then called the "Dome of Inyo," with a brightly gilded ball three feet in diameter, the brightness of which in the sun's rays, would make it visible over a radius of perhaps 150 miles through a good telescope. Certain learned local scientists fell to figuring at once, and demonstrated in no time almost that the earth's configuration would make the view at that long range an impossibility. One of these learned gentleman, a county official, by the way, advised us by letter that "a candle in a pumpkin shell would shine out just as brilliantly a few miles away as would that gilded ball." Perhaps he was not altogether wrong, since he employed his scientific attainments in proving that the reflective powers of such a ball of burnished gold could not carry its light beyond its own neighborhood. However that may be, the cogency of such reasoning, or more likely, the lack of funds, put a stop to the scheme, and Mt. Whitney stands to this day without a gilded ball on its highest pinnacle. But as a seven-inch heliotrope can be plainly seen shining out a distance of 192 miles, it is quite possible our learned local scientists were a little off in some of their pumpkin-headed calculations. If distances are mapped right, a heliotrope, if not a golden ball nearly six times larger, on Mt. Whitney would be as plainly seen from the summit of Mt. Diablo as was the one on Mt. Shasta from Mt. Helena—an achievement likely yet to become a recorded fact before this geodetic survey is complete.

The Professor, in his lecture, says "there are several peculiar phenomena in using the signals at these high stations. The observer, for instance, is at Mt. Round Top. At other stations are men with three-inch mirrors for lines of 60 to 70 miles, eight-inch mirrors for 160 miles, etc. One of these men directs the rays of the sun to a given point by means of his mirror, and these rays appear to those on Round Top as minute points. The beam reflected is about one one-hundred and twenty-five millionith of the sun's rays. The signal would be one-thirtieth of a second in diameter, too small to be seen by any ordinary telescope. On account of the disturbance of the atmosphere, the signal is enlarged, and the smallest diameter observed is one and a half seconds, or about the same as a star of the fifth or sixth magnitude. The image when smallest would be completely covered by the spider lines of the smallest spider."

MEXICO.

It appears at last that American capitalists have set their eyes on Mexico in a mining point of view. Notwithstanding the vast amount of inducements offered to men of capital both in the Eastern States and on this coast, still there is a feeling that as great returns, if not greater, can be obtained—for it is a well known fact that mines, and rich ones, too, exist in various sections of that much-neglected section. But the indication is that a new era in that direction is beginning to dawn. Late advices from New York bring the intelligence of the organization of the Batopilas Mining Company of that State and Mexico, with ex-Gov. Shepherd, of Washington; W. G. Fargo, of Buffalo; Mr. Barney, President of the United States Express Company, of Boston; Mr. Smith, of Jameson, Smith & Cotting; Henry Havemeyer, ex-Senator Jerome B. Chaffee, and other well known capitalists, as managers and Directors. Among the stockholders are Geo. M. Pullman and Gen. Horace Painter. The capital of the company is $3,000,000, and the shares have all been taken; so none will go upon the market. This, undoubtedly, is but the beginning of the final termination, and the end will be the absorption by the United States of the northern tier of Mexican States, with perhaps Durango and Sinaloa, and the Territory of Lower California. With the completion of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and the building of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé road through to San Diego, with perhaps a branch to Guaymas, will come the rapid development of the mines of Arizona and the concentration of a large American population in the rich mineral regions of Sonora and Chihuahua. The outlook for Mexico's future is indeed encouraging.

MR. TILDEN is unwilling to rest under the imputation of having inspired the Maine counting out business. The charge ran, that he promoted the issues for the purpose of reviving the recollection of the manner he was treated in 1876, with the hope of creating a sympathy in his own favor. He alleges that he never held correspondence with Gov. Garcelon or any one else on the subject. At the same time he says that on the Governor's statement of the case he had no doubt that the Democracy were occupying Constitutional grounds, which they should maintain at all hazards. It is proper Mr. Tilden should be heard in self-defense, but it is noticeable the Supreme Court of Maine thinks differently from him in this matter.

THE San Francisco Bulletin, reviewing the record of violent deaths in San Francisco for 1879, finds the aggregate to be 231. This total includes accidents, murders and suicides. With no great increase of population, there has been an increase of accidents amounting to 39 per cent. Homicides have also increased 16 per cent. There has been an average of two murders a month, and more, if the cases of manslaughter are enumerated. Suicides have slightly decreased. But there were ninety-two for the year, or nearly two a week. The Bulletin justly remarks that, taking the aggregate number of violent deaths, it is certainly very large for a city of three hundred thousand inhabitants.

IT is sad to think that while the civilized world generally was celebrating Christmas with festivities, there were, even in the populous cities, individual cases of death from starvation. We see it stated that in Baltimore a father, driven to despair by the piteous cries of his three children for food, entered a house and stole some flat irons, which he sold to get provisions and medicine. The children have all since died, and the man is to be prosecuted for theft. In New York, a man whose wife, dying with consumption, had had nothing to eat for twenty-four hours, got himself into jail by stealing to save her from starvation.

THE land-grabbers are at work in Montana. Two speculators recently took up twelve miles of land along the Judith river, embracing some of the choicest portions of Judith basin, and many others have gobbled up from five to ten thousand acres each of the best land in the Territory. The newspapers are agitating the subject, and calling upon the Government to check the evil.

THE expectant schoolboy, who longs for holidays, will be nettled to learn that this year (1880) Washington's Birthday, Decoration Day, Fourth of July and Christmas will all come on Sunday.

THINKS HE IS ABUSED.

Gov. Garcelon, of Maine, immediately prior to the announcement of the decision of the Supreme Court on the twelve questions submitted by himself to that tribunal, spoke in a public meeting in his own defense as follows:

"I stand before you the most abused man in the United States. I am not here to apologize or ask your pardon, but simply to ask your attention to the Constitution and the law, and if in any respect I or my Council have violated the law, you have your remedy. You say the majority rule is the central principle of your government. But should not that majority be expressed in a legal and constitutional manner? You are all aware that at the late election every effort was made on both sides to secure a majority, and that the Fusion party had a majority of 2,000 votes. I challenge any man, and do not care how ardent a Republican or rabid a Democrat, to take the returns, and if there is any instance where we have not applied the same rule to friend or foe, you can condemn me. I find in the tabulated returns where 64 towns have been rejected, 32 of them Republican, 30 Democratic and two a tie. Does this look like conspiracy? Does it look as if the rule had not been applied properly? So great has been the excitement that I have called upon the Supreme Court to decide questions which have been decided for fifteen years, and when that decision is rendered, I hope the people will be satisfied."

As the Supreme Court has decided adversely to every one of the twelve questions submitted by the aged Governor, and as that tribunal was composed in part of men of his political faith, he, the aged Governor, will be more than ever convinced "that he is the most abused man in the United States." But most people will conclude that the bulk of this abuse comes from his friend and adviser, the mischief-making Pillsbury. The Governor is old, and, probably, in his dotage.

A Prosperous Year.

The year closed upon the nation in full tide of commercial prosperity. Anxiety, doubt and fear in regard to business prospects have given place to confidence, hope and renewed vigor. Industries long dormant have again revived, labor is generally and steadily employed, wages are advancing to a fair average, and capital is coming forth to stimulate new enterprises. The products of the mine and soil have been abundant and are adding largely to the nation's wealth. Factories hum with the rattle of busy looms, forges glow with furnace fires, the ports of commerce stir with the pulses of enlarged trade, and trunk lines of railway are crowded with east and westbound freights. Improvements, in city, town and country are adding to the beauty and utility of the land. New buildings are being erected on every side, and real estate, so long depressed, is steadily increasing in value. The finances of the country are in a healthy condition, the currency is placed on a specie basis, gold is still coming to our shores from abroad, and the balance of trade remains largely in our favor. The tonnage in Atlantic ports is larger than of any period in ten years, attracted here from foreign countries by the prospect of speedy freights in grain, breadstuffs and provisions, that are needed to supply an increased Europeon demand. The export of textile fabrics, hardware, furniture, agricultural implements, musical instruments and sewing machines is steadily advancing, and our trade with China, Japan, the far East and the islands of the Pacific is becoming more widely developed. Emigration is pouring in from the populous countries of Europe, mainly of a thrifty class, who are rapidly settling vast areas of the Northwest. Along the Northern Pacific Railroad, villages and towns are springing up, and new communities organized with all the elements of a good, social and domestic foundation. The vast deposits of the precious metals in the Rocky mountains are unclosing to the hardy miner's toil, and new millions of gold and silver are monthly added to the nation's resources. The great corporations in coal and iron, which suffered so severely since 1873, have had a year of great prosperity, and are fast getting in condition to be relieved from all financial pressure. Railroad securities have advanced enormously, and stocks and bonds a year ago considered of but little or no value are approaching a dividend basis. Manufacturers in wool, silk and cotton have for the first time in a long period had a successful twelvemonth's business, with the prospect of increased prosperity in the future. Dealers in general merchandise, wholesale and retail, with but few exceptions, will count their profits at the close of 1879 on the right side of the ledger, and balance their books with the assurance that the new year will add to their increase. The old year ends amid peace, plenty and prosperity; and the new opens with this country possessing nearly every advantage possible to march forward for the supremacy of the commerce of the world—New York Economist.

PRESIDENT N. B. STONE, and four other Republican members of the Board of Education, have reduced the pay of the primary teachers in the public schools to $46 50 per month, which is less than the pay received by a Chinese house servant. They receive $25 and $30 per month for their wages, and are fed and housed by their employers; while the poor teacher is compelled to find a habitation, feed, clothe and wash for him or herself out of a niggardly sum of $46 50. It is a disgrace and a shame that a Republican Board of Education should reduce the wages of School teachers, below those received by Chinese servants.—S. F. Spirit of the Times.

There are one hundred and twenty-five business places and private residences now being erected in Tombstone District, Arizona.

Bonanza City, Idaho, is snowed in, and, it is feared, should the weather continue stormy, that the people of the town may suffer, as there was but a limited amount of provisions on hand when the snow began.

The Bodie Standard says there are seventeen feet of Snow in Bodie, and the mails are taken in and out by balloon—fast freight by carrier pigeons. Wonder if Eli Perkins isn't "taking in" Bodie?

The friends of C. Colby, of Santa Cruz, who has been sentenced to be hanged, are circulating a petition to the Governor, asking for life imprisonment.

"How nicely this corn pops," said a young man who was sitting with his sweetheart before the fire. "Yes," she responded demurely, "it's got over being green."

A man who had $65 stolen from him received a note with $25, saying: "I stoled your money. Remorse naws at my conshens, and I send some of it back. When remorse naws again I'll send you some more."

Orders for 25,000 orange trees have been sent to Los Angeles from Sacramento. The frost has played such havoc with the nurseries that it is doubtful whether the order can be filled.

While branding cattle near San Andreas, a few days ago, T. J. Evans, an old and highly respected citizen of Calaveras county, dropped dead—which goes to show that a man ought not to be poking hot irons at cows on Sunday.

California Congressmen are assigned places in committees as follows: Page, on Education and Labor; Davis, on Coinage, Weights and Measures, and Expenditures in the Navy Department; Pacheco, on Private Land Claims and Public Expenditures; Berry, on Public Lands and Mines and Mining.

Dispatches from Washington say that Census Commissioners for California will probably be appointed as follows: Henry G. Langley, for the district composed of San Francisco and the coast counties; J. R. Hardenberg, for the southeastern counties and the most of the Second Congressional District, and Senator Farley and Representative Berry will name the remaining Commissioner.

DURING the week ending December 20th the arrivals of gold at the port of New York is reported at $1,011,650, of which amount $524,750 were deposited in the United States Assay Office in Wall street. The aggregate of the arrivals of gold between August 12th and December 20th, we see stated at $72,684,000, of which $56,104,450 went to the Assay Office. We need hardly say that under the extraordinary mintage system now prevailing in this country nearly all this sum of small gold, as it comes among us, has been virtually demonetized by conversion into twenty-dollar pieces or stamped bullion.

THE new Supreme Court, Chief Justice Morrison presidding, on the 5th instant drew for terms of office with the following result: E. W. McKinstry, 11 years; J. D. Thornton, 11 years; M. H. Myrick, 7 years; S. B. McKee, 7 years; E. M. Ross, 3 years; J. R. Sharpstein, 3 years.

AT a private social gathering in Nevada City, a few evenings ago, twelve ladies—seven being married—were present. A vote was taken on the Woman Suffrage question, and they all went against it.

THE Greenbackers were to have met in all their glory in Washington last Thursday, for penetance and mutual confidence. Denis Kearney and Brick Pomeroy were undoubtedly the shining lights of that gathering.

MURDER.—For the past two days the chief topic of conversation in town has been relative to the cowardly murder of P. L. Traver, at Candeleria, Nevada, at about 5 o'clock on the evening of the 5th instant. Early yesterday morning John Clarke, D. Murphy and Wm. McBride, the well-known old resident of Mono, arrived in town in pursuit of the murderer. The two first named kept on, while Mr. McBride remained for a few hours and from him we learned the following concerning the affair: The murdered man, P. L. Traver, who has long been a prominent merchant at Candelaria and Columbus, and who at the time of his death was Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Esmeralda county, was acting for the East Mt. Diablo mining company of Candeleria in paying off the hands. The murderer, a man named Mike Owen, was tendered a San Francisco check for the amount due him for work done, which he insolently refused to receive, demanding the coin instead. A Mr. Root offerred to pay him the coin if he would step down to the saloon. To this Owen paid no attention, but hung around for a time until Traver was passing out of the building, when he stepped up and shot him dead. A man witnessing the deed immediately took Owen under arrest and was taking him to a place for confinement when a crowd of regular Molly Maguires, or the murderer's boon companions, broke out from an adjacent saloon and by sheer force released the prisoner. It is gratifying to state, however, that somewhere in the melee Owen received some terrible blows over the head from a six-shooter, and was otherwise so crippled up as to render his course easily followed and his capture almost certain. About 7 o'clock on the following morning a man, lame and bleeding, put in an appearance at McBride's Ranch. Said he had been locating a ranch, got into a row and had received a "terrible batin'." Out of sympathy Mr. McBride attended to his hurts the best he could and took the man to Benton, employing Dr. Middleton to attend him. A messenger from Aurora conveying news of the murder arrived shortly after, and McBride at once spotted the man, his suspicion having been aroused by the fellow's contradictory stories while on the road. He urged a local officer there to make the arrest, but that he couldn't do—the officer said—without a warrant. So Justice Robinson had to be hunted up, and when the parties finally came to visit the sick man's bed the game was gone. The southern stage having started, Mr. McBride immediately followed on with his buckboard. The next we hear of Owen, for he is without question the man, is this side of Big Pine, where he is picked up by the stage and brought to this place. He got off the vehicle with great difficulty; but a short stay sufficed him, and he trudged on southward. At Lone Pine, through a story to the effect that he had been hurt by falling down a shaft, he received help on his travels in the shape of a money contribution—which speaks better for Lone Pine's liberality than for its judgment. From a little below that point he was again picked up and got a stage ride to nearly Swansea. Sheriff Clem Ogg, of Esmeralda, arrived yesterday morning, and with Mr. McBride, went on in pursuit. There is little doubt here but that the murderer, if not captured ere this, will be taken at or near Darwin to-night.

GONE.—The old building on the northeast corner of Edwards and Market street, formerly occupied as a store by J. S. Rothschild & Co., has been demolished and is a thing of the past. Though occupying one of the most prominent corners in town it has long been dilapidated and vacant, and was about the only concern in the place which has not been built or undergone improvement within the past six or eight years. It gives way for a new building to be erected by L. Wood, as a store, while the old material is to be removed and converted into a carpenter shop, by Gus. Stecker. As much of an eye-sore as the old place has been for a long time, it was once quite a pretentious affair—when our building material came from Aurora and from Walker's Pass. It was originally constructed in one of the now defunct towns across the river, being removed to this place in '65 or '6. And from that date up to '72 it was a central business point, under the management of the genial Jim. Perham and Israel Davison.

SURVEYING.—A party of surveyors passed through here this week, bound for a new field of operations in the southeastern corner of the county. It is in charge of the contractor, L. D. Bond, U. S. Deputy Surveyor, and, in addition, is made up as follows: C. Holcomb, compassman; L. Folman and G. M. Carson, chainmen; F. Patty and W. A. Sterling, axemen; A. W. Prousley, cook, and John Gleason, packer. Since last April the party has been constantly in the field, sectionizing and running township lines in the territory lying between the Third Standard and Township 15, south, and between Ranges 37 and 40, east. This embraces Saline Valley, at the foot of the Inyo range, some thirty miles easterly of this place, all of which valley and low hills adjacent thereto is now sectionized.

BELL'S MILL.—A visit, yesterday, to the Oak Creek Mills found the institution running like clock-work and the proprietor full of business. The concern has been changed and improved in almost every particular, and, we are very glad to state, is producing flour fully equal to the imported article. This is a matter of real congratulation to our farmers, who seem to realize the fact, as appears from the large quantity of grain now in the warehouses awaiting to be ground.

COUNTY COIN.—Those holding certain county warrants are invited by Treasurer Isaacs to present them for redemption.

THE ECLIPSE TO-MORROW. — Prof. Davidson's calculations for the eclipse of the sun to-morrow changes the programme a little as published heretofore. He shows that the central line of the total phase will strike the California coast in latitude 36° 4′, longitude 121° 35′, at 3:35 37″ P. M. This place is in latitude 36° 48′, longitude 118° 30′, therefore 44 miles north, and 185 miles east of the central point of totality, provided the course of the shadow was directly on an east and west line, which does not appear to be the fact, since Eberhardt, in White Pine district, bearing considerably north of east from us, is stated to be directly on the central line. The width of the path of totality will be a little over thirty miles wide, and its duration thirty-five seconds. The totality at the crossing of the railroad at Fresno will be forty seconds later than when it strikes the coast west of that place. The sun will then be but 10° above the horizon, consequently almost totally eclipsed from view in this valley by the mountains without the help of the moon. The lower end of Owens Lake will get the largest share of the shadow for this region—as a benefit for Uncle Billy Walker.

SALT FOR THE MILLION.— Surveyor L. D. Bond estimates the area of the great salt deposit across here in Saline valley to be about 1,200 acres. Over the greater portion of these broad acres lies a bed of pure, solid salt, full eighteen inches in thickness. A portion of the central part is either covered or completely saturated with water; most, if not all the salt being taken from this marsh for use throughout this section is shoveled out of this saturated portion; in so doing excavations nearly two feet in depth are made in the solid sheet of salt, which excavations, of course, fill with water, clear and apparently pure. In three or four days' time crystallization goes on so rapidly as to renew the deposit as deep and solid as before it was disturbed, and will continue to do so indefinitely. There is salt enough there to pickle the whole animal creation of the world, humans and all. In the same valley is another smaller but very similar deposit of impure salt and borax crystals in nearly equal proportions. This valley is about twenty-five miles, as the crow flies, easterly from this town.

FEET FROZEN.—During the cold weather of two or three week ago Jesus Molera, an intelligent young Mexican, while working on his claim in the new Beveridge District gold mines, had his feet badly frozen almost before realizing that they were cold. He was conveyed to Cerro Gordo and finally, through the kindness of J. G. Dodge, was brought to Lone Pine and from thence to the County Hospital, where on Wednesday last he was placed under care of Dr. W. H. George County Physician—but not until some eighteen or twenty days after he had been frozen, during which time he received no medical aid. Finding that to be in the worst condition, Dr. George yesterday amputated the left foot at the first joint within the foot (metatarso phalangeal articulation). The probability is that the other will also have to be amputated the same. Inyo has many rough and snowy regions, but this is the first instance of freezing that we have had to record for a long time past.

COURT.—At 10 o'clock on Monday morning last his honor, Judge John A. Hannah called himself, the Sheriff and Clerk to order as a duly organized Superior Court. Mr. Moffat, we believe, was the only attorney and other person present. The Court is henceforth always open for business, and will meet next Monday and proceed to call up the cases on the calendar and set times for trial as may be agreed upon.

IMPROVED.—Henry Levy, proprietor of the French Restaurant, has been giving his property a thorough overhauling, enlarging the dining room, bar room and kitchen. Refer to his new advertisement, elsewhere. The culinary department is under the immediate charge of J. J. Monahan, an experienced chef de cusine.

WILL TAKE A RAISE.—Assessor Dillon wishes us to remind delinquent poll tax payers that after the third Monday in this month, each tax receipt, except Hospital, will cost the delinquent $4 instead of $3, as at present. Might as well pay up now, for the polls won't be taken in whole or even in part payment at any stage.

A CHANGE.—R. R. Taylor has purchased the butcher shop at Bishop Creek formerly run by Chelius & Vickers, and will sell meat at reduced rates. See his advertisement.

ITS ORGANIZATION.—Pursuant to notice, a meeting was held last Monday night in the Masonic Hall for the purpose of organizing or re-organizing the Good Templar Lodge. The attendance was quite large, and the interest manifested was decidedly encouraging. A short address was delivered by Rev. F. M. Willis, D. G. W. C. T., at the close of which the following officers were chosen and duly installed: S. P. Moffat, W. C. T.; Mrs. A. R. Conklin, W. V. T.; John Crough, W. F. S.; Mrs. P. A. Chalfant, W. A. F. S.; Miss M. Graham, W. T.; Mrs. B. L. Brown, W. A. T.; Mrs. E. M. Willis, W. C.; Louis Schalten, W. M.; Mrs. J. E. Parker, W. A. M.; N. E. Conklin, W. I. G.; G. Willis, W. O. G.; Mrs. H. M. Isaacs, W.R.H.S.; Miss Maggie Conklin, W. L. H. S.; W. F. Welch, L. D.; A. R. Conklin, P. W. C. T. Twenty-eight charter members were initiated. The title of the lodge is held in abeyance, subject to action of the Grand Lodge as to whether this will be recognized as a re-organization of the old Busy Bee Lodge. Time of meeting is fixed for Monday nights, but a hall has yet to be secured and prepared.

ONE CHANCE LEFT.—Ladies of an uncertain age, if there are any such; also those who, matrimonially speaking, have not been much sought after, if at all, if there are any such; likewise ambitious and independent ladies who propose to have the man of their choice or none at all, if there are any such; all these and the rest are hereby reminded that this year, being divisible without a remainder, gives them all one more chance. It is a go-as-you-please year—Leap year—free to all, and every marriageable female has just as good a right to set out to fool somebody as she ever had, and a little better; so let none forget it.

SCHOOL.—Mr. Crough takes charge of the school here next Monday, instead of a week later, as we inadvertently stated last issue would be the time. Mrs. May's three months term, less one day, was complete yesterday.

SALOON.—See advertisement of P. Clinton, announcing that he has reopened the old Headquarters Saloon.

Gov. Perkins' Appointments.

From present indications the following will probably be the appointments of Gov. Perkins to the official positions named:

Private Secretary—Albert Hart (Gov. Booth's Private Secretary).

Executive Clerk—W. S. Safford, formerly County Judge of Butte.

Adjutant General—Maj. Samuel W. Backus, of San Francisco.

State Printer—Capt. J. C. Young, of Sacramento. Foreman of State Printing Office—E. G. Jeffries, Sacramento.

Harbor Commissioners—Gen. Geo. S. Evans, of San Joaquin, and Capt. W. A. Phillips, of San Francisco.

Port Wardens—Geo. T. Bromley, Archie Harlow and Julius C. Green, all of San Francisco.

State Prison Commissioners—Dr. W. F. McNutt, of San Francisco, Wallace Everson, of Oakland, A. P. Whitney (ex-Senator from Sonoma), of Petaluma, and N. D. Rideout, of Marysville. The Warden of the State Prison will, in all probability, be J. P. Ames, of San Mateo.

The Governor's staff will consist of the following: Col. G. W. Granniss, Chief Engineer; Col. Wm. Harney, Paymaster General; Judge S. C. Denson, of Sacramento, Judge Advocate; Dr. E. A. Stockton, of Stockton, Surgeon General; W. W. Dodge, Frank P. McLennan, J. C. Flood, Jr., C. F. Crocker, J. D. Spreckles, all of San Francisco, and J. C. Logan, of Butte, Aids.—Visalia Delta.

WITH regard to carrying the mail during the Winter, Blackmore, the contractor, left for Bishop Creek this morning with a sleigh outfit, intending to make arrangements with the Cluggage line to connect at that point. There is a daily mail carried on the route from Mojave on the railroad, and the mails can be brought through by this Southern route without danger of delay from snow. It is already known that John Clark has made arrangements with the Southern Transportation Company to receive the Mammoth City freights at Bishop Creek and deliver them here during the Winter. The stage running over the road every day will be a great help to Mr. Clark in keeping the road open through the snow hence to the valley. Mr. Blackmore wishes the co-operation of our citizens in this matter in order that he can maintain himself with the Postoffice Department and not suffer in his contract. By adopting this method we can have a tri-weekly, if not a daily, mail during the entire snowy season.—Mammoth Herald, Dec. 21.

THE new thirty-stamp mill of the Noonday is still running as smoothly as could be expected. In fact, it is doing good work. No clean up will be made for some two weeks yet; but enough is now known to justify the assertion that the ore will pay largely. And this is a very important announcement, from the fact that heretofore many have doubted if there were large bodies of paying ore a mile or more south of Bodie Bluff. Ex-Senator Stewart, who is largely interested in Noonday, and who has been closely watching the operations of the new mill since it started up on Christmas day, is reticent; but he cannot disguise his intense satisfaction at the result and the outlook—in fact, his countenance resembles that of a boy whose risibility has been powerfully stirred in church.—Bodie Standard.

GEO. M. GILL, our rising young lawyer, accompanied by his bride, arrived from Independence this afternoon in a sleigh and four handled by John Clark, of Bishop Creek, having left the later place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. Brown, the merchant of Mineral Park, with his bride, was also of the party as far as the foot of the grade. The newly married folks have the best wishes of the Herald.—Mammoth Herald, Jan. 3.

THE batteries at the mill have not been running for several days for want of quicksilver, but will resume when the first wagons arrive from Bishop Creek, which are loaded with the desired article.—Mammoth Herald, Jan 3.

"GEORGE, dear, don't you think it's rather extravagant to eat butter with that delicious jam?" "No, love; economical. Same piece of bread does for both."

THERE is talk of erecting a 100-stamp mill at Atlanta, Alturas county, Idaho Territory.

"SHOW him an egg, and instantly the air is full of feathers," says Bob Ingersoll defining a sanguine man.

IT is estimated that in this country only one person in five hundred owns a horse. Are we a neigh-shun?

ALLOWING two square feet for each person, the entire population of Boston could stand on the public garden with a good deal of room to spare. The entire population of the United States could stand in Boston proper (not including Brighton, Dorchester and West Roxbury). The entire population of the world (now estimated at 1,400,000,000) could stand on the island of Martha's Vineyard, or in the space occupied by the towns of Boston, Brooklyn, Newton, Dedham, Hyde Park and Milton. The State of Massachusetts would in this way accommodate several times the present population of the world. The entire population of the world, placed side by side, and allowing two feet for each person, would encircle the earth twenty times. The State of Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont, taken together, are as large as England. Any one of the States of Georgia, Illinois, Iowa and North Carolina is as large as England and Scotland together. Texas is thirty-five times as large as Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio and Indiana combined. The entire population of the United States could be provided for in the State of Texas, allowing each man, woman and child four acres of land. The entire population of the world could be provided for in the United States, allowing each person one and a half acres of land.—Boston Transcript.

IN nine cases out of ten a man's life will not be a success if he does not bear burdens in his childhood. If the fondness or vanity of father or mother has kept him from hard work; if another always helped him out at the end of his row; if instead of taking his turn at pitching off he stowed away all the time—in short, if what was light fell to him, and what was heavy about the work to some one else; if he has been permitted to shirk until shirking has become a habit, unless a miracle has been wrought his life will be a failure, and the blame will not be half so much his as his weak and foolish parents.

On the other hand, if a boy has been brought up to do his part, never allowed to shirk his responsibility, or to dodge work whether or not it made his head ache, or soiled his hands, until bearing burdens has become a matter of pride, and the heavy end of the wood his choice parents, as they bid him good bye, may dismiss their fear. The elements of success are in him, and in some the world will recognize his capacity.

THE Pittsburg papers say that intense excitement prevails in that city over a fight which occurred in the First Reformed Presbyterian Church. The congregation is composed of two factions, one in favor of Dr. Woodside for pastor, the other bitterly opposed to him. The latter claims that Woodside was illegally elected pastor, and when he proceeded to preach, pulled him from the pulpit. The ill feeling then culminated in the fierce fight. Both factions were well represented, as the church was crowded, and a free fight ensued. Blows were delivered right and left, even the women taking a hand in the mill, and acted as disgracefully as the men. Pews were broken and several arrests were made. A feeling of intense indignation is manifested in church circles and several suspensions are on the tapis. Two clergymen were in the thickest of the fray.

GEN. GEO. STONEMAN has received his commission as one of the Board of Indian Commissioners, and forwarded his acceptance to Washington. After an examination of the law he finds that he can accept the Federal appointment, as no salary is attached to it. The law creating the Board provides that its members shall be sought for among the able and philanthropic citizens of the United States. The Commission will involve a couple of trips to Washington during the year, and only the actual expenses of the Commissioners, certified under oath, are defrayed by the Government. Gen. Stoneman announces it to be his purpose to advocate the purchase of supplies for the Indians of the Pacific Coast on this coast, instead of, as at present, in Philadelphia.—Los Angeles Express.

THE advance in the price of iron of every kind during the past three months is a constant source of wonder even to the best informed men in the trade. Fortunes have been made even by the stocks on hand. For railroad iron the damand has been especially great. The example of the United States, with its 80,000 miles of railroad, two-thirds as much as the rest of the world combined can show, has had the effect of stimulating railroad growth, and energizing the worn-out and hitherto sleepy millions of Asia. We are on the eve of a railroad boom unparalleled in the history of the world—on the eve of an era which closed with the disastrous year of 1873.—Salt Lake Tribune.

ON the 14th of December last, Gen. Joseph Lane, of Oregon, reached his 78th year, and it is said that the veteran warrior and statesman is in full health, with his mental faculties unimpaired. He has recently written a very interesting letter in advocacy of the measure before Congress to pass a bill to pension the survivors of the soldiers who served in the war with Mexico, in that Republic and in California. The old General is greatly honored by the people of Oregon, and his home is in Roseburg, Douglas county.

FROM an analysis of the office of President, it is stated, that down to the present time the Presidential office has been occupied twenty-two years and eight months by the Middle States, thirty-three years and five months by the Western and Southwestern States, and thirty-five years and eleven months by the Southern States, making a total of ninety-two years.

Fractional Currency.

The origin of the fractional currency, which has been in the past few years superseded by fractional silver, is somewhat peculiar and not generally known. The appearance of this currency, which at first was always spoken of as "postal currency," was due to the premium on specie. In 1862 small change became very scarce. Gold being up, and taken with it silver, those coins disappeared from circulation. Stockings were brought out, and the precious metals found their way to their heels and their toes. It was more than a day's search to find a five-cent silver piece, or any other small denomination of that coin. People were unable to find exchange for their small transactions. In buying a dinner in the market change had to be taken in beets, cabbages, potatoes and what not. Gen. Spinner was then Treasurer of the United States. He was constantly appealed to from all quarters to do something to supply the demand for small change. He had no law under which he could act, but after buying a half dollar's worth of apples several times, and receiving for his half dollar in change more or less different kinds of produce, he began to cast around for a substitute for small change. In his dilemma he bethought him of the postage stamp. He then sent down to the Postoffice Department and purchased a quantity of stamps. He then ordered up a package of the paper upon which the Government securities were printed. He cut the paper into various sizes. On the pieces he pasted stamps to represent different amounts. He thus initiated a substitute for fractional silver. This was not a Government transaction. It could not be. Gen. Spinner distributed his improved currency among the clerks of the Department. They took it readily and the trade folks more readily. The idea spread; the postage stamps, either detached or pasted upon a piece of paper, became the medium of small exchange. It was dubbed "postal currency." From this Gen. Spinner got his idea of the fractional currency, and went before Congress with it. That body readily adopted it, and but a short time after Gen. Spinner began pasting operations a law was on the statute book providing for the issue of the fractional currency which became so popular. The fac-simile of postage stamps was put on each piece of currency, and for a long time it was known as "postal currency." The introduction of postal stamps as money entailed considerable loss upon those who handled them. In a short time they became so worn and disfigured that they would not take a letter on its way, and were therefore worthless.—Washington Star.

AFTER three years of downright misery, the sheep-man comes to the front. For a long time it has been almost a disgrace to have any sheep, in many parts of the State. A man would nearly starve to death herding them himself and living on mutton alone. A good many flocks were abandoned in the hills and left to roam where they would, and on the plains flocks have been turned loose, the owner's taking their pack animals and leaving the country. A sheep owner from Delano said, the other day, he had tried for a long time to sell his flock at three bits per head, and failed, and so was obliged to keep them. He sees his way clear now. It is thought parties could now contract for their next Spring's clip at 30 cents per pound. Mutton is up to 4 cents per pound in San Francisco, and scarce. Sheep buyers are going over the country looking for opportunities to begin again. In Los Angeles over $100,000 have been paid for sheep within the past two months. There seems little doubt that they will go to the old price of $3 per head before the season is much further advanced.—Bakersfield Courier.

THE P. B.

Go to the Pogonomyrmex Barbatus, Thou Sluggard.

Roll up your sleeves now, boys, and and see if you can jump over these two words, "Po-go-no-myr-mex Barba-tus," for this item is going to tell about the pogonomyrmex barbatus. Indeed, the P. B. is no more nor less than the farmer ant of Texas, or an ant that is about as big as your father's thumb nail. The Rev. Dr. H. C. McCook, of this city, has written a book about this ant, but what follows is taken from an account printed by Dr. Hale, of Chicago, who went to Texas just to see the ants some two weeks ago.

The farmer ants have a million cities in Texas. They build a city underground, with streets, houses and public halls. The city is entered by two gates on the surface of the ground. Around these gates lie their farms and plantations. They cut down all the grass, except certain kinds which bear the seeds that they live on, and so make a "clearing," just as a farmer does when he cuts down trees. The jaw of the major ant, or best worker, is as sharp as a knife, and with the help of the minor ant, or boy worker, a farm of about eight feet square is cut. The queen ant does nothing but attend to the children. The male ant or drone is the lazy bones and struts around the street corners. Thus there are four kinds of ants in every family. They have regular roads through the farms. The roads are but two inches wide. They have granaries, and when the seeds are ripe, fill the granaries with seed for use in cold weather. They are great fighters, and a dozen can soon kill a wasp. They clean themselves after eating, take good care of the sick and carefully bury their dead. It is not certain whether they have schools or not, but t is likely that they do.—New Orleans Picayune.

A DOMESTIC INDICATOR.—Edison is all very well in his way, but the inventor that will be remembered when all others are fergotten is a party named Mickley, of Boston, who has just rendered his fellowmen an estimable service by producing an apparatus called the "Married Man's Indicator," or the patent "Domestic Barometer." This ingenious device is simply a wonderfully sensitive arrangement of the ordinary barometer, which infallibly detects the most minute alterations in the atmospheric conditions. The married man returning late from the alleged "lodge," or other locality contraband of war, indulges in no fearful speculations as to his reception. He simply takes his "indicator" from its case and inserts a projection for the purpose through the key-hole. Instantly the domestic temperament within is recorded by the dial. If it marks S. F.—set fair; S. A.—sound asleep; or even C. S.—cross but sleepy, he brings his propitiatory box of fried oysters to the front, chews a fresh clove and enters boldly. If, however, the faithful little instrument reports S. B.—storm brewing, or V. S. L.—very squally, with lightning, he doesn't waste any valuable time in warfare, but hies him to the nearest hotel and sends an up-all-night-with-a-sick-friend note, with some matinee tickets and a new bonnet, home in the morning. Truly, if science keeps on in this way this world will become quite a comfortable place to live in after a while.—S. F. Stock Report.

THE shooting of P. L. Traver at Candelaria, on the 5th instant by a miner named Mike Owens, as detailed in a dispatch, was caused by an attempt on the part of Traver to force Owens to take a check on a San Francisco bank for his labor, instead of coin. G. W. Fisher, Secretary of the East Diablo Company, in whose employ Owens was, states that it is customary with that company, as with others, to forward the money to pay off the hands with to some mercantile firm doing business near the mine. The mine foreman would then give the men orders for their money, which the firm holding the money would cash. The money was forwarded as usual in the later part of December to Mr. Traver. Traver, in a letter to the Secretary, acknowledged its receipt, but stated his intention of retaining the coin for the next month's board of the men, he being interested in the house where a majority of the men boarded, and in lieu of the coin would pay them in checks, which, though in common use in that locality could not be cashed for some days. Another letter from Mr. Adams, foreman of the mine, stated that Mr. Traver had announced his intention of paying the men with checks instead of coin, and that it had caused considerable dissatisfaction among the men. Owens has the reputation of being a sober but extremely excitable man, and in a fit of rage at Traver's refusal to pay him the coin he considered his just due, he shot him as stated.—S. F. Bulletin.

WHEN Hank Monk, the famous stage driver, learned that his old comrade of the ribbons, Charley Parkhurst, had died and that it was then discovered that Parkhurst was a woman, he said: "Je—hosephat! I camped out with Parkie once for over a week, and we slept on the same buffalo robe right along. Wonder if Curley Bill's been playing me the same way!"—Carson Aeppal.

THREE mines in Meyers District, Arizona—the Gunsight, Eastern and Silver Girth—have been sold to B. F. Bivens for the sum of $50,000; the Atlanta has been bonded for $30,000, and the Monumental and Western for $15,000 each, bonds to hold until April 1.

Resting Springs Items.

The weather has been exceptionably severe, heavy rains, snow and frost prevailing. There is reported to have been a heavier fall of rain and more severe frosts within the past month than is remembered by any one in the district. The Armagosa was swollen into a furious torrent, and run as far as the eye could reach into Death Valley. The Dry Lakes are no longer dry, but have from six to eight inches of water in them.

The roads in places are badly washed out, the worst place being in Cajon Pass. The work of putting them in order again, however, is going on, and if we do not have rains again soon they will be in good condition in a few days.

The mill at Resting Springs is temporarily closed up for lack of copperas and candles. It will be running again in a week or so. The water pipes in the mill froze and burst during the late cold spell.

Mr. Whitney is still working on his prospect at Tecopa, with great encouragement. The ore is improving in quality as depth is attained.

At O'Dair's camp the prospects are excellent, and it is reported that Mr. O'Dair will make arrangements before his return for putting up a mill at that place shortly.

Mr. White brought in some ore with him from Indian Creek which goes as high as $500 to the ton.—San Bernardino Times, Dec. 8.

THE Comte de Sémellé, who has recently returned from the banks of the Niger, whither he was sent when Marshal MacMahon was President of the French Republic, has just published a few more chapters of his startling narrative. The Count says that on reaching Lokedja he offered the Sultan of that place some cotton goods, whereupon his Majesty shouted: "I am a great Sultan and not a dog! I don't want your presents; give me gin and rum!" The Count thought he was going to be assassinated, but he forced his interpreter to say that he was not English, but French; that he had never been received before by such a dog; that he feared neither fire nor poison, etc. This language having sobered the Sultan, the Count gave him a bottle of gin, which produced another fit of delerium tremens. The Count adds that the Sultan has no authority over his subjects, who have imposed upon him a Parliament with which he gets drunk from morning till evening. Higher up the country, in the country of the Mitchis, the Count nearly saw his travels brought to an abrupt termination. However, the King, after slaying before him one hundred human victims and examining their intrails, declared them favorable, and made the Count a present of twenty wives. The one hundred victims were cut up into small pieces, which were distributed through the city, and the Count who dined with the Sultan in the evening, was obliged to eat a morsel and take a draught of human blood.

A FOOLISH miner of Leadville made a wager that he could, by laying his head back upon a rope around his neck and controlling his throat muscles by his will, prevent strangulation. He offered to prove it by allowing his companions to haul him up from the bottom of the shaft, seventy-five feet below, which they agreed to. The signal was given, and in an instant he was swinging in the air. Instead of the pressure of his head upon the knot having the effect anticipated, however, it caused the noose to contract, as in a few seconds he became painfully aware. He tried to call out to his associates, but the pressure of the rope upon his neck made this impossible. The blood, impeded in its passage, filled his head almost to bursting. He became unconscous. At the mouth of the shaft his horrible appearance so paralyzed his friends with fear that they were unable to draw him out, and had to call upon the workmen! He died. [The above is probably a Leadville reporter's first attempt at comic sensational].

A SIMPLE and usually successful mode of extracting a needle, or any piece of steel or iron broken off in the flesh, is accomplished by the application of a simple pocket magnet. Iron filings have a way of imbedding themselves in the eye which defies almost every ordinary means for their extraction. For their removal, a small, blunt, pointed bar of steel, well magnetized, will be found excellent, and we should recommend that workmen liable to such injuries keep such an instrument about them. It would be a good plan to insert such a bar in a pen-knife, in a manner similar to a blade.

THE deepest depth to which the diver has descended in pursuing his dangerous occupation, was that reached in removing the cargo of the ship Cape Horn, wrecked off the coast of South America, when a diver by the name of Hopper made seven descents to a depth of 201 feet, and at at one time remained down 42 minutes.

FIVE HUNDRED WEEKS.

With the present number THE INDEPENDENT attains its 500th issue—five hundred weeks of uninterrupted and regular appearance. Curiously enough, upon reaching this round number, there has occurred for the first time an error in the principal date line of the first page, it reading "January 10" instead of January 17; our foreman, probably, being so intent upon inserting ciphers that he got one in the wrong place. However, the sub-line dates are correct all around.

When, some ten years ago, in selecting this locality as a point to build up a strong and successful publishing business, the proprietors of this paper had little idea that it would take so long to do it. Though sparse in population and provided with only one weekly mail at the time, the vast agricultural possibilities of the country and its limitless wealth of mineral founded hopes of the early influx of capital and population, and therewith telegraph lines and a railroad—those indispensable adjuncts and supports to successful journalism. In a very inadequate degree capital has been induced to take hold, and a general balance sheet would show a credit on the product side; but in several notable instances it is the old story of money misapplied and energy misdirected. As to our early railroad prospects, the name of the town of Independence is still attached to a railroad which never got within 250 miles of us—an enterprise well planned, but defeated through the assininity of Los Angeles and the overpowering monopoly of the Southern Pacific Company.

Though so long delayed, we are yet satisfied that these things are inevitably coming; for the money to open our mines and erect mills we are looking to the Eastern boom and the intelligent efforts of a host of mining men who have lately made this country their study, and for the railroad we look confidently to the superior energy and enterprise of our northern neighbors, the capitalists of the State of Nevada—to which commonwealth this country naturally and geographically belongs.

THE INDEPENDENT started in without asking permission or soliciting any favors or support in advance. And all it seeks now is prompt and square payment for what it justly earns, and at the present time a full settlement of all that is due it. Through various causes, chief of which is its own liberality of business management and the continued depreciation of county warrants, the concern has never been a paying one; but in view of future probabilities it will continue to run for all that.

OUR Representative in the present Legislature has been accorded an honor and responsibility such as none of his predecessors in the district has ever attained. He has been given the Chairmanship of the House Committee on Mines and Mining, a recognition justly due to the importance of Inyo and Mono counties as well as to Mr. Wasson's ability and general understanding ing of the subject. In the great debris question, for instance, he must necessarily champion the rights of miners, and examine into and report upon all proposed legislation affecting the mining interest generally. Upon the committee he is supported by Young (R.) of Sacramento, Nelson (R.) of Sierra, Dimond (R.) of Tuolumne, Walker (W.) of Nevada, Mulholland (R.) of Plumas and Lassen, and Josselyn (R.) of Monterey. Mr. Wasson is second on the Committee on Public Printing.

ILLUSTRATIVE of the nonsensical method they have of putting things where they will not do the most good, at weddings, the catalogue of presents at a recent ceremony of that sort in Maine is significant. The bride and groom, both in quite moderate circumstances, received 73 silver spoons, two ice pitchers, two card receivers, and a brace each of cake receivers, pickle jars and pie knives, beside a complete silver service. What the newly-married couple are to do with so much silver on the table, and not enough in their pocket to warrant keeping up appearances, is a question.

OLD Winnemucca, the father of Sarah, the Piute Princess, in a speech to Special Agent J. M. Haworth, at Winnemucca, Nevada, December 29, said his people were as capable of learning as other races, and he hoped to live to see the day when they would be educated.

A TUCSON dispatch of the 10th says the Indians are at McEver's and Robert's ranch fighting. White troops are en route from Fort Bayard to their assistance. The Indians have cut several miles of telegraph.

SALARIES AND FEES.

Senator Satterwhite has prepared a bill to regulate salaries and fees of county officers. We find a synopsis of its provisions already prepared in the San Francisco Chronicle, a portion of which we appropriate as follows:

Counties are classified as at present, subject to re-classification after the next census. Supervisors are to be elected at the general election on the first Tuesday of November, to take office on the same day as other officers in the January following, and their terms to be but two years instead of three, as at present. In first class counties, Supervisors are to be elected by districts, but in second and third class counties (Inyo being of the latter) they are to be chosen by the county at large, the same as other officers—a sensible change. Their powers will be the same as now, except to make rules for local self-government, as provided in the new Constitution.

This bill prohibits the incurring of any indebtedness unless a revenue is provided for it, without the consent of two-thirds of the electors of the county. Except Superior Judge, School Superintendent and Assessor, all county officers are to be chosen at the general election next November. Counties of the first class are to have seven Supervisors, the second, five, and the third, three.

Townships are each entitled to one Justice of the Peace and one Constable. Except Surveyor and Coroner and Public Administrator, the officers are placed on salaries. The pay of the Superior Judge remains as at present. That of the District Attorney in first class counties is fixed at $2,000; second, $1,800; third, $1,500. In the first and second class counties, they are allowed $900 additional for assistants. Treasurers of the first class are to receive $2,000, second, $1,500, third, $1,000—all with mileage. County Clerks, in the same order, get $3,000, $2,500 and $2,000, respectively, those of the first class being allowed $150 a month for deputies. Sheriffs of the first class receive $3,000 per annum, with $250 a month for deputies; second, $2,500, with $200 a month for deputies; third, $2,000, with $150 a month for deputies, and to be Tax Collectors, ex-officio, with fees as provided in the fee bill. Assessors, $2,000, $1,500 and $1,000, with percentage for poll taxes, with allowance for deputies of $1,800, $1,200 and $600. School Superintendents, $1,500, $1,200 and $800, with $100 for contingent expenses. Unless School Superintendents have to devote far more time to their duties than has been necessary heretofore, they will under this bill get about double as much pay as any other set of officers for the time actually required in the performance of their duties. Supervisors are allowed $5 a day while holding sessions—which is not enough.

AFTER THE STOCK GAMBLERS.

Assemblyman Gorley introduced a bill on the 9th instant, designed to carry out the spirit of the new Constitution in the matter of cinching the stock gamblers. It provides that the purchase and sale of shares of any incorporated company in any stock board, mining exchange or auction mart is prohibited, except in the manner prescribed. A violation of the law is declared a felony, punishment of which is fixed at a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $10,000, and imprisonment in the State Prison not less than six nor more than twelve months. Sham or wash sales are prohibited. It is made incumbent on all stock brokers to furnish customers within forty-eight hours after making such sale or purchase written or printed lists of the stock or shares sold or purchased, specifying the session of the stock board at which such sale or purchase was made, stating the true price and also the number of the certificates of the stock sold or purchased. Brokers are forbidden to use, hypothecate or sell any stocks belonging in whole or in part to a customer. Stocks must be delivered to customers on demand, and after payment of arrearages thereupon. The Secretary or Clerk of any stock board is required to keep a list of all stock transactions, showing names of sellers, purchasers, and number of shares and price, which record shall be kept open to public inspection. Upon the demand of customers the Secretary or Clerk is required to furnish sworn statements. An infraction of said provision incurs a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000.

Commenting on this bill, the Carson Appeal concludes thus:

While the rotten institutions on Pine street need legislative cleansing, it is not probable that any reform will be inaugurated by that means. The Stock Board is composed of smarter men than the Legislature, and the former will outwit the latter at every point. In order to reform abuses in mining and stock business, the fountain head of the system must be cleansed. What the people want are laws enabling stock holders in mines to have a voice in the management of the property, and be allowed access to it at all times.

Nevertheless, it will do no harm to at least try to check stock swindling by legislative enactments. A partial reform is better than no reform; some of those measures can be made to stick and do good, though others, like that to prevent wash sales, may amount to nothing.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 7.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The holidays have passed away, and so has my headache. I suppose you and most of your readers have been there and know how it is. If you haven't, just ask Billy Welch I have heard so many stories about what good times such and such a one had, and how they got full and called on the same young lady three or four times without knowing it, and all such stuff. But one joke I heard is worth repeating. I am well acquainted with the parties, and that makes it more interesting to me. She was a high-toned young lady living on Sutter street. She kept open house and received calls on New Year's day. She had the finest lay out in the shape of eatables and drinkables that could be found in the city, and she had made up her mind that she would out-do every one. Among the many callers was a fine-looking young doctor who is very fond of a good joke, and he saw at a glance that this was a good place to have some fun, and at it he went. When he had taken a good, square drink and got hold of a good-sized piece of fruit cake, which was more than he could get away with, he took a small vial out of his vest pocket and put a few drops of a certain kind of oil on the cake, known as croton oil, and then slipped the hunk of fruit cake back into the dish where he had taken it from. Very soon in came a crowd of young gents, and among their number was one who was very sweet on the aforesaid young lady. Of course she had to join that favorite crowd in a social glass and also partake of some of the choice viands on the table. That dear angelic creature got hold of that certain piece of cake which the doctor had fixed for some one else. If you could just hear Dan Ryan tell how rapidly that young lady went for the back door you would split your sides laughing. She did not receive any more calls that day, nor is she hankering after fruit cake as much as she was.

Since the holidays business has been quite slow, and a great many are crying hard times, and there is no prospect of any improvement until this Legislature straightens things out.

The cold weather holds on still and no signs of a change. A good fireplace is about the best spot a man can find. Very few teams are out in the Park or on the Cliff House road nowadays.

Yesterday morning we had quite a serious fire near the corner of Union and Powell streets. A little boy, the son of Daniel Haskins, was playing with matches when he accidentally set the house on fire. The mother and three of the children were burned to death.

The walking match was financially a failure, and the time made—480 miles in six days—is not worth blowing about. The chances are we will get a few days' rest from pedestrianism, and if they would never make their appearance again it would be better for this community.

Those Irish agitators, Dillon and Parnell, intend to visit San Francisco. Great heavens! What have we done that we should be thus afflicted? If I see them (and I shall endeavor to) I will try and get them to take a trip to Independence. Are there any old abandoned shafts, about four or five hundred feet deep, around your place?

The mining stock market continues dull and inactive. Once in a while it takes a little spurt but does not last long enough to give a man a chance to get out to any good advantage. A few men here control the market, and they make all the money that is to be made out of mining stocks.

The police force under Chief Crowley are doing some good work, and have succeeded in closing up all the "hogging" faro games in town. Some of the square ones, such as Briggs', Robeson's and Garfield's games, are running again as usual, and doing a good business. The Chief has not yet started in on the female street walkers, but I think he will look after them very soon, as they are getting to be an intolerable nuisance.

Our new city officials are making some changes in the different departments, and the cry is "put none but Republicans in office." Now the Workingmen are getting very uneasy, as they think the Legislature will legislate every one of them out and fill their places with good Republicans. The Democrats are apprehending the same.

There is considerable talk around town about the trial of De Young for shooting Kalloch. No one seems to have any sympathy for the long-tongued preacher or politician, or whatever you may call him. A great many seem to think that Kalloch did not get as much as he deserved. I heard one man say that De Young ought to be punished, and punished severely, for carrying such a poor weapon—he meant De Young's pistol. Kalloch is all right now and out of danger, but he is very bitter against Charley De Young, and will prosecute the case to the bitter end. He says let justice be done though the heavens fall, but we have got a — curious kind of justice here, and he will find it out before he gets through with this case. De Young has got the best legal talent in the city, and if they don't get him out of that little scrape it will be because there is no water in the bay of San Francisco.

The streets are now in the filthiest condition imaginable. I don't think there is another city in the world which has such dirty, rough streets as San Francisco. A few weeks ago a dead dog was thrown on Bush street, between Montgomery and Kearney, and he lay there until his remains were ground up into mud. There is hardly one block in the city fit for a horse to travel over faster than a walk, and since the rainy season set in, the mud is from one to four inches deep on all the principal streets.

Newt. Morgan and Ver Mehr have been pardoned out of San Quentin, and are now enjoying themselves in the city.

Mr. Berry, Noonan's head deputy, has not yet been heard from. A man will have to drink a great deal of Noonan's beer to get drunk now.

Billy Welch's big brother Charles left here with his happy family—the two-headed nightingale and the two dwarfs—for Los Angeles. He may call at Independence, and if he should, please use him well for the sake of your old friend W. G. L.

LETTER FROM DARWIN.

DARWIN, Jan. 7.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Anybody that would not emigrate from the above place these not over busy times for a few days' recreation when he has a chance, is either penurious or crazy. True, Darwin is no scratch of a place at present, for it still boasts of its boarding houses, stores, butcher and blacksmith shops, livery stables and China wash-houses, and withal an M. D. who actually took in one month's time 1,500 Ayer's pills, thereby preventing the necessity of amputating one of his feet, which was badly bruised by a cat having knocked a blacksmith's anvil off of a table upon it. He preferred death to one foot, and compromised by calling in Ayer's pills, and bandaged his foot with his almanac.

Among the other curiosities we boast particularly of our "singin' skule," now in full blast nightly, rehearsing Girofle and Girofla, to be brought out on St. Patrick's day for the benefit of the Irish suffering fund.

Well, what has Lone Pine got but a Dramatic Society, no loose ducks, and as for Independence, that little burg has got a jail.

One of the severest wants Darwinites lack just now is the entire absence of "rock and rye," a splendid new drink prepared by F. and P. J. Cassin, wholesale liquor merchants, No. 12 California street, San Francisco; also a fine brand of O. K. whiskey. Mines, etc., without number, but no beverages to drink. We stand without a murmur the loss of hash, but take away our regular moistener, and you can easily make us believe we sprang from an ourang outang or any other species of monkey.

Well, Messrs. Editors, my object in penning this article was to give you an account of the hunting excursion to Cartago and around Owens highly perfumed lake. The party was composed of J. J. Williams, his son DeWitt Williams, two double-barreled shotguns and the writer. We left the commercial center of all mining interests in Western Inyo, on the 7th of January, 1880, at 10 A. M., Waterman & O'Brion's store porch being literally lined with their many customers to bid us a kind adieu (many believing that some of the party would kill the balance, being so awkward with firearms), accompanied with countless orders for ducks or any other marketable fowl found in Uncle Billy Walker's country. At 12 M. we found ourselves on the summit, about four miles on our journey, where can be seen any day the veritable remains of one of J. Le Cyr's horses, dead for over three years, standing proudly up against a youcas-draconis petrified or hardened, and bearing the statement that he made the quickest time on record from Van Dyke's ranch to Darwin. We soon found ourselves at Coso Station, kept by Mr. and Mr. J. S. Barnes, where passers-by find kind and hospitable home treatment, and are made to feel at home; that barren and uninviting as this country is there are occasional oases within its borders. From here on we met nothing attractive or living, except now and then an "old black crow."

The "sleeping beauty" resting so sweetly and coolly under her pure white snow coverlet, over on the Mount Whitney range, caused us to admire "muchly" Nature's work, and we wondered how the Divine Being could think of weaving mountains so nicely into the shape of the human Eves of our land, upon the top of their snow-capped summits.

About 2 P. M., here in sight of an Inyo county railroad train, the conductor of which by the simple spoken word "whoa," his sixteen engines stopped instanter, and glad to get a chance, and conveyed the writer the welcome information that he had on board his train plenty of first-class moistening sustenances, information that would gladden the hearts and relieve the dryness of parching lips of men who had passed several days without their usual tod.

At 4 P. M. we arrived at Cartago, the headquarters of the ducks and officers of the C. G. F. Co.'s line in this county, where we expected, through their courtesy, ample to supply the wants of man and beast. But to our great astonishment the new agent, Mr. Shipton, was above; Mr. Lot was above, but Hans Snyder was there, without orders to receive or entertain. He had not heard of the Grant receptions all over the land, and how popular entertaining big guns was becoming. "I'm the Superintendent of the Lucky Jim mine and boss smelter of Darwin. Can I get something to eat and a bed for myself and son?" "Ich dat so? Got no orders to do dat ting."

"I'm C. F. O'Brion, of the firm of Waterman & O'Brion, lineal descendant of Shamus O'Brien, and keep a little store in the big town of Darwin. Can you give me a place to spread my blankets? "Mine Got in Heimmel! Vat vonderful tings you tells me. Got nein order to take you in." "Will you take a square drink of good whisky, Hans?" "Oh, mine Got! mine Got! What fore that man Lot no give orders. Ich habe dustig."

We could not make the riffle, but admired the man's firmness and obedience to orders from his superiors, but failed to see their point just then. But it will be all the same in a hundred years, knowing that it was only through the forgetfulness of Messrs. Lot and Shipton in not giving orders when leaving that their customers were to be cared for when they came. The next day they arrived and apologized to us, and guaranteed satisfactory treatment on our return. We were kindly cared for by our friends Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Villegas, who, Mexican like, are always ready to divide their comforts with their friends. After our long ride tired nature needed rest, and at 8 P. M. our little prayers were said and we went to bed, and found ourselves considerably refreshed by daylight next morning. Long before old Sol had climbed over Cerro Gordo's rich deposit of silver, we were on the warpath in earnest after ducks. Owens lake and surrounding sloughs seem to be the Winter home of the teal, in all his glory; canvas-backs contented and happy; mallards serene and sly; butter duck gloomy and peculiar; dives in their lightning antics; mud-hens, who stand upon their heads; spoonbills without number in their quack, quack, make up a variety to suit the most fastidious. To our great astonishment, upon nearing this pleasant-smelling pool of physic if taken inwardly, we saw at least an acre of water covered thickly with the feathery tribe. Instantly our guns were brought to bear upon them, and at a given signal our broadsides were poured into them, making a sweeping swathe through the center of the flock, leaving one-third of them unharmed on each side able to fly, and the center one-third either dead or flopping in the water.

About this time a stiff and a rattling breeze came pouring over the "sleeping beauty" mountain down on to the lake, and in a moment our dead and dying game was wafted from our gaze towards the Cerro Gordo landing. Being satisfied with our work, if we succeeded in getting its fruit, we concluded to do no more slaughtering, hitched up our team and started for the opposite shore, reaching it first. As the ducks were arriving and the Kern and Inyo stage hove in sight, we soon loaded it down with them, making thereby all the Darwinites happy. Figures won't lie, but men sometimes do; but if we used the right ones we had 147 ducks as the result of three shots, and God alone knows how many there are to arrive at the landing, doubtless delayed on their voyage over. The question of who killed the greatest number was most persistently argued, but Williams being a manufacturer of lead, naturally knew more about its mysteries, and he having gone through algebra knew all about letting X represent what he had said the writer might probably have killed or what did not arrive, and when he got through with his sheet full of X's, pulled the wool over the writer's eyes, and made out that only a mud-hen arrived late in the evening, long after the 147 had been shipped to Darwin; consequently that was his part of the glory. This experience and figuring satisfied the writer that he was a little off on shooting; that it was not his forte or his courage to "wade in" for his game. Hunting ducks would be really nice, if you had a cannon that would shoot a mile—which is about as near as you can get to them. In the language of another, I often found myself exclaiming: "Oh! ducks, ducks, thou art so near and yet so far!" I buy my ducks from now on.

WHAT?

Aside from matters of a trivial nature, let us ask ourselves upon the beginning of this new year what are we doing to be saved from bursting up; what is the outlook and what are our hopes and prospects of the future based upon, and have we anything of a substantial and permanent nature from which to expect a bright future? In Western Inyo there is not much to send a man into ecstacies. The short lived "Leota" of Panamint has passed in its last dishonored and protested check—a genuine burst up—caused by bad management and lack of coin. The same old story—company fail before any work of merit was done on the mine. A camp condemned in capitalistic eyes, before any money worth speaking about found its way into their veins of ore, all of which are said to have more or less merit. But there are those who still have faith in Panamint, and ere a fortnight rolls away the 20-stamp mill will again commence pounding away under new directors.

The Modock furnace will soon start up for a month's run under the management of Birchett & Parker, their smelter being Mr. J. Jamison, well known in these parts. It is yet unknown who will follow in the developing of this supposed by many valuable property.

The New Coso mine is still looking very favorable in the bottom for cutting a large body of ore, and we all hope that this year will not pass without finding a bonanza.

The Hartford Company of Lee District, N. A. Carson, Superintendent, has again recommenced work with favorable prospects.

Some parties owning mines around here are doing assessment work, believing strongly in the future outcome of the camp, and that it is only a question of time before Inyo county has her mining boom.

I presume, Messrs. Editors, you, as well as the balance of our people, don't care how quick said boom puts in an appearance. It cannot come too soon, as every branch of industry, calling and business, is virtually on its last legs, and will soon topple over if something or somebody is not struck.

Oh! we all want a boom in our cactus-covered land,
And we are bound to have the same before long;
So we'll shout the glad tidings in one common band,
With the following for the burden of our song:

Rise up, Inyoites! don't one of you get sick;
Get up a racket that will stir the State all round;
Tell the world about your mines just waiting for the pick,
And the fabulous richness lying scattered in the ground.

Our indications they are good, and the claims are a plenty—
This no practical or sensible man has doubt;
And by putting in a ten you can take out a twenty.
If the mines were handled rightly they'd pan out.

To interested parties and to capitalists on the coast,
We ask you for a call and hear the jingling of your coin—
We assure you we're no swindlers, and know whereof we boast.
Then we'll rise and show our properties and all joys join.

And together in one chorus we'll send up the joyful cry,
Hurrah for that coming of "the sweet bye-and-bye!"

Yours, truly,
C. F. O'BRION.

OF the many guides and seed and plant catalogues sent out by our seedsmen and nurserymen, and which are doing so much to inform the people and beautify and enrich our country, none are so beautiful, none so instructive as Vick's Floral Guide. Its paper is the choicest, its illustrations handsome, and given by the hundred, while its colored plate is a gem. The work, although costing but five cents, is handsome enough for a gift book, or a place on the parlor table. Published by James Vick, Rochester, N. Y.

A NEW YORK Tribune Washington special says that at a meeting of the Board of Indian Commissioners recently, strong charges were made against E. A. Hayt, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and the President will be asked to remove him. It is also stated that Inspector Hammond, who is charged with crooked practices in connection with a silver mine at San Carlos, Arizona, has resigned. Both Hayt and Hammond have been the most trusted officers of Secretary Schurz.

WE neglected at the proper time to acknowledge the receipt of a beautiful lithograph picture of the San Francisco Chronicle building. All we will say now is, that the Chronicle building is, we believe, the finest "print shop" in the United States, and that the paper itself does credit to its building.

A NEW ORLEANS Grand Jury has recommended that gambling houses in that city be taxed $5,000 per year, so that they may contribute to the public treasury, as they are not suppressed, owing to the impossibility of procuring evidence adequate to conviction.

TRAVER'S MURDERER.—Mike Owen, the crippled and battered up murderer of P. L. Traver at Candelaria, seems in his flight from justice to be either attended with extroardinary luck or else he is receiving organized aid from unexpected quarters. The chase after him is more remarkable for stupid blundering than anything else. At Benton, had McBride been promptly aided by the local officer Owen could not have given him the slip. In the next instance, if word had been sent to our officers here by the same stage which brought Owen down, his capture at this point amounted to a certainty. McBride says, however, that he gave the driver a verbal message to pass to the next driver and thus come through, which conveyed all necessary information. The drivers are well known and have always been held in high regard by everybody, but notwithstanding this message and instruction it appears that the first picked Owen up and delivered him to the next, who smuggled him past Big Pine. From near that point he paid his fare to this place, the driver disclaiming any knowledge of who the person was. As stated last week, McBride and Murphy—a specially appointed officer of Candelaria—came on from Benton to Bishop, where they secured John Clark and his team and the three came through to this point. With a new team, Clark and Murphy continued southward, while McBride waited until the arrival of the stage and with it Sheriff Clem Ogg of Esmeralda. These two shortly afterwards struck out on the trail. Right here may be mentioned the fact that, had the party asked the aid of our Sheriff's office, Deputy Sheriff Billy Welch, knowing every foot of the southern roads and cut-offs, would have undoubtedly bagged their man in short order. Clark and Murphy proceeded down the stage road to Nadeau's Station, on the east side of the lake. Here their game was supposed to be located, among the old sheds, corrals and cellers, as the station-keeper reported that such must be the case. Clark found himself placed in the front all the while, and soon after discovered Murphy negotiating with the station keeper—to the effect that the aforesaid s. k. should take his own horse and go and capture the man for and in consideration of the sum of $20. To this he agreed, when the sum was reduced to $5, which was finally declined, with appropriate thanks. All this time the "cripple" was hoofing it for Darwin. Upon the agreement that both were to report at Indian Wells, the parties here separated, Murphy going on to Darwin while Clark took the tired team around the foot of the lake to Uncle Billy Walker's. Failing to get fresh horses there he pushed on to Jim Pruitt's, where he was furnished with a splendid span, with which he drove to the Wells. At this point, upon the arrival of the Darwin stage, the driver delivered intelligence from Murphy that his man was in easy catching distance, right in sight, as it were. Clark in due time turned about, recovered the horses left behind him and came back here. Mr. Murphy, instead of following the stage road, went to Lookout and from there across to Panamint—not finding the man who was so immediately in hand. In fact, it is supposed that Owen was on the very stage which conveyed to Clark the message referred to. Following these two gentlemen were McBride and Ogg, the latter taking the stage below Swansea while Mac returned to Independence. Sheriff Ogg is still on the trail, the latest news reporting that Owen boarded a freight train for Los Angeles while Clem was in Mojave, and that the officer had followed up. John Clark says he has had enough of that kind of pie in his. Murphy explained that "Sure, I'd a got him, weren't I two days behind him all the whoile." Upon their return northward from this place, the three forgot, entirely, to take their arms along, and the last we hear from McBride is a request that, in case Owen ever be found, he should be presented with the aforesaid six-shooters. We advise our northern neighbors, in the event of losing a mustang, to send the same gentlemen after it.

AN ACCIDENTAL KILLING.—At Darwin, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the 12th instant, a man by the name of Chris Norwood accidentally killed himself with a shot-gun in the following manner: The gun was lying on a bale of hay in Fred Spill's corral, and in taking hold of it the deceased caught it by the muzzle and commenced to pull it toward him, when one of the hammers caught in the hay and was raised sufficient to discharge one barrel, the entire contents of which, wads and shot, entered his stomach, and caused death in about half an hour. He was supposed to be a German, between 35 and 40 years of age, and was in company with J. P. Anderson, traveling on their way from Lone Pine to Resting Springs. Justice C. H. Landers held an inquest upon the body, and the evidence was such that the jury rendered a verdict of "accidental discharge of a gun by his own hands, thereby causing his own death." He was buried upon the following day, by the citizens of Darwin.

TAX COLLECTIONS.—The amount of State and county taxes due upon the assessment roll for the past fiscal year was $32,325 60. Of this sum Assessor Dillon has received $1,253 90, and Tax-Collector Moore $22,852 51—making a total of $24,106 41, which amount, less commissions, was paid over to Treasurer Isaacs on Wednesday of last week, and was by him immediately apportioned and such sum used in the redemption of warrants as could be so applied by law. The taxes delinquent and remaining unpaid amount to $8,219 19.

HAY FOR SALE.—Messrs. Broder and Greenly advertise in this issue to sell a lot of good alfalfa and grass hay. Consult the ad. or advertisers for further particulars.

THE ECLIPSE.—Some way, the big eclipse last Sunday was not as grand a success as we had been led to anticipate. True, it began on time, but whether it so ended or not is more than we can say from our own occular knowledge, for that part of the business was cut off from our view by the lofty Sierras. The first contact was plainly observable at 3 o'clock, local time—but local time in this region is of a very uncertain kind. Exactly one hour later the last ray from the upper limb of the sun was intercepted from view in this place by the pinnacle of Mount Tyndall. At that moment about one-fifth of the sun's face gleamed like a crescent shaped headlight of celestial proportions above and around the moon's black disc. For a few minutes the shade or darkness was about the same as it usually is immediately after actual sunset; for several minutes the slope of the Inyo range, facing us from the east, appeared of a ghastly ashen or leaden hue, but yet of a golden tinge, the unnaturalness of which might well excite a feeling of awe and apprehension of impending evil in almost any breast. The bright and extremely sharp points of the sinking sun's crescent each rested upon different mountain peaks, into which they seemed to be driving as if they were a pair of flaming cimeters; the broadest part of the cresent dropped squarely into the sharp notch between the two peaks, so that at the moment for the final dip, it looked as if the great sun had shrunken and condensed all his brilliancy into a star of the first magnitude. This was by far the most interesting phase of the entire event. Some ten minutes after this great star or ball of fire plunged into or behind the mountain in the west, the dimmed rays of the sun on the range to the east began to rapidly brighten, and the last to tip the higher peaks, nearly half an hour later, were quite as ruddy as common—so, contrary to the indications at 4 o'clock, night did not set in a moment sooner than usual. The obscuration was not sufficient at any time to induce chickens and such like to prepare to hang up for the night. The sky during the day was entirely cloudless, leaving no room for dissatisfaction at the weather management.

IS MISERABLE.—Tom Webb, the Presiding Spirit and, ex-officio, Superintendent of the Cleaver and Sausage Stuffer of the lately suspended Pioneer Meat Market, now asserts and maintains and flatters himself that he is miserable to an unprecedented degree. The trouble is simply this: For the full seven years he has passed in this valley he now for the first time finds himself without anything whatever to do, all by reason of the aforesaid sudden collapse of the ancient institution with which he has been so long identified.

ACROSS THE INYOS.—Encouraging reports have been received from several points across the Inyos, at Deep Spring, Lida Valley and that country. Supt. Stevenson, who was lately at Big Pine, announces a very important strike of rich ore in the Buster mine. J. S. Gorman is at present at Big Pine making assays of ores collected from locations in Deep Spring and Sylvania. Curt Ober is kept pretty busy in the same work.

RELIGIOUS.—Revs. F. M. Willis and L. Case are holding a protracted meeting at Bishop Creek, and are meeting with such marked encouragement, at least in the way of a large and deeply interested attendance if not in numbers of full conversions, that they are likely to continne their uninterrupted labors for perhaps a week or more yet. On this account there will not, we presume, be any services in this place to-morrow evening.

BUSINESS. — Day before yesterday Messrs. Wm. Hedge, Scott Broder and Uncle Gid Whiteman left for their new mines in the White Mountains, mention of which was made some weeks ago. The party go with a complete outfit of tent, provisions and mining tools, and are on business from the word go. From all reports, the mining properties up there are destined to become very important.

FUN AHEAD.—It is a pretty well established fact that at Lone Pine, on the 22d proximo, an interesting 100 yards pedestrian "speeding," between a couple of noted local foot-racers, for the sum of $250 a side, will take place. Cerro Gordo, Lone Pine and Independence are ready to "go broke" on the success of their respective champions.

SUSPENDED.—That pioneer institution of Independence, the Pioneer (or Broder) Meat Market, suspended business the other morning, so this metropolis now has no meat market to supply its carnal cravings for karné. It is not mete that we should do without meat. Here's a good chance for somebody to "steak" us again.

RACES.—Bishop Creek is preparing to hang up a number of purses for the winning horses in races of a mile, half mile and 600 yards, to come off February 22d. The full programme will be announced next week.

ANTELOPE.—A two-foot ledge of ore has been struck in one of the principal mines of Antelope District, nearly oppose Bishop Creek. Mr. Woodhull is making assays thereof.

TREES.—The business of trimming up and transplanting trees is now under headway in the valley.

FINE.—The weather, these days, is much like early Spring—clear and warm.

IT seems to be settled that John S. Morton, son of the late Senator Oliver P. Morton, will be appointed Collector at San Francisco.

A CRAZY man took a shot at a priest in a church in London last Sunday, creating intense excitement.

WHY doesn't some "visiting statesmen" go to Maine and regulate that little matter?

NOTES FROM MAMMOTH.

MAMMOTH CITY, Jan. 10.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Mammoth is passing through the furnace of affliction. A combination of untoward circumstances has paralyzed every branch of industry pertaining to this enterprising and rather fast mining town. First and most serious was the snow blockade. Presumably about seven feet of this arctic comforter fell on the level, and when this was supplemented by strong gales it piled up the snow enormously, leaving the Mammothite nothing to desire on this head, even if he had just located after a five years' sojourn in Sitka. For something like ten days there was no communication with the outer world, and the mail-carrier has, presumably, lost his life in the vain effort to push through from Bodie. For six nights and five days he wandered between Callahan's and Casa Diablo, and when found he was frozen solid half way to the knees and elbows. The bare thought of his terrible sufferings cannot be contemplated without a shudder. At present the flesh has begun to slough away, and only amputation will give him a chance for life. This he (Haines is his name) strenuously objects to, saying that if the operation is to be performed at all he prefers it done below his ears, to being left a helpless cripple for life. Getting continually weaker, there is little hope for him. Two men who went out to inspect some mines just before the storm, are

ALSO MISSING.

They have been traced to a tunnel and a blacksmith shop, in either of which if they had remained they would have been safe. Losing their heads as men often do in such cases, they wandered forth to find a grave from which only the Spring thaws will resurrect them.

The Mammoth mill has shut down for a time, it is said. The lack of quicksilver and chemicals is said to be the cause. Whatever may be the reason, the consequent lack of employment has worked considerable hardship. In connection with the cessation of outdoor employment caused by the snow, it was the "last straw that broke the camel's back." Men have been and are every day leaving in twos, in sixes, in dozens; on snow shoes, on barley sacks, on anything, for Bishop, Benton, Bodie, Candelaria—anywhere. Men with their wives and families; married men without families and single men, who were without means, hurried out in case they might be snowed in, and, like the Kilkenny cats,

FORCED TO EAT EACH OTHER.

A compound train of wagons and sleds was fully a week making twenty-six miles. In Rock Creek cañon the advance averaged only two miles per day, at an incredible cost of labor and much swearing. There is no snow in Long Valley, and little between Roland's and Rock Creek summit.

It will now be inferred that Mammoth is quiet. Between sinking winzes and running side drifts therefrom to erratic woodpiles; driving tunnels and cuts in search of clean snow for the melting pot, and fighting the hourly drifts in the highway the major part of the inhabitants are fairly occupied. Those who have none of these domestic cares pass the time "fighting the tiger," or playing poker for Mexican dollars and any stray checks which have escaped the San Francisco wholesaler, while all indulge in much calculation and wonder whether Frank Hutch's "three hundred quarters of beef will go round till Spring."

The livery business has been knocked in the head since Bennett had to sink a double-compartment shaft in search of the ridge-pole of his stable. To be sure the horses might have been hoisted through the roof, but as their education in the matter of walking on snowshoes had been neglected, any stray thoughts in this direction were abandoned.

As Mose Brockman was taking some snow shoe exercise on his way home to Bishop some days ago, a grizzly came down from the mountains with an apparent desire of interviewing him. The bear was without snow shoes, but made satisfactory progress between frequent rests. Never was the same space of Long Valley covered so quickly by any pedestrian.

A GRIZZLY BEAR,

Be it remembered, is an animal whose society is not considered as an acquisition by a lonely traveler. When reaching Bart McGee's his bearship, after various stoppages and some consideration, decided to go for some cattle by the tules, and he did. Mr. Brockman says that he w— w— wasn't a bit frightened, but just then had rather been a locomotive or a balloon or some of those kind of "fixings." I don't blame him.

There are probably thirty-five men at work in all the mines. How they will make the wages of these few men "go round" is a mystery. The boarding-houses stand a good show of being eaten out and no "checks" to show in the Spring. Whisky being a necessity of life, it is presumable that the saloon-keepers will corral all the loose coin. Shared among so many it is hardly probable that any one of them will be knocked down because of the jingle in his pocket. More anon. G. J. F.

THE Carson Tribune has been reliably informed that the Directory of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad has decided to extend a line south, Bodieward, some fifty miles. Surveys will be made at once, and the construction of the road will begin in the early Spring. The line will start from the Mound House. The Tribune adds: "Though this will not be grateful news to some of our people, the benefit resulting from the enterprise will be felt by many. The laboring classes will especially profit by this investment of capital, and a new life will be infused in hundreds who are now idle and in great need of employment."—Bodie Standard.

LAWSON, the President of the Maine Senate, was made Acting Governor of the State on the 12th instant. It is said to be the intention to at once count in the Fusion State officers.

Various Items.

A man named Clifford, living at Reno, claims to have killed 500 deer in the Sierra Nevadas in the past 10 years.

Gov. Perkins was inaugurated at Sacramento on the 9th instant with imposing ceremonies.

Billy Draper, aged forty-four, a pioneer of 1850, a miner and well known sporting character, died at Grass Valley December 27th.

Benicia, after waiting twenty years, has her hopes fulfilled. The first passenger train through that town was welcomed with a great celebration.

At Silver City, Colorado, on Christmas day, a drunken prisoner set fire to the calabose, and two men were burned to death.

Among the last official acts of Gov. Irwin was the granting of a pardon to Newton Morgan the poll-tax forger and to Alfred Ver Mehr, the society young man, who gambled off large sums of money belonging to his employers.

Gov. Garcelon and the Fusion Council got away with the State of Maine. The Republican members, who at first withdrew, returned to qualify.

Mayor Kalloch, of San Francisco, received a dispatch from London on the 9th instant, signed by the Lord Mayor and the Irish Relief Committee, stating that the distress in Ireland is increasing and asking for aid.

Lord Derby, speaking at the trade banquet at Hadfield on the 9th, said: "The United States may be our most formidable rival, but the Americans do not face us in open battle. They fight intrenched behind a protective tariff, even with the help of which they have not wholly checked the importation of English manufactures into America. Still, American competition is not to be lightly spoken of."

Emperor Norton, one of the best known characters of San Francisco, died suddenly on January 9. He was walking along Dupont street and fell to the pavement. He was assisted to his feet and placed against a building to rest, where he died without a struggle.

Wm. Hackett, a brakeman, was knocked from the top of the west bound freight train, at Truckee, a few days ago, by a beam on the snow shed. He fell between the cars and one arm and both legs were crushed under the wheels. He lived but three hours after the accident.

From Belleville.

Thomas O. Minta, of the firm of O. Minta & Co., Belleville, successors of A. J. Rhodes, made us a friendly call last Thursday. He was on his way to San Francisco, where he intends to purchase a large stock of general merchandise for his store. He says the greatest eqcitement prevails in Belleville, Candelaria and vicinity over the killing of P. L. Traver. All sorts of rumors are afloat, one being that Owen was captured, but subsequently released by his friends. Public feeling runs high against Owen, nnd it would not be safe for him were he caught prowling around that section.

Of the future outlook, Mr. Minta speaks very incouraginly. In the Spring there will be a boom in mining matters. Even now capital is seeking investment in the mines there. New mills are talked of and the feasibility of bringing a water supply from the White mountains is being canvassed in an earnest manner. About 500 men are at present employed in the mines. A. J. Rhodes has put machinery in his mill at New Boston and changed it from a wet to a dry crusher, which makes every ton of rock yield considerable more bullion. The mill is now at work ore from the Victor mine.—Esmeralda Herald.

A Dastardly Deed.

The Free Press yesterday morning had an account of a woman known as Mrs. Martin being struck on the head with a stick of wood, opposite the Esmeralda Brewery, about midnight. Her skull was fractured, and it was stated she could not live. The identity of the criminal was shrouded in mystery. Officer Maestretti undertook to ferret the matter out, and his efforts proved successful. Certain circumstances led him to suspect a man named Juan Brussell, whom he arrested at the Esmeralda Brewery. The man confessed to having paid Nick Meadows, a Swede, $5 to give the woman a beating. Maestretti then went after the Swede, and this evening succeeded in arresting him at his cabin on the street in the rear of the Comstock saloon. The officer, with some outside assistance, broke open the cabin door, and while gazing into the muzzle of a revolver, Meadows also made a confession, which differed from that of Brussell in this respect: That he had been paid $5 by the latter to kill Mrs. Martin. Both men are in the calaboose. Mrs. Martin died from the effects of her wound last night.—Free Press, Jan. 10.

THE Nevada Board of Pardons stood three to two on a vote to pardon Alf. Chartz, the majority being against the pardon. A contemptible scrub named Evarts, a superintendent and tool of the Palisade and Eureka narrow gouge railroad, wrote a lying protest against the granting of the pardon, and thereby earned plenty of infamy for himself—nearly as much as attaches to the narrow gouge company for whom he acts.

MAINE is better supplied with governmental machinery than any State in the Union—two Legislatures, with officers and Acting Governors to match, with guns and things in the State House to keep the peace, a General of the State Militia the virtual ruler over all, and last but not least, there's Pillsbury who wants to be a great man.

HON. S. S. Cox was recently interviewed by a Washington reporter. He says ex-Gov. Seymour will accept the Democratic nomination of the Presidency if tendered to him.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, JANUARY 17.....1880

METEOROLOGICAL observations have now become so extended that evidence is rapidly accumulating to enable us to determine positively the source of the cold aerial waves which sweep across our country during the Winter season. The indications are that we owe them to the great area of high barometer in northeastern Siberia, where the pressure sometimes exceeds 31.50 inches, and the temperature falls as low as 76° below zero. The pole of greatest cold is in the neighborhood of Yokutsk, on the Lena, where the average thermometric reading in January of 41° below zero, and where the severest cold exceeds by 10° that experienced by explorers in high arctic regions. This is also the region of the highest barometric pressure known in Winter; and from it, doubtless, proceed the waves of intense cold which play so large a part in our Winter experiences.

PROF. TYNDALL asserts that diseases are propagated not by effluvia of sewer gas, but by solid particles discharged into the atmosphere by currents of air or gas. This he proved by the following experiment: He cut up a piece of steak, steeped in water, heated it at a little above the temperature of the blood, then strained off the liquid; in a short time this fluid became turbid, and when examined through a microscope was found to be swarming with living organisms; by the application of heat these were killed, and when the solution was filtered he obtained a perfectly pure liquid, which, if kept free from particles of dust, would remain pure for an indefinite period; put if a fly were to dip its leg in fluid containing living organisms and then into the pure liquid, the whole would be swarming with animacula in 48 hours.

A FEW drops of nitrite of amyl have a powerful influence in restoring the functions of the heart in cases of drowning, hanging or fainting. It is suggested, therefore, that it should always be used whenever attempts are being made to restore to life an individual apparently dead, or when it is desirable the question whether a person is really dead or not. Dr. Brunton says that in ascertaining death the nitrite of amyl might be used only with the test of tying a cord round the finger. If the circulation has entirely stopped, the part beyond the cord never becomes any thicker, but if the circulation continues, however slowly, the finger-tip beyond the ligature will sooner or later begin to swell.

THESE two salts—borax and nitrate of potash—have been employed with advantage in cases of hoarseness and aphonia occurring suddenly from the action of cold. The remedy is recommended to singers and orators whose voices suddenly become lost, but which by these means can be recovered almost instantly. A little piece of borax, the size of a pea, is to be dissolved in the mouth ten minutes before singing or speaking; the remedy provokes an abundant secretion of saliva, which moistens the mouth and throat. The local action of the borax should be aided by an equal dose of nitrate of potassium, taken in warm solution before going to bed.—La France Medicale.

SURGERY can justly boast of a new conquest; when an eye is severely wounded, the healthy one is in danger of being impaired by "sympathy;" to preserve the good eye, it was hitherto the practice to remove the injured one. Dr. Boucheron has discovered, that by cutting the ciliary nerves, the "sympathy" is stopped, and thus dispenses with the necessity of removing the injured organ. Forty surgeons have thus operated successfully.

Bismarck Dying.

For many years the sooth-sayers of Europe have declared that Bismarck would die in 1880. Months ago the great Chancellor retired from active participation in business, and now the news comes that he is dying. It may or may not be true, but the bare announcement sets men to thinking everywhere. Since William Pitt died no man in all Europe has claimed so much attention from the world as Prince Bismarck. From a low estate he advanced until kings stood in awe of his Imperial mind and imperious will. He grew until Europe at his beck commenced to change her boundaries; he advanced until the petty republics and kingdoms which formerly divided and neutralized German power all faded away and Germany was rounded into a consolidated Empire, even as at first the earth was rounded into form and the mists driven back which before had hid the sunlight. That Germany is now a real nation is due to Bismarck; that the shame and sorrow of 1813 is all wiped out is due to him; that within the brief period of a quarter of a century Germany was enabled to emerge from the chaos and weakness of dissevered States with divided governments into the most majestic of modern powers is due to Bismarck. Once in a while a man appears on earth who, with a power all his own, commands the attention of mankind, whose life grows to be the solicitude of millions who never heard his voice or looked into his face. Such an one is Bismarck. He commenced with a dream of consolidating Germany and of wresting back from France the territory taken by conquest from her when the terror of the name of Napoleon was worth more than an army in France. With that fixed design he toiled. First he practiced the army against the Danes; that he might be sure of its efficiency he had Von Moltke dash it against the Austrians at Sadowa, and when all was ready Bismarck so manouvered that he caused Napoleon to make a declaration of war against Germany, which kindled the sympathy of the world on the side of Germany, and all old humiliations were washed out with blood. Since the close of that war Bismarck, if he has not startled the world by any new flashes of his genius, has held his own among Europe's statesmen. In measuring the strength of Germany an open showing of the number and equipments of her armies has been made, and in thought this force has been made, and has been doubled, because standing behind was Bismarck. His death now would be a greater loss to Germany than she has borne since her old King Fritz ceased to live, and when the pen finally falls from his nerveless hand the strongest support the throne of Germany has ever leaned upon will crumble.—Virginia Enterprise.

THE last attempt to kill the Czar was the most ingenious of any that have been made. A house was hired close by the railroad near Moscow, and a tunnel, which extended beneath the railroad track, was constructed from it a distance of 150 feet, a portion being built of stone. In this tunnel was deposited an enormous quantity of explosives connected by wires with a battery in the house. On December 1st, the train with the Czar and suite on board, passed safely over the mine on the way to Moscow, but when the second train, containing the baggage, which usually precedes the Czar's, came along some people cheered, and the mine was at once exploded, blowing one van to pieces and overturning seven others, but injuring no one. The conspirators had been at work on the mine since early in September.

A NEWSPAPER in Waterbury (Con.) calls Garcelon and his Council "the klepto-Maine-iacs."

The Rulers of Russia.

There are very few people in this world, who would to-day change places with the Czar of Russia, or any of his scampish family. He has lived the life of a tyrant and a brute, inheriting all the disgusting qualities of a line of monarchs whose cruelties have been phenomenal. Ivan one of his ancestors, used to see how many heads he could cut off in an hour. In a go-as-you-please murder match against time, he started with a record of 48, and his best effort is set down at 62. He used to walk the streets during the day, and disembowel his subjects, while his decapitation pastimes furnished his evening amusements. The palace floor was slippery with the blood of serfs and servants, and his female relatives were very fond of the fun. The family now ruling Russia belong to a line of murderers and harlots, who still perpetuate the cruelties of their ancestors upon the unfortunate subjects of the Empire. No wonder the Nibilists grow stronger every day in Russia, where men are dragged nightly from their households without any warrant of law save the imperial will, to be driven into Siberia like cattle, and set to work in mines, where they never more see the light of day. No one can read the history of these barbarities without wishing God speed to the men who are to-day striving to blot out this power from the face of the earth. It must be a matter of regret to every man who has the instincts of humanity in his heart, that the numerous attempts on the Czar's life have failed. The time can not be far off when this dynasty of bloody rulers will reach the end of its tether, and be consigned to the muck heap of history, where it belongs.—Carson Appeal.

PARNELL'S MISSION.—In reply to the address of welcome, Mr. Parnell informed the Reception Committee that the object of his visit to the United States was to give our people an idea of the condition of the farm tenants in Ireland. In doing so he will correct many erroneous impressions. He says the existing famine is not one of food, but of money. Food is abundant, but there is a fearful scarcity of money with which to purchase it. Although he will gratefully receive all the money that warm hearts may contribute to relieve the distress, Mr. Parnell holds that the main relief must come from the British Government in the prosecution of works of public improvement, on which the people may be employed at fair compensation. To provide a fund of money large enough to accomplish the present purpose, that of enabling the farm tenants to gradually acquire by purchase the land they now work on rent, would tax the resources of liberal people beyond all limit of reason; hence, while the offerings of persons in sympathy with the movement will do much towards satisfying the most pressing necessities, the practical relief must result from action that the Government may be induced to take; first, to appeal the oppressive land laws, and then to provide means to enable the people to acquire possession of the soil they now cultivate for others.

MOTS of duelists may be divided into two classes—the smart things said by the vanquished and the magnanimous things said by the victors. Probably Dr. Woodward's reply when Dr. Mead had disarmed him and bade him beg for his life—"Never, until I am your patient"—is the best, as it is the best known of these. A thoroughly stupefying mot was, however, gotten off once at Paris which defies classification: The actors La Rive and Florence, having quarreled, went out and fought on the Champ de Mars, the special insult being the former's calling the latter "a —— scoundrel." The conflict was stubborn till La Rive, though run through the arm, simultaneously disarmed his antagonist, and with the majestic and magnanimous air of a Bayard, said to his defeated foe: "Take your life and your sword. I give them to you freely; and remember, Monsieur, that you owe your life to my generosity, and that you are "a —— scoundrel."

WE once heard an old-fashioned Methodist preacher, when called on to preach, say that he had not expected to, but that it was the duty of a Christian to be always prepared. This we presume was the case with a prominent lawyer, who at a social party was called upon to ask a blessing. It was a part of the practice he was not familiar with, but it never does for a lawyer to intimate there is anything he does not know, and so Mr. —— lowered his head and asked a blessing as follows: "O, Lord, forgive us, for we know not what we do. Amen." There was scarcely a dry eye around the table.

SAID Dr. Chaplain in a recent sermon: "I love to hear the rumbling of the steam power press better than the rattle or roar of artillery. It is silently attacking Malakoffs of vice and Sedans of evil; and the parallels and approaches cannot be resisted. I like the click of type in the composing stick better than the click of the musket in the hands of the soldier. It bears a sublimer force, and of a surer aim, which will hit its mark, though it is distant a thousand years."

THE other day a railroad train on the Denver and Rio Grande road was lifted bodily into a ditch by the wind. The knowledge that zephyrs of this sort are feeling around for stragglers, says an Eastern paper, is what reconciles Coloradoans to silver coin—it is handy as ballast. To deprive them of it would be simply a blow at their personal safety.

THE Call's Washington correspondent gives the outline of a proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution, regulating the counting of the electoral votes of the several States; the first portion prescribing how the number of electoral votes received by any Presidential candidate lacks the important element of simplicity, and is an improvement on the present plan only as it opens the way for any candidate into the Electoral College with an electoral vote in proportion to the number of popular votes he may have received. Under our present system, minority votes do not count in making up the electoral vote. California, for instance, might cast forty thousand for one set of Presidential electors, thirty thousand for another, and sixty thousand for a third, and the latter would be elected and entitled to cast the vote of the State, though the opposition vote, if united, would be against them. The portion of the proposed amendment which aims to settle disputed questions arising in the counting of the electoral vote has the grave objection of bringing the Supreme Courts of the State into the controversy. Experience shows that the power to give political decisions produces a political Bench, and we are rapidly arriving at the conclusion that the opinion of a partisan Judge is worth no more than the opinion of any other equally well-informed person. Within the past few years we have seen eminent Judges, or Judges occupying eminent positions, construing law to suit partisan purposes, and thereby impairing the confidence of the public in the decisions of the Courts. An amendment to the Constitution, to secure the support of the people, should provide for the settlement of election disputes without dragging the Supreme Court of the State into the controversy. At present, the Supreme Court of the United States is composed of an even number of acting Justices, one of the number nominally on the Bench being incapable, from age and infirmities to attend to his duties. His resignation could be easily procured at any time, but both parties are anxious to appoint his successor, and each is waiting to obtain some advantage over the other. There are therefore serious objections to any amendment to the Federal Constitution which proposes to make the Supreme Courts of the several States the arbiters in election disputes. In four cases out of five the dominant party will bend a Court composed of the same party to its will.—S. F. Call.

DR. RICHARDSON says that the body should be in its best physical condition at forty years; for thirty years after the organization should become more perfect; at seventy old age should begin and last for fifteen years, when, from eighty five to a hundred, there should be ripe old age, without disease or pain, but marked by a general subsidence of the vital functions. This is his ideal limit of life where Nature has its undisturbed course.

"YES," said he, as he mixed gin and sugar, "life is a conundrum. In youth we believe in much that is false, and in old age we doubt much that is true. As a golden medium, young man you may charge that drink to me. My name is August—" He didn't finish it. The clerk pensively pitched an ice pick at the spot where he had stood, but he had folded himself like an umbrella and scooted.

A FRENCH paper of New Orleans praises the women of that city by saying the fairest and most carefully reared ladies, reduced to poverty, have so readily adapted themselves to circumstances that they can do their own housework, even to the washing and cooking, and work with the needle besides to support the family, while their lazy, good-for-for nothing husbands loaf around the streets or play keno.

THE fumes from the smelting of lead ore are now passed through a very long line of pipes and woolen bags, and condensed into lead again as steam is converted into water. The lead thus obtained is a powder of exceeding fineness, which makes an excellent blue paint. An intense heat melts this powder, and by a similar process of catching the fumes, a white powder is obtained, which makes a superior white paint.

THE King and Queen of Spain showed publicly the other day, while driving in Madrid, their devotion to their church. They met a priest who was taking the last sacrament to a dying man, and, alighting from their carriage, the young pair lent it to the priest, following on foot amid the acclamations of the people.

A SALT LAKE special says: The Legislature now in session here has thirty-nine members, all of whom are polygamists, with the exception of four. They draw their pay from the National Government, and during their session of forty days enact laws inimical to the interests of American citizens.

THE Indianapolis Journal (Rep.) prints talks with 1,151 Republicans in different parts of Indiana on the subject of their choice as a Presidential candidate. Of that number 342 were for Blaine, 340 for Sherman, 330 for Grant, 38 for Hayes, 23 for Washburne, 14 for Garfield, and a few "scattering."

A LADY was "passing round the hat" in a saloon for the poor. "This is for your beautiful eyes," says gallantly a beau of the old school, dropping a V in the collection-box. "Oh, thanks!" says the fair one with a profound courtesy, "and now I want something for the poor," holding out the box again.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24.....1880

In an address to the Board of Trade of the United States, Mr. R. F. Straine related the following facts concerning the mines of Mexico. Confining our present views to the American continent, it is of much interest to trace briefly the development of mining: "The Spaniards who first came to this continent began the working of gold and silver ores. The Potosi mines in Mexico were discovered in 1545; and such was their yield that mining industry in other parts of the world was powerfully stimulated. In 1548, Zacetecas began to pour forth its treasures. Sambrerete followed in 1556 and Guanajuato in 1558. The important discovery was made in 1557, by a poor Mexican miner, of amalgamating ores with quicksilver. Potosi yielded $7,500,000 per annum during the last years of the 16th century. In 1726 and 1787 the Vizcania and Jacal mines of Zacatecas yielded $4,500,000, then a large sum. The bonanza of Real del Monte was opened in 1762, yielding in 22 years $15,000,000. The methods of mining in those times were but rude and imperfect and the work was constantly interrupted by wars and Indian depredations, and especially by revolutions, yet in spite of these serious drawbacks, Mexico was for a long course of years among the largest producers of the precious metals in the world. These obstructions, however, in time closed her mines entirely."

Mr. Belford, of Colorado, has introduced a bill to create a Mining Bureau, similar in organization to the Department of Agriculture, its chief officer to gather information in person and by competent deputies concerning the mineral resources of the various regions of the United States, processes for the reduction of ores, etc., and to report annually to Congress. He is also required to respond to applications of any citizen for specific information by furnishing whatever may be on file in his bureau in regard to the special subject of inquiry. This would be well enough could Mr. Belford's intentions be carried out, but within one month after its formation the Bureau would be filled with political hacks, whose only qualifications would consist of the services performed for some backwoods Congressman.

The authorities of Memphis, who had been winning golden opinions all round by their sudden devotion to the cause of sanitary reform, have quarreled among themselves. Some of them think that Memphis cannot afford to spend so much money as will be required; others have opinions of their own as to the particular manner in which the work should be carried on. In consequence of these dissensions, the purification process is at a standstill, and there is no telling when it will be resumed. That is the kind of a place Memphis is. Next Summer, when the yellow fever breaks out again, it will be bewailing its hard lot, and appealing to the charity of the North for alms. After all that the city has suffered from its criminal neglect of the primary laws of health, such supineness is incomprehensible.

There must be more in the steam heating business that the public was at first willing to admit. The experiment of steam heating was tried in Detroit, and proved a success, since which time several cities have granted privileges for the improvement, among them Cincinnati. A select committee of the Board of Aldermen of that city, appointed to investigate the subject, concluded their work by agreeing unanimously to report the bill authorizing the laying of pipes under the streets, which the Board of Councilmen have already passed. The committee made inquiries about the working of the system in Detroit, and all the information they received was favorable to it.

The flow of gold to this country seems to have stopped for the present. None arrived last week, and but little the week before. The high prices of breadstuffs and provisions have checked exportation, and the demand for foreign iron supplies other remittances than the precious metals.

Old Winnemucca and Sarah stopped at the Capitol Hotel while at Battle Mountain, Nevada, and when the proprietor showed the chief to a room, the old fellow insisted on going to bed with his clothes on, gum shoes and all.

Jules Favre, the eminent French statesman and Republican member of the Senate for the Department of Shone, and a member of the French Assembly, died on the 20th instant, aged 71 years.

MAINE.

On the 12th instant, the counted out Republican legislators in Maine, together with those whom Garcelon had admitted to seats in his Legislature, got peaceable possession of the State House, and after a due organization of both Houses, the Senate proceeded to choose a Governor from the names sent in by the Lower House. Davis was so chosen, and in due time, took the oath of office, and entered upon his duties as Governor of the State of Maine. The Garcelon or Fusionist Legislature had previously performed a similar ceremony, except that it was Smith whom they elected Governor. Though now fixed up with two Governors, two Legislatures, and other duplicate requisites to furnish laws to suit everybody, besides providing offices for twice as many persons as common, scarcely a Down-Easter could be found who was satisfied. On the contrary, they all grew more and more excited, a great many becoming so full of fight, that they themselves were in perpetual fear of a spontaneous explosion. But here it was that the thermometer stepped in and did the Maine people a good turn—it slid down to from 20 to 40 degrees below zero, and, in so doing, cooled off the fire-eaters immensely. It made it impossible for them to get together in large numbers in the public squares and bite their thumbs at each other with comfort, all on account of the coolness of the air; and when they went to the State House or hired halls to work up a reliable fighting spirit, there they were always confronted and dampened down by innumerable policemen armed with real guns. As a goose is honored for having saved Rome on a certain occasion, so should the thermometer be honored for having saved Maine from a bloody muss. It should be emblazoned on the State arms, with Pillsbury, the Smart, debruised, "a warmin' on't up a mite."

But, notwithstanding the coolness of the atmosphere, the Fusionist Legislature held one rather brief session out of doors, the presiding officers of both Houses taking their stations on the fence enclosing the State House yard. This was on the 19th. The reason that these men staid out in the cold was simply because they were not allowed to go inside, the other Legislature having engaged the inside exclusively for themselves. The Legislature on the fence then passed a joint order to adjourn, to meet on the following day in a hired hall. This order was headed: "State of Maine, House of Representatives, as near as possible." The two Houses then adjourned and went down street and held an indignation meeting of unusual ferocity, and managed to get up considerable excitement, but of a harmless nature, owing to the thermometer. Nevertheless, they settled the fact that the Supreme Court, which had just declared them an illegal body, did not know half as much as Pillsbury, who still said they were a legal body—as Pillsbury had relieved their minds on that head, and as they had come there to do some legislating, they were going to legislate a little before they went home or die like good men and true; that it didn't matter if the Courts would not hereafter recognize a single one of their acts, they would go ahead and legislate, for Pillsbury and his ex-Excellency, old Dr. Garcelon, had both said they must do it; that they were the righteous men, and that the fellows up there in the State House, warm and comfortable, were frauds of the first water, as also was a Supreme Court that had decided against them and Pillsbury on twenty-seven propositions—in short, every question that had been submitted for its judgment in this matter. Some wet-blanket member wanted to know how they were going to legislate in a satisfactory manner, in the face of the fact that the frauds were sustained by the Supreme Court of the State, generally by popular sentiment in the State and out, had control of the State House, the State military, except the Montgomery Guard, the City Police, everything pretty nearly, including the all-important part, the State Treasury? Where were the salaries to come from? The wet-blanket member was pacified by the positive assurance that every dollar of these salaries, etc., would be paid, though every cent of State money might be denied them; private parties of abundant means had pledged the required amount; further, that 10,000 armed men stood ready to back them (the Fusionists), at a moment's warning. With this assurance on Lamson's part, the wet-blanket member and all the rest got more and more indignant, and said they were willing to proceed to legislate on the morrow in a hired hall, or any where else, and would keep at it all Winter till late rafting time in the Spring.

And that, at this writing, is the latest we have in relation to the intestinal troubles of Maine.

Ex-Senator Pomeroy, of Kansas, finds mining more pleasant and profitable than a seat in the United States Senate. He is clearing $1,000 per week from a North Carolina gold mine.

Mr. Charles Leavitt is exhibiting in Cleveland, Ohio, working models of an invention which promises to do away with many of the objections urged against elevated railways. It is described as dispensing with the inconveniences of tracks in streets by substituting an elevated truss-work sustaining a single or double track as may be desired, the cars being suspended under the track and coming to within about a foot of the pavement. Trucks travel upon the elevated track with an easy, smooth and almost noiseless motion, and are so secured that they cannot be forced from the rails. The appliance for propelling the cars consists of an endless steel wire cable, which extends the entire length of the road above the track and runs in a circle, so that cars upon one track are drawn in one direction, those upon the other in an oppose direction. The motor is a stationary steam engine, situated at one end of the road, which works directly upon the cable. The cable is attached to or detached from the trucks of the car by a clamp device, which admits of starting or stopping the car at any point.

A Washington dispatch of the 17th says Ouray has had a second interview with Secretary Schurz. It has been about determined to send Ouray, Jack, and other chiefs back to Colorado in charge of an agent, for the purpose of bringing, if possible, the twelve Ute murderers, or as many of them as can be induced to come. It is believed by those who are informed in Indian matters that it is the intention to play upon the fears of the Indians, with a view of settling on as good terms as possible. Ouray has persisted from the first that he has no power to bring in these Indians. He assures the Secretary that he cannot compel them unless he can kill them first, which he is personally willing to undertake. The embargo on Utes has been removed, and they will be allowed to see visitors. It is understood that Gen. Hatch is already on the way, or about to start, from the Indian country with a second delegation of Southern Utes, who will come to Washington in a few days. It is not likely they will be allowed to go home until they have come to some agreement which will be satisfactory to the Government.

The formal opening of the American Union Telegraph Company's lines, with their 12,000 miles of new land wire, more than 1,000 stations, and direct connection with the new French cable, took place a few days ago. This is the only genuine opposition which has started to the present Western Union and Associated Press monopoly. So far the lines of the new company have only been extended as far west as Omaha, but connections with this coast are promised at an early day. The new company has had several hard and very costly fights with the Western Union, but has achieved a victory in every instance. The officers declare that prices must come down to living rates, and they have already lowered them about forty per cent.

The public was at a loss to know why a daughter who has always been affectionate should, in the dead hour of the night, shoot and kill her own mother, as did Helen Josephine Ward, not long ago, in Boston. The young lady herself was at a loss to know why the deed was committed. She was indicted for murder. Close inquiry, however, convinced the prosecuting attorney that the shooting was done in a period of somnambulism, and entering a nolle prosequi he had the prisoner discharged. All the circumstances pointed clearly to this fact, or that the girl was insane. The people of Boston seemed pleased that Miss Ward was not held for a criminal trial.

In Benton county, Iowa, they have a debating club which attacks the most difficult questions. At the last meeting they wrestled with the following:

"Resolved, That the honors bestowed on Gen. Grant are not in accordance with the principles of our government." "Resolved, That the herd law, as now existing in this county, is detrimental to the interests of the citizens of Benton county."

A report made by the Government Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad shows that the road will earn $13,600,000 this year, while its expenses are expected to be less than half that sum. There ought to be sufficient encouragement in this statement for the projectors of the oppositiou lines.

Brownsville, Texas, finds itselt in the hands of new owners, the Federal Supreme Court having decided in favor of an old Spanish grant covering the land on which the city stands. The grant was bought by speculators and this decision ousts the previous holders under circumstances of great hardship.

The new Maryland Senator, Mr. Gorman, began life as a page in the Senate, having received his appointment through Stephen A. Douglas.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, Jan. 18.

Messrs. Editors: During the past week the usual number of murders, rapes and suicides have been committed, and this place is growing no better very fast. The most remarkable event that occurred was the death of Emperor Norton. One evening he went prowling around on Dupont street, to see what he could find, and like a great many others who visit that locality, "Fell, like Lucifer, never to rise again." He died perfectly happy and as his sweet spirit took its upward flight to those bright realms of eternal bliss, he exclaimed with heartfelt gratitude and tears in his eyes—Well, no matter what he did say.

San Francisco is now without a conspicuous character. Where the old one-eyed scissors grinder has gone to, I cannot say. His doleful notes are no longer heard on the corner of Pine and Kearney streets. The Gutter Snipe passed in his checks some time ago, and now sleeps with the blest in the bosom of Abraham. Tin Foil has also shuffled off this mortal coil. The Whistling Nigger is out at the House of Correction and will be compelled to remain there about three months. This looks deplorable for a great maritime city like San Francisco

The theatrical business has not been very good of late, and I am very sorry to relate that the best theater in town, the California, has had to close its doors for want of patronage. This was not owing to mismanagement, for its manager and its officers were men of the highest ability; most noble, upright, honest men in the world. Of General Barton, the manager, I cannot find words to express my admiration. As the immortal bard says he was one

"Where every god did seem to set his seal
To give the world assurance of a man."

He brought the best talent in here that could be found, and while thousands and thousands of our most respectable citizens were crowding into the Mechanics' Pavilion to witness the walking match, such an actor as Lester Wallack was playing to empty benches at the California. The Colville Troupe will play there during the next two weeks, and what will become of the California after that no one knows.

Yesterday was delightfully pleasant, and the ladies, God bless their little souls (on their shoes) were out in full force. And such style as they put on! The hats now worn by women are perfectly indescribable. I saw one on a lady yesterday and it was shaped something like an old milk pan which had been run over several times by the street cars. Some of them wear a little round top hat, the same as worn by young men, and when they get one of those hats and a long ulster on, it is difficult to distinguish one of them from a cigarita fiend that hangs out on the corner of Bush and Kearny streets. The Buffalo Bill hat takes the cake. This is a great big broad sombrero, such as was worn by bad Greasers here in early days. When my old woman gets her B. B. hat on, and cocks it just a little over to one side, she puts me in mind of that bad man from Bitter Creek. The more the ladies strive to improve in the hat the worse they make it. The old hat is much nicer and will give better satisfaction.

The ulsters the women wear nowadays are a great institution—they show off their shape to such good advantage, and then they can wear them without any other clothing, except stockings and shoes. It is very handy for them to pull on their shoes and stockings, put on their ulster and go to breakfast.

The State Prison Commissioners were appointed last week, and they have the appointment of a Warden. Some one writing for the Call and Bulletin advises the Commissioners to send to New York State and secure the services of Capt. Pillsbury's son, who was raised around the Albany Penitentiary. Just think of it. Here are three or four hundred thousand intelligent men in the State of California and not one fit to fill the position of Warden at a State Prison! The fellow who wrote that article should have about fourteen inches of his ears trimmed off and sent to Virginia City and be compelled to pack wood for Chinamen during the balance of his life.

By the time this Legislature gets through with their duties we will have almost an entire new city government. They are going after the Board of Health, the Police and Fire Departments and several of our city officials.

Our Sheriff had a little scare last week, but it did not amount to much. One of his bondsmen withdrew and the county Judge declared the office vacant on account of the insufficiency of his bonds. Finally the Judge modified his order and gave him time to get a new bondsman, which was done and the whole rumpus settled. Desmond has made a great many enemies since he has been in that office, and if there is a any way to get him bounced it will be done. The place is worth about three thousand dollars a month, and it is pretty good to have.

I did think of attending church this afternoon, but a friend of mine has just come in and invited me over to Oakland and see a chicken dance, or in other words a cock fight. I can go to church any Sunday, but cock fights are very scarce here; so I guess I'll go over to Oakland.

Good-bye, Jim, till you hear from me again. I will tell you all about it and that will do just as well as if you and all the rest of your readers had been there yourselves. W. G. L.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8, 1880.

Congress, by its re-assembling, gives us assurance that the Union is safe, even if in Maine the political cauldron is boiling at white heat. Our Senators and members dropped into their places on the 5th as quietly and naturally as if no long vacation had intervened since the last day's wark. Mr. Randall cocked his eye-glasses, squinted his his eyes, and threw back his head in a manner peculiar to himself when in the chair, and went promptly into business. In the Senate the same matter of fact proceedings obtained, and now a Congress is in the harness again for a long pull, as we think, though we are promised a short session by the legislators, and the daily Post, the leading Democratic paper here, is strongly urging as a national necessity, that Congress adjourn long prior to the presidential conventions in June. This is all very pretty talk, but past experience, if it be a criterion, shows that Congress cannot stop its windmill short of July, the first year, no matter what the country demands. It is impossible to expect the passage of the appropriation bills till just before adjournment, for so many steals and swindles are embraced in them that comomon prudence dictates to those interested the prolongation of the session until such time as an adjournment becomes a necessity, and then drive the appropriation measures through both Houses under the lash of haste and spur of the previous question. Such has ever been the rule, and we venture the prediction that 1880, as in past even years, will require our Summer heats and Potomac flats malaria to force Congress into rustication.

The residence of Mrs. ex-Senator Stewart, of Nevada, was recently nearly destroyed by fire. "Castle Stewart," as it is familiarily called, has been one of our curiosities, hence its partial destruction has excited more than ordinary interest. Senator Stewart was one of the so-called "Real Estate Ring," which, purchasing large areas of vacant grounds in the "West End" in 1870, induced the investment by the British Government of several hundred thousand dollars in the purchase of lots from them, and in the erection of a residence and office for its Minister and Embassy. Mr. Stewart followed with his castle, expending on it at least $250,000. Other members invested largely in houses, and in consequence of their shrewd management of capital, so strong an impetus was given to real estate in that section of the city that our aristocracy adopted it as the fashionable quarter, and have nearly covered it with costly residences. Hundreds of acres of commons which, during the war, were occupied only with sparse huts and shanties of those who herded their cattle and goats upon them as public pasturages, are now covered with stately dwelling houses that a plebian hardly dare enter on any pretext. Castle Stewart stands a monument to mark this change, which has given Washington its best ornament—true progress—and though reverses have since rendered the Senator bankrupt, and sent him bact to the practice of the law for his daily bread, we here can only have the kindliest feelings for him. It is curious to note the depreciation which has occurred in the values of the household furniture and decorations of Castle Stewart. Though costing over $100,000 when new, an appraiser now estimates them to be worth about $20,000. Lace curtains that cost $1,000 a pair in Paris in 1871 are valueless, of course, and so with much that gave the "Castle" its palatial features when the Senator was in the hight of his glory. His "gorgeous temple" has faded to him, but to us it, and an everlasting benefit, remains.

We alluded recently to Miss Horton's attempt to shoot the son of Senator Morgan, of Alabama. Since then she has been admitted to bail, Mrs. Belvia Lockwood being her surety, and has been provided with a comfortable house by Mrs. Spencer, who, with other so-called strong-minded women, took her in charge, as she was in a necessitous condition. Miss Horton alleges against Morgan not only seduction and breach of marriage promise, but the vilest persecction since she came here to enter suit against him. Wherever she went to a boarding house he followed her and had her turned into the street, and to such an extent did this persecution go that she was driven to desperation, so that she felt irresistably impelled to kill him. Another allegation is, that she was promised relief if she would return him the letters he wrote her, and on which she based her suit for damages. Her statements are implicitly believed by those who have befriended her, and, if true, one can hardly resist the wish that her bullet had not failed to do its intended mission.

A white man was robbed and murdered on the 7th instant by some negroes, in one of somewhat thickly settled streets, and near his place of business. Some women heard the blows and struggle, but were unable to get assistance to the victim until so terribly beaten that he died in an hour after the police arrived. Every pocket was rifled, showing robbery to have been the object of the assault. It may be noted that the great majority of offenses here have been committed by colored persons, and the inquiry is often heard, Should not more summary punishment be meted out to the transgressors? The negroes number about one-third of our population, and yet they commit much more than half the crimes, such as theft, burglary, and murder, a disproportion not much calculated to give exalted ideas of their honesty and harmlessness. A few broken down political hacks and poverty stricken whites are clamoring for the restoration of popular suffrage in the District, so that political power may again be given this class of dangerous people who swarm in "Murder Bay," "Hell's Bottom," and other euphoniously named slums, where life is hardly safe in daylight, and who, when we were cursed with universal suffrage, turned out in mobs on election day to vote into office men of their own stripe. Legislative Proceedings.

Sacramento, Jan. 17.—In the Assembly, the bill introduced by Cuthbert, making it a felony for aliens ineligible to citizenship to engage in any business, was reported upon unfavorably by the Judiciary Committee. Fox said it would entail the necessity of supporting over one hundred thousand people either in the State Prison or Poor House. The bill was referred for amendment.

The joint resolution, extending sympathy to the sufferers of Ireland, proposed by McCallion, came up for passage.

The Speaker decided the question asked yesterday, that no bill could be introduced by request, but a member must assume the responsibility.

The Judiciary Committee recommended that the bill requiring accounts to be kept in the English do not pass.

In the Senate, the Committee on Judiciary recommended the adoption of the report of the Committee on Mileage, allowing only ten cents per mile, as allowed by the Constitution.

Davis moved to suspend rule 37 in reference to the introduction of bills in order to introduce a bill, giving as his reason that the Senate and House were pursuing different practices in legislation, and that such course was certainly illegal. The method proposed in the House to test the construction of Section 15, Article 4, could not reach the Supreme Court until a lower Court's decision. He had, after consultation with the Attorney General and members, decided to introduce a bill authorizing the Controller and Treasurer to transfer $20,000 from the General Fund to the School Fund. One officer could refuse to recognize the legality of the law, and on a writ of mandate the question would be brought before the Supreme Court and settled. Leave was granted for the introduction of the bill, and the Senate decided by a vote of 29 to 7 to declare the bill a case of urgency, and it was ordered printed immediately.

Another.—Brother, the Rev. F. M. Willis, has organized another Lodge of our Order in his new field of labor. Bro. Willis now reports the organization of "Busy Bee" Lodge at Independence, Inyo county, Cal., with twenty-five charter members. That Lodge was organized on the 5th instant, and has selected Monday as its night of meeting. William F. Welch will be commissioned Lodge Deputy. Bro. Willis says the Lodge commences with a strong force of the foremost men and women of the place. The County Clerk, County Treasurer, and Deputy Sheriff are all charter members of the new Lodge, as are also two of the ablest attorneys of the town. We predicted when Bro. Willis removed to his present location, where no Lodges of our Order existed, that ere lon such would be found. He has now instituted two Lodges and he concludes his last communication with the encouraging demand for "more applications."—Los Angles Weekly Rescue.

"What is hell?" asked a Lutheran Sunday school teacher of a Limestone street boy, in class, last Sabbath. "A shirt with a button off, ma'am," replied the boy. "Explain yourself; what do you mean, sir?" demanded the meek-spirited, but surprised teacher. "Well, I heard my pa say to my ma, the other morning, when he put on a shirt with the neck-button off, 'Well, this is hell.' That's all I know about it."

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24.....1880

OTHER LOCATERS.—There are now quite a number of different companies operating in Beveridge District, all within an area of about seven miles in a northerly and southerly direction, and about half that in the opposite. All these companies are greatly elated at their prospects. The most northerly, as well as the most recent set of locations, five in number, are by Messrs. Decker, Ellis and Anthony. These are up in the timber belt near the head of Freeborn Cañon, about four miles west of Saline Valley. The immediate surroundings are excessively rugged. The ledges, as a rule, crop boldly out for long distances. The pay streak is rarely less than two feet wide, and oftener, twice that. A good prospect in free gold can be horned out from any portion of these pay streaks, no matter where taken or how often tried. So far, no other process has been tried to determine the value of the ore more accurately, but that it is very rich in free gold is perfectly obvious without demonstration by any more intricate process than that of "horning," or a visual examination of the richer pieces. Some two miles down the cañon are the Peter Taylor locations, referred to elsewhere. A few miles southerly, a company of Frenchmen are operating upon seven locations, upon one of which, the Cosmopolitan, there are about 500 tons of ore above ground, estimated to work to $100 or more. Some Mexicans running arastras near there, have contracted to pack down and arastra 500 tons of ore for these parties at $50 a ton. In this vicinity there are about 75 Mexicans at work, reducing their ores in arastras, and, apparently, all are doing well. There are still other companies operating in the district, but of which we can only refer in addition to the old original company of the district, Hunter, Hughes & Co., whose locations are in the vicinity of those belonging to the Mexicans. We are not advised as to the present operations of this company. We are told that there is enough water in one stream near these mines to run a 10-stamp mill the year round. There is no question but Beveridge District will furnish remunerative employment to several hundred men.

RETURNED.—Sheriff Clem Ogg passed through town Wednesday last, on his way home and without being accompanied by the murderer, Owen. Mr. Ogg kept up the pursuit to a station the other side of Los Angeles, where all traces of the man were lost. The officer is bitter in his comments upon the series of circumstances which enabled Owen to escape, notwithstanding his own errors in going from Aurora to Candelaria instead of coming straight to Benton, and in going from Lone Pine to Darwin instead of going directly to Indian Wells—probably heading off his man in either event. He animadverts, also, upon the custom of the County Commissioners of Esmeralda in hitherto refusing to allow an officer's pay and expenses upon such pursuits—a previous matter of the kind having been decided against him by Traver himself. In reply to a question if he knew of a reward being offered before starting, Mr. Ogg stated that he did, and so informed the proper persons all along the road. The press telegrams stating that Owen had been captured by the Sheriff of Los Angeles were erroneous, being based upon the arrest of the wrong man. However, Sheriff Ogg has little doubt but that the officers of Los Angeles and San Barnardino will soon take in the fleeing murderer and deliver him promptly at Aurora.

TAYLOR'S MINE.—Peter Taylor, of the new reduction works at Beveridge District, was in town yesterday, bringing in the handsomest lot of gold quartz specimens it has ever been our pleasure to look at, even from that auriferous region. He has nine locations, from one of which, the "New Year," he himself in less than a day's labor, took from the ledge five tons of ore, every piece showing fine gold and all of which will yield anywhere from five hundred up into the thousands of dollars per ton in gold. The ledge is two feet in width, carrying white quartz literally flecked with gold, and a stratum of iron oxide assaying high in fine gold. The specimens shown as a fair average are undoubtedly rich, without mistake; and it can no longer be doubted that Beveridge District is an immense gold field. Mr. Taylor's arastra will start up about the 1st proximo, with some thirty tons of ore on the dump and fine bodies of ore in sight in all the mines. Mr. Taylor expects within the next sixty days to have the stamps running.

THE LONE PINE RACES.—A series of running races, for purses and pools, will be held at the Lone Pine track on the 22d and 23d proximo. The programme includes a single dash of one-forth mile for purse of $40 and entrance fees of $10 added; 600-yard race for saddle horses, for purse of $35 and fees of $5 each for entrance. Also, single dash of one-half mile, for $50 purse and $20 entrance fees; and a single dash of one mile, free for all "scrub saddle horses," for $20 and entrance fee of $2 50 each to be added to the purse—two-thirds of the coin to go to the first and one-third to the second horse. There is likely to be considerable sporting and much fun all the way through.

THE BIG PINE DITCH.—The Big Pine Irrigating Company has completed some eight miles of their big ditch, and work is progressing at such a rate as will insure most valuable results from it during the coming season. County Surveyor Seeley is preparing elaborate maps and reports of all the irrigable lands in the valley, showing ditches as already completed and as proposed. We hope to present the matter in full in the next issue.

FISH SPRINGS. — Messrs. Mairs & Westerville are extracting about two tons per day of fine gold ore from their mines at Fish Springs, which produced so much gold years ago. The arrastra will probably be started up again soon, unless the ore should be purchased by some mill or shipped to San Francisco. The ore is peculiar, much of it carrying more sulphurets than quartz; is hard to handle without roasting, but is of a high grade in gold. With a proper application of a little capital, systematic mining and careful working, these mines can be made to produce a fortune for their owners. With a lot say of twenty tons, we would suggest the use of the Frue concentrator, recently put in at the Eclipse mill, and the shipment to San Francisco of the concentrations. It would be a promising experiment and one well worth trying.

BEVERIDGE.—Several prominent mining men, representing George Hearst and Messrs. Haggin & Tevis, have recently been inspecting the gold mines of Hunter, Hughes & Co., Beveridge District, and the Palma mine, near Cerro Gordo.

STATED MEETING.—Inyo Lodge F. & A. M. will hold a stated meeting at the hall to night, for work and important business.

AMONG the many bills introduced this week was one by your representative, Mr. Wasson, to increase the number of Notaries Public. His purpose is to have the Governor appoint one for Mill Creek or Homer District and also at Benton. He believes that these two sections of country will become active and thickly settled mining camps in the Spring, and that the presence of Notaries there will prove of much actual benefit to locators, prospectors, etc. In advance, he said to me yesterday, that the "State having refused to appropriate funds to finish up the State Geological Survey, Prof. Whitney packed off all his data to Cambridge, Massachusetts, where it is being printed in the interests of science by a private enterprise," and that to enable this State to reap whatever benefit there may be in the matter, he introduced the following resolution yesterday:

Resolved, That the Committee on Mines and Mining Interests be and are hereby requested to communicate with the Cambridge Museum, of Massachusetts. with a view to procure for the State of Calirornia five hundred copies of the volume now in progress of printing, entitled the "Auriferous Gravels of California," by J. D. Whitney; said work embracing the unpublished portion of the material gathered by Prof. Whitney and his assistants during the years 1870 to 1875, and embracing the labors of the State Geological Survey from its inception to its termination.—Sacramento Corr. Bodie Standard.

THE Board of Health has decided, in consequence of the appearance of small-pox on board the steamer City of Peking on her arrival at San Francisco, to transfer the Chinese crew and passengers to quarantine Hulk at Saucelito, and keep them there until satisfied no further danger of contagion exists. Officers of the ship and white passengers will remain on board until it can be determined whether they are infected. The captain of the steamer will be allowed to come ashore after being well fumigated, to attend to necessary business. All freight on board will remain untouched till the passengers come ashore, when the ship will be thoroughly fumigated, after which the goods will be landed.

A Tribune Washington special says The California delegation are again becoming restive on the Chinese question, and they say they will unite upon a measure restricting the immigration of Chinese. Secretary Evarts, they say, has had a year to secure modification of the Chinese treaty, but, so far as they can learn, he has accomplished nothing. When the last Chinese bill was vetoed the California delegation was assured by Mr. Evarts that the President might have approved the bill had some of the objectionable features been omitted. The new bill has now been prepared to meet those objections.

THOS. TREGEMBO, one of the men lost in the snow near the True Blue tunnel, says the Mammoth City Times of the 14th instant, was found on the 12th by his brother and a Mr. Argall. When found he was lying face downward, and completely covered up with snow with the exception of a small portion of his back. The body was frozen solid, and was in such a shape that it was found necessary to thaw it out in order to prepare it for burial. Parties are still hunting for the remains of Oates, the other man lost at the same time.

A DISPATCH from Rome of the 20th instant says the Pope is surprised and indignant at Cardinal McClosky's reception of Parnell in New York, and has ordered Cardinal Nina, the Papal Secretary of State, to telegraph to Cardinal McClosky for information on the subject. The Pope is indisposed.

THERE is to be a large party of excursionists from Boston to this State this Summer. The money-changers think of ordering a car-load or so of nickels from the East, for distribution along the proposed line of travel of the of the excursionists, so that the right change can be readily made.

FEBRUARY next will have five Sundays—a circumstance which happens only once in twenty-eight years.

The Bodie Railroad.

We find the following article in the Bodie Standard of the 19th instant:

The Virginia Enterprise and Chronicle and the Lyon County Times all credit Supt. Yerington, of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, with saying that the Rodie Railroad is to be built right away. The Enterprise, quoting Mr. Yerington, says: "The road will start from the Mound House, run down the Carson river past Sutro, cross over the river below there, and thence to Mason Valley. Its course will then be to Walker Lake, over which for thirty miles a steamer will be run. By this route the trade and travel of Bridgeport, Aurora, Benton and Columbus will be secured. The exact location of the track along this route has not yet been decided upon." The statement has been corroborated by the Lyon County Times, which, furthermore, gives a little insight into the causes which have spurred the V. and T. up to immediate action. The Times says: "The Virginia and Truckee Railroad will soon be extended to Walker Lake. There is no doubt about it. The recent incorporation of a company which proposes to build a road to the same point from Wadsworth on the Central Pacific road has made it necessary for the V. and T. people to exert themselves in this direction. Otherwise they will lose the Bodie trade, which is already considerable, and which promises to become still more so."

NOTWITHSTANDING all the peaceful professions of Russia, she is secretly continuing her preparations for war. The directors of her rifle manufactories have been directed by the War Office quietly to prepare as many breech-loaders as possible; therefore 70,000 will be manufactured at Sestiomiz, 80,000 at Isevezz, and 500,000 abroad. A very trustworthy correspondent, who has just visited all the larger towns in Russian Poland on his way via Warsaw and Willna-Terija, writes that not only all the larger towns in that district, but also places which previously had either a small garrison or none at all, are now crowded by troops of all arms. This is chiefly the case in respect to those places lying west of Warsaw, on the route from Czenolow to Wilna and Dunaborg. In three places bordering on Germany and Austria, viz: Warsaw, Wilna and Kieff, are quartered nineteen foot and nine horse divisions, besides a great force of fully equipped batteries, and they are being constantly increased by fresh arrivals—S. F. Call.

IN speaking of the escape of Owen THE INYO INDEPENDENT is disposed to compliment Benton's local officers in a left handed sort of way. THE INDEPENDENT does them an unintentional injustice. We have reasons of a private nature for saying that never were officers more completely off the scent, and by parties, too, in whom they had the most implicit confidence. The information imparted them would have deceived the oldest constabulary in the world.—Bentonian.

Sheriff Ogg has good reasons for believing that himself and Owen were in Los Angeles at the same time, but these reasons, together with the reasons why the fugitive could not be captured there cannot be made public at the present time.—Bentonian.

If the Semi-Weekly Bentonian knows anything, out with it—the public has a right to the information. Does a Molly Maguire organization extend from Virginia City to Panamint, or to Los Angeles? Some people hereabouts are imbued with the idea that some of Owen's pursuers didn't want to interview him at all, with any view of capturing him, at least.

WE are pleased to note the success which has attended the labors of Rev. George D. Brown by stating that there are now six candidates for baptism, consisting of the following named gentlemen: J. J. Kelly, W. C. Brierly, K. C. Johnson, Ben. F. Bartlett, Geo. M. Gill and Ben. M. Maddox. They will be soaked in Lake Mary next Sunday.—Mammoth City Times.

It is to be hoped Rev. Brown won't think of trying to soak those fellows to anything like purity. The waters of Big Owens Lake, at our end of the river, are nasty enough now, the Lord knows.

BOB INGERSOLL gets $70,000 a year for ridiculing hell, while a minister in Bishop Creek gets $500 for standing in on the proposition. The demand for another flood is apparent.—Bodie Free Press.

Bodie, having no church nor congregations, but being possessed of a preacher or two, is simply envious of our Gospel Swampers—that's all.

BODIE Free Press items: George M. Pinney is in Chicago, where he is endeavoring to "place" some Inyo county mines....Capt. S. D. Prescott, of the Sultan Hill mines, still lingers in New York. A few evenings since he made some remarks before the Bullion Club of that city....Thirteen thousand redwood ties, to be used in the extension of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad through this county, are piled up at the Mound House.

MONO county is to have a Court House at last. A suitable tract of land in Bridgeport has been donated to the county by A. K. Allen and D. Hays and brother, and the Board of Supervisors have voted to expend $20,000 in the erection of a county building, with Court room, county offices, jail, etc., and plans and specifications are called for.—Standard.

THE Republican State Central Committee have called a State Convention, to meet at Sacramento April 29th, to select delegates to the National Convention that meets in Chicago in June.

HISTORY does not relate that Adam and Eve obtained their sweets by raising cane.

Coal mines are being opened up within six miles of La Veta, and two miles of the Rio Grande road, Colorado.

The Stevens mine, near Georgetown, Col., lies at an elevation of 12,500 feet, and is worked all the year round.

There is great promise of a big mining camp in the Dragoon mountains, Arizona. There is plenty of good ore on the surface, and miners are rushing in.

Assemblyman Gorley has introduced a bill in the California Legislature to compel stock companies to sell stock to the highest bidder, when advertised for sale for delinquent assessments.

An Irish farrier once sent a bill to a gentleman with the follow item: "To curing your honor's horse that died, 6s."

A St. Alban's wife, in reply to her husband's advertisement that he would pay no debts of her contracting, publishes a card expressing surprise that he had raised money enough to pay the advertising bill.

A dispatch says: A woman has died of starvation in Kilkenny. There is a large influx to Kilkenny of tramps from the distressed districts, and in consequence of the insufficiency of the police numerous burglaries are committed.

On the 17th instant Charles De Young was arraigned before Judge Freelon in San Francisco upon the charge of assault to murder Mayor Kalloch. Mr. Cohen, counsel for defendant, asked for a continuation to the 24th, which request, on motion of the Prosecuting Attorney, was granted.

Gov. Cornell, for his New Year's dinner, had a gift of a turkey weighing dressed for the fire exactly forty-one pounds.

The German Emperor has ordered that the fund of more than $60,000 collected on the occasion of his golden wedding, be exclusively devoted to the relief of the famine-stricken Silesians.

Senator Chandler's will has at last been discovered among the papers of the late Judge Edmunds, of Washington. It has just been admitted to probate. It leaves the Senator's property in equal proportions to his widow and daughter.

SOME two hundred and fifty ladies of New York and other cities are about incorporating a Woman's Mining Company. One-half of the capital stock of $25,000 has been subscribed. The projected company has the refusal of certain valuable mining property in San Juan county, Colorado, and many of the fair investors are already revising their wardrobes with a view to a prospecting trip next Summer. In connection with this company a permanent bureau of information, for the benefit of women desiring to invest in mining enterprises, to be called the Woman's Bullion Club will be established. Both organizations will be officered and controlled exclusively by women, and a number of those connected with the company will personally superintend the working of the mines. Nobody can fail to look upon this experiment with interest.

BY the final settlement of all differences between John H. Lick and the Trustees of the late James Lick, which took place on the last day of December, 1879, the bequests of the deceased millionaire are rendered available. There will now be expended $540,000 given for a School of Mechanic Arts, $150,000 for free baths, $160,000 for statuary in the Park and City Hall, $150,000 for the relief of Indigence, and $10,000 each for the Mechanics' Library and the Mercy to Animals Society.

PRINCE BISMARCK is reported to have once said in one of his familiar discourses: "In politics I act as a I do out duck-shooting—I put my foot on one bowlder, and do not take it off till I see my way to another. When I do I step on to the new bowlder and leave the old one behind, and so on until I am out of the marsh."

THERE are a great many people in the world who are bound by the close ties of blood to the man who said he had laid up two shillings, one for himself and one for the Lord, but that the one he had intended for the Lord had been lost in an unfortunate speculation.

LOTTA, the actress, was a witness in a St. Louis lawsuit. "What is your age?" she was asked. "People might not believe me if I told, for some say I am 45." That was the only answer she would make.

AT Saratoga, Santa Clara county, recently, A. K. Smith dug up a bonanza in the shape of a box of money that contained $8,000. It was found on what is known as the York or George Cross property.

JACOB SHAEFFER, won $1,000 and the championship of America at a billiard match in New York on the 12th instant, beating Sexton. Slosson, another knight of the cue, will now challenge Shaeffer.

SOLEMN people in San Francisco say in the columns of one of their solemn papers that the boys' horn-blowing should be stopped. Did such people ever have a boyhood?

ABOUT 200 Chinamen at work in Lockwood Mining District, Kern county, were ordered to leave by the whites there, but they refused to go.

A NEWSPAPER in the State of New York advertises for an honest boy to make a devil of.

"PRINTER'S INK," said the drowning typo, as he went down for the third time.

THE CZAR'S DIARY.—A page of the Czar's diary, if we may believe the San Francisco News Letter, runs as follows: "Got up at 7 A. M. and ordered my bath. Found four gallons of vitrol in it, and did not take it. Went to breakfast. The Nihilists had placed two torpedoes on the stairs, but I did not step on them. The coffee smelt so strongly of prussic acid that I was afraid to drink it. Fonnd a scorpion in my left slipper, but luckily shook it out before putting it on. Just before stepping into the carriage to go for my morning drive, it was blown into the air, killing the coachman and horses instantly. I did not drive. Took a light lunch of hermetically sealed canned goods. They can't fool me there. Found a poisoned dagger in my favorite chair, with the point sticking out. Did not sit down on it. Had dinner at 6 P. M., and made Baron Laischonowoski taste every dish. He died before the soup was cleared away. Consumed some Baltimore oysters and some London stout that I have had locked up for five years. Went to the theater, and was shot at three times in the first act. Had the entire audience hanged. Went home to bed, and slept all night on the roof of the palace."

THE Bible of the advanced man of science will be a very curious document to read. For the grand old sentence, "And God said, Let there be light: and there was light," we shall have, "And molecule evolved protoplasm and rhythmic thrills arose, and there was light." And at the end of that verse which tells us that one monkey after another lost his tail and became a man, and that, according to the doctrine of the survival of the fittest, the strongest monkeys got to the top of the trees and picked the biggest cocanuts and killed the smaller monkeys by dropping the shells on their unprotected heads, we shall read, "And then the biggest monkey of all, wishing to prove an alibi in court, assumed the name of Darwin; and the disguise was so perfect that all his former companions thought he was a man and crowned him King. And after awhile the Lord saw that the secret of creation had been discovered, and then retired, leaving the management of the world to King Darwin's hands."

A MOST interesting Masonic relic was sold in Toronto the other day—the Masonic certificate of Souter Johnny of Burns' "Tam O'Shanter." It was issued by St. James' Lodge, Ayr, in 1790; and pinned to one corner was what was said to be a lock of Highland Mary's hair. The curiosity brought $178.

THE other day a drunken Indian at Orleans Bar, on the Klamath river, stabbed one white man and cut the throat of another who interfered. The miners then arrested the Indian, tied him to a tree, and made a target of him. Orleans Bar has now one Indian less.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED out of Justice Theo. A. Gardner's Justice Court of the Second Township, in and for the County of Inyo State of California, in the suit of V. G. Thompson, Plaintiff, against J Sepu Thoms, Defendant, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 29th day of December, A. The Utah Southern Railroad.

A correspondent of the Salt Lake Tribune says that the most profitable route for an extension of the Utah Southern Railroad is one extending from the north end of Sevier Lake in a west-southwest course through easy passes and broad valleys to the north end of Owens river valley; thence south to Walker's Pass in Kern county, California; thence northwesterly through Tulare and San Joaquin Valleys to some point on San Francisco bay.

After leaving Sevier Lake, or Frisco (if that point is found best), the road would rarely be out of sight of rich important mining districts until it made connection with the Southern Pacific. On the north side of the propose line is Drum District, Deep Creek, Sacramento, Osceola, Shoshone Springs, Silver Park, Patterson, Troy, White Pine, Moray, Danville, Hot Creek, Tybo, Milk Springs, Reveille, Belmont, San Antonio, Grantsville, Ione, Mammoth, Volcano, Indian, Walker Lake, Columbus, Hot Springs, Esmeralda, Bodie, Mono, Silver Lake, and the great Mammoth mines on the head of Owens river: thence south along the west flank of the Sierra is Bishop Creek, Kearsarge and Lone Pine Districts—thirty-seven districts at least that would draw their supplies mainly from the East if this line of road were built. It should be remembered that all these are on the north and west side of the line that must now draw their supplies from some point on the Central Pacific road, and would continue to do so if the Utah Southern should adopt the Colorado line.

We will now return to Frisco and enumerate the districts on the south side of the line. The first is the Wah Wah range (the name I have forgotten); then comes Pioche, Hillside, Bristol, Pahranagat, Frieburg, Tem-Pahute, Groom, Yellow Pine, Armagosa, Gold Mountain, Lida Valley, Montezuma, Palmetto, Silver Peak, White Mountain, Deep Spring Valley, Inyo, Cerro Gordo, Telescope Mountain, Slate Range, and several others. Say twenty-one districts, at least one-half of them rich in lead and copper as well as silver and gold, thus making a total of fifty-eight mining districts that are known to be rich in mines of the precious and useful metals, and capable in the aggregate of giving active and profitable employment to a mining population of at least 100,000, besides farmers and stock raisers.

Two hundred thousand Masons will participate in the twenty-first triennial conclave of Knights Templar in Chicago on the 16th of August. On the first day there will be a series of receptions; a parade, review, excursions on Lake Michigan, and a ball will occur on the second day; August 18th, a competitive prize drill and moonlight excursions, with free admission to the theaters; on Thursday, entertainments not yet decided upon. It is expected that not less than 25,000 uniformed Knights will take part in the procession, while preparations are being made to set 50,000 plates at the banquet. The Chicago committee has chartered 50 boats, each of which will be lighted with electricity, for a moonlight excursion. Hon. John Sherman and Senator James G. Blaine have consented to deliver addresses during the entertainment. Delegates from all parts of the world are expected.

A MARYSVILLE boy stood an umbrella with a cord tied to it, in a public doorway. Eleven persons thought it was theirs and carried it with them the length of the string. They then suddenly dropped it without even looking back or stopping to pick it up again.

A CHINAMAN in Calaveras hanged himself on the 11th instant, because he thought trom the eclipse of the sun that the world had come to an end.

TALKING about babies, it is astonishing with what accuracy a newspaper man of long experience can estimate the number of times a fellow has been made a happy father by the way he hands in a birth notice. When he come in with a broad and blushing grin, or a half-guilty sheepish look, with his eyes gazing everywhere but in your face, and hems and snickers, and finally gets out the words that "we've had an arrival at our house," then the sagacious editor knows that it is the young man's first experience. But when he steps into the sanctum with a a sullen and reckless air and grunts out, "Chalk up another—it's a boy this time," then the editor knows that this is the seventh or eighth experience. Then there is the intermediate grades of progenitorship. The man who comes in two-thirds drunk and is very particular to tell whether the latest comer is a boy or a girl, has hardly had more than two or three before. After the eighth or ninth experience, a man generally concludes that getting drunk doesn't do the subject justice, and he has also learned by that time that he has got to take the sex of the young one as it comes.—Tybo Sun.

IN New Zealand, as in Califoruia, the Chinaman abounds, and there, too, he has to resort to strategy to make good his position. It is related that at Otago, where Scotchmen are a majority of the colonists, a contract for grading a road was to be let, and the lowest bid was signed "M'Pherson." Notice was sent to the said M'Pherson to meet the board and complete the contract. In due time they met, but behold! M'Pherson, was yellow in hue and had an unmistakable pig-tail! "But," gasped the President, "your name can't be M'Pherson?" "Allee lightee," cheerily answered John; "nobody catch um contlact in Otago unless him name Mac." The contract was signed.

NEW YORK has now a woman stock broker, a person much experienced in buying and selling, who is esteemed in private life, whose manners, acquirements and associations give her claim to the name of lady. She has a conveniently and handsomely-fitted office, and her customers are of her own sex, most of whom make purchases for investment though she is willing to give them advice, and act as their agent, if they want to embark on the dangerous sea of speculation. She is altogether unlike the Woodhull and Claflin style of women who have heretofore appeard on Wall street, and the good judgment with which she is acting is likely to bring her prosperity in her business.

THOS. DILLON, who stabbed Thos. Travis through the heart on the night of the 2d instant, and was shot in the hip by his victim, is still confined in the calaboose, and is in a fair way to recover. He sits up, walks about, talks cheerfully and eats heartily, and only complains of pain in the vicinity of the wound after standing in one position for several minutes at a time, or when stooping over, when he complains of a throbbing pain. He will probably be able to attend his trial at Bridgeport as soon as the Grand Jury returns a bill of indictment.—Bodie Standard.

IT is said the Emperor Alexander of Russia has become a confirmed hypochondriac. He shuts himself up for days and can with difficulty be pursuaded to take food, which must be left at his door. He frequently bursts into tears, and is afflicted with strange dreams. On the nights when these sieze him two doctors sit up in his bed room. In short it is supposed he is mentally affected, and his long seclusion at Livadia, it is believed, is to be devoted to a system of treatment which will either kill or cure.

ELI H. MURRAY, of Kentucky, has been appointed Governor of Utah Territory. Gen. Murray is a newspaper man, being the editor of the Louisville Commercial, and is said to be one of the most prominent Republicans in the State. He was the youngest and one of the most brilliant cavalry Generals in the army at the close of the war, since which time he has filled the office of United States Marshal for two terms.

A NEW YORK German bought a piece of ham, ate it raw, and died of trichinosis. His widow sues the man who sold it for heavy damages. The seller claims that it would have been safe to eat the meat if it had been cooked, and that he is therefore not responsible. The Courts will now wrestle with the question whether a man who eats raw pork does not do it at his own risk.

Two and one-half millions of United States 4 per cent. bonds were registered at Treasury Department a few day since in the name of Jennie Flood, the daughter of the Bonanza King. Her income from this will be $100,000 per annum.

A PARTY of wood-choppers have discovered new mines in the Rose Creek mountains, about 14 miles south of Winnemucca. Pieces of ore from one of the ledges discovered are very rich in silver, some specimens assaying five thousand dollars.

THE most terrific hurricane ever known on the Pacific Coast swept over a portion of Oregon last week, causing great destruction of property and the loss of a few lives.

THE Bodie papers report Judge R. M. Briggs as being too ill to hold court. He is suffering from a severe cold and some fever.

AN elephant one day happening to meet a turtle, remarked, in a sad manner, as he looked down on the latter: "Yours is really a hard case." The turtle smiled blandly, but instantly replied: "Well, while there's life there's soup."

ON the 21st instant, a terrible explosion took place in a New Castle coal mine, in which seventy-five persons were reported killed.

A LONDON dispatch says there is a pronounced revival in the demand for American mining shares on the London Stock Exchange.

THE ELECTORAL VOTE.

A Sub-Committee of the House Committee on the Electoral Vote has prepared a Constitutional Amendment, which the full Committee is expected to report favorably to the House. The measure is of importance, not because there is any possibility of its final adoption before the next electoral count, but because it is apparently the only suggestion of reform which the House of Representatives is likely to make.

This bill provides for a popular vote for President and Vice President, but also, in part, retains the system of electoral votes. There will be no more Electors, but each State will retain its quota of electoral votes, which will be divided among the candidates strictly according to the popular vote received, the fractions being carried to three decimal places. The candidate receiving the largest total of figures and decimals will be President.

The method of dividing each State's electoral vote would certainly greatly complicate the arithmetic of Presidential campaigns, and on that account, if no other, could hardly be popular. It is difficult to see why the Committee in advocating a vote by the people should not have stripped away altogether this flimsy fiction of electoral votes without electoral colleges. The provision with respect to the counting of the electoral votes will probably excite a still larger share of criticism. They give the two Houses of Congress power to override the decision of the highest Court of a State, when an electoral vote is contested and the Court has given its decision upholding one or another of the conflicting returns. The best opinion of the country and of Congress is likely to hold that in such a case the decision of the highest Court of the State should be final.

SECRETARY SCHURZ is of the opinion that a certain degree of secresy is necessary in the Ute investigation, but Ouray is in no sense a prisoner. The Secretary and Ouray are a unit on the proposition that several things are to be accomplished by the present negotiations. First, to have the treaty provisions about the surrender of offenders carried out so that the participants in the White River murders can be tried. Secondly, to make such arrangement with the Utes as will avert from them injuries that are threatened to be inflicted upon them by the border population of Colorado, and which certainly will come if the present boundaries of the reservation are preserved. This accomplished, the present difficulties will pass over without an Indian war, which will be of great benefit to the country generally. Thirdly, to secure for them full compensation for every piece of land they may cede to the United States and a safe and advantageous settlement for the future.

THERE was once a man who stole his enemy's body and had a pair of shoes made out of his skin, so tha the could say he "trod him under foot," and we have heard of a drum-head made from tanned man-skin; but of all things for which parts of the human form divine have been used, we think that being made into soap is the worst; yet it has been found that a soap factory in Atalanta, Georgia, has been utilizing the tenants of a cemetery for that purpose. As a Southern paper says: "The friends and relatives of the deceased are inclined to make a row about it." So we should think.

HERE is a case of retributive justice, as told in an Iowa paper: A minister became intoxicated, and, in consequence, was dismissed from his pulpit. The pro-liquor party then elected him Mayor, upon which he turned around and enforced the prohibitory liquor law to the fullest extent.

SENATOR VOORHEES seems inclined to inquire into the Southern exodus. There is an opportunity for him to be told a great deal if he will only go down deep enough to get at the bottom facts—which he is not in the least likely to do.

THE Committee on Military Affairs in the House has agreed to report a bill restoring Gen. Fitz John Porter to rank in the army, with $75,000 back pay. Perhaps it is all right.

THE Senate Finance Commlttee has agreed to report favorably upon the President's nomination of John M. Morton for Collector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco.

BOLIVIA is becoming enterprising. Not to be outdone by her neighbor Peru, she has deposed her President and compelled him to leave for foreign parts.

THE terms of 25 United States Senators expire on the 4th of March, 1881, and the Washington Star figures it out that of the 11 Republicans who will retire, 10 are certain to be succeeded by Republicans, while of the 14 Democrats, only 7 are equally certain of being succeeded by Democrats. The latter will gain one in Mississippi, however, which will give them a total strength, beyond question, of 36; and if Republican Legislatures are elected in Connecticut, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, as from the political complexion of those States now seems probable, they will also have a total strength of 36. This estimate leaves four Senators to be accounted for, namely, Senator-elect Mahone, of Virginia, whose position is at present undefined; Senator Davis, of Illinois, who inclines to the Democracy, and the Senators to be elected from California and Indiana. It will be seen that this will be an interesting year in politics, aside from the Presidential campaign.

FOR the third time, the Supreme Court of the State of Maine has set down on Mr. Eben Pillsbury's Fusion Legislature, and this time with force enough to crush the life out of it. At least, it ought to do so; but Eben wants to stand afar off and see a scrimmage, so he may be able to pursuade some of his tools to hold on in defiance of the Supreme Court, till something does happen worth mentioning. The Fusionist Governor, however, says he is satisfied and that he is going to quit and go home. The same policy is manifest among many of the others, but the Fusion Secretary of State says he has the State seal, and is therefore the legal State Secretary, and is going to be State Secretary, let come what may. But the chances are he will think better of it. So, it is likely the "Maine muddle" will now mizzle out of view, though not out of memory.

THE mines of the coast during the past two years have produced a net addition to the country's wealth of $27,875,000.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31.....1880

CAPTURED AT LAST.—Contrary to general expectation, Mike Owen, the murderer of P. L. Traver, has been captured. It seems that Owen did not go to Los Angeles at all; that after leaving the stage three or four miles this side of Mohave, he hobbled up into Tehachapi Pass, and there hired out to herd hogs, milk cows, and the like. Deputy Sheriff Budd Taylor, of Kern county, residing at Mohave, being on the alert for the lost murderer, heard of this circumstance, and immediately went to see if the new hog herder was the man wanted. He found Owen, yet in the same dress and crippled up as when on his travels, engaged in milking a cow, and arrested him without resistance. Owen, however, protested that he was not Owen, and that he knew nothing of any such man or his alleged crime. Nevertheless, he went along with Taylor, who subsequently searched him and found a letter from a sister addressed to "M. Owen," which, with other proofs at hand, sufficiently established his identity. At last accounts, the murderer was securely locked up in the Bakersfield jail, awaiting the expected arrival of Sheriff Ogg, of Esmeralda, to start back for Aurora. As the murderer seems to have some determined backers, it is about an even chance that he will leave Aurora and take another run in the country when Spring brings more propitious weather—at least, the past history of the Aurora jail is not such as to inspire confidence in its security. The total amount of the different rewards offered for Owen's arrest is said to foot up to no less a sum than $2,750—quite a lift for Deputy Taylor.

A GOOD RESULT.—Mr. S. A. Densmore, with some two or three men, has been employed for some time past in working his ledges immediately opposite this place—the property described at length in these columns some months ago. At a point 80 feet deep in the shaft on the Confidence he has run a drift 30 feet southward, directly with the ledge, which is from two and one-half to three feet wide. This drift continued for some 40 feet will accompany the ledge to its outcrop on the side of the mountain, which it is intended to do. Some really fine appearing silver ore has been taken out, and a "blind ledge" of gold matter encountered which is very rich. The hill is seamed with small ledges, and contains one gold vein connecting and running nearly parallel with the others. The formation is favorable and the work done so far certainly makes a good showing.

THE ARCTIC BLAST.—San Francisco, and even Los Angeles, have both been recently enjoying another arctic blast which left their streets well covered with real snow—which shows that they do have considerable "climate" sure enough in those second-handed Paradises. Now we have also had, and are now having, a little touch of this same arctic blast, the thermometer at the coldest, getting down to 12° above zero, which happened early one morning; but as we don't claim to have a climatic Paradise, the above fact is not mentioned in a boasting spirit.

FREIGHTS.—A note from Agent W. G. Halstead, of the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company, under date of Mohave, January 26, informs us of a general increase in freight charges from that point to Independence—the charge being 2 cents per pound, with all railroad and advance charges added. This amounts to a general advance of 15 per cent, while on all perishable or bulky goods the raise is much more. We hear that the company intend loading one team per day during the Summer months, when the tariff may be reduced again.

THE TEMPLARS.—Next issue we will endeavor to give a full list of the new officers elected and appointed for the quarter beginning with February for the Good Templar Lodge in this place, and also for that at Bishop, if a list is sent us in time. The appointments of officers and installation takes place in this Lodge at the regular meeting next Monday night. The Lodge is gaining in desirable membership remarkably fast.

FOR PANAMINT.—Deputy Sheriff W. F. Welch and T. F. A. Connelly have gone to Panamint to transact a little official and ex-contract business involving the attached property of that wonderfully solid incorporation, the Leota Gold, Silver, Lead, Furnace Orders, Water, Milling, Mining, Johnson, and Reduction Company, Working Capital, $20,000,000 and Al. Robinson's Pack Mules.

THE RIDERS ARE UP!—The preliminary arrangements are complete for the much-talked-of 75-yard foot race, to come off in Lone Pine on the 22d—for several reasons, though, it would, we think, be far better to postpone it to the following day. If the Lone Pine racer don't Ho(o)ff it through with noticeable rapidity, the Crough will be on the Independence side.

MORE RACING.—As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere in this issue, there is to be lots of horse racing and other fun of that sort, including a ball, at Bishop Creek, beginning on the 23d of February, to continue three days. For further particulars, see the ad.

GRAND BALL.—Lone Pine extends a cordial invitation to everybody to share with its citizens in the pleasures of a grand Washington Birth Day ball, set for Monday evening, February 23. See ad. elsewhere in this issue, to that effect.

PREACHING.—Rev. F. M. Willis will preach in the school house in this place to-morrow evening, and in the school house at the Post on Tuesday evening.

SIERRA MOJADA MINES.—Following is part of a private letter received from a reliable friend by Mr. Robert Burnham, now of this place. It may be accepted as authority as to the character of the much-talked of Sierra Mojada mines in Mexico. The letter is dated at those mines, Jan. 5, 1880, and says:

"I have been here about three weeks; have been to see several mines. The deepest is about 50 feet. There is rich metal here and plenty of it, but it needs capital to develop it. The greatest drawback is water. There is not a running stream within miles of here, and the water we use is in small sieps in the hills, and they are surrounded by Mexicans day and night to catch what water they can. There was almost a panic last Sunday, as the water did not near supply the camp. We may have to pull out at any time. We keep two barrels full in case of accident, for there is no water until we reach Cuarto Cienegas, 135 miles, and through a desert. Our stock nearly famished coming through. There is about 1,000 persons here—a great many leaving and some coming. I assayed some ore yesterday that went 1,215 oz. per ton, and I have some on hand that I think is still better. I am getting some specimens to send you when I get back to the 'States,' which will be in about a month.

I killed two deer on the road—one black tail and the other was a 'rouser'—about the size of the one you killed on the Tortuga; also one turkey. Shot at some antelope, but was too far off.

Seven of us took a trip to the El Magre mountains, 40 miles from here. I don't like the formation of that section. Will make some assays of the ore to-morrow. * You had better hold your grip on California; it beats this region bad."

PERSONAL.—J. S. Gorman, the well-known furnace man formerly of Darwin, arrived in town on Monday last, and upon the following day pushed on to Darwin. During the past three months he has been constantly traveling, visiting many noted mining districts all around, and returns bent upon developing and working the Custer—being satisfied that it is a better property than any he could find or hear of elsewhere. The steady rise in lead has much to do with Mr. Gorman's conclusion, and as he has become an owner in the mine with Mr. Reddy, we look for considerable active work and a general revival of mining affairs at Darwin. ....Robt. Burnham, late superintendent of the old Comanche mill and mines at Benton, returned to this, his old stamping ground, last Tuesday, and we suspect that, in a metallurgical way, he has an eye on Kearsarge district.... J. W. P. Laird, Esq., our District Attorney-elect, with his estimable family arrived during the week, and has located in the Irwin residence.... Supt. Wm. Hedge is in from the White Mountains, and gives most satisfactory reports of the developments made upon his new mines so far. He goes, shortly, to San Francisco in connection with the business.

THE SHERIFF'S STORY.—This week we publish a somewhat lengthy annual article by Sheriff Moore, entitled the "Delinquent Tax List of Inyo County." In the matter of descriptive ability, this story displays sufficient power to insure attentive perusal and cogitation by quite a number of deeply interested readers, though, as a literary effort, we don't see that it is any better than others from the same facile pen which have preceded it, except that this last one is not quite so long as was the one which appeared a year ago. The climax or grand denouement may be looked for about February 25.

THE POST LANDS.—Representative Pacheco has just re-introduced the old bill, asking Congress to restore the Camp Independence Reserve lands to public entry. This is something to the point, but not quite all that is desired, as we shall take occasion to set forth by aid of a statement and memorial now being prepared by District Attorney elect, John Laird—a public spirited undertaking, by the way, in which certain Camp Independence settlers may be able to do him and themselves some service by calling upon him within a few days.

RUNNING.—Thos. Webb is now running the Pioneer Meat Market on his own account, and furnishes as good meats, and in as good a style as any one need wish for. We'll vouch for Thomas most every way, even going so far as to say that if he ever finds it a necessity to put dog in his bolognas he will put in the fattest and best or none at all.

WATCH REPAIRING.—Mr. Frank Blaney has opened a shop in this place, and is prepared to do all ordinary jewelry work, watch and clock repairing, etc., at reasonable rates, with satisfaction guaranteed.

A SALE.—We learn that Capt. Keeler has paid $2,000 upon his purchase sum of $20,000 for the Occident and Armagh mines, adjoining the Ygnacio in Cerro Gordo. Good.

PREPARING TO BUILD.—J. Wood, merchant, is excavating a commodious cellar for his proposed new store building on the corner just south of his present place of business.

TO MEET.—The regular term of the Board of Supervisors begins next Monday.

JOAQUIN MILLER has gone into stock speculation in New York. He is said to have been successful so far, and finds the excitement of fas superior intensity to that of literature.

HINTON R. HELPER, the author of the famous anti-slavery book, "The Crisis," is in Washington, stirring up a sentiment in favor of a railroad to Mexico.

THE annual sale of Plymouth Church pews has taken place. The total amount realized was $40,023, which is just $700 less than the amount realized last year.

LETTER FROM ROUND VALLEY.

ROUND VALLEY, Jan. 27.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Considerable sickness has prevailed here during this Winter. Bad colds, with its concomitants, was the general complaint. A couple of the severest cases, probably, were Mr. D. Olds and daughter—having been so low at one time that their recovery was thought to be impossible. However, they have successfully "pulled through," and will be themselves again soon.

We regret chronicling the sad event which lately occurred in the family of our esteemed friend and neighbor, Mr. Henry Evans. As is generally the case, in large families, more or less sickness has been prevalent in this family, which has lately severely taxed the energies of the devoted parents. About three weeks ago their boy, a bright little eight-year-old fellow, was taken sick, and during the last week suffered intense pain. Sunday night, 25th instant, little David Evans succumbed to death's cold embrace.

Five year's ago, Death snatched a fine boy, nine years of age, from this family, after a very brief illness, which greatly augments the sorrow of the already grief-stricken family. Time will not efface certain recollections. Even the shoolmates will not soon forget the once sweet faces of little Benny and Davy Evans. The entire community sincerely sympathizes with the bereaved family. T.

Cleopatra's Needle.

The following, from the New York Herald, will be read with interest by members of the Ancient Order of Free Masons, as it is a description of emblems of the mystic tie found in the foundation stones of Cleopatra's Needle, the obelisk now to be set up in New York by the Herald. This obelisk is known to have been hewn out 4,000 years ago, but has occupied the foundation from which it has just been taken only nineteen centuries. These are the emblems then placed under it, viz:

First—Mason's square of red syenite granite, the long section being eight feet six inches long, seventeen inches broad, twenty-five inches thick, and the short section, measuring from the outer angle, four feet three inches by twenty inches. The Mason's square is near the north-easterly corner of the foundation, parallel with the easterly side.

Second—A pure white stone, representing an apron, and situated under the end of the short section.

Third—Under the apron a perfect altar of red granite.

Fourth—Toward the corner of the foundation, opposite the angle of the Mason's square, is a red granite rough ashlar.

Fifth—Between these two, a Mason's spoon shaped iron trowel, of ordinary size, totally oxidized in all of the emblems, each in its proper position. They rest on a foundation of yellowish drab limestone. Surrounding the foundation on all sides, and forming a part of it, are three steps, all of stone. The foundation, together with the steps, are firmly bound together, and well preserved in iron, well cased in lead. Other stones in the foundation bear curious marks and cuttings, which may be masonic, but none here are able to decide. All the stones in the foundation will be replaced in New York, exactly as they were discovered.

Some More Concerning the Discovery of the Masonic Emblems under Cleopatra's Needle.

The following cablegram, dated Alexandria, Egypt, January 26, is published in the New York World of the 27th:

Dr. Fanton, a highly instructed Mason, has finished his careful examination of the foundation of the obelisk, and confirms Lieut. Commander Garring's discovery of Masonic emblems, which establishes the relation of many Egyptian monuments. Fanton declares that Hiram's version of Masonry, as originating with the construction of Solomon's Temple, is disproved by the revelations of the foundations of the obelisk. The Masonic emblem of "Life and the Sun," beyond doubt, is identical with the monument of the Egyptian god, Ostris. This proves that Masonry existed at the construction of the Pyramids; or at least from a far remoter period than the construction of the obelisks. A number of blocks comprising the foundation, as well as their position and arrangement, indicate that the ancients were familiar with the higher degrees of Masonry, at least as high as to the eighteenth degree. Many peculiar emblems, not understood by Garring, were fully explained by Fanton from a Masonic point of view. This discovery furnishes a clue to other important discoveries, not only under the fallen obelisk, but in other parts of Egypt, rendering probable a satisfactory solution of the mystery of the construction of the pyramids. Among the discoveries were found a perfect cube and other Masonic emblems. Garring, who is a member of the Masonic fraternity, entirely approves Fanton's explanations, and gives this dispatch his entire approbation.

The World says, editorially: "We print the above as received, but the readers of the World will do well to await a confirmation of the particulars by Garring."

THINGS must have come to a pretty bad pass when the English workingmen appeal to the Government for assistance, as some thousands of them did in London the other day. With all his faults, the British laborer is usually self-reliant and willing to work. He cherishes his independence, and would sooner starve to death in an attic or cellar than live in comfort in the degradation of the poor-house. But necessity knows no law, and so the workingmen are appealing to the Government for help, and, it is said, with very little chance of their wants being supplied.

DAKOTA will be the next State admitted into the Union. It has already a population of 160,000.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.

MESSRS. EDITORS: During the past week the fog has been so thick that it was almost impossible for a man to find his way home. I have heard of several who got lost and did not reach home until after sunrise the next morning. The women have good reason for finding fault with this foggy weather. It is no pleasant thing for a good housewife to sit up all night waiting for her better half who had got lost in the fog. It don't make so much difference to the better half, for he is perfectly able to stand it. Most of the houses have telephones, telegraphs, elevators, and all such useful contrivances in them, but none of them have a fog horn or a fog whistle except Buckley and Fallon's place, and their friends have no difficulty in finding that place, no matter how thick the fog may be.

The China steamer, City of Peking, arrived on the 18th loaded with Chinese and a large cargo of small-pox on board. The steamer was placed in quarantine and a meeting of the Board of Health called. The two Chinamen who were afflicted with the loathsome disease were placed in the pest house and the ship thoroughly fumigated. The day after her arrival the captain was allowed to come ashore and enter his ship at the Custom House. Yesterday at another meeting of the Board of Health it was concluded that the cabin passengers, some eighteen or twenty, should be allowed to come ashore and go where they pleased, it being the intension of most of them to go East, and if they had any small-pox about them they might give it to some one outside of San Francisco. Why the steamer was not compelled to lay in quarantine the full period is not known to any one outside the Board of Health. It may be all right, but it appears strange that the Board of Health would take the chances of spreading that loathsome contagious disease through a population of three hundred thousand people for the mere sake of accommodating a few cabin passengers or the wealthy owners of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. The Chinese passengers were transferred to the old hulk and are still in quarantine. If the pestilence is spread in the city, and the chances are it will be, the Board of Health will have a great deal to answer for.

Politics are getting a little warm and considerable speculation is now indulged in in regard to Presidential candidates. Tilden would be the choice of the Democracy of San Francisco and no doubt would poll a larger vote than any other candidate which could be named. As for the Republican candidate, Grant is not the favorite by any means. The third term is what would kill him. Blaine would run better than any one the Republicans could name.

Our local politics are not in a very settled condition, and it is hard to say what will be done. Both the Republican and Democratic parties in this city, and I might say in this State, have been run by a machine in the hands of Messrs. Higgings, Gannon, Brady and Mannix. Brady & Co. have lost a great deal of their power, as they are not now in the Democratic County Committee. They have been trying for some time to break up the committee, but have been very unsuccessful. Higgings and Gannon do not stand as high in the estimation of the Republicans as they did before the election, and that whole ring will be broken. The Workingmen and Democrats may get together next Fall and make out a ticket, and if they do they will be apt to elect every man they name.

There has been talk of starting a first-class Democratic morning paper here, but it is a long time in making its appearance. There is plenty of room for one, and no doubt but that it could be made to pay well.

The chicken fight which came off at Oakland last Sunday was a slim affair and poorly attended. Three matches were fought which occupied as many hours, and the balance of the afternoon was spent in bantering and drinking.

Some time ago one of our moral Board of Supervisors passed an ordinance prohibing girls or women from working in beer cellars or any place where liquor was sold. For a time all such places were closed and the women joined the church and the atmosphere of the Barbary Coast was purified. Now they are all in full blast and no one appears to molest them, although the law has never been repealed. There is a class of women who work in those places, and it seems as though they could fill no other position in life, and perhaps it is best that the dives should be allowed to go on unmolested.

There are ten or twelve murderers in the county jail, but the new Constitution has made no provision for their meals; so the poor fellows must wait on the Legislature. The new Constitution and the present Legislature will prove a serious calamity for San Francisco. The new Constitution has upset everything here, and it looks as if the Legislature was trying to waste as much time as they possibly could and allow everything to go to destruction.

Dennis Kearney will return here in a week or so, providing some one don't kill the dirty little brute before he leaves Chicago. Why, in the name of all that is holy, should we be pestered by such vermin? If the fertile soil of the Emerald Isle produces any more such creatures, I hope they will be strangled in their birth and buried so deep that a fox hound could not get a scent of them. W. G. L.

AN exchange says that "Governor Emory, of Utah, has been coquetting with or winking at the Mormons." New, if Governor Emory wank at the he-Mormons it was probably the wink of scorn; but if he wank at the she-Mormons he is as wicked as Dr. Garcelon, and deserved to be removed.—Eureka Sentinel.

THE richest man in Italy is said to be Count Telfner, who a year ago, married a sister-in-law of John Mackay for his second wife.

The Kind of Mining Property They Want.

The mining market has a rapidly increasing interest for the entire country, and its regular reports are sought with avidity by investors and those who desire to become such. Other stocks have been the favorites for a long course of years, but now that mining has become emancipated from the control of the gambling spirit, and San Francisco gambling has given place to Eastern business management, there is an increasing demand for popular information concerning the genuine mining properties, with a view to honest investment. These properties, too, are becoming grouped in many instances, and are operated as syndicate mines by strong capitalists, who are also skillful manager, and that is a consideration to invite the confidence of investors. There are other bonanzas yet to be unearthed, but the shareholders are going to get dividends in place of being mulcted with assessments. The rapid construction of railroads among mines is sure to exercise an influence for good upon them. The roads will transport supplies and products at much less cost of time and money than ever before, and that will bring mining rapidly in a line of business as legitimate as that of agriculture. It is impossible to fairly estimate the effects which railroads are to have on mining. One thing, however, is plain—they will enable mines of real value to yield far quicker returns to the owners than they have ever done heretofore in the whole history of mining.—New York Economist.

THE Comstock papers are still in an unhappy frame of mind over the "salting" of the Lady Bryan mine. The Superintendent, Capt. Kelly, swears by everything that is holy that the miners did the "salting," while the outsiders assert that the Captain put up the job himself. The Virginia Chronicle, under the head of "Two Kinds of Robbers," has the following:

For the bold burglar who enters your house in the night with the full knowledge that he is risking his life and braving the penitentiary, you can feel some sort of respect, even though you suffer from this criminal courage.

For the man who points a pistol at your head on the highway and empties your pocksts you can feel the same sort of respect as you would give the burglar. Both you would shoot like dangerous dogs, if you could, yet their daring saves them from your contempt.

There can be no such respect felt for the scoundrel who, with oily words and under the pretense of lending you a helping hand, lures you into a speculative trap which he has set for you.

Between a man of this kind and the burglar and highwayman no comparison can be drawn that will not redound to the credit of the bold thief who does his criminal work openly and at the risk of life and liberty. The salter of a mine coins his booty from the confidence of friends, the misery of hundreds of families and the tears of women. His stealings are far greater than those of the burglar and highwayman, and he takes no risk of legal punishment. The wealth which he steals buys him the outward respect of hypocrites and natural toadies; but it brings upon him the scorn and contempt of all honest men.

THE Mineral King District is expected to be the largest mining camp in the State this year. Rich developments have lately been discovered that cannot be surpassed. The Empire mill is in fine working order, and everything is most encouraging.—Tulare Times.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31.....1880

A RATHER improbable story has been in circulation among the Chinese of Portland for the past few weeks, concerning the finding of Chinese relics east of the mountains! Wom Wom, an intelligent Celestial on Second street, who speaks English fluently, was interviewed, stated that some Chinese workmen engaged in making excavations on the Northern Pacific Railroad beyond Ainsworth, unearthed a Chinese altar of rich bronze. The altar was about eight feet long, four feet wide and four feet high, and was engraved with numerous inscriptions in their own language. The precious treasure was boxed, sent to this city, given in charge of six of their brethern, and taken to their native land on the Coloma, which sailed for Hong Kong last month. Wom Wom is of the opinion that a tribe of his race inhabited this country in pre-historic times. The story is very transparent, but is generally believed by the Celestial residents, and is vouched for as truthful by Wom Wom.—Oregonian.

THE International Commission of Engineers under De Lesseps have begun surveys from which plans and estimates are to be made. De Lesseps claims that but two great difficulties aree to be overcome—the Chagres river and the deep cutting at the summit. The first can be surmounted by turning the head waters of the river into another channel; the second will disappear before the wells which will be sunk and charged with explosives of sufficient force to remove vast quantities of earth at each discharge.

A BILL has been introduced in the California Legislature, giving women over 21 years of age the right to vote upon all matters pertaining to the public schools. Each voter, however, must swear to her age, and tell how much over 21 she happens to be. No women with a particle of self-respect will vote under these tyranical conditions. —Carson Appeal.

"WHAT is home without a mother?" the poet asks. Well, it's a lonesome sort of a place usually, but when a young man hops down into the best rocking chair, with the flower of the family in comfortable proximity, he don't seem to care if the old lady's absence is continued indefinitely.

A TWILIGHT REVERIE.

Sitting alone in the twilight hour,
When the tasks of the day are done,
I muse on the varied phases of life,
Those present and those that are gone.

I think of the days of my happy youth,
When all was beautiful and bright;
When happiness smiled on every hand,
And life was as fair as a gleam of light.

When all this world seemed a moonlit stream,
Where floated my bark without a jar;
When Faith sailed with me, side by side,
And Hope was ever my guiding star.

But o'er this vision so bright and fair
There steals a shadow like the dusk of night,
And the silver moon with its gentle beams
So hidden forever from my sight.

How dark and drear the world seemed then!
How cheerless and lonely the nights and days!
Till Friendship came with a healing balm,
And bathed my bleeding heart in her rays.

Friendship! Blessed Friendship! How many lives
Hast thou warmed to action with thy sweet voice!
In how many homes hast thou shed thy light,
And how many sad hearts hast thou made rejoice!

Their name is Legion! Oh, may thy face
Ever be free on earth to dwell!
Shedding its loving rays on all hearts
Who knoweth the bitter of life too well.

—SOLITARIUS.

HOW THE PEOPLE GET SICK.—Eating too much and too fast; swallowing imperfectly masticated food; using too much fluid at meals; drinking poisonous whisky and other intoxicating drinks; repeatedly using poisons as medicines; keeping late hours at night and sleeping late in the morning; wearing clothing too tight; wearing too thin shoes; neglecting to wash the body sufficiently to keep the pores open; exchanging the warm clothes worn in a warm room during the day for costumes and exposure incident to evening parties; compressing the stomach to gratify a vain and foolish passion for dress; keeping up constant excitement; fretting the mind with borrowed troubles; swallowing quack nostrums for every imaginary ill; taking meals at irregular intervals, etc.

DR. P. J. RAGAN, assisted by Harry Harst, Frank Morgenthaler and others, successfully operated on Wm. Haines, the frozen mail carrier, amputating both of his legs and a portion of his right hand and the left arm above the wrist. Both legs are now taken off about half way between the ankle and knee joints. The poor fellow stands the affliction manfully, and there is a strong probability that he will recover. His wife, who has been with him for the past few days, is a source of great comfort to the unfortunate man.—Mammoth Herald, Jan. 24.

A CORRESPONDENT of an English agricultural journal says that onions are a poison for worms, and that a dish of boiled onions given to a child suffering from worms will kill them. Another correspondent maintains that they are the best remedy for rheumatism, either cooked or raw, while a certain medical man says that boiled onions are good for a cold in the chest. We are glad to hear all this, and hope it may be true and verified by further experiments so that onions will at least be good as medicine if not for food.

EDISON is a native of Novia Scotia, but his parents moved to the United States when he was very young. Having seen the sparks fly when a cat's back was stroked, he once placed a large cat in an electric circuit, using one of its fore and one of its hind paws as electrodes. Then he tried to start an induced current by rubbing the cat's back briskly. The experiment succeeded brilliantly, but the cat objected, and Edison still bears on his hands the marks that resulted from using the cat as an inductor.

Facts About the Human Body.

The average man measures about five feet three and one half inches.

The weight of the average male adult is about 140 pounds.

The human skeleton consists of more that 200 distinct bones.

There are more than 500 separate muscles in the body and an equal number of nerve and blood vessels.

The skin contains more than two million openings, which are the outlets for an equal number of sweat glands.

Each perspiratory duct is one-fourth of an inch in length, which will make the aggregate length of the whole about nine miles.

Every adult man has fourteen hundred square feet of lungs; or rather, the mucus membrane lining the air cells of his lungs, if spread upon a smooth, plain surface, would cover an extent of fourteen hundred square feet.

About two-thirds of a pint of air is inhaled at each breath in ordinary respiration.

The full capacity of the lungs is about three hundred and 20 cubic inches.

A man breathes eighteen times a minute, and uses three thousand cubic feet, or about three hundred and seventy-five hogsheads of air per hour.

The weight of the heart is from eight to twelve ounces.

It beats one hundred thousand times every twenty-four hours.

An amount of blood equal to the whole quantity of the body passes through the heart every minute.

The stomach daily produces about nine pounds of gastric juice for the digestion of the food; its capacity is about nine pints.

DURING the past fifteen years there has been a great change in the demand for horses in this country. Formerly nearly everybody bred in relation to speed and endurance. Now a large proportion of farmers breed with a view of increasing size and strength. This change is not the result of caprice. There has been a steadily increasing demand for heavy horses, and a corresponding falling off in the demand for light ones. Fashion has had little to do in this matter. Heavy horses are wanted because they supply an existing want. From present appearances it will be many years before the supply of heavy horses will equal the demand. The country is now well supplied with horses. At no time in its history, perhaps, were there as many horses to a given number of inhabitants as at present. Small work horses are low, but heavy draught horses continue to be high. The importation of Clydesdale and Percheron-Forman horses increases every year. The first that were brought over were regarded as very uncertain ventures. At present they are of no doubtful value. The importers of horses from France and Scotland have suffered none of the reverses of the importers of short-horn cattle. With rare exceptions they have become rich. From present appearances we shall soon be sending Clydesdale to Scotland and England, and Normans to France and Belgium. The value of heavy draught horses was realized in the old world before it was in the new. Now that their worth is appreciated here all persons having teaming to do seem anxious to procure them.

WASHINGTON CITY wants the Democratic Convention, and advances several reasons why she should have it. Washington has an abundance of hotels and boarding houses, booms for nobody in particular, possesses large halls admirably adapted for convention purposes, has never had a National Convention held within its limits, and is consequently not associated with defeat. The Democratic politicians generally think the Convention ought to be held in the West—at Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Lous, or Louisville—and to one of these places it will probably go.

J. A. CRAFT, a stone mason by trade, died at Casa Diablo last Wednesday night at 10 o'clock, and was buried on Friday. He was well known in this and Inyo counties, having assisted in erecting several furnaces in Darwin, Lookout and Cerro Gordo, and was for some time on the mason work of the first mill built in Mammoth. He was a kind-hearted, hard-working man. We have not been able to learn his place of nativity.—Mammoth Herald, Jan. 24.

WHEN President Porter recently sat down to dinner with the other members of the Yale faculty and their guests, he was astonished to learn that the dinner was attached by the Sheriff. A shrewd Boston merchant had taken the opportunity to force a New Haven hotel keeper to pay a debt of $500, and the money was paid before the dinner was eaten.

OUR ever welcome neighbor, THE INYO INDEPENDENT, has entered upon its fifth hundred week of existence, and is certainly one of the brightest and most readable weeklies published in the State. We wish it the same degree of deserved prosperity which it has always seemed to enjoy.—Mammoth Herald.

REPRESENTATIVE DAGGETT, of Nevada, is preparing a bill to provide for the relinquishment to the General Government of all the unsold sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections of land heretofore granted to Nevada for school purposes, and for a grant in lieu thereof of 2,000,000 acres of non-mineral lands, to be selected by the State in tracts of any size from the unoccupied lands within her borders. The lands heretofore granted aggregate between 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 acres, but owing to their mountainous situation or desert character, only about 100,000 acres have yet been sold, and consequently the School Fund has received scarcely any benefit from the grant. It is believed however, that if the State be allowed to take up sagebrush lands in tracts they can be sold to good advantage to parties who will undertake to utilize them by irrigation, but who would not incur the expense and risk of attempting to bring water upon the widely separated small tracts. The last Nevada Legislature passed a bill authorizing this proposed exchange to be made whenever Congress agrees to it. The Commissioner of the General Land Office has also expressed himself in favor of the proposition, and will recommend the passage of Daggett's bill. He also intends to introduce a a bill for the encouragement of artesian well boring, but has deferred its preparation until he can get some additional information on the subject, for which he has written to Nevada.

THE following may be duplicated by halting within the hearing of almost any two gossips on the Comstock, and will serve as a specimen of the talk of the times:

"How air ye the mornin,' Mrs. Murphy?"

"Ruined entirely, bless God. It's bad you're lookin' yerself, Mrs. McFadden."

"Ye may well say that. Not a wink o' shape I've had these three nights now."

"Were ye in the Lady O'Kelly, dear?"

"I was. It took the savins of six months. How was it wid you, darlint?"

"I've clane lost all the few dollars I had."

"It's all along wid the dthrill hole."

"And the sa-alt."

"Och! the thavon spalpeens."

MR. GEO. H. MULLERY, of Montana, has bought a band of 4,000 sheep here which he will start out with next Saturday. His destination is Helena, Montana, and it will take eight months to make the trip. He proposes to strike from here to Owens river, thence into Nevada, passing through Belmont, White Pine and Ruby Valley, crossing the Central Pacific at Humboldt Wells; thence over into Idaho, following the Snake river across that Territory to Montana. He says that the hard times have not been felt at all in Montana, and that all kinds of business have been very prosperous in that Territory. The wool of Montana is shipped to Boston via the Missouri river, and it costs only one and one-half cents per pound, through rate.—Los Angeles Express, Jan. 29.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7.....1880

THE Secretary of the Interior on January 30 decided the case of the State of California against the Bodie and Mono Mining Companies, on appeal from the decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, which rejected the Glover survey of that portion of Bodie which includes the mines now operated by those companies. The mines are located on the Sixteenth Section, the title to which is contested by the claimants under the State of California, on the ground that it has inured to the State under the school land grant. Commissioner Williamson held that the survey embracing these mineral lands was without authority of law under the deposit system, and that, moreover, it was fragmentary, and not in accordance with the Department regulations. Mr. Schurz dismissed the objection to the methods of executing the Glover survey as "technical," and holds that it is "substantially correct." He also decided that there was sufficient authority of law for it to be made, and he therefore reverses the Commissioner's decision, and directs the Glover survey to be returned to its proper file in the General Land Office, and in the local Land Office of the district in which the township is situated.

MR. CARR, of Yuba, has introduced a concurrent resolution to submit an amendment to section 7, article 9, of the Constitution to the people. The amendment provides for the election of a State Board of Education, consisting of one from each Congressional District, to have general supervision over the schools of the State, over the State certificates for teachers, and to provide for a series of text-books; providing that any city or county by a vote can select a different set—the amendment to be submitted to the people on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1880. The State Superintendent of Schools is ex-officio President of the Board. Referred to the Committee on Education.

ALTHOUGH no official confirmation can be obtained as yet of the story that the Court which has been investigating the charges against Major Reno, has recommended his dismissal, the accuracy of this report is generally conceded. It is further stated, unofficially, however, that Gen. Sherman favors a milder course, and will recommend that Major Reno be suspended for a year.

THE new Roebling rope at the Belcher incline is 5,409 feet long—120 feet over one mile. This is the longest hoisting rope in use in America, therefore the longest in the world. It works just as well and smoothly as the ordinary cables in use on the lode.

SOME idiot in the present legislature has proposed to exempt from taxation all homestead property valued at or less than $5,000. If so, such local governments as Inyo might as well shut up shop.

THIS is how the Republicans of the California Legislature stand on the Presidential question: Blaine, 22; Grant, 12; Garfield, 2; Washburne, 2; Conkling, 1; Sherman, 1.

FOR A STATE DETECTIVE FORCE.

We are in receipt of a copy of a bill to establish a State Detective Force—the same proposition, in its general provisions, as that introduced in the 20th session of the Legislature, and which ought then to have become a law. This bill provides for the appointment of a Chief and Corps of State Detectives, not to exceed twenty-five members. It is made the duty of the Governor of the State to appoint the Chief, whose term of office is four years, but the appointee is subject to removal for cause. His salary shall be $4,000 a year. The Chief appoints all his subordinates, each of whom shall receive $1,800 a year and actual necessary traveling expenses when on duty, such expense to be itemized and submitted for allowance under oath. No appointments of Chief or Detectives shall be made on account of political opinions or affiliations, but solely on account of personal fitness; nor shall any member of the force be permitted to identiy himself in any partisan movements involving the election of public officers, in any manner whatever except as a simple voter; nor be permitted to make contributions or pay any assessments for partisan or political purposes. It shall be the duty of all Sheriffs, Constables, etc., when so ordered, to aid this force in the detection and to arrest alleged criminals, to suppress riots, etc., provided they are not required to go beyond their own county lines; and, on the other hand, it is made equally incumbent upon these Detectives to aid county officers to enforce the criminal laws to the full extent of their ability.

The State is to be divided into fourteen Constabulary Districts, each to have one or more Detectives resident therein. For present purposes, we need to refer to the details of but two of these, viz: the Fifth District, composed of the counties of Tuolumne, Mariposa and Mono, and the Sixth, composed of the counties of Fresno, Tulare, Kern Inyo; the first of these to have one detective, the last, which includes this county of Inyo, to have two. This is a bad arrangement in every way. Here are these two counties, Inyo and Mono, both lying wholly to the eastward of the great, impassable Snowy Range, each separately yoked with a number of more heavily populated counties lying wholly on the opposite side of the said range. Though adjoining some of their transmontane neighbors as shown on the maps, in actual, practical fact, these two eastern slope counties are wider separated from their respective western slope yoke fellows than they are from San Francisco. In all matters of business interchange and intercommunication, in respect to time if not actual distance, it would be better that these outlying counties be included or made part of the San Francisco district. Then there would be more of a certainty that there would be at least one detective resilent on this eastern slope than under the proposed apportionment—as now, it would depend on accident altogether whether either one of the three assigned the two districts should reside on this side, where they are most particularly needed. This is a vast region without railroads or telegraphs, one portion with another, and so cut off from all the rest of the State as to be compelled to rely wholly upon its own resources requiring anything like immediate action, as regards actions involing criminal matters. Detective help from the other side cannot be made available in this region short of a week or ten days's time. This eastern slope should by all means be districted to itself in this bill, as it also should as far as possible, in all political districting. In view, too, of its its isolation and consequent and other peculiar conditions, it should be assigned a larger proportion of this State Detective Force than the strict pro rata of population would entitle it to.

Whether so amended or not, the bill should, in our earnest belief, be made a law. We could name a number—perhaps, a score—of as cold blooded cutthroats as ever escaped the halter, who did murder in this region, and fled to parts not beyond the reach even yet of a State Force as proposed, but now safe from arrest. Local officers, no matter how worthy or zealous, can not afford to make persistent pursuit of such criminals. To do so, especially in this region, would often cost them the equivalent of a year's salary, and rarely with hope of the slightest reimbursment from county or State—and now, under the new Constitution, no special relief for such outlay can come through a legislative enactment, no matter how deserving the officer, or how nearly he may have impoverished himself in efforts to bring even a Vasquez to justice. Give us this State Force by all means. It is the State's proper business to hunt down if not to prosecute all escaped murderers.

AT Wattsburg Hill, W. T., a few days since, Jack Carlton, the well know pioneer chief of scouts with Gen. Howard's command in the Nez Perces war, was killed by his horse balking and the wagon upsetting.

CONTRARY to precedent, so far as our own experience goes with California literary periodicals, we are in receipt of the second number of The Californian, the new Pacific Coast magazine to which we referred in terms of praise on its first appearance. Contrary to all precedent in launching such publications upon the reading world, this superb magazine came quietly among us without a single premonitory flourish of trumpets as to what a grand thing it was to be, consequently it had no false or over-wrought expectation to meet and, as usual, to disappoint; it came and comes with perfect unobtrusiveness, yet as if conscious of a worth far above the need of its own telling in any other way than as its many bright pages each gives proof of its own worth as a part of a worthy whole, ready for the strictest test. In other respects, this magazine is a commendable novelty in its line, and in all respects it, to our notions at least, is just the magazine of the day. We shall now refer to but two of its many interesting articles, namely: Dr. Galley's continued story, "Sand," which must interest every Pacific Coaster who reads at all, and "The Solid South and the Bloody Shirt, by a Young Southerner," which, in a clear and impassioned manner, makes plain much that has not been plain as to the causes of certain manifest existing conditions of American politics. The Californian is furnished by the A. Roman Publishing Co., San Francisco, at $3 per annum.

THE Russian police at St. Petersburg, a few nights ago, made a descent upon a house on Sappor street. On opening the door the police were fired on. They returned the fire and arrested two men and two women. The fifth occupant, named Deutsch, an important political criminal long sought by the police, shot himself dead on the spot. The police searched the house, and found a printing press and a large number of copies of the last issue of the revolutionary journal, the Will of the People; also, forged stamps and documents, poison and explosives. The police superintendent, who was wounded, and his assistant having effected the capture at the risk of their lives, have been promoted with the Order of Vladimir. A judicial inquiry has been commenced. A new revolutionary proclamation is circulated by the students of the high schools. The students draw a terrible picture of their condition, and declare they will fight the great Moloch, called the Russian Government, to the end, even though the best of them perish. The proclamation is considered important as showing the formation of a new party against the Government.

AT the instance of the President of the Real Estate Protective Association of San Francisco, the Supreme Court has made an order enjoining the Mayor, Auditor, District Attorney, County Clerk and Board of Supervisors from any further proceedings in the matter of condemnation of Lake Merced, or issuance of bonds for the purchase thereof, until the 16th instant, when the matter will come before the Court for consideration.

AT Union Hall, on the 2d instant, Mayor Kalloch addressed a crowded audience on the subject of Lake Merced project, which he condemned as an attempted swindle on the city, both on its merits and in the manner in which the proceedings were carried through on the part of the Board of Supervisors.

AN attempt was made to throw the outgoing Arizona train from the track, near Colton, last Monday night. Some miscreant or miscreants piled stones on the track, and the pilot and ash-pan of the engine were considerably damaged in running through.

IT would appear that Germany is preparing herself for trouble. A dispatch from Berlin says that the Government cannon foundry has received such large orders that a number of fresh hands have been engaged, all working extra time.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The sculling race which took place to-day at Saucelito between Leahy and Hoyt has created considerable excitement in this city, and a great number went up to see the sport. Last night it was thought to be a very even match, and Hoyt's friends backel him as far as they were able, with a very slight odds in his favor. Those who saw the race say it was no race at all, and not worth looking at. Leahy won the race by about a mile with as much ease as if he had pulled for fun. Boat racing won't do for people here; don't have much faith in champions of any description.

John Flannagan, one of our oldest and most respected citizens, committed suicide yesterday by taking morphine. A few years ago he was one of the leading wholesale liquor merchants on Front street. Wealthy, honored and respected by all who knew him. He was lead into mining stocks and instead of doubling his little fortune, as he was lead to believe, he soon lost all he had. Some of his friends went to his assistance but could not save him. Fate turned against him, and, as Othelb says, "who can control his fate?" It is true he could not, for some inhuman fiend must have been hounding him to death. Last week he was arrested for attempting to defraud the Government by sending some liquor from his store without its being properly stamped. There may be as good men in this city as John Flannagan, but his better never breathed.

The mining stock market continues dull and inactive. People are getting "cinched" every day, but they will go after stocks. Lady Bryan fell from $3 50 to five cents. The way some of those knowing ones did kick was a caution to snakes. When the market takes a tumble like that it is generally some poor unfortunate man or woman gets taken in, loses all they have and the next morning their lifeless remains are found lying on a cooling board in the Morgue.

The weather has been intensely cold for the past two months and the gardens throughout the city have been badly frosted. Many valuable plants and treets have been entirely destroyed. It was quite pleasant to-day on the sunny side of the street.

The Board of Health have now found out that they committed a fatal blunder in allowing the China steamer City of Peking to land her cabin passengers and come to the wharf and take out part of her cargo. There is considerable excitement in the city, as four new cases of small-pox have made their appearance since the vessel came in. The question now is, who is to blame? Well, here is the case in a few words: The quarantine officer is paid a good salary by the city of San Francisco to look out for infected vessels and prevent any contagious diseases from coming ashore. This steamer came into the harbor flying the yellow flag, which gave due notice that some contagious disease was on board. Dr. McAllister, the Quarantine Officer, boarded her and found two cases of small-pox, and he ordered the vessel into quarantine. She went into quarantine. The two Chinamen who were afflicted were taken from the ship and placed in the pest-house of this city. It was the duty of Dr. McAllister to keep that vessel in quarantine and not allow a soul to leave the ship and come ashore. He is a good physician and knows the danger of small-pox. It was also his duty to go through that ship from stem to stern and see for himself if there were any more cases. If he was not able to go through alone he could have got plenty of assistance. He says he was deceived by the officers of the vessel. He had no business to take anybody's word. He must acknowledge that he is a lunatic or else he has been bribed by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. The Board of Health is also to blame for consenting to allow the cabin passengers to come ashore. They say they were deceived by the statement that they were going East. Did they think that the people of this city alone are subject to the small-pox? That won't do. The fact of the whole matter is this: The interests of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company was of more importance than the lives of a few hundred inhabitants of the United States. Dr. McAllister may be dismissed from his position, and if an epidemic should break out he should be tried for criminal negligence.

Our Board of Supervisors voted to pay one million five hundred thousand dollars for Lake Merced. That is the worst break any board ever made. They should now go and negotiate for Washerwoman's Bay. That ought to bring about two millions and there would not be much of a margin left. The Mayor has not yet signed the Merced bill of sale, but he has not seen the lake in all of its splendor. When they make him see it he will sign it like a little man. W. G. L.

A BILL has been introduced in the California Legislature making it a misdemeanor to catch shad in the streams of the State until July, 1882, except with hook and line. The State has expended $20,000 to stock the streams and it is perfectly right and proper that the fish should be allowed to increase. Heretofore the Chinamen have taken them out as fast as possible with seins. If the law passes they will have to resort to some other hook or crook to obtain them—probably the former. If the shad and Chinamen can not live in the same State let John buy an excursion ticket and leave.—Bodie Free Press.

AT HOME.—Sheriff Ogg, of Esmeralda county, Nevada, arrived at Aurora Tuesday morning, having in custody Mike Owen, the murderer of the late Supervisor, P. L. Traver, and William ("Dobe") Willoughby, who is charged with being accessory to the crime before the fact.—Bodie Standard, Feb. 3.

A DEPARTMENT of Agriculture and Commerce whose head shall be a Cabinet officer, will probably be created by Congress.

Frightful Mining Accident.

Yesterday afternoon a most shocking accident occurred in the shaft of the Maryland Consolidated mine, by which Edward Fitzgerald and Patrick Brandon were killed—the former outright—and James Fitzsimmons seriously, if not fatally injured. These three men were at work timbering the shaft during the afternoon, when the platform on which they were standing suddenly gave way, and they were precipitated to the bottom, a distance of 75 feet. It is not certain how long the men remained in the bottom of the shaft before they were discovered. At 12:30 one of the men came to the surface for a hammer, and from that time until 3 o'clock nothing was heard from them. At that hour a signal was given them to send up the bucket, but as no answer was given, one of the men, who was waiting to relieve them, looked down the shaft and saw no light. He knew instantly that something was wrong. J. G. Beckstrun and J. T. Courchain went down the shaft to the lower part of the timbering, when Thomas Fitzsimmons sung out to be careful about going down, as there might be something loose. They went on down, and when half way between the timbers and bottom, saw that the bell-rope was broken. They got down to within a foot of Brandon's head. They got off and found him nearly covered with timbers—all but his head, breast and one arm. Brandon's skull was fractured, as was also his arm and leg. Fitzgerald was horribly mangled. He was completely covered with timbers, and his body so bent that his head rested on his abdomen, the brain oozing from his head.—Bodie Free Press, Feb. 3.

PARNELL, in a speech at Springfield, Mass, a few nights ago, violently attacked the veracity of Lord Alfred Churchill, who, by cable from Ireland, has denied Parnell's statements made in this country.

THE report comes by telegraph that Samuel J. Tilden is soon to be married.

MARRIED.

At the residence of C. A. Walters, Esq., near Camp Independence, Inyo County, Cal., February 5, 1879, by the Hon. John A. Hannah, Superior Judge, LOUIS FROMM to MISS LOUISA OLDORFF, all of Independence.

DIED.

In San Francisco, January 13, 1880, little GUSSIE RATTAN, aged four years and twenty-two days. Deceased was a neice of Mrs. T. K. Hutchison, of Bishop Creek.

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of little Gussie, aged four years and twenty-two days, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Volney Rattan, of this city, took place from the residence of Mrs. Reagan, on Telegraph avenue. As the hour appointed for the services approached, the parlor in which the dead body of the fair-haired baby was laid was thronged with relations and friends of the bereaved parents. A large delegation from the Girl's High School of San Francisco, in which Mr. Rattan is a teacher, was present, bringing with it numerous floral tributes which were placed upon a table at the head of the bier. The services, which were very impressive and touching, were conducted by Dr. Hamilton, of the Independent Church of this city. Wreaths of pansies, tube roses and camelias were placed around the coffin, and at the head was placed an anchor of white blossoms, surmounted by a white dove—a fitting emblem of the pure young life which the Heavenly Shepherd has gathered into His fold. The grief of the parents as they gathered around the inanimate form of their only joy and hope, was heartrending in the extreme. The stricken mother, as she clasped her dead baby to her heart in a last passionate embrace, calling upon it with all the endearing terms known onty to mother love, and who, like the Israelitish mother of old, would not be comforted because her darling was not. The bereaved father, whose nightly arrival would no longer be watched for by the laughing blue eyes of his little daughrer; the aged grand parents, of whose life the little dead baby was the sunbeam, bending over the coffin which would soon hide from their gaze the loved form of their darling, who is "safe in the arms of Jesus," formed a picture of grief and woe which will long dwell in the memories of those who attended the last sad rites. At the close of the services at the house, the mournful cortege wended its way to Mountain View Cemetery, where all that remained of the little child, which a few short days ago was full of life and health, was consigned to the cold grave, and the sorrowing parents returned to their now desolate home, to await the summons that will cause them to meet their loved one on the other shore,

Where grief and sorrow come not,
And parting is unknown.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7.....1880

DARWIN.—The New Coso Company's mine, the Lucky Jim, is said to be turning out more ore and looking better generally, than at any time previously for several years. Its developments are of such an encouraging character that Supt. Williams, who is now down at the Bay, strongly recommends that the company sink a new working shaft, by which, with other obvious advantages, at least two handlings of the extracted ore can be saved. The chances are that his advice will be followed, and the work begun at an early day. The new shaft will be something less than 400 feet in depth to reach the lower levels. Mr. Gorman has settled down to steady work upon the Custer again, after two years of wanderings among the noted mining regions elsewhere west of the Rockies, during which time he saw no available mining property anywhere to equal the present prospect of the Custer. With these and a few other lesser mining operations but just reawakened, times in Darwin are getting to be quite promising again.

LOOK OUT FOR A BOOM.— We suspect there is going to be a mining boom here pretty soon—we saw no less than three notable assayers, to wit, Phillips, Ober and Woodhull, in the Independence Assay Office, pounding up and cooking different lots of quartz, or something of that sort. Now, we would like to know of that isn't a sign of something? Heretofore this paper has always with cheerfulness set prospects up to a commendable altitude, when required, free, gratis and for nothing, and have often wanted to pay a small bonus for the privilege, merely to get used to it; but that's played out now. Hereafter we must have an advance of about 50 per cent. on the old rates for good, square lying, like they do it up in Mono when stocks are down, or it don't go. We want to be accommodating but don't want to wear ourselves out at it before the boom comes.

FIRE.—During Thursday afternoon, and till late in the evening, an extensive "prairie" fire raged through the fields just eastward of the Post. Damage to the amount of several hundred dollars was done by it. About two miles of fencing, mostly post and wire, was destroyed. Of this the larger portion belonged to A. W. Eibeshutz being on the Chaquette ranch, on which a small dwelling house was also destroyed. Other portions of the fencing destroyed belonged to C. A. Walters. Jas. Malone's dwelling, stacks, etc., narrowly escaped destruction. As it was the whole of his pasturage was swept clean, being quite a loss to him at this time. The fire was set out by some employés on W. H. Huff's place to clear up some grass land, and the carelessness displayed is denounced severely by the losers.

THE MODOCK.—Last week the parties operating the Modock mine and furnace shipped twenty-seven tons of base bullion, worth about $340 per ton; in a few days more another lot will be ready, making enough in all to pay off every dollar of the company's indebtedness, at least to the creditors who are operating the mine for that purpose. A few men in the mine in eleven days took out ore enough to keep the furnace running for twenty-five days, and, from present indications, can continue doing so at the same rate indefinitely. This they are doing, and the furnace is still running.

THEATRICALS.—In completion of the attractive programme of amusements offerred at Lone Pine on the coming 22d and 23d, the Dramatic Society of that place propose giving an entertainment, the proceeds to go to the school fund. That sterling old comedy, "The Rough Diamond," and the farce "Try It On," will be presented, with songs by the ladies of the society. The caste includes the names of the Misses Blanche, Zelia and Mary Meysan, Miss M. Lasky and Messrs. S. V Stevens, Houard, Sutcliffe, Lasky and Carrasco. See the regular announcement, elsewhere.

SICKNESS.—There are quite a number of children hereabouts suffering from a disease which, we suppose, is influenza, and other troubles of that sort. Fred., the younger son of Dr. George, is lying quite low under an attack of pneumonia, the only case of that sort that has occurred in this vicinity within our knowledge. The chances are now considered favorable for the young patient to pull through, but still a favorable result is by no means a certainty.

TO MEET.—There is to be an informal meeting of our leading citizens to-morrow evening at the Judge's chamber, in the Court House, for the purpose of considering some proposed legislation affecting this county. This matter should have been attended to some time ago, and it is now necessary to work promptly.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Any person knowing the whereabouts of Joseph Tompkins, a printer by trade, about 25 years of age, light build and having a rather youthful appearance, will confer a great favor on his mother at Cleveland, Ohio, by addressing the Bodie Free Press office, Bodie, Cal.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.—There are letters remaining uncalled for at the Independence Postoffice for the following named persons: Wm. Arnold, Joseph Barrett, Mr. Chaquette, Wm. Densmore—2, A. Wickersham, Wm. Warnke.

GOT IT.—In a little rough and tumble at Lone Pine two or three nights ago a couple of toughs got pretty severely handled by a member of our Sheriff's force, and the general verdict is that they were served exactly right.

COURT.—The Superior Court will convene on Monday next and proceed to call up the cases on the calendar. It is probable that the time will be set for the trial of Michael Welch.

DISCONTINUED. — The Postoffice at Cottonwood Creek, known as Inyo, has been discontinued.

BY the arrival at Port Townsend, W. T., of the steamer California, on the 31st of January, news is ascertained of a civil war between two tribes of Indians in Alaska. The trouble seems to have grown out of the fact of Rev. Dr. Corliss, a missionary, finding his Hochenoo congregation drunk on Alaska whisky which has been prohibited from being manufactured. A portion of this Hoochenoo tribe, numbering about 150, had settled along the shore immediately adjoining the white settlement at Wrangel, to the westward, fronting the whites. To the eastward is the Stickeen tribe. The whites have long had a Stickeen Indian employed as policeman to stop the making of this liquor in either ranch, in which he has been generally successful. The missionary discovering that some of his followers came up a little groggy ordered the policeman to break the stills from which they were supplied. This he did, which resulted in a general fight among the two tribes, and the killing and wounding of several of them.

AN effort will probably be made in the present California Legislature to cut off a portion of Mono county and create a new county, comprising Bodie Mining District, with Bodie as county seat. This should most assuredly be done, as the people of Bodie, the largest town in the county, who pay a large proportion of the taxes, are put to great inconvenience by the distance to the county seat. There are enough people, territory and taxable property in the limits of the proposed new county to carry on a county government.—S. F. Stock Report.

WHAT is known as the Anti-Quackery bill has been sustained by the Supreme Court in the habeas corpus case of E. J. Fraser. The conclusion was that by conferring the authority and imposing the duty of appointing boards of examiners on the three societies named in the Act, and prohibiting the issuing of certificates by others than the appointees of such societies, the Legislature did not exceed the limitation of its powers contained in the provision of the Constitution; and that it is not necessary to express any opinion as to the other portions of the law, since even if it be assumed that such other portions are unconstitutional, the remaining parts are stated independently, and of themselves contain a complete scheme for the examination of diplomas and applicants, and for the prohibition of certificates by others than those empowered by the act to issue them.

A COMMITTEE appointed by the General Conference of the Methodist Church, which assembled in Baltimore, May, 1876, has fully agreed upon holding an Ecumenical Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a request has been made to the churches to send delegates to the Convention to be held in Cincinnati on the 6th of next May to prepare the call for the ecclesiastical event. There are upward of 20,000,000 of Methodists in different parts of the world, and it is proposed to harmonize, and as far as practicable, unify the various branches of this colossal religious body. One of the principal subjects to be discussed is the preparation of a uniform order of services, in recognition of the tendency to increased formality in worship.

THE London Standard says that telegraphic instructions have been sent to the Commander-in-Chief of the British naval forces in the Pacific to dispatch a man-of-war to La Paz, Lower California, in consequence of late disturbances there which are regarded as liable to endanger British subjects.

GEN. JO. LANE and a number of other prominent Oregon Democrats have issued an address to the members of their party in that State, dwelling upon the importance of upholding States' rights against Republican tendencies to centralization and monarchy.

A REACTION is reported to be setting in against the Leadville boom. Influential Eastern papers now declare that too much money has been invested there already for the results obtained, and capital is advised to seek another field of investment.

FERRY has introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution, that suffrage shall not be restricted on account of sex, or any other reason that does not apply to all citizens.

IT has been determined to send Ouray, Jack and the other chiefs back to Colorado in charge of an agent, for the purpose of bringing the twelve Ute murderers, or as many as can be secured.

COMMISSIONER HAYT was removed from office on January 30, Secretary Schurz informing him that the public interests demanded his removal.

The number of men available for military duty in the United States is stated by the Secretary of War to be 6,516,758.

The nomination of John M. Morton as Internal Revenue Collector for the San Francisco District, was rejected by the Senate by a vote 42 to 10.

The New York Herald opens the Irish Relief Fund in New York city with a contribution of $100,000.

Counterfeit five-dollar gold pieces and Mexican doubloons are being extensively circulated in San Francisco.

An island, with forest trees growing thereon, has been formed in Fraser river by the occasion of a recent land slide.

Newspapers are calling attention to the fact that bogus silver dollars, purporting to be the coinage of 1879, are in circulation. They are said to be a good imitation of the genuine standard dollars, and are well calculated to deceive the public.

The reduction in cable rates went into effect on the 1st of the present month. The rates will then be 62½ cents less per word than is at present charged to all parts, except Graat Britain.

DR. JACKSON expresses the opinion that one of the most common inducements to the use of alcohol, is that people overwork themselves, and being so exhausted that they cannot sleep, resort to smoking, chewing and alcohol drinking. This may sometimes be the case, but we can testify to having learned by observation that men do not become drinkers because they cannot rest, but because instead of devoting their leisure hours to useful reading and proper entertainments, they spend them in drinking saloons among dissipated companions, or they drink at home to kill time. When a man is fatigued from bodily labor, all he has to do is to keep his mind occupied with reading, or have others read to him, and he will soon feel sleepy. The kind of reading has, of course, much influence, and a man must learn by experience what kind of literature will keep him awake, and the kind that will cause him to sleep.

"HANNER, I decline de invitashun to der Grant insepshun at the Gault Tabern, f'om der fac' dat I mus' lay in mo' coal or freeze; an' seccumly, I nebber could w'ar'er swaller-tail coat. I'se too fat. De tails 'd stick out like a mule's ear w'en he's skeered, an' de ladies 'd take me fo' er Gub'ment ossifer ob some sort or rudder. No, Hanner. Send the ke-ard back to Mistoo Grant wid my comple-ments; tell 'im I ain't well nohow—we'll wait an' go to the suckus, honey, and git er top seat. Wat yer weepin' 'bout? 'Cause can't go, hae? Hanner, you can't dance the round dance, an' yer too full-breasted in de waist to go to dat blow out fo' ornyment. No, Madame! Pass de hash.—Louisville Courier Journal.

GRANT recently in speaking of Lincoln, said: "Lincoln was a wonderful talker and teller of stories. It is said his stories were improper. I have heard of them, but I never heard Lincoln use an improper word or phrase. I have sometimes, when I hear his memory called in question, tried to recall such a thing, but cannot. I always found him pre-eminently a clean-minded man. I regard these stories as exaggerations. Lincoln's power of illustration, his humor, was inexhaustible."

No wonder the price of iron is high, when Germany has gone into the manufacture of cannons on so large a scale as is reported. There is nothing so handy to have in the house as cannons, and Germany is laying up a big supply of the articles. This action is construed to mean war, but it may be only one of Bismarck's little bluffs. Two thousand Russian soldiers went to the bottom of the sea on a sinking transport recently, and the occurrence is recorded as a very melancholy calamity. If they had lived till the war breaks out and been knocked into smithereens by balls from those German cannons, nobody would see anything in their fate. If an individual slips on an orange peel on the sidewalk and breaks his neck it is spoken of as a very sad accident, but if ten thousand men are killed and mangled in battle, it is a matter of course, and nobody outside of the relatives of the unfortunates gives their fate a second thought.—Stock Report.

A MACHINIST of Virginia is engaged in figuring out a diamond drill which will run a tunnel of ordinary size. Its main feature is a rim of saw-blade steel six feet in diameter and three and a half feet in width, with diamonds set in one edge. When a cut a yard in depth has been made the drill is run back and the block of rock knocked out. The machine is really a kind of circular saw. There is a sort of center-bit, also armed with diamonds, that goes a little in advance of the main saw and makes a hole an inch and a half in diameter. This assists in giving steadiness to the main tool and leaves a hole in which to insert a giant powder cartridge and knock out the block of rock when a cut has been made to the proper depth. This novel drill is intended for use in hard rock only, though it may be used in soft rock where the ground is not too wet and heavy.—Gold Hill News.

Wm. Withrow, who shot Slade a week ago, did not leave town, as was several times reported, but has remained here to be taken in charge of at any time. Yesterday he was brought up before Justice Peterson by a Deputy Sheriff, and examined in relation to the shooting. No one appeared against him. Two or three witnesses were examined, but none of them saw him do the shooting. The District Attorney stated that he had had a talk with Slade on his death bed, but could gain no particulars as to who fired the fatal shot. Slade said "we had a quarrel and he shot me." With no more than the above facts being brought out, the Justice ordered Withrow released. Under ordinary circumstances he would have been held, and he is remarkably fortunate in being discharged without even a trial.—Bodie Free Press, Feb. 8.

THE Bulwer-Standard mill was started up on ore yesterday afternoon for the first time. There was no ceremony whatever in the inauguration of this work, but when everything was in readiness, the mighty machinery was set in motion under the management of J. M. Dawley, the efficient mill man of this section. The machinery worked well, and the engine moved as noiselessly as a clock. The company has not yet accepted the mill from the contractors, but it undoubtedly will be, as everything seems to be complete according to agreement. This is an important event in the history of Bodie, as it adds thirty more stamps to the milling facilities of the district, and gives another assurance that substantial mining men have confidence in the ore deposits.—Bodie Free Press, Feb. 8.

LEAVENWORTH (Kan.), Feb. 6.—The mysterious movements of a young man who arrived here within the last three or four days, have attracted much attention. He has been actively buzzing among all departments of Leavenworth society, but especially among the religious and sporting fraternities. The mystery which hung about the young man's movements has at last been dispelled by the discovery that he is Charles De Young of the San Francisco Chronicle, who tried to immolate Rev. Isaac Kalloch in that city last Fall. He is supposed to be collecting material for a new biography of Mr. Kalloch, and the search for authentic archives leads him into all sorts of places—the tabernacle, the two-forty track, and places too numerous and too otherwise to mention.

THE world wants more sunshine in its disposition, in its business, in its charities, in its theology. For ten thousand of the aches and pains, and irritations of men and women we recommend sunshine. It soothes better than morphine. It stimulates better than champagne. It is the best plaster for a wound. The good Samaritan poured out into the fallen traveler's gash more of this than of oil. Florence Nightingale used it on the Crimean battle fields. Take it into all the alleys, on board all the ships, by all the sick beds. Not a vial full, not a cup full, but a soul full. It is good for spleen, for liver complaint, for neuralgia, for rheumatism, for failing fortunes, for melancholy.

A VERY weak solution of permanganate of potash is an excellent disinfectant for light purposes, such as rinsing spittoons, neutralizing the taint of diseased roots of teeth, cleansing the feet, and keeping the breath from the odor of tobacco smoke. Permanganate is not poisonous.

THERE is much rejoicing in San Francisco because the Supervisors killed the Lake Merced scheme on the 2d instant by reconsidering their action authorizing the city to issue bonds, by a vote of 11 to 1.

PHYSICIANS have for a long time known that common table salt is an efficient aperient in ordinary cases of constipation. In a lecture on a case of nervous affection, Dr. Weir Mitchell, of Philadelphia, said that he had recommended the patient to take each morning on rising a tumblerful of water—cold, to prevent nauseating—in which was dissolved a teaspoonful of table salt. "This simple aperient," the doctor adds, "I frequently employ in cases of constipation, and generally find it efficient. There is great advantage in starting the bowels and in keeping them in a soluble condition, particularly in cases of nervous disorder in women, as it sometimes clears up obscure points in the case, and at all events eliminates one source of error."

IT seems to me that the landed aristocracy of Great Britain is doomed; it contends with the vast and limitless production of the prairie, and finds it impossible to maintain its supremacy against that stern competition. I believe that it is written as if in letters of light that the landed aristocracy will, within the century, come to an end. Once again England's adversity is Ireland's opportunity, and the same spirit of competion is putting an end to the unjust and ruinous system of land tenin Ireland.—Wendell Phillips.

IT is a popular error to think that the more a man eats the fatter and stronger he will become. To believe that the more hours children study the faster they learn. To conclude that if exercise is good, the more violent the more good is done. To imagine that whatever remedy causes one to feel immediately better is good for the system, without regard to the ulterior effects.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14 1880

THE liberal-hearted people of Mammoth have been striving, in a local way, to raise a sum of money in benefit to Billy Haines, the brave, unfortunate mail carrier who lost his feet and hands in the cold. This noble charity should be made more general. If set in motion, we will vouch for a fair response on the part of Round Valley, Bishop Creek Creek, Big Pine and Independence. Bodie would undoubtedly stand in. The Virginia City Enterprise publishes a long article laudatory of the true heroism of Haines, but neglects to head a subscription list for his benefit, which it is abundantly able to do. Haines will live, and something tangible in the way of recognizing his heroism and pitiable condition is now in order.

THE Superior Judge of Inyo county has been notified that if he sentences Mike Welch, the murderer of Sheriff Moore, it will be the last man he will ever sentence.—Bodie News.

He will be sentenced just the same. Judge Hannah has the respectable people at his back, before whom Welch's friends will take a back seat.—Mammoth Times.

Judge Hannah has received no such notification, but if any power on earth could swerve His Honor from giving Welch a fair and impartial trial and sentence, it would be just such threats as are referred to in the above. In the event that such talk reaches him, we venture that he would not err on the side of mercy. But where did the Bodie News get such stuff?

WE are in receipt from Wm. B. Daugherty, our ex-County Clerk and present Deputy State Controller of Nevada, a new book entitled "Report." It is bound in paper and stuffed with figures—a bewildering mass of them, unmistakably indicating Billy's authorship and style of writing. The several chapters set forth to a good advantage the solid condition, financially, of the Silver State, at present and since its organization.

THOS. NAST, the caricaturist, was born in Bavaria. In appearance he is short, thickset, a sturdy German figure; head large, square and well-balanced; forehead wide, handsome black eyes, firm mouth, Roman nose, rather small for the breadth of the face; hair abundant, thick, fine in texture, glossy black, and a walk that indicates a strong individuality and great decision of character.

IF, under the present Kearney Constitution, this side of the mountains is unable to obtain any needed legislation adapted to its distinct character and special requirements, and if the mad legislation averse to our mining interests goes on, the people and the press of Mono and Inyo counties may be set down as a unit in favor of anexation to Nevada.

UNDER the personal supervision of Gen. Beauregard a book has been issued under the title "Advance and Retreat," being reminiscences of the late Gen. John Hood, and is published in behalf of the Hood Memorial Fund. The fund is to support and educate ten little children of tender years, and who have neither father nor mother.

MRS. FAVOR, who is to conduct the new Ladies' Stock Exchange, is a sharp-witted woman who converses on the various stocks with an air of a Gould or Keene. She is of medium size, good looking, exceedingly good natured, and has jet black eyes which fairly sparkle when she is conversing.

HON. JOS. WASSON has well earned our thanks for a supply of State papers, department reports, legislative bills and documents. Some of the most interesting are the reports of the State Engineer, University Regents and Surveyor General.

A BILL has been introduced in the New York Senate making it a misdemeanor for any female to engage in any go-as-you please walking match, or any manager or lessee of a building or grounds who allows such an exhibition to take place.

MR. S. G. GREGORY, of Albany, New York, announces that he will have ready in sixty days a flying machine with which he will make a trial trip to London, England, going at the rate of thity miles an hour.

DAN RICE explains that his reformation is genuine and permanent, but there has been a misconception about it on the part of the newspapers. He swore off on whisky, brandy, rum and gin, and will keep that pledge or die; but he never said he would stop drinking wine, and does not mean to.

BONNER claims to have ten horses, trotters, that have beaten 2:20.

THE POST LANDS.

It is much to be hoped that every citizen of this county, feeling in the least a permanent identity therewith, will join in an earnest effort to build up an institution of learning for this side of the mountains, of a higher grade than that of the common public schools—in other words, a High School. The need of such a school in our midst is too obvious to need recapitulation for the information of thinking, progressive spirited people acquainted with the country, its peculiar geographical sitution, existing conditions and future prospects. Nevertheless, it is not amiss to again touch upon a few points showing the necessity for an earnest effort on the part of home people to try to build up home institutions, and each for himself, a home in fact. To accomplish this last all important result, much to bring about the first must be done. There are very many families now resident in this valley, prospering fairly in all the common affairs and enjoyments of life, and satisfied that their future chances for both are as good or better right where they are than they are likely to be in any other spot on the face of the earth, contingencies of wealth excepted; yet these same people feel themselves to be mere sojourners here, and are bending all their energies to the accomplishment of one principal object, namely, to accumulate enough to enable them to go elsewhere to live, simply as a plain duty they owe their sons and daughters; the laudable ambition they feel to give these sons and daughters a higher educational advantages for their start in the real race of life than can possibly be obtained in this country as now conditioned.

For the lack of a high school of our own, many excellent families in this valley contemplate permanant removal here from; yet, but for that lack, these same families would, almost without an exception, be perfectly satisfied to go on and build up permanent homes where they are, and at the same time, directly or indirectly, aid others in doing so—neither of which will they do now, lest it militates so many dollars and cents' worth against the accomplishment of their own one grand object.

Children grow faster than fortunes—not one in ten of these families will ever accumulate the extra amount to enable them to carry out their grand hope of a competence in a new home under the shadows of a collegiate institution elsewhere; consequently, save one contingency, their children now enjoy as good educational advantages as they ever will while they are children. Save in the one contingency, this is equally true of scores of other children in this isolated region—capable, ambitious youths, who will soon be beyond the ordinary school age, but not beyond the yearnings for a higher knowledge than it is possible for parents to offord them when the nearest school suited to their advanced needs is practically full six hundred miles distant, and for geographical or topographical reasons, can never be a foot nearer unless placed directly in our midst—an indisputable fact, at least in an economical point of view. To maintain children a term of years at such distant schools means, to most families ordinarily well to do, impoverishment nearly, if not an impossibility; yet is possible to accomplish as good results for the same and dozens of other children, with a suitable school here as proposed, and for all at a total outlay of less than for the few sent elsewhere.

An academy completely supplying every requirement between the public schools and the State University, can be established and maintained here at an annual cost less than that to maintain less than half a dozen pupils for a similar period at any of these distant schools, which, with other important details we will endeavor to set out and demonstrate as occasion requires hereafter.

The business now in hand is to induce Congress to cede to this county, or Inyo and Mono counties combined, the military buildings at Camp Independence, together with the eighty-acre tract and water privileges pertaining to the same, all in trust to a Board of Trustees for the establishment of the first and only high school in the whole expansive area here cut off from the rest of the State by the Sierra Nevadas, all as asked for in the concurrent resolution introduced by Hon. S. P. Moffat and passed by both Houses of our last Legislature.

These buildings and grounds are well suited without material alteration for every immediate requirement of a high school. For such or other similar public use they have a tangible value; if ordered sold in the usual manner of disposing of Government property, the whole combined will net to the Government just what bidders are willing to give for so much old lumber subject to removal—that is, nothing net at all. The tract is eighty acres of "Government land," that and nothing more; whether opened to public entry or sold at special auction, its cash value to the Government will be nothing more than for any other equal amount of Government land.

Dozens of precedents can be cited showing Congressional willingness to aid the educational cause by direct donations to cities, towns and counties, of parts of abandoned military reserve lands. Yet, as we truly believe, not one of the recipients of those favors could advance as great a need and other meritorious claims for such aid as can be done in this instance, were all the relative fact set out. But all we ask of our State Delegation is that they may act with the same zeal and unanimity in advocating this measure of a general right and benefit as they did in supporting that miserable, lying swindle by which this region was robbed of its Land Office—a scheme owing its origin to spite and sustained by wilful misrepresentations by which every member then in either House from this State, Mr. Luttrell alone excepted, was so far deceived or made a tool of as to loan it his active support; a fraud of no material consequence of itself but yet none the less a fraud in the interest of a handful of individual schemers against the rights of the many. We do not in that matter impeach the motives of any member of that delegation, for not one of them had any personal knowledge of the country involved, but we do think that as they then unwittingly worked to do this Owens River Country an injury, a sense of justice would now impel the same members to try to effect the point here asked for to the material benefit of the same extensive region. And it is much to be hoped our direct representative, Mr. Pacheco, will take it upon himself to see that whenever Camp Independence is ordered turned over to the Interior Department, that an amended bill to the above effect be introduced and fairly considered before the property is otherwise ordered disposed of to no public benefit, not forgetting that all the old settlers on other portions of the reservation should be made preferred pre-emptors, as proposed, we believe, in his pending bill, and for which there are a number of precedents. Of such, touching both these points, we will cite two or three which are conveniently at hand, viz: Act approved March 12, 1852, and Acts approved June 6 and 22, respectively, 1860, the provisions of which are directly point but need not be set out here.

District Attorney elect John Laird has addressed Mr. Pacheco in relation to this school matter, to what purport will in due time appear.

OUR DARWIN LETTER.

Where's All that Money Gone to—Our Mining Interest, Etc.

DARWIN, Feb. 9.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I took a stroll over to our graveyard the other day, and found that since our place started on its race to mining renown, 57 human souls have fell victims to the destroyer death—some by natural causes, while others were called by knife or bullet, without a moment's preparation, to their "home behind the cloud." I have often heard people say that they were very loathe to die in this so-called out of the way place, for fears entertained that Gabriel might not condesend to come up over the Kern and Inyo Stage Line, when he was ordered by Jehovah to start out with his trumpet to call together the many sheep and few goats, just as though that in this nineteenth century his lordship might possibly be too high-toned to leave main lines of railroads, where they run palace sleeping cars, having an eye to ease and comfort, as well as to sounding his bugle-horn to wake up souls. Upon closely observing the "home of the dead," I found that some of its occupants had nice fences around their graves, with proper stones or painted boards with names, age, etc., thereon standing at their head, showing who they were, which naturally made me conclude they must have had money when their effects were searched, or else good, kind friends. My attention was called to one grave in particular—that of Nancy Williams, who was most foully murdered here in her own house on or about the middle of September, 1877—which has not one solitary strip of board to mark her resting place, and had I not known where the old lady was buried would have been in doubt if she had ever been put there, so far as any visible evidence goes, except the bare grave itself. Everybody here knew "old Nancy" as a person who kept a lodging house principally for transient customers, and as a woman who kept her word, as honest as the day is long—paid every debt contracted, and never meddled with other people's business. True, she may have had her faults, doubtless had, and who of us all have not sinned in some way—one having a taste for one class of sin, one for another, making up the list of sins as great almost as the number of sinners. Christ tells us somewhere in his history of coming across a party who were about to stone a certain person to death for some wrong act committed. If I am not mistaken his advice was asked (Darwinites are not apt to be up in their Bible knowledge, as there is probably not a single copy of the book in town), and He replied: "He that is without sin, cast the first stone," and as no one in the crowd fired any rocks at the poor soul, it is pretty good evidence they were no better in those days, in a moral point of view, than the average Inyoite. Now Nancy was known to have money; yes, over $2,500 in coin in some San Francisco bank, besides owning her house here and its contents. But little, if anything is known of the whereabouts of her relations, who doubtless would, if they knew where her cold ashes were resting, order a simple fence put around her grave and a head board upon it. She certainly had plenty of money to give her body a decent burial, and others here besides myself think that the gentleman who administered upon her estate and handled it can do no less than fix up the old lady's grave, considering the amount of money she left, thereby leaving some tangible evidence as to the exact spot where her body rests. Fifty-seven lying in the graveyard and 70 living in the town of Darwin, not counting heads in outside and surrounding camps. That is the present status of our burg, accompanied with great hopes for an increase.

There are several reasons that cause me to think our town and locality are not on their last legs. The most prominent of them all is the present price of the lead market. Our camp is, strictly speaking, a base metal one, with lead ores greatly predominating, and if lead only keeps up at present figures, there is more or less hope for us. Darwin commenced going down when lead started on its decline, which was about two years ago, and the race was a lively one, lead beating the other nag (as the old man out west said who was called into judge a race), "by six rails of fence." Lead struck its bottom price first, while Darwin keeps on, not having found out yet, like people in the part of Illinois called Egypt, that Gen. Jackson has been dead for years, but keep on voting for him. Lead now pays the transportation from here to the city—the expense of separating the silver from the lead, and also leaves a profit, or nearly if not quite, leaving the silver clear in the city. Mines around here can now be worked to a profit, whose ores contain as low as 45 ounces of silver per ton, and some even of lower grade. The arrival of this state of affairs has produced more confidence, and several parties have commenced work taking out ore from mines that have long lain dormant on account of the low price of lead.

J. S. Gorman and J. C. Eddy have leased the Custer mine of P. Reddy and gone to work in earnest taking out ore and thus far with flattering results. Both gentlemen are practical miners, and the former is one of the best smelters on this coast.

Parties have also commenced work on one of the originally located mines here, the Promontory, and have already some 25 tons of ore on the dump for the two weeks' labor.

The New Coso Company is also pushing ahead down towards the center of Mother Earth upon a finely developed vein, with excellent prospects for a large body of ore, and are continually taking out some all the time of a high grade. The owners of this property can nearly all count their money by thousands, and if they will only have patience, and keep on putting up for a while, it will not be long before they will get back all they are out, and add to their present well filled pockets.

The owners of the Vulcan mine, a new claimant for honors, are about commencing work, and prospects are looking favorable for them.

Modock thus far has made a successful run, having already shipped about 30 tons of bullion, but is now temporarily closed for want of coal.

Juan Mesa and McRae are now engaged fitting up the old 4-stamp quartz mill at Old Coso, having contracted to work the gold quartz being taken out of the Mariposa now called the Orion mine; also from other new gold claims discovered near there of late called the Refugio, Malinche and Valenciana. This locality is strictly a gold one, and is entirely worked by Mexicans.

Mr. N. S. Thompson, our gentlemanly Mining Recorder for this district, and his partner, John Pablo, have several fine locations which show well, principal of which are the Branch Mint, Essex, Sweet Bye and Bye, etc.

The writer has commenced the formation of a cabinet in Messrs. Waterman & O'Brion's store, which will aim to show the quality and kinds of ore found in this vicinity, having already some 25 or 30 samples from our surrounding mines, and more coming in daily, and he respectfully wishes all mining men passing through by stage or otherwise to drop in and see what we have in the way of ores, and most respectfully invites from all sources contributions of ores, which will be prominently displayed in his cabinet.

There seems to be a better and more confident feeling existing here now in the minds of those "who have stayed with the town" through all its dark days, than for some time past, and many of us begin already to feel that the day is soon to dawn upon us, when our locality will come out with a clear and well eye, which for the past two years has truly looked dark and sickly, very much the appearance of having been punched.

Yours, truly,
C. F. O'BRION.

ON the morning of the 10th instant, at San José, the State Normal School was discovered in flames. The fire was first noticed in the cupola, which before the engines arrived was a pyramid of flames. Within fifteen minutes after the flames were seen pouring from the cupola, the interior of the central portion of the building from the roof to the second floor was filled with flames roaring and cracking like an immense furnace. The entire building was destroyed. The building cost $280,000. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, as a family living in the rear of the school report being awakened by two explosions in quick succession, and on getting up and looking out seeing the entire cupola in flames. The building was insured for $55,000.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Dennis Kearney, the Irish fraud, returned last week, but no grand reception was given to the dirty little filthy mass of corruption. No demonstration at all was made on his arrival, and the mass of his followers begin to see through his flimsy schemes.

There was quite a large meeting of the Workingmen at the sand lot this afternoon. Yesterday a few of them went to call on Mayor Kalloch to demand bread or work. The Mayor could not be found, so they got neither. If they expect to get bread or work from Kalloch they will get badly fooled, for he has no more bread than he wants for himself, and as for work, he can attend to all that he has got to do.

Times are very hard in this city, and no doubt but a great many are suffering for the actual necessaries of life. What plan will be adopted to remedy the evil remains to be seen. But something must be done or some serious trouble will be the result. If a man cannot get work he has got to beg, and if he cannot beg he has got to steal, and if he cannot steal he has got to starve. Very few people believe in starving.

There is plenty of money here and plenty of opportunities to invest it if the State was not in such confusion in consequence of this new Constitution. That was a bad break, and it will take a long time to mend it. A great many of our capitalists are afraid to invest in anything here at present.

The China New Year is now at hand, and the "boys in blue" are having a gay old time in celebrating the event, by firing fire-crackers and Chinese bombs. I have had several invitations to enjoy their hospitality and partake of their refreshments, but accepted only one. I remained there about ten minutes partook of some wine and a small piece of cake, which were both of excellent quality. For hours after I got away from there I smelled like a first-class Chinese laundry.

Last week a high-toned Chinaman was buried and he had a first-class funeral. There must have been forty hacks in the procession. As it passed through Kearney street it attracted a great deal of attention. One hack contained a band of Chinese musicians, and they made a terrible racket with their gongs and squeaking fiddles. Next came a hack containing four female mourners, all dressed in white, crying like so many cats having their tails nearly twirled off. Then came the hearse containing the coffin. On each side were three pall-bearers dressed in white gowns which reached nearly to their knees. Behind the hearse were three boss mourners on foot. Those had to be helped along by a man at each arm. The head boss mourner took on fearfully and appeared to be in terrible agony. He acted something like a man who had made seventeen successful trips to a second-class gin-mill. The boss mourners command a high salary, and they earn every cent they get.

This town has been remarkably quiet in regard to murders and suicides, and of late Oakland has taken all that business to itself. Yesterday there was a fatal shooting affray over there, which resulted in the death of an innocent lady, who happened to be passing by where the shooting occurred. Oakland is getting to be a terrible bad place. Alameda is bad enough, so is San Francisco, but Oakland is the Sodom-Gomorah of the Pacific Coast.

The Board of State Prison Commissioners have at last appointed a Warden. They got him from San José, and his name is Ames. From all accounts he is just the man for the place. He is well spoken of by all who know him, and no doubt but he will fill the position as well as any one who could be found even in Albany.

The Board of Health held a meeting on the old hulk in the bay where the passengers and crew of the China steamer are quarantined. The meeting was called to ascertain who was to blame for allowing the steamer to come to her wharf. They investigated the whole affair and that was all there was done.

Mayor Kalloch is going after License Collector Sinton, with a sharp stick, and the chances are he will stir Mr. Sinton up very lively.

The Board of Supervisors weakened on giving one million five hundred thousand dollars for Lake Merced. Only one Supervisor (Mr. Baily) stood by his first vote, and his tenacity is really admirable. The Spring Valley Water Company had nothing to do with it. They never meddle with anything that don't concern them. Spring Valley gold is much better than Lake Merced bonds. Don't you think so, Bill?

W. G. L.

THE Lida Valley District, situated south of Candelaria, is coming to the front, and gives evidence of great merit. A correspondent of the Aurora Herald says that last week Palm & Teyhen sold the Centennial mine for $15,000. This claim is situated in a forest of nut-pine timber, on the west side of Lida Valley. It is opened by shaft 70 feet and a drift on the ledge 50 feet. About four miles west from this mine, in the Palmetto range of mountains, is the Fortunatus (beter known as the Buster), a mine bonded recently by Rice & Stevenson to New York parties. A force of eight men are at work; the shaft is down 180 feet, with good prospects. I. J. Rice the discoverer of the Buster, has uncovered a body of very rich gold-bearing ore on the first east extension. West from the Buster, McNamer & Keating are sinking on a ledge of good promise. Work is now being done on the Brown's Hope, Lida Hill, Martin & Henley, Death Valley and Parole mines, that have been comparatively undisturbed for three years.

THE newspaper press of Mississippi is to erect at Holly Springs a monument of gray granite, twenty feet high, to the memory of the editors who died of yellow fever in 1878.

A FOLDED newspaper placed over the chest inside the vest, on going out during gold weather, constitues an excellent protector for the lungs.

THE Pennsylvania Republican delegation has been instructed to vote for Grant for the nomination of President.

HOW IT WAS.—Concerning the fire referred to last week, Mr. Huff makes the following statement: A young man in his employ, while at work clearing up some ground, by gathering together corn stalks, etc., discovered that a fire had started in some grass in the same field, but some distance away from where he was at work. He went to the spot at once, and soon extinguished the fire, or supposed he had done so, and returned to his work. Shortly afterwards, however, the fire again started. The young man did all in his power to check it, but as it soon caught in some tall grass in an adjoining field, he saw it was impossible to effect anything alone, and came to town for help. Mr. Huff informed Mr. Eibeshutz and others interested, and with them went to the scene of the fire, which had now spread widely, and together did all in their power to check it, but with indifferent success, as no water was to be had except from wells. The point is, that no person in his employ is amenable to the charge of "carelessness," since the fire, the young man declares, was not started by him at all, nor by any one so far as he knows.

FROZEN TO DEATH.—Last Monday John Cartheny, while on the trail from Swansea to Beveridge District, found the body of a man frozen stiff on the snow near the summit of the Inyos, at a point about fifteen miles from Swansea. The fact was made known to Coroner John A. Lank, who went to the spot and had the frozen body packed on a mule to the road at Swansea, where it was hauled to Lone Pine, where on the 8th instant an inquest was held in due form. From testimony there elicited, it was found that deceased was named Andre, a native of France, aged about fifty-three years, and that he perished from exposure to cold on Saturday or Sunday last. He was found lying face downwards on about three feet of snow; his blankets were lying within arm's length. Coroner Lank further informs us that his feet were drawn up toward his face, and that the body was frozen so perfectly solid that it was impossible to move a limb in the slightest degree, and in that form the body was hung across the pack animal and packed out of the mountains. Deceased came from Lake District not long since, and was a stranger in these parts. He was buried in the Lone Pine cemetery.

INSTALLATION. — Following are the names of the officers of Busy Bee Lodge, No. 250, I. O. G. T., of this place, installed on Monday evening, February 2, 1880, by D. G. W. C. T., F. M. Willis: A. R. FARE REDUCED. — Wm. Hamilton, proprietor, and J. P. Taylor, managing agent, of the Kern and Inyo Stage Line, were in town last week, on general business connected with the route. Mr. Hamilton anticipates a great increase of travel and business in the near future. An annex to their regular advertisement elsewhere shows a material reduction of fares—for instance, it is now only $27 50 from here to the railroad, as against $35 heretofore. This is quite a liberal change, as during the present Winter months the line has no practical opposition from this point—and none which advertises itself at any time.

I. O. G. T. OF BISHOP.—Following are the names of the officers of Oasis Lodge, I. O. G. T., of Bishop Creek, consisting of 38 members, as installed for the present term: M. H. White, W. C. T.; H. G. A NEW PROPERTY.—Col. A. G. Boley, with a force of miners, is at work upon a new discovery about six miles east of the Indiana mine. It promises well, the ledge being some twenty feet in width and carrying the same character of ore as the Indiana. Assays by Mr. Woodhull show $102 and $169 per ton in silver.

COLD.—During the past week the weather has been quite wintry in the mountains all around us, and at times considerably frigid in the valley. An abundance of water for irrigation seems assured for the coming season. In fact, we opine that Gospel Swamp will enjoy rather too much of it.

HERE.—Mr. J. D. Hudgin, formerly of the Rex Montis, and a favorably known mining engineer, is in town. He represents certain San Francisco operators and will examine a number of good mining prospects in this region.

PREACHING.—Rev. F. M. Willis will preach at the following named places on Sunday (to-morrow) as follows: Lone Pine, 11 o'clock A. M.; Georges Creek, 3 o'clock P. M., and in Independence at 7 o'clock P. M.

ASSESSMENT.—The Los Angeles M. & S. Co., of Resting Springs, has levied an assessment of $4 per share.

COMING.—One week from to-morrow comes Washington's Birthday and—and the foot-race.

Olancha Notes—A Racer from the Nobs.

OLANCHA, Feb. 5.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Olancha is again demoralized. What the result will be, time alone can tell. And we were getting along so well. We had dropped politics and gone into training horses for the Lone Pine races on the 22d. Our horse ran beautiful. We had pooled our cash and were intending to carry off the Lone Pine purses without fail; expectations were running high, but they have fell considerable. There came an emigrant into our camp, and he talked "race horse;" showed one he had in his team—an old, sleepy animal, with collar and harness marks all over him. He offered to put up one hundred dollars that when the horse was waked up he could beat us—actually beat our running horse. We thought we would cut his eye teeth and take in his coin, just to bet on the foot race; and we told him to wake up his horse and to put up his coin. He did. We think now the judges were partial; they gave in that we were too slow by about six feet ten inches. We learned a very important point in horse racing. The emigrant did not whip his horse—we whipped ours all over. It isn't a good plan to whip a horse; we won't do it again. But the emigrant was a nice man; he gave us several important points; told us our horse was a good one; thought we would have no trouble in getting away with the Lone Pine races. He counted our cash, to see that we made no mistake; told us a nice story about the "Babes in the Woods," and seeing that we looked depressed, gave us soothing words.

Yes, he winked at us slyly,
And gave us old guff;
But got off with our coin
All the same fast enough.

We ain't going to Lone Pine now; times are so scarce, unless we should have a wind-fall, and they don't strke this camp often.

Yours,
PAP.

ONE John Cantrell, a Texas stage robber, has just been sentenced to ninety-nine years' imprisonment. His counsel is now trying to get his client's sentence reduced to life.

A TELEGRAM from New York states that David Stanton, of England, won the bycicle race for a purse and the championship of America. He made fifty miles in three hours and five minutes—an average of almost 17 miles an hour.

AT Oakland, on the 7th instant, a most deplorable accident occurred by which an innocent woman was killed. It appears from the account at hand that two brothers—John and Jacob Lenz by name—the former keeping a grocery store in Oakland and the latter being a policeman in Alameda—were coming down Second street, on which is located John's place of business, saw several men standing on the sidewalk in front of the store, among whom was a man named Knoll, and also Patrick McFadden. The latter was quarreling with Knoll and calling him all manner of names. Mr. Lenz appeared and succeeded in pacifying McFadden, and some one proposed that they all take a drink. They started to enter the grocery, when John Lenz refused McFadden admittance, saying that he had already drank enough. This enraged McFadden, who was quite intoxicated, and he began abusing the entire crowd, and said, "I'll fix some of you!" In about five minutes afterwards he returned with a pistol in his hand, which he flourished in the air. McFadden then leveled his pistol on Jacob Lenz and fired twice at the latter. Lenz then returned the fire, and a first-class shooting scrape was soon inaugurated—the bullets flying promiscuously about. Mrs. Stetson, a young woman who happened to be passing down the street at the time, was struck by one of the flying bullets, which resulted in her death. All the parties implicated in the affair are in jail. The deceased leaves three children of tender years. She was within one month of confinement, and while she lay cold and still in death, a few faint flutterings gave evidence that the unborn was still alive.

THE report is now telegraphed that a near personal friend of Gen. Grant authorizes the following as a correct statement of Grant's position with reference to the Presidency: He says: "Gen. Grant is not now, nor has he ever been, a candidate for the Presidential nomination. But should the Republican National Convention nominate him in the same manner as any other candidate would be nominated, he would deem it his duty to the country and the party to accept. Traveling abroad, he was a stranger to the contest now going on for the Presidential nomination, and he has written no letters on the subject to any person, and all assertions to the contrary are without foundation in fact.

A MEETING of all the prominent men of both factions of the Democratic party was held on the evening of the 6th instant at Syracuse, N. Y., for the purpose of harmonizing the differences of the two factions. Hon. Wm. C. Ruger officiated as chairman. It was resolved to sink personal prejudices and preferences and unite the party. The Tammany Chief has buried his hatchet and concluded to go on to the reservation.

The Bodie Railroad.

A reporter of the Sutro Independent on Friday last interviewed Supt. Yerington on the subject of the projected railroad from the Mound House (midway between Carson and Virginia) to Bodie. When asked where the terminus of the projected road is to be, Mr. Yerington answered, "Bodie." He subsequently added that in case the country south should prove sufficiently rich in precious metals to warrant the company in doing so, the road would be pushed on to Southern California or Arizona, and there connected with the Southern Pacific. It would seem from this authentic and emphatic statement that the road is not to terminate at Walker's Lake and be "steamboated" across that body of water, but that it will wind up through the mountains, and pass directly through the town of Bodie, perhaps some blocks west of Main street. Mr. Yerington stated in reply to another question, that he could not say how long it would be before the graders would commence work, but that it would be within thirty and forty days. He also stated that the company intended to contract with a Chinese company in San Francisco for as many Chinamen as may be needed to do the grading and that when the work is completed every Chinaman will be shipped back to the Bay.—Bodie Standard.

THE necessary machinery to complete the repairs of the broken pump arrived here a few days ago, and last night all was nearly in readiness to commence operations once more in the Del Monte. It was thought the pump would be set in motion to-day or to-morrow. Supt. Tyrrell thinks he has everything fixed in such a manner that there will be no trouble in keeping the water under subjection when once lowered to the required depth. Should the machinery work up to the expectations of Mr. Tyrrell, next week's issue will doubtless have something encouraging to live.—Esmeralda Herald.

J. M. DORMER, late editor of the Esmeralda Herald, will establish a newspaper at the town of Candelaria, Columbus Mining District, during the latter part of the present month. The material for building an office is already on the road from Carson, and the printing material has been shipped this week from San Francisco. Mr. Dormer has a wide newspaper experience, having been connected with the business for at least fifteen or twenty years on this coast. He is a ready writer, and will furnish the Candelarites a paper worthy of their glowing future prospects. We wish him success.—Esmeralda Herald.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 14.....1880

THE attention of Edison having been called to the doubt of some Parisian critics concerning the stability of the carbon horseshoe, and the claim that it gradually wastes away by decomposition, said: "A complete answer to that is the actual result. I can state that the oldest lamp in my laboratory after burning 505 hours had its electrical resistance measured and there was not the least difference from the time when it was first put in the circuit. The surface of the carbon which burned 505 hours is as brilliant to-day as it was the day when first put in; whereas oxidation makes carbon black." Edison says he has not sold a share of his stock.

THE great difficulty of getting horses from a stable where surrounding buildings are in a state of conflagration is well known. The plan of covering their eyes with a blanket will not always succeed. A gentleman whose horses have been in great peril from such a cause, having in vain tried to save them, hit upon the experiment of having them harnessed as though they were going to their usual work, when, to his astonishment, they were led from the stable without difficulty.

SOME bad men in Carson put up a little job on Slade, the spiritual medium. One man went to him professing to be a believer, and told him that another, an unbeliever, might be converted if he could get a satisfactory message from his dead sister. Slade consented to interview the sister in the dark beyond, and got an answer, which he presented to the unbeliever. But the fact of the matter was the unbeliever never had a sister.

THE accumulation of soot in chimneys is a great nuisance and may be remedied by mixing considerable salt with the mortar with which the bricks composing the chimney are laid. The salt acts by absorbing moisture whenever it is damp and rainy, and the soot, becoming wet and heavy, falls into the fire below. This is an English idea and is said to give very satisfactory results.

WILL YOU MISS ME WHEN I'M GONE?

The time draws near to part, dear friends;
The hours pass swiftly by,
When we must take our separate paths,
And say the last "good by."
The day will creep on just the same,
The night close with the dawn,
And as these fade, I ask of you,
Will you miss me when I'm gone?

When you gather 'round your firesides,
And ponder of the past,
Upon the many pleasures
And joys that could not last;
Or in some happy gathering,
As those in days agone,
Will you ever think of the absent,
And miss me when I'm gone?

Will you think of the days of gladness,
When all the world was bright;
When no thought of gloomy sadness
E'er dashed our sky with night?
Of those many tricks we used to play
To aid old Time's flight on—
Will you ever think of these, dear friends,
And miss me when I'm gone?

The Spring time with its lovely hues,
The Summer sun's bright ray;
The Autumn with its gold and brown,
The Winter's sad decay—
Will each in its own time be seen,
Till Life grows pale and wan;
But through them all, my sad heart asks,
Will you miss me when I'm gone?

Our barque of life sails fast, dear friends,
Down Time's resistless stream;
But may its pathway e'er be bright
With Friendship's golden beam.
And though we say farewell for aye
Until the Heavenly dawn—
Remember there's one far away
Who'll miss you when she's gone.

—SOLITARIUS.

Round Valley, Jan 28, 1880.

PETROLEUM has been regarded by rigid philosophers as a doubtful boon to mankind since it supplies at too little cost of labor a constant and universal want of civilized races. But this observation may have been calculated for the meridian of New Bedford and Nantucket—where great industry, under full sail before mineral oil came into use, was stranded high and dry, through the discovery of a cheaper light, than fat of the whale. The hills of Pennsylvania were found nearer and less dangerous than the ice girth whaling grounds of the Arctic and Antartic, and whales that spouted water were left alone for wells that spouted oil. For petroleum a use has been found, the methods of which—perfected by many years' experiment—may now be said to be established as a commercial success. It is as fuel in the manufacture of iron, for which, as one of the richest hydro-carbons, petroleum was long ago admitted to be most desirable. The difficulty lay in its management and control under fire. That, it is seen, has now been obviated. Furnaces heated by petroleum are now in successful operation turning out probably the best iron in the world, at least an iron that ranks alongside that of Norway and Sweden, the product of charcoal furnaces. One of these furnaces is in operation in the Pennsylvania oil regions, at Titusville, from which has been supplied to a degree the demand for choicer iron from various parts of the country, at least to the extent of establishing the superiority of the petroleum-process iron for the most trying uses to which that metal is subjected.

THE pump at the Del Monte was set in motion last Saturday afternoon and has been doing good work ever since. The water has been lowered to five feet below the 420 station, at which point it will be held until a station can be cut and a plunger put in at this point. This work will occupy some four or five days, when an attack will be made on the balance of the water in the main shaft. Once the water is out, it will give the superintendent a chance to put a force of men at work in the mine. It is expected that in about ten days work will be commenced in earnest developing this mine.—Esmeralda Herald.

The Owner of an Ostrich Farm.

Mr. McKellar, who was most kindly hospitable, has an ostrich farm, but his flock of birds was not very large at the time of our visit, he having had bad luck at first in breeding.

He owns the actual Cape of Good Hope and a long stretch of the moorland, and has thrown a wire fence right across the peninsula, so as to give his ostriches the run of a large tract, stretching right down to the cape itself. One old hen ostrich was a pet about the house, but used to do sad damage in the farm yard eating the young goslings, swallowing them like oysters.

It was amusing to go with Mr. McKellar into one of his breeding paddocks; here a pair of ostriches were brooding on a nest of eggs, dividing, as usual, the labor between them.

The cock was very savage and attacked all intruders, so his master had a long pole with a fork at the end of it, and when the ostrich ran at the party he caught its neck in the fork. The ostrich was excessively enraged, but soon had to give in.

A kick from an ostrich is well known as very dangerous. The only thing to do when attacked without means of defense, Mr. McKellar said, is to lie flat down and let the bird walk on you till he is tired. I was astonished at the brightness of the red coloring developed on the front of the legs of the cock bird during the breeding season. The ornamental appearance of the bird is greatly enhanced by it.

A narrow but strong and high pen is provided for plucking the birds in. They are driven into it and held fast. It is found better to pluck the feathers out than to cut them off. The stumps if left in are liable to cause trouble.

Young ostriches, when first from the egg, have curious horny plates at the tips of their feathers, like those in the feathers of one of the Indian jungle fowls, and some other birds not in the least related to one another.

The cape peninsula becomes very narrow toward its termination, and ends in two caps, Cape Point, on which is the lighthouse, and the Cape of Good Hope. The Cape of Good Hope itself is a mass of rock, terminating in perpendicular cliffs toward the sea, but with ledges here and there, on which numbers of cormorants (Phalacocorax capensis) nest.—H. N. Moseley, Challenger Notes.

A FINE MINE.—Gen. Batterman, Supt. of the State Prison mine, furnishes the following encouraging report: He has now 143 men at work on ore level and taking out the finest quality of rock. There has in fact been no change in the appearance of the formation since his last report. Car samples show high assays of granite of the best quality, and the experts believe that they are in as fine a body of building rock as can be found in the State. Little or no water is encountered and the pump is running at about ten strokes per day. The tunnel opened by some parties who were anxious to drift off into California and New Mexican ground (to visit some relatives) has been closed up, as it was encountering an unfavorable formation of wardens and shotguns. The cages are all in good order and furnished with excellent safety catches. The ventilation in the lower level of the prison floor has been somewhat improved by an upcast winze connecting with the roof. By the next visiting day they expect to show some good work in the north drift. There is still room for a few more men on the day shift. Applications for work can be made to Judge King, of the District Court or Sheriff Hill.—Carson Appeal.

AN amusing application of the wonders of the telephone as an assistant detective of crime comes to us from Julian. Several horses were recently stolen in that neighborhood, and suspicion fell upon a certain Indian as the thief. Some one having introduced a telephone up there, the same was being exhibited, when it occurred to the owner of the stolen horses to get the Indian to come in and hear the "Great Spirit" talk. The Indian took one of the cups and was thrilled with astonishment at being apparently so near the Great Keeper of the happy hunting grounds. After some little time spent in wonderment, the Indian was solemnly commanded by the "Great Spirit "to give up those stolen horses!" Dropping the cup as if he had been shot, the Indian immediately confessed to having stolen the horses, and trembingly promised if his life was spared he would restore the "caballos" at once, and he did so.—San Diego Union.

AT New York, recently, Denis Kearney paid his respects to Tilden. It will be remembered some time ago he asserted in a public speech in Washing that the American people, if they did their duty, would hang John Sherman. That having failed to create a commotion in that quarter, he turns his attention to Tilden. Pulling off his coat, and rolling up his sleeves, he struck a theatrical attitude, and belched out the following: "That political devil-fish with false teeth, false wig, false heart, or rather false gizzard, for he has no heart; that fraud, election fraud, cipher fraud, fraud of all frauds, Sam Tilden, sits in his office like a great spider, with suckers out all over the continent."

A CANVASS of the principal towns in the State, as telegraphed to the Sacramento Record-Union, on the question of who would be California's choice for President, on the Republican side, indicates that Blaine has the inside track, Grant second, and Sherman last. A few expressed their preference for Conkling, Washburne and Hayes.

James R. Keene is reported to contemplate sending a shipload of breadstuffs to Ireland. This would be in keeping with his immense way of doing things; but while he is about it, he might save time by chartering a steamer and freighting her with flour, instead of a slow sailing ship.

The public debt statement shows a decrease of over $1,000,000. To the metropolitan newspaper man such a trifling sum would not be worth mentioning; but even this financial bagatelle, we suppose, must be posted on the books of Uncle Sam.

Returning prosperity manifests itself in all directions, and the increasing revenues of the Government furnish substantial evidence of the progress made. The increase for January last amounted to $5,000,000 over the corresponding month of 1879, and for the last half of the year they were $17,000,000 in excess of those received for the same period in 1878

THE Eastern papers have an idea that the new Constitution of this State was framed expressly to suppress the mining stock business and for no other purpose. The New York papers are congratulating themselves that the operations of the instrument will drive the business to New York, where, of course, it will be conducted on principles of the strictest honesty. They are counting their chickens before they are hatched; that is, the chickens. The mining stock business is not going to New York, though there is destined to be considerable buying and selling of mines in that city. We admit that the new Constitution has injured the mining interest, but it has hurt every property and industrial interest. Those who hoped to benefit by it are injured the most; for what capital it has not driven away it has locked up. The burdens it imposes on enterprise, business and the use of capital, are such that people having capital to invest are afraid to use it for fear of its being Constitutionalized, legislated or agitated away from them. There is nothing that can better afford to be independent than capital, and when capital withdraws, there is no field of labor. The mistake that has been made by the new Constitution is that it holds labor to be independent of capital, when a child ought to know that one is dependent on the other.—Stock Report.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 21.....1880

A PRESS dispatch from Augusta, Maine, dated on the 13th, says that John Benson, Jr., Fusion Deputy Secretary of State, and member of Governor Smith's staff, was arraigned before Justice True the day previous, charged with the larceny of legislative returns from E. C. Moody, January 29, 1880. The complaint also contained a count for inciting unknown persons to commit said crime. Several witnesses testified for the Government, when counsel for the defendant claimed that no proof had been presented as to his guilt, and asked for defendant's discharge, stating that he should offer no evidence in defense. The Judge, however, ordered defendant to give bail in $500, to appear at the April term of the Superior Court. The country has had quite a sufficiency of that Maine business; better let the "dead past bury its dead," turn Mr. Benson loose with an admonition, and say no more about it.

THE present share capital of the Central Pacific Railroad Company is $62,608,800, of which $8,333,300 is held in trust for the company. The number of miles operated is 2,178, of which 1,124 consists of main line. The gross earning of the company last year was $17,128,292, which leaves a net of about $8,750,000. As much as ten per cent per annum has been divided among the shareholders, although the present rate of dividend is six per cent. per annum.

WILL PROGRESS.

Times in this valley at the present time are not particularly flourishing, nor have they been for three or four years past; in fact, they have in some respects for about that length of time perceptibly grown rather worse instead of better one year after another—that is, taking the county as a whole. Each of these years gave to the sanguine a pretty fair promise that the next would bring something of a "boom" in mining matters, consequently in every other branch of local industry. No such boom has yet been witnessed; it is a question if it ever will in the impulsive sense indicated by the word "boom." It is no proof of itself that hard times must bring good times, but enough has been made manifest by these seasons of comparatively hard times to justify a solid hope of a degree of permanent prosperity for this region equal if not far superior to that deemed assured for the most favored portions of this grand State. Our hard times have come of the temporary failures of a few leading mining enterprises, upon the success of which, it was previously thought, depended the success of the whole region. But, though the "region," as exemplified in the affairs of individuals, has languished a little, it has not faded materially nor never will. As a mass, our people, though disappointed a little in some of their bye-gone exalted anticipations, have all made some progress toward if not in real prosperity, and in this way if no other it begins to be made plain that the fortunes of this country does not depend upon the success or the failure of any one or any half-dozen mining enterprises or localities. We have had such to grow to sight and hope as did Jonah's gourd, and to vanish even more quickly; and then we began to realize that such events did not unhinge society half so much as was feared. And it is the realization of this fact that has induced a feeling of confidence in the future of the country, through the influence of which a degree of "settledness" has been produced which of itself is the harbinger of prosperity for its people.

The course of this country will ever be onward and upward; it will never retrograde, never be less than it is now. As an agricultural region, it possesses every element for many as well appointed homes as can be found anywhere—productive lands, water of the purest and best, healthful to a most remarkable degree, a climate without a superior, in short, a combination of natural advantages right to hand that becomes astonishing when fairly estimated and compared. To give tangible value to these comes the surrounding illimitable mineral resources: it will take the labors of legions of men for generations to come to so far develop these resources as to begin to even approximate their extent. It is doing reasonable possibilities no violence to say that the time is not many generations distant when a number of people equal to the present entire mining population of Great Britain will find employment directly and indirectly in extracting the mineral wealth of the mountains encompassing Owens River Valley—an area, by the way, about as large as the whole of England proper. The work of finding out the unknown in these mountains will go on with more or less vigor, but never ceasing, till the end of time. So far as affected by mining operations in general in this region, no man in this valley will ever see a time when he cannot safely go ahead and do all in his power to build up for himself his ideal home, also the valley in the way of public improvements, as a place for permanent homes.

THE probabilities are that the Post-office will not interfere with the independent mail carrying system of Wells, Fargo & Co. This express mail service has for many years been a great convenience and all true Californians desire to see it continued.

THE wife of Congressman Berry died at his home in Sutter county, on the 12th instant.

ABOUT AN IRRIGATING CANAL.

We mentioned a couple of weeks ago that County Surveyor Seeley had compiled a very complete map of the valley for the use of Representative Wasson in the Legislature, and duly forwarded it as per request. What figure this map is to cut in shaping legislation remains to be seen; but as the information particularly sought for related to a large irrigating canal, and the number of acres of tillable land which such a canal and the river respectively were capable of irrigating, it is probable it is to be used as an aid to a solution of the knotty questions pending relating to a general irrigation law and riparian rights; but it doesn't matter just now about that.

The estimates furnished by Mr. Seeley will be of value to many of our own citizens. There are about 100,000 acres of land in the valley which can be irrigated by water taken out of Owens river; about half of this amount will produce fair crops of any kind of grain; about one-fifth, perhaps, of the whole amount is of the kind known as "black sage-brush lands"—a rich, sandy alluvial soil, rating as about the best in the valley. But there is no portion of this large acreage but will, with plenty of water, produce excellent crops of alfalfa and other hardy grasses. A canal tapping the river at a point about fifteen miles north of this place, and extending two or three miles below Lone Pine, giving a total length of thirty-five miles or thereabouts, would cover between forty and fifty thousand acres of the lands above described. But comparatively a small portion of these lands are in actual cultivation, but about 12,000 acres are under claim.

A canal 25 feet wide at the bottom, three feet deep and with a grade ten to twelve inches to the mile, would carry 20,000 inches of water approximately. This would take nearly one-half of all the water in the river at ordinary stages. But as the river is bank full during a great part of the irrigating season, that amount of water would hardly be missed from its volume at such times. Such a canal would cost about $1,000 per mile, and would, properly managed, irrigate all the lands lying below its grade—perhaps not all at the same time, but as much of it as occasion would require where alfalfa became the principal product, needing water less and less frequently each succeeding year.

These estimates are submitted only as approximates, since, in practical application some entirely new conditions are to be met, while others, such as the actual desirable acreage, amount of water in the river, etc., cannot be determined with exactness except by surveys for those purposes.

It is a settled conviction with those who have carefully figured on this enterprise that it would prove a firstrate investment for the capital, while it is obvious to any one that such a canal would have a marked and most desirable influence on the appearance as well as the financial and populative conditions of the valley. As it would make green and refreshing to the eye a vast waste, now arid and repulsive—as its banks could be tree-lined from end to end—it is not too much to expect it in due time to modify to some extent the heat of our summer days. It would to a certainty make this valley a valuable stock producing country, to which it would then be largely devoted and particularly well adapted, as well as to general farming.

TILDEN is causing John Kelly and his band much distress. According to late telegraphic reports the way the old gentleman has "fixed" the list of States is very formidable. He is credited with bagging the delegations from New York, all the New England States with the exception of Massachusetts, eight Western States besides California, and four Southern States. His scheme is reported to be to get a small majority of instructed delegates, and should the customary rule of Democratic Conventions to give the nomination to the majority candidate be disregarded in favor of the old two-thirds rule, then the Tilden cohorts will "sit on" this rule and abolish it altogether.

IT is rumored that the consolidation of the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific and Denver Pacific Railroads is accomplished. The company will be known as the Union Pacific Railroad Company. The plan of the consolidation is an exchange of stock of the three roads for that of the new company, dollar for dollar, par value. The different bonds remain as now. The liens upon the several divisions are as originally placed.

GEN. FRISBIE, in a recent interview with a New York newspaper reporter, said: "Nearly the entire Republic of Mexico is argentiferous, and in several of the States there are rich deposits of gold. In the States of Queretaro, Puebla, Mexico, Sonora and Michorean are gold mines of great wealth, surpassing in the extent and richness of their ores any known in the United States."

MINING VS. GOUGING.

[COMMUNICATED.]

INDEDENDENCE, Feb. 18.

Without doubt there is as good field for legitimate mining in Inyo county as in any locality on the Pacific coast, and at the same time no mines have been more unmercifully gouged. From the time the first pick was struck in our mines a system of the most ruthless gouging has been kept up. Until this thing is discontinued the business will not and cannot be legitimate, either here or in any other camp or country. This is a broad open statement, and is in no way intended to impeach the worth, ability and good intentions of many able superintendents who have had charge of our many mining enterprises. Like all camps, we have had good, bad, medium, and all kinds, and all receive blame or praise without regard to good intention, ability or any other quality or attributes which they may possess. Hence the common expression, "a man unfit for any other business makes a good mining superintendent." This is a subject that should receive the careful consideration of mining companies and all interested in mines. It may be said it is nothing to the citizen how mining companies manage their business. In one sense it is not; neither is it in any sense directly; but indirectly it is of vital importance to all, individually and collectively—from the rancher who has produce to sell, the teamster who depends on the mines and reduction works for employment; the merchant who furnishes various supplies; the banker, and even the printer comes in for a share. Although all of these may not own a share of stock yet all are anxious for the success of all mining interests, and have a right to criticize the management, or rather it may be said the mismanagement, negligence and "don't-care-a-tiveness" of parties representing or misrepresenting the mining interests. This may seem to be harsh language, but it is to the point, and it is high time that all of our people, high and low, great and small, should wake up and protest in thunder tones against this reckless proceeding. This is not intended to convey the idea that the citizens of Inyo county should rise in mob and eject any incompetent officer of a mining company beyond the county limits, or dictate to them what should be and what should not be done; yet by a hearty co-operation things might be very much improved, to say the least.

After saying this much, it is well to explain how this infamous gouging is carried on, in a way that our people unacquainted with mines and mining may understand why our mines and reduction works are silent, having more the appearance of an ancient tomb than live modern bullion producers, making a lively market for "spuds" and whisky. Look at the county as it was four years ago, and as it is now; then the miners all had money, were well clothed and fed, and the "poker sharps" and "flats" were happy; now they are all together, great and small, rich and poor—if there be any rich—and have more the appearance of a flock of Shanghai chickens after a hard rain storm (and the sky looking favorable for more rain), than thrifty, intelligent human beings; and every man is downcast and feels that he is merely working out a miserable existence.

The "World's Wonder Company," having an office in Nevada block (of course Nevada block; telephone and all modern conveniences, of course! Oh yes!) have mines in our camp which they have acquired by purchase or location. They have a capital of $10,000,000. The prospector of whom they bought the mines has, the chances are, taken a large amount of stock in payment and is happy. You know how it is yourself. The story is long; but in short an assessessment of $1 dollar knocks Mr. Prospector's stock sky-high. "Very sorry, very sorry, Mr. P., but this is the way we have to do business; hope you may have better success in future, Mr. P. Call and see us when you have anything good on hand; we will always be pleased to assist you Mr P. Good morning."

Mr. P. now goes in the hills and finds another mine; he is poor in purse but rich in experience, if not in good sense, and says to Mr. Capitalist: "If you want the Skimerhorn mine, you can have it for $1,000,000. Take it or leave it. Cash up; no stock, no checks; U. S. gold coin; nothing else. I sold you a mine for stock, and you don't get any more of it into me." So here we have gouge vs. gouge. The result then is, that Mr. P. loses the sale of his mine. Mr. C. loses a good speculation and a good mining property, and every man woman and child loses the benefits that would have resulted to the camp had the sale been effected. This was not intended to have been introduced in this place, but as it is written, and will pass for a first-class gouge which is being perpetrated in this camp to-day, let it stand. The Skimerhorn mine is a prospect only, and as Mr. P. is disgusted with capitalists, and they with him, and as the capitalists have invested their cash in Arizona mines, it will so remain for some time; so will Mr. P. be looking for a bill of grub wherever he can find credit until something turns up; so will he be cursing capitalists until he makes a lucky turn of the above mine and is a capitalist himself, when others will be cursing him. But what will he care for talk. "Shoo Fly!"

Let us see what the "W. W. M. & M. Co." are doing. At No.—, Nevada Block, take the elevator. Mr. A. is President; Mr. B., Secretary; Mr. C., Superintendent, etc. Mr. C., a careful man, comes up and takes charge of the mine and property—makes a careful survey, and estimates the the expenses of opening the mine so that ore can be taken out to the best possible advantage. He puts the mine in order, takes out ore, reduces it, and ships the bullion to Nevada Block. The Secretary writes the Superintendent "to reduce expenses and send us down bullion; we want bullion." And the cry is, Bullion! bullion! bullion! Down with expenses and send those beautiful bars which sell for gold coin and maketh our hearts to rejoice and our bank account to increase many fold. "Mr. C. we appreciate the efforts you are making to bring out and make this a paying business. But dear Mr. C. you must do no more dead work; run no more tunnels or drifts; take the ore; we can't stand so much expense."

Now Mr. C. has no other way to do than to gouge the mine, and in a very short time there is no more available ore in sight. He has no ground opened and must stop and open it before he can again ship bullion and make dividends. Supt. C. has been urging the necessity all the while of prospecting the mine and has always been met with. "Oh, never mind; there is time enough for that; we will stand an assessment after awhile; that's all right; send us bullion." Directly the bullion producer stops. In the meantime Messrs. A., B., D. and others have sold stock to a large amount, and as is often the case with men of means who are unacquainted with mining, Messrs. E., F. and G. are disappointed when the dividends are no longer forthcoming. The Secretary tells the Superintendent this thing won't do; he must send bullion or the "W. W. M. & M. Co." must send some one who can. The Superintendent explains and protests, but is met with, "This is our way of doing business; E., F. and G. won't stand it."

E., F. and G. have some friend who knows as little about mining as they, and they force him on the company as a superintendent—fine fellow, good looking, wears good clothes, and is a good business man; has considerable good sense; employs good miners who work for a good display of mining ability regardless of expense, while he manages outside matters recklessly, as any man unacquainted with the business would, on the same principle that a city man running a ranch would raise cucumbers or peach trees. The consequence is, that after a long time and at great expense (all the time submitting to an unlimited amount of growling, caused by the heavy assessments being levied), just as he has the mine in fair working order, he is removed and another man made Superintendent of the company. He takes out ore for a time, and the bullion is going to Nevada Block and up the elevator. "Splendid fellow! It is too bad Mr. W. is so irregular in his habits."

In a few months, Mr. A., President, says to Mr. B., Secretary: "I think, Mr. B., we made a great mistake in giving up Mr. C.; a great mistake."

Now, if the property of the "W. W. M. & M. Co." had been managed with the ability with which Mr. C. displayed when he first took hold of it, instead of a mass of rusty machinery and a camp appearing like an English country town after the funeral of the oldest inhabitant, all would be life, energy and enterprise, and the bank account of stockholders would be in a more healthy condition. Even the printer would have made on the subscription list more than he has by publishing delinquent stock lists and notices of sale.

LATE advices from Mexico state that the insurrection in Lower California has been about subdued by the Mexican regulars. On the 27th of January information was received at Mazatlan from La Paz that Marquez had left for the frontier and that but twenty-five of his troops remained in the city. On the 29th the Mexican fleet, consisting of one gunboat, two steam tugs and four sailing vessels, with six hundred men, left Mazatlan to recapture La Paz. Two of the sailing vessels and also the steam tugs were driven back to port the next day by a severe northwest gale. An English man-of-war arrived at Mazatlan on the 22d, and after coaling proceeded to La Paz, where she had been ordered to protect the interests of English residents. The sedition at Mazatlan has been suppressed.

ABOUT midnight, on the 19th of last month, it will be remembered, a poor, old, consumptive Mexican, named Florentine Herriera, was set upon by a couple of murderous garroters, choked, knocked down, kicked and otherwise brutally beaten in Bodie. From the Bodie Standard of the 16th instant, which contains a detailed account of the whole affair, we ascertain that the old man died, after unceasing suffering, on Sunday morning last. The object of the dastardly deed was robbery. The two villians who committed this atrocious crime are named Dave Brannon and James Flannery, the latter, according to the old Mexican's dying deposition, inflicting the injuries which produced his death.

IN Chicago there is much excitement because it is proposed to have a rule that female teachers in the public schools shall vacate their places if married, or if they hereafter marry. It is claimed by the Chicagoans that it costs enough to pay the teachers the salaries they need when single, and to support them and husbands would bankrupt the city. The young men who wish to marry for a home must look elsewhere than among the schoolmarms.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 21.....1880

TOO LATE.—Some four weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dickinson, of Bishop Creek, passed here on a visit to Mrs. Dickinson's father, Mr. S. M. Farmer, residing in Amador county, the special object being to get to see him before he died, as he was reported as being hopelessly sick. The journey was made as rapidly as possible, but to no purpose in the above regard, as the old gentleman had passed away two or three days before they got there. Yesterday they passed here on their return home. Mr. D. and his brother are the owners of the Round Valley-Lake District Toll Road, which from this on will demand their constant attention.

MINING SALES.—A great deal of mining property, much of which is comparatively undeveloped, is at present changing hands in and around Cerro Gordo. Many of the transfers are upon the purchase of Capt. Keeler and Geo. T. Hawley, or sales leading up to their ownership. Boston capital is supposed to be at the bottom. This activity is a most gratifying fact, and presages the entire resurrection of the noble old district—one that has received a more solid and universal indorsement from mining men than any other on the coast. We shall next week give a brief transcript of the deeds recorded.

OLD COSO.—Sheriff Jas. Smith returned yesterday from an official visit to Coso, the oldest gold mining district in Inyo and one of the very best. His business there was to serve an injunction against a number of Mexicans, who had located and were working the old Mariposa mine, which, as alleged by himself as plaintiff, belongs to P. Reddy, Esq. There is likely to be a legal contest over the question. Juan Mesa and partner, who are refitting the old Dr. Carson mill at that place, state that there is an abundance of ore in the district to keep it running without the product of the mine in litigation.

RETURNED.—H. A. Eudey, Esq., a thorough metallurgist and a brother of Capt. Eudey of the Brown Monster, has returned to this section with a view of locating, after an extended experience in the Arizona country and elsewhere. Mr. U. B. McSweeny, an old-time Inyo prospector of '62, is back to his old love again and is operating upon some rich properties in the White Mountains. Both of these gentleman say in substance that the Inyo or White Mountain range, in a mineral point of view, is far ahead of anything seen in their travels amongst the various mining regions.

A CLOSE CALL.—Yesterday morning Hubert Gelatt experienced a narrow escape from serious injury, or possibly worse, by being thrown from his sulky against one of the awning posts of the old Inyo House. He was driving a spirited trotter and leading another animal, when near the point mentioned a villainous dog sprang out and frightened the horse being led, causing him to shy so as to throw the sulky over. The horses and gohicle went on, leaving Hubert lying there, but so mad that he wouldn't notice his bruises.

HORSE DROWNED.—Day before yesterday, while "Frenchy," who for some time past has been driving the team owned by T. F. A. Connelly, was crossing the river, an accident happened by which one of the animals was drowned. It appears the horse stumbled and fell, and, getting himself tangled up in some manner in the harness before the teamster could extricate or render him assistance, was a dead equine. We understand he was a very valuable animal.

PERSONAL.—Mr. J. S. Rothschild, one of our principal merchants, and Geo. T. Hawley, Esq., of the old San Francisco house of Marcus C. Hawley & Co., arrived in town a day or two since....Geo. M. Gill, Esq., of Mammoth, is here and reports many interesting items concerning people and things in that country, which will be referred to next week.

BAD.—The weather has been windy, cold and generally mean to an unusual degree for a number of days past. But as there is no telegraph line to connect us with the U. S. Weather Bureau, Old Probs don't consider us under his jurisdiction, nor won't take any responsibility concerning our weather; so there's nobody to blame.

EXHIBITION.—The Dramatic exhibition at Lone Pine on the evening of Monday next by the Lone Pine Dramatic Society, promises to prove a social event of universal interest. After the two days of sport at the race track, all hands should attend the show and the ball.

IMPORTANT, IF TRUE.—We have a letter stating that the Union Con. mines, hoisting works and furnaces have been sold to a New York company for the sum of $380,000. This is a very important fact, if true, but so far the statement lacks entire confirmation.

ADMITTED TO PRACTICE.—At a session of the Superior Court, held today, upon a report by a committee of examining attorneys consisting of Messrs. Conklin, Moffat and Snelling, Geo. M. Gill was admitted to practice in the Superior Court.

OFF FOR THE RACES.—Pretty much all the conveyances in town are under engagement for a trip to Lone Pine today or to-morrow. The principal attraction seems to be the foot race, which is exciting much interest.

YGNACIO.—W. A. Greenly has sold to J. S. Rothschild his interests in the Ygnacio, Greenly and San Francisco mines, Cerro Gordo. This leaves the entire ownership between Mr. Rothschild and Capt. J. M. Keeler.

VARIOUS.—As our weekly chronicle of local affairs would be incomplete without a weather item, we would inform the outside world that the article for the present week has been decidedly various, mainly characterized by heavy snowfalls in the mountains and pretty strong winds. While the Sierras proper are obscured in white snow clouds it is a curious optical illusion that the foothills, being nearer, appear almost as high and imposing as the main range. When, also, the fog settles down upon both mountain ranges and to an even hight over the valley, the root-hills seem far more distant than usual, while the perspective is greatly changed and magnified.

THANKS.—Coroner Lank requests us to say that he is thankful to know that Nancy Williams' grave can be definitely located, as there is now on the way, or ordered in San Francisco, neat grave stones and fence, which he proposes to erect at her grave at the earliest convenient moment, and that the same is also true in these particulars regarding the graves of other deceased persons for which he as an officer is responsible.

FOR SALE.—A fine store building is offered for sale in the thriving town of Bishop. See advertisement.

MEETING NIGHT.—There will be a stated meeting of the Masonic Lodge at the hall to-night.

THEY will not want for excitement in Bodie during the next thirty days. Robert J. Smith and J. J. Gunn got into a discussion the other day as to how high a throw a man might make with three dice (three throws each) in a given length of time, when Smith offered to wager Gunn $150 that he (Gunn) could not beat 46 with a month's throwing. The Bodie Standard says that the bet was taken at once, articles of agreement being drawn up, and Gunn commenced throwing last Monday afternoon. It is stipulated that Gunn may throw one hundred and sixty-eight hours (the full number of hours in a week, counting twenty-four hours to the day), divided into six hours per day, provided he shall not be more than one calendar month at it, and he is to complete his three throws each time—that is, if he should throw only three, he cannot abandon that throw as hopeless and begin on the next, but must throw the other two throws to it, thus completing the three, whatever the result may be. The leading sports in Bodie are excited over the wager, and are engaged in figuring on the percentage; but they are divided on the question of the probabilities, and the chances are that, should Gunn not make a scratch and beat 46 within the next few days of the throwing, thousands of dollars will change hands on the final result.—Bentonian.

The J. J. Gunn referred to in the above is "Jack" Gunn, of Lookout, and an old resident of this county. He is a regular son of—the old man Gunn, and, according to the Bodie Standard at hand, succeeded in "chucking" 46 after throwing an hour and a half, thereby winning Mr. Smith's coin.

LELAND STANFORD received a telegram on the 12th instant from New York, which was sent by Dion Boucicault, who is interesting himself in the matter of raising subscriptions for the sufferers in Ireland, and replied as follows: "For the suffering poor of Ireland I have the sympathy of common humanity, but there is an ample field nearer home for all that I have to give."

ON the 12th instant, at Holister, S. H. Brummett, editor of the Enterprise, and G. W. Carlton, editor of the Telegraph, had a shooting affray, which resulted in the death of Brummett. The parties to the affair had had a newspaper quarrel, and finding that words were not forcible enough, resorted to lead, with the above result.

GOV. PERKINS, on the 13th instant, signed the bill passed by the Legislature to enforce that section of the Constitution which prohibits the employment of Chinese by corporations, and the Sand Lotters stood up and cheered Gov. Perkins till the last throat was hoarse.

J. C. DUNCAN, the pious bank-smasher, who has been in jail in San Francisco for two years past fighting to stave off his trial and the States Prison, has taken to writing poetry. Speculation in mining stocks brought Duncan to jail and made him a poet. Joaquin Miller is now speculating in stocks on Wall street. Duncan has begun where Miller will probably end.—Virginia Chronicle.

How it is Done.

The Transcript a few days ago mentioned the fact that J. A. Johnson, who was then visiting in this city, had purchased the Julian quartz mine in Placer county, for the sum of $200,000. The following advertisement, which is now being published in the Evening Mail of New York city, shows how Eastern capitalists sometimes do business:

"The Julian Gold Mining Company; location, Placer county, Cal. Capital, $1,000,000; 100,000 shares. Par value, $10. Stock non-assessable. Subscription price, $3 50 per share; reserving the right to increase the price to $5 per share after January 1, 1880. J. Augustus Johnson, President; C. Kennedy Hamilton, Jr., Treasurer; T. R. White, Jr., Secretary. Board of Trustees—William Bayard Cutting, C. T. Christensen, Isaac Merrill, Robert F. Cutting, E. C. Machen, Samuel L. Parrish and J. Augustus Johnson. The mine has been very favorably reported on by Prof. B. H. Stretch, Dr. Henry Degrott, and Isaac M. Taylor, the well known experts of San Francisco. It is now in successful operation, and with the improvements now making, there is every reason to believe that it will pay no less than $200,000, or about 60 per cent. on the investment. The ore in sight is estimated at $1,100,000 in value, or three times the cost of the mine. For detailed maps, full reports, and other particulars, apply to

SAND, HAMILTON & CO.,
Bankers and Brokers, No. 2 Nassau street."

We have long heard that the Julian was a pretty good mine, but it rather gets us to find out how over one million dollars' worth of ore ever got "in sight" there. Perhaps it was carted over from some of the Nevada county bonanzas and dumped in.—Nevada City Transcript.

More than likely that one million one hundred thousand dollars' worth of ore in sight came from this county. The J. Aug. Johnson, aforesaid once "experted" some mines here, and probably carried off the amount in his vest pocket.

THE Mammoth City Dramatic Club made their debut at Magnolia Hall on last Saturday evening, the occasion being the benefit to Wm. Haines, the frozen mail carrier who recently had his hands and feet amputated by Dr. Ragan. The plays chosen were "Miralda," or "The Justice of Tacon," and "The Rough Diamond." Mrs. Annie M. Gill sustained the difficult rolé of "Miralda" to perfection, being ably supported by Mrs. Louie Ball as "Cecil," and Mrs. Clara E. Bunker as "Louisa." The male characters were admirably rendered by Geo. M. Gill as "Seth Swap," A. M. Stewart as "Count Almonte," Chas. Hilton as the "Justice," Ben. M. Maddox as "Pedro" and the "Disguised Priest," Chas. Ball as the "Jailer," Walter Bowen as the "Secretary," and Dave Block in dual character of "Juan" and "Perez." In "The Rough Diamond" Mrs. Ball appeared as "Margery," making a decided hit, and Geo. M. Gill made a roaring "Cousin Joe," the other members of the club rendering the minor characters quite creditably. Where all did so well comparison would be invidious. The club had but five days in which to make preparation, and the members did themselves great credit The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, and all were most agreeably surprised at the proficiency of the amateurs and the degree of dramatic talent displayed. A very pleasing feature of the entertainment was the singing of Mrs. Ball and Mr. D. Block. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Hugh Glenn, would have been a credit to a more pretentious company. The general expression of our citizens is "well done," and it is to be hoped this will not be the last time the Mammoth City Dramatic Club will favor them with an opportunity of spending so pleasant an evening. Financially the affair was a success.—Mammoth Herald, Feb. 11.

THE letters written to the Appeal by John T. Pantlind have given rise to considerable discussion in Carson. People seem to judge them from different standpoints, and express themselves very freely on the subject. The following is a sample of what all sorts of people think:

"Do let up on those 'tart' letters of Pant's. They get sicker every time."

"That last one of Pant's was a rib tickler; never laughed so much in my life. His letters are the best thing in the paper."

The letters have been quite extensively copied in Nevada and California papers, and his description of Bodie was copied into the New York Sun. The Chronicle of last evening says:

"John T. Pantlind, ex-host of the Ormsby House in Carson, proved himself the best hotel keeper that we ever had in Nevada. Now he is developing into a first-class newspaper correspondent. He has been writing a series of letters for the Carson Appeal, and in point of sprightliness, racy humor, and adhesion to fact, they discount the best efforts of Eli Perkins."

For the benefit of the public it is here announced that Pant's last letter will appear on Sunday next. After this he will leave for Arizona, to write a few descriptions of the country, which will delight his friends, and probably get scalped by the Apaches, which will please his enemies.—Carson Appeal.

In this country Pant's letters are considered a very, very sickly imitation of some of Mark Twain's sickest, and as false as they were silly. We could have withstood his infliction except for his two revolvers and a knife in each boot, paraded as if in protection of his flaming diamond pin. The very sagebrush hereabouts wilted when he hove in sight.

THE report of the Finance Committee of the Mammoth City Dramatic Club in the matter of the Haines benefit, shows that $141 40 was netted, which was handed over to the wife of the unfortunate mail carrier.

WE WILL MISS YOU WHEN YOU'RE GONE.

IN ANSWER TO "SOLITARIUS."

We have not known you long, dear friend,
And yet 'tis hard to say
The last farewell, and let you go;
We would rather bid you stay—
For we'll miss your voice at evening
And your happy smile at dawn,
And at every social gathering
We will miss you when you're gone.

When we gather 'round the fireside
That your presence used to grace,
We will miss the smile of friendship,
We will miss thy loving face.
When the young are gaily singing,
As the evening hours speed on,
It is then that we shall miss you—
Miss you most when you are gone.

The joyous Spring is coming,
With her birds and flowers gay,
But they only will remind us
Of the dear friend far away;
For tho' the flowers may blossom
And happy birds sing on,
The fairest flower is friendship—
And we'll miss you when you're gone.

This life is like the ocean's tide,
With its ceaseless ebb and flow,
And we are but the tiny shells
That the waves cast to and fro.
While the tide of life has left you
For a time our shore upon,
And when it bears you out again,
We will miss you when you're gone.

When at our social gatherings
We meet the young and gay,
We will offer up a silent prayer
For the dear friend far away.
May your life be ever happy
And prosperous from this on;
And may you kindly think of us
As true friends when you're gone.

OWENS RIVER WAR.

The Cement Hunters—A Historical Sketch Strange as Fiction.

[WRITTEN FOR THE S. F. "POST" BY J. W. A. WRIGHT.]

CHAPTER VI.

Early in 1861—the very year in the Summer of which Dr. Randall made his first search for the "Cement mine," and located "Gid Whiteman's Camp," and late in the Fall of which the Owens river war began—a stranger came to the town of Mono. His subsequent movements, together with the mysterious and horrible death of another stranger who prospected with him, have ever since been associated by many with the hunt for this same gold bearing red cement. Bodie papers have recently announced the finding of the head of Hume, a murdered man in a well petrified condition. This head, now unearthed by mining processes, eighteen years after death, belonged to a man who lost his life as above alluded to. It has a remarkable history, the main facts of which we will here give, as received from good authority in Mono county last Summer.

The newcomer to Mono in the Spring of 1861 gave his name as Farnsworth. He offered to furnish an outfit and give a share in a rich claim he professed to have found. It is believed he succeeded in getting a man to go with him. Some say they were seen going out of the town together, having a small outfit on a horse, both walking. What became of the second man none know.

FARNSWORTH'S RICH CLAIM AND HUME'S MURDER.

Farnsworth came back alone, and tried to pursuade parties to go with him to a rich carting claim somewhere on Owens river, generally stating that it was about a day's travel from Mono. No one then made any arrangements with him, as all were busy. He disappeared and afterwards came again with a man said to have come from San Francisco, a drayman, whose name was Hume. The latter had a dray and a large horse. They spent some days making preparations for prospecting. By this time the Indian troubles were brewing. They got a small outfit and went—no one knew or cared where. Shortly after Farnsworth came back without his hat, and on the horse. He told how they had been attacked by Indians, and the other man was killed. He had a bullet hole through his boot-top and holes in his clothes that were apparently cut with a pocket-knife. He then related all the incidents of an attack near the head of Owens river. As he did not tell a very straight story when cross-questioned, the people began to suspect him. The crowds commenced talking about the other man, wondering what had become of him. Like most mining camps in early days, Mono had no officers of the law, but the miners, being a law to themselves, in their usual way appointed men to take Farnsworth in charge till they could make search for his missing companion. A searching party of thirty men went out with Indians for guides to track him. They easily traced him to the north branch of Owens river, now called Deadman's Creek, formerly Hume's Crossing, or Murderer's Creek. There the Indians found blood, hair, and ax marks on a log. No Indian tracks appeared anywhere around. Farnsworth's tracks were traced up and down the creek to where a man's head was found in the water covered with rocks. Near by they found the body covered in the same manner. So soon as the head was found a man was sent back to Mono to have Farnsworth's guard increased until they could return. They buried the body at the root of a pine tree, and carried the head up to Mono the next day. This head was preserved in whisky, and afterward identified by Hume's sister, who came up from San Francisco for that purpose.

Unfortunately for the ends of justice, Farnsworth escaped that night, while the guard had become drowsy and relaxed their watchfulness. He was traced as far as Honey Lake, in what is called Lassen county, but was not caught, nor have any of the Monoites ever seen or heard of him since. Then the question was asked, "What could have been the cause of this bloody deed?" Some surmised that Farnsworth may have tolled Hume out to murder him for his money. But the latter is believed to have had very little with him. Hence it is generally considered more reasonable to conclude that Hume was murdered to prevent his revealing the location of the rich claim, which is thought by many to be identical with the wonderful cement mine which Dr. Randall was looking for.

UNTUTORED INDIAN TASTE VS. THE VITIATED ONE OF THE WHITE MAN.

One more incident we must record about this foul deed, not to horrify our readers, but to adhere to facts. You have already been told how the Indians feast on slimy maggots and hairy catapillars—ideas well calculated to turn a civilized stomach. We can well imagine that some of our fair readers of such facts have said with a shudder "Ugh! it makes me sick. I don't like to think of such things. Those hideous Indians!" Yet it is simply true, as is also what we shall now tell. We forewarn those who do not wish to read what is coming to "skip it."

You have been informed that Hume's head was preserved in whisky for a time for identification. It was placed in a keg and well covered with this popular antiseptic fluid. An old toper, far gone in the lower stages of intemperance, where craving thirst for the stimulus of alcohol reigns supreme, regardless of taste, found out the liquor was there—going to waste as he thought. So he secretly drank nearly all the whisky from the keg before he was detected and stopped. Just think of it! Was this not cannibalism? Which is most to be condemned—which most shocks us: the rude, uncultivated taste of the untutored savage, or the depraved thirst of the degenerate, though once civilized white man? Were any of us so placed as to be forced to try either the one or the other, which would we choose: this white man's dram or the Indian's worm or caterpillar feast? Why, we would try the Indian diet, of course, even if we took an emetic immediately afterwards—that is, should we need one. The keg was finally buried near Mono, with the head in it. Afterwards it was hydraulicked out and reburied in what was supposed to be a safe, last resting place. But here it comes to light again in 1879! For it is certainly this head that has recently been mined out, now well preserved by petrefaction. Reader, pardon the question: when will this exhuming process end?

OTHER LIVES LOST IN THE SEARCH.

Sometime in the Fall of 1862 a teamster was driving near Mono Lake, on his way to Aurora. At considerable distance from him he saw an odd looking object moving along the shore, close to the water's edge. He could not tell at first whether it was a man or beast, as it was on all fours and moving slowly. It was coming towards him, and he drove out of his way to meet it. It proved to be a man—the only one left from a party of three prospectors that had been attacked by the Indians while camped on a bank of the creek above the falls to the northwest of where Mammoth City now stands. The remaining two, he was sure, were killed. He was wounded, but jumped into the creek, and was carried over the falls. Though very badly injured, both by the bullet and by the rocks in his descent, he managed to hide by holding on till dark to some bushes on the edge of a small lake where he found himself. It was this, or instant death, if he showed himself. At last, nearly frozen, he managed to climb out, and, with the greatest difficulty and pain, made his way, chiefly by crawling, to the point where he was found, some thirty-five miles from the place of attack. He was taken to Aurora, recovered, and was afterwards a butcher there. He and his comrades were hunting for the cement when attacked. This trip satisfied him, and he never searched for it again. Indeed, this and similar events greatly checked the search, until the close of the Owens river war. No prospectors then, or for some years afterwards, ever hunted this cement that one or more Indians were not found dogging their steps, sometimes seeming almost to rise out of the ground.

MANY A SECRET EXPEDITION

For this purpose has been made, of which no record has been kept. It is well known that different parties who hunted this cement never returned; that men lost their partners as mysteriously as Bodey disappeared, whose name, with a slight change, is preserved in the fine mining town of Bodie to-day, and whose body has lately been discovered and decently buried there. But those of the cement hunters that suddenly disappeared were usually supposed to have been murdered by the hostile Indians. As already mentioned, seven men are known to have been killed in this connection, and there were, no doubt others. Still this persevering search was never entirely abandoned, even while the war was raging and surrounded the work with so many dangers.

Certain it is, that the Indians drove out nearly every party so long as Joaquin Jim lived. He made his headquarters in Long Valley and vicinity. Since 1867, there has been comparative safety from Indians, though they are still saucy, boasting even now that they whipped the white men in their war. According to all reports, since gathered, some of them have long known and valued this ledge of free gold which the white men have so long and industriously sought. Those of them who have ever alluded to it, represent it as near a lake. Many a time since the war prospecting parties have tried, by all sorts of inducements, to get them to show such gold bearing ledge. But the only means by which they have generally been induced to serve as guides has been by talking to them of silver, which they call monie. Gold they call pijyah monie. These Indians have a belief that gold is what brought white men here, and when the gold of our mountains is exhausted, white men will leave. A proposition correct in the main, but admit it to the fullest extent, and there is no doubt gold enough in our mountains yet to keep white men searching it for thousands of years to come. But the red man, as he is gradually passing away, cannot see this. Hence his unwillingness to help us find gold.

Another trouble with the Indians is, they never read Virgil—not even in a translation. Consequently, they don't know anything about that remarkable exclamation, so wonderfully suggestive and full of truth: "Auri sera fames, quid non mortalia pectora coges;" or in plain English: "Accursed thirst for gold, what will you not force mortals to do!" That these Indians do or did formerly know where some valuable gold mine is, the following well authenticated fact proves:

A cattle dealer by the name of Jones, from Santa Barbara, once came to the ranch of Mr. Wilson, the pioneer settler of Owens valley. In conversation he asked him where the Long Valley Indians got their gold. He showed him about $300 in grain gold from the size of wheat to a good sized bean, which these Indians had paid him. But we are somewhat anticipating, and will now relate the circumstances of one of the best sustained searches for this wonderful cement mine, after peace was made with the Indians.

KIRKPATRICK'S EXPEDITIONS.

In 1862, after Mr. Wilson's home, already described, had been abandoned by him, and turned by the soldiers into Camp Independence, and the war was at its height, he had moved to a more quiet region and located a ranch near the town of Mono. His house being on a much traveled road, half a mile from town, became a general stopping place for prospectors. From them he heard all the talk about cement hunting. He paid little attention to the affair, however, believing it was like many other stories, all "Breyfogle," as the miners say, from a German of that name, who became as notorious for the absence of truth in his mining tales as Baron Munchausen was among travelers. But the following occurrences entirely changed his view of the matter.

In 1865, a well equipped company that had sold out a fine mine in Idaho called the Poorman ledge, came to his place from Sonora, Tuolumne county, to make a thorough search for this now noted Cement ledge.

Geo. S. Kirkpatrick had charge of this expedition, and "Si" Colt, nephew of Col. Samuel Colt, of pistol celebrity, was with him. They wanted a guide. About the following colloquy occurred between Kirkpatrick and Wilson:

K.—You have had some fine diggings here, haven't you? W.—Yes; but most of them are worked out.

K.—Didn't you have considerable excitement about a rich cement ore some time ago? W.—Yes.

K.—Do you know where it was said to be? W.—Yes. On the headwaters of Owens river.

K.—Do you know a man named Van Horn? W.—I did.

K.—Do you know where Gid Whiteman's camp is? W.—Yes; very well.

K.—Will you go and show us the place? It is all we want to know. W.—No; for I believe the whole thing is a humbug. It has been sought for so much without a trace of such gold.

K.—But will you go if we make you know it is not a humbug? W.—Yes; if you really convince me it is not a humbug I am willing to show you where Whiteman's camp is.

They then brought out a carefully written description of the locality, told him all about Van Horn's death, and how he had really found the rich gold bearing cement in 1862, when he was one of the twelve men employed by Dr. Randall in his long and faithful search for the ledge. But these facts and subsequent events we must reserve for the next chapter.

COMPARATIVELY few buffalo have ranged the past Summer north of the international boundary. Forts Walsh and Macleod have for some years past been important centers for the collection of buffalo robes, the market value of which to the Indian hunter may be estimated at $2 each. In 1877 some 30,000 robes were gathered at Fort Macleod and a large number at Fort Walsh. In 1878 the number was 12,797 at the former and 16,997 at the latter place, while this year only 5,764 have come in at Fort Macleod and 8,277 at Fort Walsh. This steady decrease in the number of buffalo slain by the Indians and half-breeds of the Northwest affords a ready explanation of the suffering prevalent among them.—Montana Herald.

A PARTY of gentlemen have discovered a mound near Knobnoster, Missouri, which contains the skeletons of pigmies, with skulls no larger than a man's fist, and the jaws provided with full sets of teeth, showing them to be the remains of grown persons.

The Mining Law Amended.

The bill to amend Sections 2,324 and 2,325 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, concerning mineral lands, has passed Congress and is now a law. It reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That Sections 2,325 of the Revised Statutes of the United States be amended by adding thereto the following words, "Provided, that where the claimant for a patent is not a resident of the land district wherein the vein, lode, ledge or deposit sought to be patented is located, the affidavits required to be made in this section by the claimant of such patent, may be made by his, her or its authorized agent, where said agent is conversant with the facts sought to be established by said affidavits; and, provided, that this section shall apply to all applications now pending for patents to mineral lands."

Sec. 2. That Section 2,324 of the Revised Statutes of the United States be amended by adding the following words: "Provided, that the period within which the work required to be done annually on all unpatented mineral claims shall commence on the 1st day of January succeeding the date of location of such claim, and this section shall apply to all claims located since the 10th day of May, A. D. 1872."

AMONG the bills that have been signed by the Governor and become laws, is one of considerable importance to school teachers. It validates all certificates and diplomas in full force on the 31st day of December, 1879; in other words, it provides that certificates and diplomas in full force at that time shall remain in full force and effect during the period for which they were originally granted. A persistent but unsuccessful effort was made to render null and void the certificates of all teachers, and compel them to undergo the ordeal of another examination before they could teach again.

THE Piute Princess, Sarah Winnemucca, recently sent a dispatch from Lovelock Station, on the Central Pacific Railroad, to the editor of the Winnemucca Silver State, threatening to take the heart's blood of that writer because he had stated that she was drunk on a recent occasion in the town of Winnemucca. The editor, ascertaining that she had been incited to the threatening dispatch by white men, promptly swore out warrants for the arrest of the latter.

AN important report on public lands is said to be prepared by the special commission appointed to take that subject into consideration. The commission will report to Congress recommending the passage of the bill reorganizing the Land Office, classifying public lands, and making the conditions upon which lands of each class may be settled. Among the important provisions will be those relating to homestead colonies, to the preservation and reproduction of timber and to the disposal of mineral lands.

A LATE St. Petersburg dispatch says that Gen. Gourka, Governor-General of St. Petersburg, Gen. Grentilm, Chief of the Imperial Police, and Gen. Souroff, Prefect of Police, have received notices from the Nihilist Committee informing them they need not trouble themselves to make arrangements for an illumination on the occasion of the Czar's anniversary, as the Revolutionists are preparing such an illumination as has not been seen since Nero burned Rome. Keno!

THE National Republican Convention, called to meet in Chicago, June 2, will be composed of 746 delegates, apportioned on a basis of two to each electoral vote each State is entitled to, and one delegate each complimentary to Territories; the District of Columbia gets two seats and votes. Under this apportionment, California has 12 votes, New York 70, Pennsylvania 58, Ohio 44, and so on through.

IN a case where a promissory note was signed with an "X" in the middle of the defendant's name, and the word "his" above and "mark" were written below the cross, but there was no witness' name appended, Justice Joachimsen, of San Francisco, held that the note had no signature for want of a witness.

A SEVERE snow and wind storm prevailed on Tuesday and Wednesday nights of last week along the Atlantic coast, causing heavy damage to shipping and on shore. The wind was so strong that persons were blown from railway trains and killed.

LUNDY CITY, Homer District, is soon to have a butcher shop, a stationery store, hotel, saloon, chop-house, blacksmith shop, clothing store and a new saw-mill.

BUREAU OF MINING.

Our Inyo and Mono Representative, and boss representative of the mining interest in general, has introduced a bill into the Assembly, providing for the establishment of a State Mining Bureau in San Francisco, at which shall be gathered and preserved for reference specimens of all geological and mineralogical substances, including mineral waters, found in this State.

Section 2 provides for the appointment of a State Mineralogist, to hold office four years, and to be paid $3,000 a year, whose duty it shall be to procure and classify such specimens, to maintain a library of works on mineralogy, geology and mining; to procure and preserve models of mining and milling machinery; to make analytical assays when required; to correspond with established schools of mining and metallurgy; to visit various mining districts of the State from time to time and report on them. At the close of each year he shall make a report to the Governor of work performed by the Bureau.

Section 3 provides that the Bureau shall be maintained by the moneys collected from the stock certificate tax imposed by the last Legislature, which is said to be more than ample for the purpose.

We believe such an institution as above proposed would be a very excellent thing, and hope that Mr. Wasson's bill may become a law. As it appears to us, however, that clause requiring a "visit from time to time" and reports upon various mining districts of the State may lead to possible abuses, or, what amounts to nearly the same thing, suspicion of abuses of the office in "experting" districts and particular mines. The chances for the passage of the bill are said to be good. That may be: but it should be borne in mind that there are a number of ignorant, brawling Sand Lotters in the Assembly, and that these "reformers" are mortally opposed to voting away a quarter of a dollar of the "people's money" for any purpose in which their kind would be barred from getting a share—to be of any utility, such a Bureau should be officered by men of high attainments and some natural fitness for their peculiar duties, and that is why the proposition will be scowled at by the Sand Lotters. But, failing as a separate institution, perhaps it might be made an attachment or a part of the State University, to which it would be of great advantage.

A WAY UP BILL.

There is a Mr. Maybell (accent on the last syllable) in the Assembly. He is there for a purpose, Mr. Maybell is; he is there as a typical Sand Lotter; he is there as Dinis' mouth piece; he is there to "ligislate agin the Chay-nese, and the stock borokers, the thaves of the wurruld;" he is there as a "reformer;" he is there to cinch "capetale." Mr. Maybell is also there to show what a wide contrast there is between blatant simpletons of his sort and men of common sense. In this particular Mr. Maybell, like Braunhart, of the same constituency, is making a notable success, and in that way both are serving a good purpose. Here is Mr. Maybell's latest effort, being Assembly bill No. 410:

SECTION 1. Every person who establishes, keeps open, or conducts any stock exchange, stock board, or other place, except a private broker's or business office), for the purchase and sale of the shares of the capital stock of any corporation, or in any manner aids the same, is guilty of a felony.

Sec. 2. Every person who buys or sells, or gives away, or in any manner whatever, furnishes or transfers to or for any other person, any shares of the capital stock of a corporation, or any interest therein, or any paper certificate or instrument purporting to be such share or interest, in any place prohibited by the preceding section, is guilty of a felony.

Sec. 3. Every person who makes any false representation as to the value of any mine, or of any interest in any mine, or of any interest in any corporation, or who makes any pretended or fictitious sale, for the purpose of inflicting [inflating?] or depressing the real value of any such interest, is guilty of a felony.

Sec. 4. This shall take effect on and after the first day of July, 1880.

We italicised a few words above, then got ashamed and quit. As Mr. Maybell is a leader, next to Dinis, and a fair representative of the so-called San Francisco Workingmen, the above is as good as a whole chapter in showing what kind of animals those alleged San Francisco "Workingmen" are.

GEN. FITZ-JOHN PORTER is said to have informed Senator Randolph that he is willing to allow the bill restoring him to the army to go over until next session. He does this because of the opinion among leading Democrats that any discussion of the subject this session will be turned against the Democratic party by Republicans to its injury.

A BILL providing for celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the recognition of American independence by a national exhibition at New York in 1883, has been placed on the calendar in the United States Senate.

PREFER THE BLOOD.

Just now, it strikes us, one of two things ought to be done, namely: The Pacific Coast Emigration Aid Societies, State, County, and all sorts for the whole coast, should be summarily suppressed and put out of existence forthwith, else that Sand Lot rabble should be made to shut up and go to work. The one publishes broadcast to the world, even to the slums of Europe, that here on this coast are millions of of acres of mountain and valley lands all to be had for the mere asking, and upon which hundreds of thousands of persons, with little or no other capital than willing and thrifty hands, can not only make a good living from the start, but soon establish permanent and independent homes; that the same is true as to making a living for other hundreds of thousands who may prefer to seek their fortunes in mining, manufacturing and all such. If we are to believe even half what these societies have to say about it, no place on the earth gives such assurance of at least enough to eat and wear to so many additional hands, if industrious, as does this coast, even this State alone.

But here come the Sand Lotters by the thousand from their dens, and through Denis, the Head Leech, say this all a lie; they are starving; that they will suck blood for a sustenance though they suck the life out of Industry itself. And, in gangs of thousands marching about the streets, that is just what those people are doing day by day right there under the noses of the Emigration Aid Societies in the great city of San Francisco, that city of plenty, in the midst of plenty unequaled in the whole world. Then the Head Leech, Dinis, gets up and says, says he:

"The effort will be made to fill the hungry stomachs of the employed and so keep them quiet; but it will not do. The demand is not now for bread but BLOOD!"

And the "starving" rabble say it is blood, not bread, they want, and forthwith, on the written motion of the Head Leech himself, vote from their stores of cash on hand a sum to build gallows on which to hang such persons as the Head Leech may designate as likely to best satiate his remarkably sanguinary thirst. This done, they adjourn for rest and refreshments to give them strength for a repetition of similar labors the next day—even the few well meaning ones among them not having the remotest idea that they are doing themselves, their families and a worthy cause the greatest possible injury by thus training with so many worthless tramps, led by such cowardly knaves.

Meantime, the Societies send out more glowing circulars touching the openings here for real skill and labor—but with these circulars, thanks to the head knaves of the Sand Lot, goes the bulk of the cash that creates a large share of such openings. Here is how that is:

A number of wealthy Californians are embarking in business in New York.

As persons caught out in the mountains or even in the valleys at this season of the year, are liable to have their feet frozen, the following, furnished the Salt Lake Tribune by a correspondent, who says it is the most effective treatment for frozen limbs, may be useful: "Place the feet, boots and all, in a tub or barrel of cold water. As soon as the boots and socks are thawed out remove them and keep the feet in fresh water, as the first water itself will freeze. Take plenty of warm drinks internally—all the better if it is brandy; if they take enough to intoxicate, so much the better, as the pain of keeping the feet in the water is excruciating. By this process the internal parts thaw first, and the extremities last. If every portion of the feet are frozen, it is necessary to keep the feet in water until every appearance of the frost has disappeared. If taken out too soon it will leave the toes partially frozen."

CAPT. ISAAC BASSET, the venerable doorkeeper of the United States Senate, has received a letter from Peleg Sprague, the only man now living who was a member of the United States Senate when the Captain first became an employé of that body. Mr. Sprague writes that he is the only ex-member of that Congress now living. He was elected a member of the House of Representatives from the State of Maine in 1824 and served until 1829, when he was chosen United States Senator. After his time expired, in 1835, he removed to Boston, and being appointed United States District Judge in 1841, remained on the bench until 1865, when he resigned. He is now totally blind.

CONGRESSMAN PAGE has introduced a bill to provide for the payment of rent of Land Offices. It appears the San Francisco office is the only one in California for which a rent allowance is made under existing laws and regulations.

THEY had a drunken "boom" in San Francisco on Monday of last week. No less than 50 individuals were taken to the station house for drunkenness.

A VERY important subject for legislative action will be laid before Congress in a few days, in the form of codified laws, accompanied by reports and voluminous testimony, from all parts of the Western country. The Commission appointed by Congress at its last session—composed of Clarence King, U. S. Geological Survey, Prof. J. W. Powell, Hon. J. A. Williamson, Commissioner of the General Land Office, Hon. Thos. Donaldson, and A. T. Britton—to examine into the condition and resources of the public domain, make such recommendations, codification of laws, etc., as might seem best adapted to the needs of the country, have about competed their labors. This involved the examination of the country from the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast, and from the British line to Mexico. A vast amount of testimony has been taken, which will make an octavo volume of 600 or 700 pages.

LET'S see: seems to us that Dinis, the Valiant, didn't hang Bones, nor burn Grant in effigy, after all. No, come to think about it, the Great Blood-Drinker merely levied another contribution on his "starving" disciples for expense money, and went to Napa till the excitement blew over. Anybody wanting a gallows, good as new, can be accommodated by calling on Denis before his new set on the Sand Lots gets too much weather-worn. Or they can buy that valiant Blood-Drinker himself, if preferred; and dirt cheap, too. He would be a mighty handy man to have around if you want to start a new grave yard, or to do needed blowing in calm weather—but he will have to be well sheltered after he gets a breeze started.

THE French are said to be anxious for war with Germany, but it is doubtful whether the statesmen who are now in power will risk their supremacy by precipitating a conflict. Should France fail a second time, the Republic would receive its death blow, and the men who have reared the fabric of democratic government in France with such infinite pains are not the persons to cast all on the hazard of a single die. Were Germany to assume the aggressive, war would be forced upon them; but we do not think the provocation to war will come from France under her present wise and able government.

THE two murderers, Geo. W. McLane and Frank McIntyre, who killed a man near Pahranagat, Nev., some months since, were sentenced at Pioche a few days ago to death, the time for execution being on the 12th day of March next. Both of the condemned men denied persistently their guilt of the crime, but the Judge said he fully coincided with the verdict of the jury, and justice demanded that they should receive the inglorious death to which he had sentenced them.

THE distress in Ireland is reported as simply appalling, and in a number of parishes at least is not abating at all as reported. A dispatch says: "Much doubt has been expressed regarding the value of the Government measures for relieving distress by lending money for improvements. These works have been given to contractors who cannot be obliged, and therefore will not employ the untrained and enfeebled poor for whose benefit the works are meant, but only men who will do the best work for the wages."

RUSSIA wants soldiers so urgently that the exemption which the Mennomites have hitherto enjoyed has been rescinded, and those men of peace have been pressed into the service. This will probably give a fresh impetus to their emigration. Many hundreds of them have already come to this country, and as a rule they are provided with some little capital, and are a good class of immigrants.

Gen. Beale on the Railroad Situation.

The Kern County Californian a few days since interviewed Gen. Beale on general subjects. Among others the General gave his views in regard to the railroad situation. He discoursed as follows:

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad, now building in this direction, is certain to be completed to San Francisco in a space of time so short as to surprise the people of this State. It is a very strong company and has all the money necessary, or that they want, to accomplish the undertaking; with the requisite quantity of that, all difficulties vanish and obstacles melt away. It has a magical power little short of Alladin's lamp. The company are reaching out for the trade of Asia and the Pacific Coast. They will establtsh a powerful and effective opposition to the railroad monopoly, deliver us from its oppressions, and inaugurate a period of great prosperity in this State. Shortly after the combination of the various companies that compose it was formed he was waited on by their chief engineer requesting information. He was so fortunate as to have a copy of his "Explorations on the 35th Parallel," which he gave him, and was able besides to furnish him many useful and important details not comprised in that document. His inquiries were more particularly directed to passes, or possible practical routes leading into this valley through which the road would pass on the way to the bay of San Francisco. He pointed out three, exclusive of Tehachepi, that presented no difficulties formidable to modern railroad engineering. He was asked in regard to a way of getting into this valley in case it was decided to make a circuit to Los Angeles. From that point he thought the route [Emigidio Cañon?] was the best of all. He had often gone over it in former years and carefully observed it with a view to such a contingency in the future.

Presidential Talk.

A Washington special, of the 22d, to the New York Herald, has the following as to how the Presidential machine is working on the raw material:

It is the policy of the third-termers, if they think Grant cannot be elected, to dictate who shall be the nominee, and Blaine is one of the men they will not accept.

The New York Times (for Grant), reviewing former estimates, now gives Grant 235, Blaine 103, Sherman 10; preferences unknown, 32; to be heard from, 30. This is for the State of New York.

An Old Fable Warmed Over.

There was once a dog who located himself in a manger and would not let any one else occupy it. The cows, oxen and other domestic animals attempted to go in out of the wet, but the dog made such a row about it they left. Finally an old bull, hearing of the state of affairs, said:

"What kind of a hair pin is this dog? I'll lift him one for luck."

The cows said: "Go in, old boy, and walk on him."

The bull went in, and charging on the dog, sent him through the open roof, and when he came down, gave him another toss, remarking: "Heads or tails," and some of the cows called heads and some tails, but the dog was so mixed up that it was about an even thing all around. The cows then occupied the manger unmolested, and the thrifty farmer, sweeping up the remnants of the dog, sold them to the sausage man for three dollars.—Carson Appeal.

TRANSFERS OF MINING PROPERTIES. Deeds of mines in Cerro Gordo Mining District have been placed on record during the month as follows: Domingo Santibañes to Wm. Crapo for the Flora mine, 1,500 feet, adjoining the Gold Hill, north end of the Palma mine; consideration, $100. Wm. H. Johnson to Geo. T. Hawley, 300 feet in the Rarus mine; same amount in the Acoustic; same in the Sunshine; same in the Palermo; same in the Hopeful, being a one-fifth interest in each; all in consideration of $1,000. Wm. Crapo to Geo. T. Hawley, a one-fifth interest in each of the following mines: the Rarus, the Acoustic, the Sunshine, and the Palermo, and the whole of the Golden Horn—1,500 feet; consideration, $2,000. D. H. Williams to Geo. T. Hawley, a one-fifth interest in the Rarus, Acoustic, Sunshine, Palermo, and Hopeful, and a one-half interest in the Golden Square; all for $1,500. Refugio Galaviz to Geo. T. Hawley, a one-fifth interest in each of the following: the Rarus, Acoustic, Sunshine and Hopeful; all for $1,000. O. G. Fuentes to Myron E. Harman, a one-eleventh interest in the following named mines in Coso Mining District, viz: the Malitzin, Refugio, Anita, Gaudalupe and Valenciana; all for $500.

DEEP SPRING VALLEY.—Messrs. J. D. Hudgin and S. D. Woodhull, having returned from their trip to Deep Springs, we learn that the outlook is very promising for some rich and extensive gold and silver mines in that district. The assays from ores of all the different claims show that they carry from $10 to $50 in gold per ton and $20 to $200 in silver, making a valuable ore for milling. There are five claims located on one ledge, which crops out nearly the whole distance—the Western, Eastern, Horton, Whiteman, and Thanksgiving. The Whiteman has been stripped a distance of 40 feet, showing a perfect vein of rich ore four feet wide. Two tons of $300 ore have been taken out by Mr. J. S. Broder and Gid Whiteman, who are now on the ground prospecting the different claims. A number of other locations have been made which look fully as well as those mentioned above, among them are the Capitol, Valley Forge, Broder, Waloupe and Hedge claims. Tons of good paying milling ore can now be taken from the surface with very little labor. The work of prospecting these claims will soon be commenced in earnest.

RELEASED ON HABEAS CORPUS.—Judge Hannah, after hearing arguments of counsel, Judge Conklin for defendant and District Attorney Snelling for the people, granted the appcalition of Guillermo Bargos for a writ of habeas corpus, and the prisoner was ordered discharged. The defendant was committed to answer by Justice Henning, of Cerro Gordo, on a charge of felony, in having counterfeited gold balls or lumps—in other words, of manufacturing bullion. No evidence was submitted showing that defendant attempted to "utter" or pass any of this bullion, and the Court also finds "that the commitment under which the defendant is held is void, inasmuch as it does not specify any offense known to the law; that the committing magistrate failed to perpetuate the testimony as required by section 869 of the Penal Code," etc.

THE POST LANDS.—Senator Booth has secured the passage of a bill in the Senate of a bill "relinquishing to J. M. Cutler the Government title to forty acres of land near Camp Independence, California, which was donated for military purposes, but is no longer used by the Government." So reads the dispatch. We are not at this moment able to throw any additional light upon it, except to say that this doubtless refers to what is known as the "Earl place," opposite Chenot's store.

NEW LEGAL FIRM.—Judge Theron Reed, of the ex-Sixteenth Judicial District, has formed a partnership with J. A. Borham, Esq., for the practice of law. Mining litigation will be made a specialty, and the Judge's long experience upon the bench in California's principal mining counties will render him an able adviser and a formidable oppoment to tackle. Success attend the new firm.

COUNTY CONTRACTS.—The advertisements for sealed proposals to be received by the Board of Supervisors for Hospital purposes and for the furnishing of wood and boarding of prisoners for the ensuing year, are given this week. There will probably be some competition by bidders, who have until the 22d proximo to figure on't.

MINERAL PATENTS.—The General Land Office has issued Government patents to the Rex Montis, Arctic and Boomerang mines, on Kearsarge mountain. Also, to the Ida, Independence and Eureka mines, situated in Panamint and owned by George M. Pinney.

NO REPORT.—Our Bishop Creek informants and correspondents have so far failed to send in reports of the proceedings and results of the three days' racing and sport at that point. The fun must be attractive, as no one has returned from there yet.

FOUND.—Rev. F. M. Willis advertises the finding of a watch, at a point near Harry Wright's. The loser will of course see the notice and may consider himself in luck.

LOST.—See notice by Paul Houard, of Lone Pine, setting forth the loss of a certain note, which the public are cautioned not to negotiate.

IMPROVEMENTS.—There is quite an air of improvement, upon grounds and buildings, now manifesting itself about town.

The Late Lone Pine Troubles.

Our report of the festivities at Lone Pine on the 22d and 23d is necessarily brief, and most of our facts relative to the horse racing is gleaned from a letter by a valued correspondent.

The greatest attraction of the entire programme was of course the foot race of 75 yards between Daniel Crough, of Independence, and Mark Hoff, of Cerro Gordo, for $250 a side. We have never seen a larger crowd of excited, good natured men and smiling, interested ladies—all in ecstasy of hope and enthusiasm over the certain triumph of their respective favorite—on any course or upon any occasion in this county. The track was measured and marked out, the ground being hard and in most excellent condition, as nature and the light snow-fall of the preceding day had left it. The starter, judges and referee were selected, when suddenly a babel of voices broke loose indicating that betting had begun. Estimates vary as to the total amount hazarded on the result; but probably $1,200 had been staked when a Cerro Gordoite proffered a $1,000 check even on Hoff. Ever since the race a number of Independence men have been disgusted with themselves because they allowed that fact to weaken them right there. In a few moments the men were on the track, costumed for the fray. Hoff appeared muscled for terrific speed Crough like a clean built thoroughbred. Mid an intense, suppressed excitement the boys toed the mark, and as the word "GO" was given they went—went like a shot. At 30 yards Dan was some 4 or 5 feet ahead, and on the track, with a couple of characteristic motions, looked back as if to see whether Mark was coming, and then crossed the outcome about 3 feet in front. As soon the victor could get down from the shoulders of his cheering and demonstrative friends, he made for Mark and the two joined in a hearty hand-shake indicative of the solid friendship which has sprung up between them. The friends of the vanquished manfully and good-naturedly owned up to a square defeat, but chuckled a little that Independence hadn't the "sand" to back up its favorite, whereby Cerro Gordo saved a cool thousand at least. We place the time made at 8¼ seconds, and at the eminent risk of assassination for attempting anything more of the kind, we would simply simply say that Cerro Gorro had better Mark Hoff its anticipated gains and let Dan Crough.

AN ADJOURNMENT

Was had to the other side of the track, where the horses "Black Nell," "Mary Hammond" and "Flora" were being walked up and down prior to the quarter-mile race. Aside from the purse, some $80 were chucked in the pool-box and the horses started, but owing to some misunderstanding about the send-off the race and pools were declared "off," too—as much to the disgust of the buyers on the winning nag as to the pool-sellers, for the money had to be returned in full, without profit or commission to anybody in particular. "Mary," the Fish Spring mare, came in numerous lengths ahead. For the

COLT RACE

Of 600 yards, there were entered "Kangaroo," "Tom," "Flora" and "Billy Moore," the latter—the favorite and the property of Sheriff Moore—winning by about ten inches. A fair start was had and the four came through in splendid style, nearly neck and neck to the outcome. Pools to the sum of $96 were redeemed. Whereupon the crowd returned to town, to keep up a generous hilarity; in fact, some of them needed considerable help to keep up at all.

MONDAY'S SPORT

Opened with the half-mile race, for which there were three entries, only "Black Nell" and "Wake-up-Jake" taking the track, the former winning race and pools easily.

The mile race came on with four entries: "Nig," "Quien Sabe," "Fritz" and "Chico." Nig stood as the first choice with pool buyers, Quien Sabe second. The horse with a name indicating that he doesn't know anything of any consequence knew how to come out ahead all the same, and won easily. Nig got in second, Chico third and Fritz so far behind that he could have got there sooner had he turned around and run back. "Quien Sabe" is the horse that "an emigrant," "who winked so slyly," came along and cleaned out at Olancha, a few days ago, thereby throwing Pap Walker into a mournful state of depression.

IN THE EVENING

The Lone Pine Dramatic Society gave two plays, the "Rough Diamond" and "Trying it On." At an early hour the hall was so crowded that the best our representative could do was to stand outside the door and look up at the ceiling. From such vantage ground he concluded to forego acting as critic. From those who fortunately obtained a place within sight and earshot of the players we learn that the performance was a decided hit in every particular—in point of excellence, drilling and comprehension of the subject and characters far ahead of any representation ever given by the company. A most pleasing auxiliary was the splendid music furnished by the Big Pine band, for which the Society desire to acknowledge their thanks. The sum of $57 25 was netted and paid over to the school fund.

THE BALL

With some forty couple in attendance, under competent management and with Curt. Ober's band, was kept up with unflagging interest and pleasure until 5 o'clock in the morning.

Lone Pine's celebrate upon Washington's birthday can be classed among the most successful of like affairs in the county, and passed off without untoward incident to mar the enjoyment of anybody.

TAKE THEIR PLACES.—On Monday next the county officers-elect enter upon their duties. Of these officers, John Crough succeeds himself. The remaining places are filled by new men as follows: Jas. W. Smith, vice J. J. Moore, Sheriff; Geo. H. Hardy, vice Henry M. Isaacs, Treasurer; J. W. P. Laird, vice R. B. Snelling, District Attorney, and Thos. May, vice Jas. F. Dillon, Assessor.

HANDED OVER.—Henry M. Isaacs, the outgoing Treasurer, will, on Monday, March 1, hand over to Geo. H. Hardy, the County Treasurer-elect, the following moneys and valuables belonging to Inyo county: Cash, as per balances credited to the various funds, $3,564 49. Order on the State Controller for State School money apportioned to this county, $2,230 60. Warrant No. 129 on the Expense Fund, and in favor of the Sinking Fund for $327 50. Warrant No. 130 on the Expense Fund in favor of the Interest and Building Fund for $115. Value of $3 and other papers found on the dead body of John O'Brien, deposited by A. J. Gould, while Justice of the Peace for 6th Township, October 25, 1877. Value of $20, gold note, found on the dead body of Thomas Fox, deposited by H. S. Enloe, while Justice of the Peace 4th Township, Jan 10, 1878. Value of $2 10 found in a portmonai, on the dead body of Estagnio Santago, deposited by Dr. J. D. Blair, while Coroner, Feb. 16, 1878. Value of $1 50 found on the dead body of Carlos Firman, deposited by Dr. J. D. Blair, February 16, 1878.

A NEW CEMETERY.—It is in contemplation—in fact, in course of execution—to neatly enclose, lay off, etc., under Masonic auspices and general management, a new cemetery for society and general uses, plans and details of which we shall hereafter publish. The site selected adjoins the southeastern corner of the Independence town site, being a little over half a mile from the court-house, and is donated, with use of water for its necessary irrigation, by Mr. Elijah Robinson. The reasons for this change will be understood by this statement: the present cemetery at or beyond Camp Independence, is very nearly if not quite three miles distant. The new ground will in due time, we presume, be formally dedicated to its solemn purposes.

RELIGIOUS.—Wednesday evening last, Rev. F. M. Willis began a series of religious meetings in Lone Pine. He does not expect to conclude them till some time next week, unless a flagging interest should require it. It does not matter how many or how few full conversions Mr. Willis may bring about, his earnest and sensibly directed labors are accomplishing very much in various ways for the moral—and material—betterment of society wherever he works. He is "a laborer worthy of his hire."

FRUIT.—This office is indebted to Alex. Clarke, formerly a well-known fruit man of Virginia City and Gold Hill, Nev., for a supply of delicious semi-tropical fruit from the lower country, including some magnificent specimens of oranges, lemons, etc. Mr. Clarke contemplates the establishment of a regular fruit depot here, for the purpose of supplying this and outlying points.

THE POSTOFFICE.—Postmaster Hardy will, we understand, remove the Postoffice from its present location to the old Postoffice or Rowley building, now the property of Henry M. Isaacs. Frank Blaney is to have charge of the office as deputy till he can be officially appointed Postmaster in Mr. Hardy's place, who now tenders his resignation in that expectation.

PURCHASED IT.—Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., has purchased of the resident members of the old Building Association their several shares in the building known as the Masonic Hall, and negotiations are pending for the remaining interests, equivalent to one-half. The building is now used by the Masons and Good Templars jointly.

TAXES.—Sheriff Moore has been raking in county coin during the week and has closed the sale on property delinquent. The "Broder property" paid up for the assessment of 1878-9, in the sum of $1,383 72.

UNDER BONDS.—Geo. T. Hawley now holds under bonds of $70,000 contingent upon default of existing bonds and agreements (these latter holding up to March 31), all the mines known as the Ygnacio property.

SPRING.—Judging from the deluge of effusions from amateur, anonymous poets, the beautiful Spring is setting in early.

AN application for a patent, in connection with a telephone, was forwarded by a gentleman of Pittsburg a few days ago. The claim is its ability to transmit the physical wave force of light electrically, similar to the transmission of sound by telephone. It is also claimed that when the new invention is simply perfected for practical use it will be possible for one or two persons conversing by telephone to perceive distinctly at the same time the image of the person with whom he is conversing. The practical utility of the invention will be more thoroughly apparent when it is stated that the inventor believes he will be able to transmit from point to point any written or printed documents, for instance, the entire side of a newspaper. The invention is called the telephote.—Chicago Tribune.

AFTER an absence of two weeks, Hon. Pat. Reddy returned to Bodie on Saturday evening last, whereupon his numerous friends engaged a band of music and gave him a right royal reception. The festivities were kept up until a late hour, and several eloquent speeches were delivered, Judge Reddy himself delivering a most feeling and eloquent address in acknowledgement of the honor paid him.—Bodie Standard, Feb. 23.

A WINDAM county man, aged 86 years, has chewed tobacco for 74 years. A correspondent estimes the cost at $20 a year, and figures that the man would now have $20,000 if he hadn't chewed. Guess not. We know several men 80 years old or thereabouts who never chewed an ounce of tobacco in their lives, and not one of them has had a new pair of suspenders in fifteen years. —Danbury News.

THE Eureka Leader some time ago published an item which was copied by most of the coast papers and some of the Eastern publications, in relation to the drying up of Ruby Lake, once a large body of water. As that paper is noted for publishing sensational yarns, we doubted the genuineness of this water story. Now the Elko Post denies in toto the truth of the statement, and says the body of water as yet remains in the same condition as it was when first discovered.

THE Nevada Southern Railway was organized on the 25th instant, to build south of Austin to Grantsville, Columbus and Silver Peak, with Gen. James H. Ledlie President, Robert L. S. Hall, Treasurer, and Lyman Bridges, Chief Engineer. This will form an important link from the Colorado to the Columbia.

THE Nevada Northern Railway organized on the 25th instant to build a railway from Battle Mountain to Oregon and Idaho, with Robert L. S. Hall President, and Lyman Bridges Chief Engineer. This railway will pass through some rich mining districts and a good agricultural country.

PERSONS punching holes in gold and silver coins are probably not aware of their liability to a punishment of two years' imprisonment and a fine of $2,000.

JOHN D. STILLMAN, a young graduate, and now a Professor in the chemical department of the California State University, though a plain, modest, unassuming young man, is destined to rank among the first chemists of the age, should his devoted attachment to his chosen branch of science not lead him into excessive toil and thereby shorten his life. Before a meeting of the California Academy of Sciences, on the 2d instant, Mr. Stillman read the result of a chemical analysis of the gum found on the Torreya Mexicana, commonly known from its odor as the creosote plant, or greasewood, sent from Arizona. The analysis proved the exudation on this plant, after the boring of it by a certain insect, to be essentially the same as that from which the stick lac, the gum lac, and the shellac of India, and one of the greatest sources of India's wealth, is obtained. This creosote plant, called also greasewood, grows abundantly in the lower parts of Tulare Valley, and on the Mohave Desert, as well as in many of the valleys of Nevada and Utah. The uses of the gum are various, and extend from those of wax for the wild flax thread used by the Indians, to solder used by the Mexicans, and the cure of rheumatism for any person. Gen. Redding and others present, who know the plant, stated that the exudation occurs only where the insect affects it; but the plant can doubtless be made to yield the gum by simply tapping it by other modes, and thus the hated greasewood be made to contribute to the wants of mankind.—Bodie Standard.

DURING our stay in the city we investigated the matter of the alleged distress of the laboring population. We found that times were exceedingly "tight" for, perhaps, not less than twenty-five or thirty thousand people; but where destitution pinched most severely there was too much pride to make a display of it. Pity for or sympathy with the Sand Lot element is mostly thrown away. It is largely composed of hangers-on to the skirts of society, and who would be unhappy in any other condition than that in which they now are. They are essentially of the vagrant, lazzaroni order. A conspicuous figure among them is W. A. Branch, a wretch who long afflicted this town with his presence. He subsists on small remittances from the East, sent by relatives who, strange to say, still retain some lingering affection for him. When not on the Sand Lot duty he may always be seen loafing about hotels and public places, dressed in respectable broadcloth. But when there is an assemblage there or a public procession, he is always on hand, clothed in rags, the most distressed and blatant workingman in the city. Probably there are a hundred more of the same kind engaged in the agitation, who only need a severe visitation from a policeman's club.—Kern County Californian.

AT 12:30 yesterday afternoon Peter Burk was instantly killed by falling down the shaft of the Standard Con. mine. After dinner the cage was sent down to the 500 level, when Burke got off, probably through a mistake, and the cage went on. It is thought he intended to step into the cage again, not knowing it was gone, and fell to the bottom, some 200 feet. His remains were brought to Friend's undertaking rooms for burial. The deceased leaves a family in Ireland, and was a steady, hard working man, and formerly worked in the Exchequer mine in Silver Mountain, Alpine county. He was saving his earnings to buy a little home on the other side of the mountains, to which he would have brought his family. He left some $1,500 in a savings bank.—Bodie Chronicle, Feb. 21

THERE is no surer indication that the present tide of business prosperity has come to stay a long time than the rise in real estate in New York. This kind of property is not subject to sudden fluctuations, and cannot be forced up by mere temporary or fictitious activity in trade. The increase in rentals of stores and offices down town, and the brisk market for building lots up town, show plainly that the business of the metropolis is in a healthy condition. Among purchasers of houses are said to be a number of capitalists from San Francisco, who have concluded to transfer themselves and their possessions to a place where the Kearneys and Kallocks of the Pacific coast cannot apply their Communistic experiments.—N. Y. Tribune.

What Mike Owens Has to Say About It

Mike Owens, the murderer of Traver at Candelaria, is now safely locked up in the county jail at Aurora. He is sullen, and scarcely ever speaks to any one. Here is his story in regard to the murder:

"As I came out from supper, McLain and Traver went into the boarding house and I remained on the outside. In about ten minutes, McLain came out and took a pistol from his coat pocket and wiped it with his handkerchief, and walked over to where I was standing and looked in my face and went into the house again. Then he and Traver came out, and McLain pulled his pistol and pointed it at me, saying: 'Now, you ——————, you will get coin.' I told him that I did not want any trouble; that I just wanted to ask Traver if he was going to pay me or not; all I wanted him to say was, yes or no. Traver said: 'Yes, you will get paid,' and at the same time they tried to catch hold of me, and I leaped past them and pulled my pistol and told them to keep away from me. They kept coming closer to me and backed me up about fifty feet. All that time I kept telling them to keep back and go away from me, but they kept closing in on me, and McLain had his gun within six inches of my breast, and I was within five feet of the house, and then I called for help. Then Traver hit me on the back and knocked me against the side of the house, when McLain hit me on the nose with his gun and knocked me down with my back against the house, partly in a sitting position. Then Traver caught hold of my gun and tried to take it away from me. All this time McLain was beating me over the head with his pistol. My pistol was a self-cocker, and when Traver was trying to pull it away from me it went off, accidentally on my part. That was the first shot, and if Traver had not caught hold of my pistol he would be a living man to-day, and McLain—the bully and boss head-smasher of Candelaria—would be in the happy hunting grounds ere this."

THE status of a discovery made within the boundaries of a valid location is thus defined by Judge Bowen in a Leadville case: "A vein, ledge, lode or deposit of mineral bearing rock in place being once discovered, and such having afterwards been followed up by a valid location and record of a lode claim based upon such discovery, the land, earth or mineral within the limits of such location ceases to be unappropriated public domain of the United States, and thereafter no valid location of a mining claim can be made thereon, based upon a discovery of mineral bearing rock in place lying within the lines of the claim so first located, save and except by the owner of the claim so first located, and a location so made by such owner would be an act of abandonment of at least so much of the first location as might be included within the lines of the second, and should such location include the discovery shaft of the first, then such location would be an act of abandonment of the whole of the first location." When a locator has filed his location certificate as running a certain course, but his stakes were in fact set on the ground on a different course, it was held that he was bound by the lines given in his certificate, and could not claim outside of them.—Bodie Standard.

COL. BOB INGERSOLL gave his views on the Presidential question to a reporter of the Chicago Journal the other day. He predicted that Blaine would have the largest vote on the first ballot at the Chicago Convention, and that the Democrats cannot possibly elect Bayard, because "he comes from a State with a whipping post." In response to a question as to "what issue would be foremost" in the canvass, Col. Ingersoll replied sententiously "the shirt." He said, however, in closing: "Notwithstanding public excitement, the great cause of intellectual freedom is progressing magnificently. There are ten times as many liberal-minded people as there were last year, and, whether Democrats or Republicans get control, there are already liberal people enough to see to it that the Nation is preserved." The Colonel disapproves of the proposition to change the law in New York State relating to the choice of Presidential Electors.

A BOSTON minister was badly "taken in" the other day by a young couple who called to get married. The charge being $5 the bridegroom tendered a $50 bill and $45 in change was handed back. The bill was subsequently found to be counterfeit, and now the clergyman thinks that they were two young scamps, who dressed in girl's clothes, as the pretended bride never looked him in the face while he was performing the service.

THE St. Louis Times says "if the press of the United States does not make a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together, to have the tariff on paper and the material entering into the manufacture of paper repealed, publishers will deserve to have the needless and heavy loss of the great advance in paper heaped upon them." Let the long and strong pull begin.

THE action of the Noonday vs. the Orient is dragging its slow length along in the United States Circuit Court. Wm. M. Stewart, assisted by Wm. Van Clief, is advocating the cause of the Noonday; while the Orient's interests are being ably championed by Gen. Clark and Mr. Merrill. A decision can hardly be expected for several days.—Bodie Free Press, Feb. 20.

SOME of the Philadelphia papers deny that the Pennsylvania delegation is solid. They say "already a portion of the delegates have repudiated the 'unit rule,' and more will follow. By June, the people will have shivered to atoms the device for holding the delegates against their will."

OWENS RIVER WAR.

The Cement Hunters—A Historical Sketch Strange as Fiction.

[WRITTEN FOR THE S. F. "POST" BY J. W. A. WRIGHT.]

CHAPTER VII.

We shall here give in detail the incidents related by Kirkpatrick and his friends, which, with the subsequent search, fully convinced Mr. Wilson, in spite of his fixed skepticism on the matter, that two of the men in Dr. Randall's party did find this valuable red cement ledge in 1862, and profited by it for a time. These things were told as secrets then, and comparatively few know all the facts now. But the ban of secrecy is at last removed, and they may as well be known to all who choose to read them. Now for the convincing statement.

VAN HORN'S STORY.

An invalid named Van Horn was going by boat from Sacramento to San Francisco, and his friends—Carpenter and wife, of Aurora—were with him. His physicians had told him that he might die at any time. On the trip he was taken suddenly ill, and called Carpenter to him. He said that he felt that he was sinking, and, perhaps, would not live through the trip. He thanked Carpenter for his great kindness, acknowledging that he had acted like a brother towards him, although he had no reason to think the sick man could make any returns for his careful nursing. Yet he could and would repay him. He told of his connection with Dr. Randall's expedition in search of the cement. He was cook on that trip. One day the man who the Doctor had brought up with him, and who is said to have found the cement, came in, very much excited, when Van Horn was alone. He had always declared the Doctor was looking in the wrong place. He was a German. Finding Van Horn by himself, he said to him, in confidence: "I find dat d—ting, and I git noting but mine wages." At the same time he pulled out of his pocket a lump of the cement, rich with free gold. Van Horn, full of excitement, told him, "Hush! hide it; we'll fix all that. I get nothing but my wages, either." They mutually planned to get discharged the next day, complaining to the Doctor that they were dissatisfied and did not see "the use of hunting for gold in a country where the rocks swim and the wood sinks." This referred to the vast amount of pumice scattered all over this volcanic region, and to the mountain mahogany (Cercocarpus ledifolius), a very solid, heavy wood. They packed what few things they had on Van Horn's horse and started out towards Aurora. But, as soon as they were out of sight of camp, they turned to one side and went in an opposite direction, to the place where the Dutchman had found the cement. They dug down only two feet and became terribly excited, because they saw it was more than half gold. They filled a sack with the precious ore; then they quit digging, that they might go and get a good outfit, for they had food for only a few days. They buried their pick, an ax, and other things they would not need till they got back. They covered the exposed part of the cement well with pumice, took a bush and swept it over to deface all marks and make it look as much as possible like the surrounding surface. Then, as they left, one of them walked backward and swept out their tracks. Carefully avoiding Mono and Aurora on their route, they hurried on to a point on Walker river known as "The Elbow." There they crushed and panned out their sackful of ore,

GETTING IN ALL $30,000.

This amount is by no means incredible, if the ore was over half gold. For, the entire weight of the sackful would not have been much, if any more, than 175 pounds, and the horse and two men could easily manage that, and what little else they had to carry. They then went to Virginia, got a Winter outfit, took in a partner and started back. Meanwhile, about a week after these men left, Gid Whiteman and his party quit work for Dr. Randall, and the latter disappeared from the scene.

Van Horn and his two companions, on their return to the ground where they had buried their tools, arrived at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. They at once began their preparations for building, cut down some suitable trees and selected the site for their cabin, because they proposed to Winter there. The next morning, while at breakfast, the three men were surprised and surrounded by Joaquin Jim and thirty of his warriors. The Indians took everything they had but an old horse, destroyed the camp and ordered them out; told them they should not work there; said they had known that place a long time; that what the white men were looking for there was medicine, and the Indians wanted it.

Glad to escape with their lives, the men left, and at a safe distance stopped and made each other a solemn promise to tell nothing of it till they met again, when the Indian war was over. As it continued nearly three years longer, they were scattered and never met again. Two were reported to have gone off to the greater war East with the "California Hundred," as Van Horn believed they had done. The third was the sickly man, Van Horn, who told Carpenter this story, and gave him certain directions for finding the place.

DOUBTS REMOVED AND THE SEARCH RENEWED.

Convinced by this array of facts and minute details, and by the confidence in them on the part of men of capital who had lately been successful in their Idaho venture, Mr. Wilson consented to go with him, as his friends—for he had always retained their good will by his personal kindness to them—they started for "Gid Whiteman's camp." They spent about six week hunting over all the adjoining country. In several places they found a red cement similar to the gold-bearing ledge described, but no gold in it. They scoured the country well, yet were not satisfied. So they got a new outfit and returned with fresh Indian guides. Even some of the old "cement hunters" of Dr. Randall's party went with them. An Indian chief told them he had seen the two men bury their tools and sweep the ground, and could show them where it was. He started out and led them to a destroyed cabin. Then he complained that he had been badly treated, and left them to hunt the buried treasure for themselves, as these sly red men so often did on such excursions. Again, an Indian chief showed one of these hunters what he said was a destroyed camp. Here were found a broken shovel, ax, cracker boxes, barrels, a candle box, some forks, a miner's horn spoon for prospecting, a mashed coffee-pot, and near by a sheath knife. The letter V was found on the knife handle and ax helve, supposed to have stood for Van Horn. In fact, the knife was afterwards recognized as Van Horn's by those who had known him well. On one of these expeditions an Indian volunteered to show a camp of white men that they had killed during the war. He did so. It was within a few rods of the camp above described. Here was found a brush camp and a man's bones, and other marks tending to confirm previous statements. Another skeleton has since been shown near there by another Indian. From the finding of these two skeletons, coupled with other circumstances, it is conjectured that the two companions of Van Horn, who were reported to have gone with the California Hundred, gave Van the slip, returned to the camp, and were there murdered by the Indians. This is certainly quite probable. There are really but few persons living who know the exact directions, as shown by Kirkpatrick and his party. Though some of these think they know the locality of.

THE DESTROYED CAMPS,

None, so far as is generally known, have ever found the gold bearing cement there since the days of Van Horn and his two comrades, and perhaps Farnsworth. Can we wonder at the difficulty of finding it if it really does exist, when we remember how thoroughly the place was concealed by the two men who took out the $30,000, so as to make it look just like the rest of a large area covered for many square miles with a grayish white pumice, from the size of coarse sand to a hen's egg? Furthermore, is it surprising that from statements made that are deemed reliable, many prospectors have become imbued with unswerving faith in the existence near the surface of such a ledge, somewhere along the head waters of Owens river? Gid Whiteman, among others, acknowledges that he has been out every year since '62 there, and in neighboring localities, hunting for this rich cement. He was in Mammoth City every once in a while last Summer, but was spending most of his time in Prescott District, where he has some very good ledges of gold and silver ore, to the discovery of which he was led by his persevering search for the noted red cement, with which his name will be handed down while mining and its history exist. Mr. Wilson, since his conversion in 1865 to the belief in its existence, has been among the most persistent, intelligent and best posted "cement hunters."

The same Indian who showed him the bones near the destroyed camp also guided him to a place where some one had split an old log into puncheons, made a floor of them, put up side pieces, and kept a red, rusty looking quartz there. Here in the cracks he found crumbs of this rock, rich in free gold.

As a practical result of his search, which all such facts stimulated, he now owns at least ten fine ledges of silver bearing quartz in the Minaret District, Fresno county, but a few miles west and southwest, across the summit ridge, from the now classic scenes of the cement hunters. In 1865 his Indian friend, Shohock, who guided him in Kirkpatrick's second and third expeditions, led him to one of the ledges he now owns, and told him, "Tappee (quartz) along here." In his honor Mr. Wilson called these ten wide ledges "The Shohock Consolidated." So have the discoveries in 1877 of the Alpha, Mammoth and other promising ledges of the Lake District, as well as the Laurel District of Mono county, come directly or indirectly from this long search for the celebrated cement mine. We can safely give as a practical result of this search, which to many may seem like madness, the discovery, in less than three years past, of more than two hundred valuable mineral ledges, chiefly silver, but nearly all with some gold, in the adjoining districts of Mono and Fresno counties, on the head waters of Owens river and the San Joaquin, in that grand and wonderful, almost enchanting, mountain region of California.

IN THESE DAYS OF SPIRITUALISTIC TENDENCIES,

Noted mediums have been consulted about the lost mine. Those who believe in them contend that their communications about the rich ledge agree with the less ethereal and more practical records—as is usually the case. They are said to assert that it does exist; that a cloud of Indian spirits are guarding it; that its rediscovery is reserved for a poor man, but is death to the finder. Now, anybody may believe all this that wants to, but in the opinion of the writer a good combination of pluck, energy, perseverance, muscle, drilling, giant powder, blasting, with some knowledge of mineral formations, is far more reliable to solve all such questions than the whole mass of imaginary spiritualistic dictums that can be stirred up. Many a poor man has risked his life and will take the chances on it hereafter to find that and similar wealth-giving lost gold mines. Now that Indian flesh and blood don't interfere, what need he care for Indian spirits? Indians have more reason now to fear the white man's "spirits," if they only knew it.

CHAPTER VIII.

LATE VISIT TO THE DESTROYED CAMPS.

Last Summer, while enjoying for some days a miner's hospitality at Wilson's Camp, or as it is facetiously called by the miners, "Wilson City," the writer listened with much interest to the curious details of this long and mysterious hunt for gold, and accompanying circumstances, as given in what is deemed the most authentic form by Mr. Wilson, who is one of the few known survivors of the early cement hunters. This camp consisting of a canvas tent, a brush screen protecting it from the south and west, and a small space inclosed by fragments of rock for a campfire—a rough blacksmith's forge standing near by—was perched on a most picturesque notch, surrounded by thick growth of large pines, 9,800 feet above the sea, on the western slope of the summit ridge of the Sierras. Near it is a mountain rill of the purest ice-cold water. To westward the view it commanded of the rugged but heavily timbered valley of the upper San Joaquin, whose extreme sources are only from five to eight miles northwest in a direct line, is very grand. The bed of the main river, here a clear, rapid stream, from one to four feet deep and thirty to forty feet wide in midsummer, is about a thousand feet below you, and scarcely a mile distant. Beyond it you see the silvery waters of Minaret creek dashing wildly over rocky slopes, as it issues from a ravine running southward from the ethereal looking but solid needle peaks of that name, and joins the main river below your point of observation. Up and beyond the river, the misty looking, bare, gray hights of the Minarets, Mount Ritter and Mount Lyell in the distance, varied by occasional red and purple streaks, and the deep gorges and snow masses along the base of each, was a feast, of which the eye never grew weary. The visit to that camp and its magnificent surroundings, its cordial welcome, its enjoyment, will never be forgotten. There the rough notes were made from which much of this sketch is written, thanks to the kindness of Mr. Wilson, the pioneer settler of Owens Valley. There he, with Messrs. Peck and Elsey, made their home, while the Summer's prospecting was going on. At another camp, about a mile by trail, near the top of the ridge, to eastward, at an altitude of about 10,500 feet, and a third or older camp at Pott's meadow—some three miles down the San Joaquin on the trail from Fresno Flats to Mammoth City, about 8,500 feet above the sea level—Messrs. Potts, Hall, Sotcher and Cerurike had their headquarters, and most kindly shared with me their blankets and fare. These seven men in the Minaret District, with thirty or forty more in the North Fork District, three or four miles northwest, around the Agnew meadows and Norris' store—the future Highland City—were the only inhabitants of the whole region on the upper Joaquin, from three to fifteen miles northwest of Mammoth City. Yet it is no doubt destined some day to become one of the most productive mining regions of California. Not even an Indian was seen there, though there were a few around Mammoth. When the time for leave taking came—as it was learned that we were but three or four miles from the famous destroyed camps of the cement hunters, where were found the skeletons of two white men, who were supposed to have been butchered by Indians seventeen years ago—nothing would do but that Mr. Wilson and the writer must make a short secret expedition to the celebrated

RED CEMENT HILL,

And the mysterious old camps; thence Mammoth could be easily reached by trail. Mr. Wilson also proposed to try a blast at a certain point, that the volcanic nature of that well-called "Burn District" might be seen. So, after breakfast, devoured with mountain appetites—the mercury early that morning having stood at 30 degrees Fahrenheit—a few tools were prepared and the faithful, sure-footed sorrel was saddled, that had carried me without failing over 5,000 miles during the last twelve months, even to heights of 11,000 and 12,000 feet.

It was a clear, calm Summer morning, July 14. Not a cloud was seen. The sky was intensely blue; the atmosphere showing that perfect transparency in which our Pacific Coast excels. As we found our way over the high ridge eastward, the serene stillnes, the perfect silence that reigned, undisturbed even by the chirp of a bird, unbroken, except by our own voices at times, was something wonderfully impressive.

The distinctness of every peak, and ridge, and tree in sight, as we took in the suburb view to east to west from the summit was startling. Then down, down by easy descent, passing on northern slopes some melting beds of snow, from which initial drops were just starting for Owens river, we easily made our way, partly by an old Indian trail, to the edge of that widely extended

PUMICE FLAT.

It should be observed that the pumice all through this region is very similar to that around Vesuvius. Leaving the trail, and crossing a pretty little gurgling stream, we were soon at the oldest destroyed camp, where there is scarcely a doubt that Van Horn and his companions began to prepare for Winter quarters in 1862, when the Indians prevented them. The thought and its associations were truly thrilling! None can stand there, knowing the history of the spot, without experiencing a genuine sensation.

It is a place for mystery. The stillness of death reigns there, and for miles around. Neither there nor for several miles of our route to and from that point did we see a living animal form but ourselves and our horse. Not even a wild flower cheered our pathway, though just west of the great divide we had crossed the most beautiful columbines, lilies, geraniums, larkspurs, Solomon's seals, gentians, lupins, castillejas, alliums and other flowers were blooming in abundance. There were a few thinly scattered patches of bunch grass, which the pony greedily enjoyed. Except a few scrawny bushes at intervals, this grass was about the only undergrowth that at all broke the whitish, sterile, uniform color of that pumice-covered flat and the adjacent mountain sides. Not a bird, a rabbit, a squirrel, a chipmunk, not even a lizard was seen; not an insect, except a few black ants, about a quarter of an inch long, on the trees. These we found even at heights of 12,000 feet in those mountains, the only signs of animal life we met at such altitudes. Not even a mosquito appeared, though they usually extend to our snow line, and, on the opposite side of the summit ridge, two miles distant, they are thick along the San Joaquin, especially around a fine soda spring. In the latter locality deer also abound. The whole region, however, is covered with a dense forest of fine firs, spruces, an occasional yellow pine, and the handsome, dark-foliaged yew tree of California; very much like its noted and scarce English or Irish congener. The wood of the latter is used by the Indians for bows. Some of these largest firs are from 80 to 100 feet high, and three feet through. The yews gave a funereal appearance to this region, and well they might, for within a few miles of the Van Horn camp, the later made brush camp and the spots where the two skeletons had been found, were pointed out. But, no Indians are there now to annoy or endanger you. We did not even see or feel their spirits guarding the weird spot. The Van horn camp is marked by several felled trees and their stumps, very old and about the size needed for building cabins. Near by also stand three white spruces, or firs (Abies taxifolia), a foot or two in diameter. Together they form a triangle. They are but a few feet apart. Deep into their bark the Indians have cut

SOME OF THEIR RUDE FIGURES,

Evidently as a record of an important event that occurred there. These figures are sometimes spoken of as crosses. But close inspection shows that one is that peculiar form of a man with a hat on, and the other of a man lengthened into a lizard, as it were, that abound among the hieroglyphics of the "Painted Rocks" of Arizona, and which were made, no doubt, by some branch of the Utes to whom the Pah-Utes of Owens river are known to be allied.

Not far from these camps is abundance of red cement along the base of Red Cement hill. Somewhere near is supposed to be the famous cement mine, now entirely covered with pumice, and concealed from view, as related in a former chapter. The hight of this locality above the sea level is not far from 9,500 feet.

After carefully examining this interesting and really historical ground, so curious as a study in wild nature, without reference to its odd traditions or to the supposed mineral wealth that lies buried in the immediate neighborhood, we ascend the slope of Red Cement hill, and, from a commanding point, overlooked the country northward, towards Mono Lake around Gid Whiteman's camp.

We passed several claims that have been duly located within the last year or two. On the northern slope of this red volcanic cone or crater, we found deep beds of snow. Just beyond this, among the firs and well up the mountain side, Mr. Wilson selected a spot for the promised blast. It was in a bed of black, spongy lava, near which lay numerous bowlders, of every size, up to many tons' weight, of the red lava that forms the top of the cone. Small fragments of black, glassy obsidian were also found occasionally. While the work of drilling, charging and tamping was going on, and we gazed at and chatted occasionally about the obsidian mountains to northward, and other peaks and ridges to northwest in Prescott District, there came to our ears slight sounds, in the midst of a stillness otherwise profound. They came apparently from a point west of us, beyond a narrow gorge, under a steep, reddish brown cliff, between a quarter and half a mile away. Tap, tap, tap.

LISTEN!

There it is again—tap! tap! tap! tap! It is the distant click of a hammer upon the head of a drill! Some one is at work there prospecting for gold, but he does not show himself or hail us, yet he must hear us. My friend, the veteran cement hunter, looks up, and with a mysterious nod or two, "There," said he, "is a cement hunter secretly looking for it now, you can bet your life!" No doubt it was. And how with us? Were we hunting and yearning for it, too? We may as well "acknowledge the corn." My comrade had been seeking it for fourteen years, and could the writer have found such a gold bearing ledge, it would have made him, with a lot of the very best of people, happy for life. But never let the "auri sacra fames" get the best of us! This was the last "cement hunting" on record; yet, no doubt, many have quietly yet diligently sought it since, as some will do again next Summer and for years to come, until many more valuable veins are found. The blast was soon fired, quite a hole was made, and the queer, vitreous, porous, dark lava was carefully examined, but no sign of gold there. Perhaps it is just as well so. That statement, "It is death to the finder," does not whet the appetite much for it, anyhow, does it? even if we don't believe the threat of the spirits.

The bright July afternoon was fast wearing away. Then came a hearty hand shake and good-by; a solitary ride eight or ten miles over a dreary waste, and by trail through the dense forests to Mammoth City; five miles more through Pine City and among the beautiful lake sources of Owens river; over Pumice Gap and the great Summit Ridge of the Sierra Nevada to Pott's meadow—most of the last ride after dark, along the soft pumice trail now familiar to horse and rider. How sound and dreamless was that good night's rest for a weary body, rolled in blankets on the ground, side by side with a hardy mountaineer, under a thick spruce brush shelter!

Next morning early, French's saddle train was joined for Fresno Flats, about fifty miles a little south of west of us, and soon over the rugged, winding mountain trail we were leaving far behind us, but never to be forgotten, the grand, wild, mysterious scenes of the Owens river war and the cement hunters.

Now, readers, you have the facts. While it is not here asserted that all the incidents related of this cement hunting are positively true, the fidelity with which the most authentic traditions connected therewith are recorded in this sketch, as told to the writer, is vouched for.

Should another chapter on this subject appear, it will be a brief romance founded on facts connected with this history.

N. B.—If readers detect error of date or details in any part of this descriptive and narrative sketch, the writer will deem it a favor to be so informed by letter, through the office of the Post, for correction in any reprint.

A WATER BILL.

Judge Sayle, of Fresno, has introduced in the Assemby a bill for the regulation of water supply to canal and ditch companies. It authorizes Boards of Supervisors to form ditch and canal districts on rivers or water courses of the capacity of twenty cubic feet or more per second, and may change the boundaries annually. They are further authorized to appoint water commissioners in the respective districts for a term of five months, namely, from the 15th of July to the 15th of December. These commissioners are to take charge of all head-gates and all heads of canals, and to distribute the water according to the law applicable to such cases. Water commissioners are to be paid $100 per month, to be paid by the owners of the canals or ditches. Where the ditch or canal runs through more than one county, the Supervisors of that one having the greatest number of miles shall appoint the commissioner.

The above plan may work very well in general, but we would like to know what sense there would be in a commissioner not entering upon his duties until so late in the season? In this section, at least, the period for general irrigation is then within a month or six weeks of its close for the year. The remainder of the five months the commissioner would have nothing to do as such except to sit around and suck his thumbs and draw his salary.

As a "cinching machine," engineered by Sand Lot sentiments, the New Constitution is proving a notable success. It has cinched seven banks out of existence, reduced savings deposits $13,000,000, sent twice that amount to New York, set 2,000 Sand Lot Saints to parading the streets, the hardest work the most of that gang have done since they left San Quentin, has thrown thousands of honest workers out of employment, has enabled Mrs. Smith to lay up much cash while championing the rights of unemployed women, given her a chance to tell the truth in saying she and her sort would rather steal than work in the country, has got the fire-eating Gannon pulled in by the police, caused the Honorable Braunhart to be badgered and worried by that Tyler till he got himself disgracefully suspended—worst of all, it has led to the immortal Dinis himself getting snatched up and despitefully used and not allowed to set foot in the capitol building at all—all this and much more has the new instrument done just by way of a "before breakfast spell."

THE ages of the prominent candidates for the Presidency are as follows: Grant will be fifty-eight next April; Blaine was fifty last January; Washburne was sixty-three in September; Sherman will be fifty-eight in May; Conkling was fifty in October; Garfield is in his forty-ninth year; Bayard is fifty-one; Hendricks was sixty in September; Thurman was sixty-six in October; Tilden will be sixty-six this month; Hancock is fifty-five; Seymour will be seventy next May. In Europe the principal rulers and military generals have passed their seventieth year.

SOME months ago the Canadian Government issued an order prohibiting the importation of cattle from the United States for fear of pleuro-pneumonia, and as a retort Secretary Sherman at once issued an order prohibiting importation of Canadian cattle into the United States. The Canadian authorities have been in consultation with Treasury officials, and, as a result, both orders have been revoked and the embargo has been removed.

THE state of Prince Bismarck's health is exciting fresh apprehensions. His nervous system is overstrained, as a result of the heavy tax he has been in the habit for years of laying upon it. It is said that his physicians have given him the choice between continuing the labors of his office and experiencing complete prostration, with a probably fatal result, or to take a temporary retirement from his official duties.

THE Eastern papers are full of items showing the reckless freedom with which the Western miner handles coin as well as deringers. The latest fable is of a Leadville miner who attended a ball in Chicago, got drunk, became very warm while waltzing, took off his coat and laid it in a window. A police officer took possession of the coat and found in a pocket $127,000 in bills!

DR. TOLAND, one of the best known physicians on the coast, was buried in San Francisco last Monday. He was the founder of the Toland Medical College.

THE REVENUE BILLS.

The County Assessors throughout the State should have begun the work of listing taxable property for the current year on the 4th instant; presumably, none have yet begun, simply because the State Board has not yet been able to inform them what kinds of values are or are not to be listed, having to await legislation for enlightement in regard to such particulars. The Legislature has been worrying over the matter for fifty-five dreary days. The point they have been especially trying to understand is as to whether the following section means double or single taxation on certain kinds of values:

All property in the State, not exempt by the laws of the United States, shall be taxed in proportion to its value, to be ascertained as provided by law. The word "property" as used in this article and section, is hereby declared to include moneys, credits, bonds, stocks, dues, franchises, and all other things real, personal and mixed, capable of private ownership; provided, that growing crops, property used for public schools,

Etcetera, should be exempt. The principal point at issue was whether this section of the Constitution provided for double taxation, and whether to tax bonds, notes, certificates of stocks, certificates of bank deposits, the bank deposits themselves, capital of banks, of corporations, and all such things, all at the same time would or would not be double taxation. The Sand-lotters, to a man of course, contended with tremendous force that it could not be double taxation to tax property once and its representative in writing once—and if it was double taxation it was all right, since to cinch capital was the chief hope of sustenance for the honest toilers of the sand-lot whose servants they were. Some ordinarily intelligent and decent people had arrived at the same general conclusion, but had reached it from a different stand point, to wit: that each and every property holder and each and every holder of paper representative values of the same property could and should be taxed alike, one for the property itself, the other for its representative paper, and it would not be double taxation simply because all the parties concerned are constitutionally given the right of exemption on the amount of their several liabilities, provided (in the Constitution) that this exemption should apply in favor of debtor taxpayers only whose creditors reside in this State, no deduction being allowed debts due non-residents. So the merchant in San Francisco who buys his goods mostly on credit in New York pays taxes on all of the goods he may have on hand and all that he has sold on time to Oregon, Nevada, Arizona or home customers, without being allowed a dollar of rebate on any except for the last. His brother merchant next door, doing the same amount and kind of business, except that he is in debt to home manufacturers for his stock, is allowed full exemption for the full equivalent of his liabilities. It is unjust if not double taxation on the first named this far: that he is taxed for all the evidences of indebtedness he may hold against any and all his outside customers the same as he is on those against debtor customers resident in the State; but he is allowed no deduction whatever on what he himself may owe to non-resident creditors, though such indebtedness might equal the cash value of his entire stock in trade. The one is taxed for all that he owes and all that is owing to him, while the other is taxed on the latter only. A mining company is to pay taxes on its capital stock and at the same the shares of the same stock are to be taxed in the hands of the individual holders; and if its mines and the whole of its tangible values should be outside the State, with liabilities there equal to its assets, more or less, no account is to be taken of those liabilities—which, practically amounts to treble taxation: once on its capital stock, once on individual shares of the same and once, in effect, on its debts, since no deduction is allowed for them if it is a Nevada or other outside company. The same is true of the capital stock of banks and other incorporated institutions and their shares and certificates in the hands of stockholders and depositors. Senator Moreland says it is nobody's business if the same piece of property is taxed twice or more the same year so that the assessments are paid by different individuals. The "Minority Bill," which passed the Assembly, 60 to 15, says the same thing. The Senate does not know what to do about it, and there is no telling when the Assessors will get their lists.

A LARGE paper manufacturer of Philadelphia, who was one of the fortunate bidders at the recent award made by the Joint Committee on Printing of the two Houses for printing paper for the Government Printing Office for the current year, was in Washington a few days ago. The awards were made only about six weeks since, yet in that time paper has advanced to such an extent that the gentleman says that he will be $60,000 out by his contract with the Government.

THE condition for acquiring a title to mineral lands prescribed in the new bills sent to Congress by the Public Land Commissioner, are substantially as follows, according to a Washington dispatch of the 28th ultimo: First, marking the position of the claim on the ground by monuments and posting notices thereon; second, by the discovery within said claim of a lode, placer or other valuable mineral deposit, either before the posting of said notice or within thirty days thereafter; third, within ninety days from the posting of said notice the locator must file with the United States Surveyor General, for the surveying of the district in which his claim is located, a copy of said posted notices, together with proof of mineral discovery, and an application for the survey of his claim and evidence that he had deposited to the credit of the United States, in the proper United States depository, the sum of fifty dollars; fourth, that within one year from the approval by the Surveyor General of the survey, which shall be made by some duly appointed Mineral Surveyor, the locator, his assigns, or his duly authorized agent, must file in the proper Land Office an application for a patent, under oath, together with a copy of the plot.

ABOUT 9 o'clock on Sunday night last, Baldwin, proprietor of the Five Mile House on the Carson road, shot a Norwegian known as Andy. The latter was on a jamboree and threatened to clean out the ranch. He smashed in the front door with an ax, after being ejected from the building. The ax was taken from him. He then got a pick and proceeded to finish up the job. At this juncture Baldwin gave Andy the contents of a double-barreled shotgun, taking effect in the right side, making a hole big enough to put a duck egg in. Andy kept on with his pick, broke the door in, and succeeded in stampeding every one in the house. He was finally arrested by the Sheriff. The wound is a serious though not probably fatal one.

IT seems there has been an astonishing decrease in the percentage of lead in the ore of the Leadville mines, and the smelters are confronted by a famine in the article that was superabundant a few months ago. A local paper says: "A year ago, had any one predicted that January, 1880, would see a reduction of fifty per cent. in the percentage of lead in our ores, a heavy rise in the price of lead, and a famine in the high grade lead ore market, he would have been denounced as an ass or an idiot. This has come to pass, however, and we have the figures to show for it. Unless a sudden change comes in the character of our ores, or a new supply of high grade ore is obtained, there is a radical change in smelting methods, or many furnaces will be compelled to shut down.

A DISPATCH from Salt Lake of the 1st instant says a snow slide occurred in Logan Cañon, twenty-five miles from Logan City, which buried six men and several teams. Four of the men were got out, but the last reports say two men and three teams are still buried in the snow. Twenty-five men left Logan at 11 o'clock to dig for the unfortunate ones, and thirty more left for the same purpose shortly after. The names of those buried are not known.

AT Aurora, last Sunday, two youngsters—Benny Barlow and Roy Clarke—aged respectively eight and nine years, had a difficulty. Clarke drew a knife on Barlow, when the latter drew a six-shooter and fired, the ball taking effect in his right cheek, passing through the lobe of the right ear. Young Clarke's wound was dressed and pronounced not dangerous. As Benny Barlow claimed to have done the act in self-defense, no arrests were made.

CROWLEY sent to the Society of California Pioneers the sword of the late Emperor Norton I., taken from that eccentric individual in 1865, when he drew it upon a person who was tantalizing him in a saloon. Up to this time the sword has been kept among the collection of curiosities in the Police office.

COLORADO is a humbug and the Skagit country is a delusion, when compared with Franktown, Washoe county, Nevada. In 1850 about $80,000 were buried there, and the people are in search of it. Here is a bonanza almost in sight, yet no one grows enthusiastic.

BODIE has another daily paper—the Chronicle, published by R. M. and A. C. Folger, having come out as a daily. In appearance it is a decided improvement over the late weekly. We doubt if there is a town in the world that has more dailies to the population and square inch than Bodie.

GOV. PERKINS has offered a reward of $300 for the arrest and conviction of the person who attempted to assassinate James Skinner, in White Oak township, El Dorado county, on the 11th of last December.

The Bodie Railroad.

It is estimated that the extension of the V. and T. Railroad from the Mound House to Bodie will cost $2,000,000. The ties and rails have been ordered and will shortly arrive at the former place, and it is the intention of the management to put 1,000 laborers to work within four weeks. The prospect of the immediate building of the Nevada Southern from Austin to Columbus and Candelaria, and possibly to Bodie, will stimulate the V. and T. people to greater exertions than they might otherwise put forth. The Nevada Monthly, speaking of the Mound House and Bodie road says: "The entire length of the road will be laid with steel rails, of fifty-six pounds' weight for steep grades (about eight miles), and forty-five pounds' weight for the balance of the route. The cost of the rails alone, delivered at the Mound House, will be about $400,000. Fish plates and spikes will cost at least $50,000 more. Rails have more than doubled in price within the past six months. Redwood ties will be used, costing about seventy cents each. Several bridges, crossing the East Walker river, will have to be built, at considerable expense. Oregon pine and redwood will be used in their construction, valued at $45 per 1,000." H. M. Yerington, Vice President and General Superintendent of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, will act as General Manager and Superintendent of Construction, and James Oliver will be Chief Engineer in charge.

With these two roads—the Mound House and Bodie, and the Nevada Southern—in active operation (and both are sure to be constructed as rapidly as possible), the rich mineral region of Mono, Esmeralda and Inyo counties will offer greater inducements for capital than any similar area on the continent; and it does look as if this long-neglected section would, within a year or two, enjoy such a boom as the early settlers never expected to witness.—Bodie Standard.

S. J. Tilden's Nevada Railroads.

The Nevada Southern Railway Company was organized at Battle Mountain yesterday, for the purpose of extending the Battle Mountain and Austin Railroad southwest from the latter place to Grantsville, Columbus, Candelaria and Silver Peak. The Company has the same officers as the Nevada Central. At the same time and place, and with the same officers, the Nevada Northern Railway Company was organized to build a railroad from Battle Mountain through Idaho and Oregon to the Columbia river. The Southern road will be extended from Silver Peak to the Colorado river in time. Although the surveys for the road from Austin to Columbus were made during the present Winter, the work was carried on with so much secrecy that but few persons were aware that it had been performed. The New York parties who built and own the Battle Mountain and Austin road, also own a large tract of valuable mining ground at Silver Peak, and hence they have made that place the objective point of the Southern road for the present. These parties are Samuel J. Tilden and company, but Tilden's name is kept in the background; and, in fact, all the "New York parties" are kept in the background, except Gen. James H. Ledlie, President and Superintendent; Rob. L. S. Hall, Treasurer, and Lyman Bridges, Chief Engineer. The reason so much secrecy was observed in making the surveys from Austin into Esmeralda county, was that the New York parties wanted to head off the Virginia and Truckee branch road to the same region—as we were informed two days ago that the Nevada Southern would be pushed from Austin to Columbus "faster than an ox team could be driven along the same route."—Bodie Standard, Feb. 26.

AMONG the most foolish bills passed by the Assembly is one requiring physicians' prescriptions to be written in English. The Legislature, to have shown good, sound sense, should have required them to have been written entirely in Latin. There is but one universal language for scientists, and that is the Latin. A prescription written wholly in Latin is perfectly intelligible in New York, San Francisco, Hong Kong, Calcutta, Madrid, Paris, Berlin, Rotterdam or St. Petersburg. Exactly the same medicine will be dispensed and in the same quantities. If prescriptions are written in English, we have a confusion of names that is not only bewildering, but positively dangerous. There is no doubt that many people are injured, if not killed outright, in this way. The common English name for one drug in one part of the country is applied to an entirely different one in another. A man who does not know the scientific name of drugs is not fit to practice or dispense medicine. We hope the Senate, when the bill comes before it, will promptly sit down upon it. It is pernicious legislation and should be summarily squelched.—Colton Semi-Tropic.

THE quinine monopolists are lobbying in Congress for the revival of the tariff on quinine, removed at the last session. To renew this tariff is to put a tax on health, as quinine is indispensible throughout the United States of which no section is free from malarious diseases. It is asserted that the cinchona tree, from the bark of which quinine is made, will flourish in California. It is a native of Peru, and nearly everything that grows in Peru can be cultivated in some part of California. Mr. Kelley has introduced in the House of Representatives a bill to provide for the introduction and cultivation of the cinchona tree in the United States. With proper governmental encouragement, the experiment of the introduction of the tree can be tried with small expense to individuals, and we hope to see some of our California arboriculturists make the trial. If it is a success it will not only create a new industry but will smash the monopoly that fattens at the expense of the health of the poor.—Stock Report.

The Bodie Railroad.

The Carson Tribune intimates that the chances of building the Bodie road are becoming less every day, and all because of the opposition to Chinese laborers. If the Nevada Central could hire white men at $13 25 per week, there is no reason why the V. & T. cannot. The V. & T. has always stood better with the people than any other railroad, because among many good deeds it has paid its employés very high wages, and paid promptly; in fact, it has promptly met all its obligations, and never attempted to discount its own paper. The people would rather the Bodie road should charge the full maximum rates for fare and freight for such a time until it had fully made up the difference between free and slave labor, than that Chinamen should be employed in building of the road. Besides this, there is a State law upon the subject, and the builders of the Bodie road have no right to disregard it until it is decided unconstitutional.

THE Missouri Congressmen seem to have as great a spite against California as is held by the California New Constitutionalists. One Missouri man tried to get the Chotteau treaty through, and another has introduced a bill imposing an onerous tax on California champagne. This bill will fail. It would be an outrage to put a burdensome tax on California champagne, as the article consists of grape juice with air pumped into it, and the expense for the air used in its manufacture is so great that the manufacturers are compelled to use cheap labels on the bottles in order to squeeze any profit out of the stuff. After all, though, it don't make much difference whether California champagne is taxed or not; for it is very common truck and about the only purpose for which it is really fit is to scald hogs with.—Stock Report.

THE efforts of the truly good are often thwarted in the most unforeseen manner. Sinc Barnes, the well known Nevada mining prospector, has recently settled in Candelaria. One of the first acts of this well-disposed person was to jump a suitable lot on which he determined to build a church. Thinking to lose no time in carrying out his commendable resolve, he at once tackeled the biggest poker game in town in preference to passing around the plate. While studying hard whether to draw to a four flush and discard the odd ace or draw to the ace alone, some evil-disposed person rejumped the claim, located a mine and had it bonded to some San Francisco capitalists. Barnes has forever sworn off from—church building.—Stock Report.

THE House Committee on Public Lands has agreed to report favorably Valentine's bill for the relief of settlers upon public lands. RELIGION has had a set back in Mason Valley. Last Sunday, while the pastor was reading a chapter from St. Paul, some one fired a shot, and in the rush the deacon's hat, with the day's contribution, was carried off. The outraged congregation is now in search of the hat.—Carson Tribune.

IN Antelope valley, last week, the drama of the "Ten Virgins" was produced for the benefit of the church. During the last act the plate was passed around among the audience, and a riot resulted. By omitting the final tableau quiet was restored. As to whether the ten virgins were bona fide residents of the valley, or imported from Virginia City, is not stated.—Carson Appeal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, MARCH 6.....1880

AT SEA—BEFOGGED.—The other day we copied a dispatch stating that a bill had passed the Senate "relinquishing to J. M. Cutler the Government title to forty acres of land near Camp Independence, California, which was donated for military purposes, but is no longer used by the Government." The oldest settlers in the valley have asked us who "J. M. Cutler was." Told them we hadn't the slightest knowledge, even traditional, of such a personage; supposed the old settlers knew him, especially as he was so liberal a man as to donate land to the United States Government, which has so much land to sell. "No, none of us ever heard of such a man in these parts, and we have ilved right here from twelve to sixteen years; guess he was a veteran soljer that died before he jined the army." So we are all in the fog as much as ever. And there are those who believe the Hon. Newton B. moved the passage of a bill which provides for a possible denouement of this nature, to wit: In the course of time, Congress will order the Post buildings disposed of; a man comes with full powers and says, "How much for all these commodious buildings, which cost the U.S. many thousand dollars in greenbacks during a time of profound peace; they must be sold to clear the land for public entry." "No you don't," says another man; "I am the heir and assign forever of the lamented J. M. Cutler; he donated this very forty-acre tract to the Government at the very time it most needed a forty-acre tract of sage brush land. In return for Mr. C's unprecedented liberality in donating Government land to the Government, the latter, through the quiet influence of the astute Senator Booth, re-donated the same back to Mr. C., or his representative, which happens to be the sort of a hair-pin I am. The land of itself is of no great value, and thus it comes that the numbers of the tract got mixed up so as to include these old buildings, which, of course, become a part of the realty. There's no harm done. Would you like to buy a dog for the Senator? The lamented Mr. C. was kind to the Republic, and the Republic didn't forget it. Good day." Then the old settlers notice that the fog has lifted, and remark: "Now, we see how it is; J. M. Cutler wasn't a man at all: he was a myth—front name might have been Jane. No wonder we were befogged."

OUT.—Among the official "outs" since last Monday are—several. We name Henry M. Isaacs, ex-County Treasurer, first, on account of his seniority in official position, having had practically the entire management of the office for more than eight years, as deputy and principal. An anti third-term sentiment among the voters at the last election is the only explanation for Harry's defeat at the polls, as his career as a competent and honest officer has been beyond criticism. In the Sheriff's office, J. J. Moore, another old-time incumbent, remains in charge of the inside work as Under Sheriff, he being the best posted man in the county as to all the details of such business. Deputy Wm. F. Welch is among the outs, to the unconcealed delight of law-breakers and the sincere regret of all property owners and admirers of a fearless and energetic peace officer. Ex-District Attorney Snelling, at present sojourning at Camp Independence, contemplates an early return to his old stamping-ground in Oregon—may good luck attend him. J. F. Dillon, County Assessor for two terms of four years each, quits the position with a clean record, and proposes to hie away unto the mountains with a prospecting outfit. "Pap" Lank, ex-Coroner and Administrator, professes a pleasure in getting out—he wants the "satisfaction of hearing another good man get abused," referring to his successor, Mr. V. G. Thompson.

RACES.—The Big Piners will announce, through posters to be distributed next week, races to be held at that place on the coming 16th, 17th and 18th instants. Purses amounting to about $125, to which entrance fees will be added, are offered to the winning horses in a 600-yard dash, free for all; 600-yard race for saddle horses, and a one-fourth mile run free for all. The sport will close with a grand ball wind-up, for which ample arrangements are being made and to which everybody is invited.

PERSONAL.—Among the arrivals in town to-day was Mr. J. W. A. Wright, the author of the interesting sketches upon the "Cement Hunters," one of which is given upon our first page. He is accompanied by Con. Ogg, a prominent and well known Comstocker, and brother to Sheriff Clem Ogg, of Esmeralda.

NEW STABLE.—Messrs. Irwin & Co. have leased the property known as Bennett's stables, lately conducted by B. L. Brown, and have opened the same as a regular feed and livery stable. See the advertisement.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.—Letters addressed to the following named persons remain at the Independence Post-office: W. H. Crawford, Cecelia Cadd, John Pixley, Thomas Kelly.

INTRODUCED.—On the 1st instant, Mr. Pacheco introduced a bill into the House "to donate Camp Independence to the counties of Inyo and Mono for high school purposes."

NEW TRAIL.—The merchants and business men of Lone Pine are building a fine new trail across the Inyos to the Beveridge District mines—a very commendable enterprise.

LOST.—Warrant upon the School Fund, No. 669, payment upon the original having been stopped. See notice.

APPOINTED P. M.—Geo. W. Rowan has just been appointed Postmaster at Mammoth City.

NEW DISTRICT.—At a miners' meeting, held pursuant to notice at the Flagstaff mine on Wednesday last, a new district was organized. There was present some ten or twelve mine-owners, not including Mr. Woodhull, of this place, and a representative of this paper. The district as segregated from Cerro Gordo, is bounded as follows: Commencing at the east side of Owens lake at the Swansea wharf and running northeasterly to the summit of the Inyo range, Boley & Tuttle's spring and Pump No. 2 of the Cerro Gordo Water Works being on the line; thence north along the summit of the mountains to Union Cañon; thence west to Owens river, and from thence south, meandering with the river and edge of the lake, to the place of beginning. "Silver Basin" District was the name first proposed, but the one more generally known was finally adopted—"Swansea." Col. A. G. Boley was chosen to act as Recorder for the first year. The United States mining laws and a local code very similar to those of Cerro Gordo were adopted, except that the Recorder is not absolutely required to visit and certify to new locations.

SCHOOL MONEYS.—School Superintendent J. W. Symmes has apportioned school moneys as follows:

District.	State and Co. Funds.	Library Funds.
Bishop Creek	$ 293 30	$40 74
Big Pine	308 22	25 82

CORRECTION.—It is seldom we have occasion to correct an erroneous statement, especially in such matters that come under the several heads of "Born," "Married" or "Died," care being taken to get authority from first hands in such instances. However, last week, the wife of D. B. Curtis, Esq., of Butte Ranch, was credited with the birth of a son, which statement, we are now informed, was not true. If there is any real harm done friend Curtis has one of his neighbors and a certain stage driver to blame for delivering the message here — which came so straight that its correctness was never questioned at the time.

MORE RACES. — The Independence Jockey Club has been active of late in preparing for a meeting and a series of races in April or early May. Sufficient has been subscribed to offer handsome purses for six hundred yards, half mile and mile and repeat races, but the exact programme has not as yet been fixed upon. John C. Irwin has been elected President and Daniel Crough, Secretary, to act for the ensuing year. A meeting will be held at Mr. S. P. Moffat's office on Tuesday evening next, when all persons interested are expected to put in an appearance.

LOCATING IT.—Capt. Keeler, with Surveyor Seeley and force, are engaged in fixing a site for a new mill on the lake near the Cerro Gordo landing. The machinery lately purchased by the company from Harris & Rhine of this place, is shortly to be removed. Late practical experiments with the lake water demonstrates just what has been hitherto claimed for it—that it possesses all the mineral constituents necessary for ore amalgamation, and with this idea the water is to be pumped into the pans of the new mill.

CARDS.—Elsewhere this week will be found the official cards of our leading county officers for the ensuing year—Sheriff Jas. W. Smith, with J. J. Moore as Under Sheriff, County Clerk John Crough and District Attorney John W. P. Laird. The several officers enter upon their duties with the full confidence of the public as to their competency and ability, notwithstanding the changes and new requirements likely to arise under the general uncertainties of the new Constitution and new laws.

SUPERIOR COURT.—His Honor Judge Hannah called Court on Tuesday last, and after calling up the calendar of cases, set the trial of Michael Welch, charged with the murder of the late Sheriff Wm. L. Moore, for Monday, March 15th, at which time Gen. Kittrell, of Nevada, one of the defendant's counsel, has been notified to attend.

MOVING.—The entire store building of L. Wood has been on wheels for the past two or three days, and will probably be settled to its new place on the corner of Market and Edwards streets to-day. The change will be quite advantageous to the establishment and add materially to the town's appearance.

JEWELER.—Frank Blaney, in conjunction with his postoffice duties, will attend to the business of repairing watches, clocks, jewelry, etc. Frank is an Independence boy, and identified with its interests, and having made himself master of his business should be patronized. See his card elsewhere.

WAUCOBA.—Mr. W. C. Chapin, a mining man of New York, but more recently from Colorado, is at present in Waucoba, making a thorough examination of the mines of that district.

HERE.—A. Wingard, well known as the former superintendent of the Silver Sprout, is in town again from San Francisco, and he proposes to occupy the Summer in mining matters of this region.

PREACHING APPOINTMENTS.—Rev. F. M. Willis will preach in Independence at 11 A. M. to-morrow; George's Creek at 3 P. M.; at the Post, at 7 P. M. next Tuesday.

LATE.—The Northern mail has been getting in quite late in the day for some time, probably owing to heavy snows this side of Aurora.

POISONING BY THE BARK OF LOCUST TREE.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Last Saturday, February 28, my four girls, aged respectively eight, six, five and three years, together with three other children of the neighborhood, were playing in my yard. One of them proposed to cut a slice of the locust bark (Robinia pseudo acacia) and divide its pieces among each, to be chewed instead of candy, which they did at 11 A. M. At noon they took a hearty dinner with me, and I remarked that the two youngest girls asked very frequently for water. Fifteen minutes after dinner they commenced vomiting profusely, and it was then that I could ascertain from the oldest girl the true cause of the mischief. The vomiting continued unabated with some, and with the others at intervals of ten or fifteen minutes, until the stomach got cleaned of its contents. I put them all in an ample room to be able to assist assiduously and watch closely each one, and noted that the principal symptom in all was like that produced by narcotic poisons, especially belladonna. Some were very sleepy; others in a complete stupor, with dilated pupils. All were pale, cold and staggering, moving their limbs convulsively and drawing their knees tight to the chest, complaining of burning of throat and stomach. But the most striking effects of the poison were shown in the youngest one, my own little pet, whose mortal palor, absence of pulse, livid lips, sunken eyes and complete insensibility and prostration, for three long hours, made me almost despair of her recovery. Warm stimulants by the mouth and rectum, counter-irritation, strong coffee, smelling salts, hot frictions and flagellation, brought her finally to life and consciousness. At 6 o'clock P. M. all were out of danger, but very sleepy, and at 7 P. M. were put to bed after partaking of a little gruel and tea, and all slept sound with normal circulation and respiration until sunrise, when I saw them with rosy cheeks, lively as ever, and asking for a big breakfast.

In the medical records I find three known cases of children poisoned by eating the root of the same tree, with symptoms closely resembling those stated above; and I truly hope that a scientific investigation of the properties of the locust may result in adding to our materia medica and therapeutics some valuable preparation in the form of a safe purgative and emetic, or a sure hypnotic, and eventually an efficient tonic and febrifuge. The boundaries of science are infinite.

Very truly, yours,
P. G. GELCICH.

ON the 8th of this month, Hon. Simon Cameron will have completed his 81st year. Mr. Cameron was born at Maytown, Pennsylvania, in 1799—less than a year before the close of the last century. His grandfather, Simon Cameron, was a Scotch immigrant, and the venerable Senator has always displayed, in a conspicuous degree, the sturdy qualities of his ancestry. Mr. Cameron has always been a notable exception to the general rule, with regard to American politicians, in the fact that he has maintained his activity and his interest in politics to a green old age. For many years he has been a conspicuous figure in our politics, and is likely to be kept prominently before the public for some time to come, in the person of his son—the present Senator.

SUIT has been commenced in the Superior Court of San Francisco by Henry Ingraham against the True Blue Mining Company of Mammoth, for an injunction to restrain the defendants from selling certain stock which has been declared delinquent by reason of the non-payment of an assessment of 10 cents a share, levied on the 2d of last December, on the ground that the assessment was illegally made.

A FAMILY has turned up in Indiana said to be worse than the famous Benders. The family's name is Brown, and the crimes which they are reported to have been committed are atrocious and brutal. Brown was recently murdered by his wife and her paramour. To him and his family are traced five mysterious murders for money.

MAMMOTH must, this Winter, have had a deal of weather, or a weather deal of extraordinary roughness. In the whole game, so far as communication with the outside world is concerned, she hasn't taken a trick in a month. At least we have not received a copy of either of her local papers during that space of time.

IT is believed that the mine which exploded under the Czar's dining hall, killing eight persons and wounding 40, was laid within the palace. If this suspicion should prove to be correct, the recent boast of the Nihilists, that their power extended to the foot of the throne, was no idle threat.

AT a prize-fight that occurred in the vicinity of Philadelphia recently, one of the pugilists dealt the other such a blow on the head with his fist that he broke that individual's skull. It is said he cannot recover.

THE representatives of the Six Chinese Six Companies are en route to Washington to ask the Government if it intends to protect Chinese citizens in this country.

IT is stated that a Democratic paper will soon appear in San Francisco, with $50,000 capital.

WE are informed by telegraph that the Winter Palace of the Czar is about the most accessible place in the Kingdom. It is the regular resort for thieves, tramps and vagabonds of all descriptions, who he around throughout the year to the number of several thousand. Their excuse from such familiarity with the Czar's favorite residence, is that they have no other place to sleep. Most of them eat there also, and some have hung about the place so long that the Czar can hardly tell them from his royal household. Such hard cheek as this would astonish the people of America, where such liberties are not allowed. If the food falls a little below the standard, and the flap-jacks for breakfast are a little cold, the outraged parasites blow the head of the house up with a few tons of dynamite. The Czar escapes, and a few minutes afterward the man who touches off the mine rings in on the family prayers and asks the old fellow for a chew of navy twist, while congratulating him on his escape. For a free and easy place, Russia takes the palm.—Carson Appeal.

JOHN NEVINS was a fireman on the Evart and Osceola Railroad in Michigan. A log was chained to the track one night, and his locomotive was wrecked, killing him instantly. His widow sued the company for $5,000 damages. While the suit was pending, a good looking young fellow made her acquaintance, professed to fall in love with her, and made a marriage engagement. Having confidence in him, Mrs. Nevins told him that the log was placed on the track at her request, she desiring to get rid of her husband, while they were to have all the money that could be gained by the lawsuit. The wooer induced her to repeat the story in the heating of concealed witnesses, and then had her arrested. He was a detective in the company's employ.

THE Emperor William, feeling the weight of years, extremely dislikes to have his son, the Crown Prince, leave him, even for short journeys. His Majesty, who has hitherto borne the fatigues of the court season remarkably well, astonishes everybody by his freshness and vigor. He is said to be far from pleased at the early close of this year's festivities, which terminated rather prematurely, owing to the speedy commencement of Lent.

A Giant Project.

It has long been known that the owners of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad are men of large capital and and unbounded enterprise, and that they have regarded their property as destined to become one of the most important parts of the railway system of this continent. It was thought, however, that their ambition was confined to an outlet to the Pacific coast. But recent advices indicate that they will ultimately have two routes to the Pacific coast and another through Mexico to a port on the Gulf of California, and at which point they expect to command the trade of Australia and New Zealand and the South American States.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad now extends to Las Vegas in New Mexico, and arrangements are said to have been completed for extending the road southwest, almost upon an air-line through the northwestern part of Mexico, to Guaymas on the Gulf of California. Special concessions have been obtained from the Mexican Government, such as the free admission of iron without duty, which alone will save about $2,000 per mile in the cost of construction. It is believed that this road will open up a vast and rich region of minerals, including gold, silver and copper mines, and a deposit of anthracite coal almost as large as that of Pennsylvania, and fully equal to the later in quality. The territory through which this Mexican road will run is said to be rich enough to afford two crops of grain in the year, and to be favorable to the growing of cotton, tobacco and sugar cane. The whole Pacific coast and the southwestern States and Territories will be open markets to the new road, and Australia and New Zealand will be brought several hundred miles nearer the United States than they are by the present route.

In addition to the connection with the Pacific coast by way of the Gulf of California, the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad will reach Southern California by way of the Southern Californian road, which it will cross on its way to Mexico, and by a direct line which it proposes to build to San Francisco under the valuable charter of the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad along the thirty-sixth parallel. The San Francisco Board of Trade has extended a hearty welcome to this new enterprise, and has substantially guaranteed all necessary rights of way and terminal facilities. The wealth and character of the gentlemen who are interested in these several projects give an assurance that they will be pushed forward with dispatch. Their enterprise acquires an additional importance and should command special sympathy from the public because the projectors are in no way tied up to the present railroad monopolists of New York and San Francisco. Boston capital is at the back of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé and the new projects which the corporation has in hand, and there is every reason to believe that this new transcontinent l road, reaching out in three different directions, will be operated independently of existing combinations.—Chicago Tribune.

THE completion of the Mt. St. Gothard tunnel, which was announced by telegraph the other day, is a wonderful triumph of engineering skill. The tunnel is nine and a quarter miles long and pierces the Alps, affording direct communication through Switzerland, between the Rhenish Provinces of Germany and Italy. The cost was $9,700,000, and the work was completed in six months less than the time contracted for. M. Louis Faver, who had charge of the stupendous work, did not live to see it completed, having died last Fall. The famous Mt. Cenis tunnel, previously the longest in the world, is now secondary to the Mt. St. Gothard.

Sensible Conclusions.

The New York Herald gives some common-sense opinions on the sand-lot business in San Francisco. It says, editorially:

In San Francisco, as well as in New York, it is argued that the arrest of Kearney is a farce, since he will be tried, if at all, before a Judge put in office by the Kearney party, and by a jury chosen to acquit through the good offices of a Sheriff of the same political hue. Well, if that is true, it is important that it should be known; and any movement which demonstrates either the truth or the falsity of this statement, is not farcical. If there is a man anywhere in the country who is superior to the laws; if there is a man who can with impunity commit offenses for which other men would be punished; if there is any individual in this Republic who cannot be reached by justice, there is no fact that should be more distinctly known. Perhaps, therefore, the arrest of Kearney may have been planned in order to put the judicial machinery of San Francisco, as the popular party has made it, on exhibition before the country just at this moment, to give it a chance to prove that the allegation that Kearney cannot be tried like another man is a calumny, or that the allegation is true. The Citizens' Protective Union propose to really perform the only duty for which such a body could be organized—to purge the city of lawless and abominable characters. It undoubtedly means to do this legally if possible. It cannot, and, we presume, will not proceed in any other than in a legal manner until it knows that the laws and Courts are worthless instruments; and it can only be known by a fair experiment. That experiment is to be made on Kearney. If he cannot be punished by the Courts, Courts are useless to protect anybody but rogues; and this being known, the case will be presented for the citizens to act without them. Kearney's arrest, thus considered, seems to us as an important event.

WHILE the National bankrupt law was in existence there was a universal clamor for its repeal. Hardly is the repeal cold till another National bankrupt law is wanted and Congress is overwhelmed with petitions for its enactment. The conditions as regards the different States are so varied that it is next to impossible to enact a generally applicable bankrupt law that will meet the wishes and satisfy the wants of all. One section contains a debtor class and another a creditor class, and each wants the law framed in its own behalf. The consequence is, that any law which benefits one section is injurious to the other. For each State to make its own bankrupt laws is likewise unsatisfactory; for the debtor State will enact a law for the benefit of the debtor class and the creditor State one for the creditor class. Congress is not exactly the body to frame a bank rupt act, because it contains more politicians and lawyers than business men who understand the subject, and the politicians each want to make record to secure votes in their own States, and accordingly only favor a law that is in the interest of the State. The fact is undeniable that a general bankrupt law is needed. To secure the enactment of a law that shall be equal and just in its workings, we suggest that a convention of merchants be called, the principal commercial city in each State to be represented and such representation to represent that parti ular State, and the delegates to be chosen by the Board of Trade or Chambers of Commerce of such cities, to meet at Washington, and there, after due deliberation and discussion, frame and agree upon a bill to be presented to Congress for enactment. Without this or a similar course, there will never be anything but confusion and unequal justice in the workings of bankrupt laws in the United States.—Stock Report.

THINGS are working nicely to educate the New Yorkers up to the beauties of the Chinese influx. Already a case of leprosy has been discovered, the leper being a Chinaman regularly employed in a cigar factory. It is a pleasant reflection for smokers of New York cigars that they are liable to smoke a cigar made by a leprous Chinaman. But leprosy is only one of the unpleasant concomitants of the Chinaman, and the New Yorkers will soon discover that the Chinese colony over which they now rejoice so greatly, is one of the greatest misfortunes that ever befel their city. They will likewise find that it was easier to establish the colony than it will be to root it out. Here in California we say the Chinese must go, but they don't go to any great extent. A few emigrants to New York, but new recruits are continually arriving from China. And under any circumstances it is going to be a difficult matter to get rid of them. When first they came to the Pacific Coast they were welcomed, as they now are in the East, but their traits and characteristics were not understood. A closer acquaintance developed them to be the most undesirable population that ever cursed a country.—Stock Report.

"MY children," began Mr. Collyer as his family gathered round the breakfast table at his residence, "we should remember as we sit here surrounded by plenty that one hundred and two years ago to-day George Birthington was passing his washday—I mean George Worthington was washing his birthday—of course, what I intend to say is, Warge Joshington was boshing his washday." "Hang it!" exclaimed Mr. Blifkins excitedly, "I want you to understand that the immortal father of this country, George Goshington, was starving at Valley Forge."

Railroad Amenities.

"I suppose, porter," the fat passenger remarked, as he filed into the Boston sleeper, "I suppose you can let me have a nice lower berth?"

And the porter said he could; just one lower than the roof. The fat passenger sighed and yielded to his fate.

"I don't mind it so much," he said; "the last time I had a lower berth, the man above me got up four time to get a drink, and every time but one, when he came down, he swung under his birth, and struck both feet into my stomach. The other time he struck them in my face."

"It's pleasant," the man with the sample cases said, "to sleep over the man who snores in three or four languages."

"Yes," said the cross passenger, "or over a nervous man, who sits up suddenly, bolt upright, every time the engine whistles, bumps his head against the bottom of your berth with a crash, and swears you awake for the next twenty miles."

"Or over the man who groans in his sleep," the tall, thin passenger remarked, "and makes you think he is going to be murdered or is dying, and then he gets cross and snarls at you if you ask him what is the matter."

"And it's pleasant to get up in the morning and find that the man in the lowest berth has put on your shoes," said the fat passenger.

"Or to lay your brush and comb down in the dressing-room, and have the big stock-driver at the other ewer pick them up and rake down his thatch with them, under the impression that they belong to the car."

"Or have some fellow lay the cake of soap on your tooth-brush."

"Or to lay your clean collar and cuffs down on a seat while you wash, and have some passenger about the build of our fat friend come along and sit down on them."

"Or to get partly through with your ablutions, and stand with your hands and hair dripping and your eyes full of soap, and find the last clean towel gone and the porter down at the other end of the car at the ladies' dressing-room."

"Tickets for your berths, please," the porter said, and the convention adjourned and scrambled into its skylight berths.—Hawkeye.

FRIDAY evening Mr. Fred. Walker concluded to have a breakfast of fish; accordingly he bought fourteen specimens of that finny tribe popularly known as "catfish." During the night the members of the family were alarmed by noises in the kitchen. It was plain that some commotion was occurring in that important department of the house, and an investigation as to the causes was determined upon. The catfish which he had bought stiff and cold as icicles, were flopping around the floor at a lively rate, evidently doing their best to gain their natural element. The explanation of this strange occurrence is to be found in the fact that the fish were simply frozen. After placing them near the stove and giving them a chance to thaw out, they resuscitated and became the liveliest dead fish on record. What adds to the strangeness of the phenomenon is the distance the fish have traveled and the time they have been suffering from the cold weather. They were caught in the Sacramento river and have been out of water for the last four days. During these days they have been stiff, and one would judge the fish had as many lives as the animal after which they are named. The fish were placed in water and yesterday taken to the Jordan river and thrown in the sacred waters. It is to be hoped that should any one catch any of the horned fellows he will throw them back, such being the request of Mr. Walker.—Salt Lake Tribune.

CON. REILLY, an experienced mining expert, who has been to Candelaria and purchased some valuable locations there for San Francisco capitalists, came to Aurora last Wednesday to have the transfers recorded. Aside from being one of the best judges of mining property on the coast, Mr. Reilly is a perfect gentleman. He took a good survey of the leading mines in Columbus District, and informs us that he was more than pleased with what he saw. The Northern Belle, in his opinion, is as good now as in its palmiest days. The Mt. Diablo, Metallic, Mt. Potosi, East Diablo, Eastern Belle, Victor, Equator, Holmes and other prominent properties, are all that has been claimed for them. Mr. Reilly is confident that at the end of the coming Summer the mines of Columbus District will come into great prominence.—Esmeralda Herald.

NEVADA has a small population, but she is going into the hanging business strong. Five condemned murderers are now awaiting execution in that State. One, Pritchard, is to be hung in Storey county for the murder of officer Symonds in Gold Hill. C. W. Hymer is to swing in Humboldt for a murder committed in Paradise Valley last Summer. A Mexican named Lopez will slip his cable in Elko county, for murder and robbery, and two fellows named Lane and McIntyre are booked for the golden shore via the scaffold in Lincoln. California ought to do a little hanging, too. Suppose we begin with Kearney?—Bodie Standard.

IRELAND is not the only country that is suffering from famine. The German province of Upper Silesia is said to be in great distress, owing to the failure of the crops and the intensely cold weather. An appeal to this country has already been made for aid.

AN ILLUSTRATION.

A contemporary furnishes an illustration of how the Calamity (or Revenue) bill, just passed, will operate while "cinching capital," for which business the new Constitution was created. This is how it will work: A mining company is organized in San Francisco with a capital of $1,000,000, in a thousand shares of $1,000 each. The money is used to purchase a mine say in this county, erect the necessary buildings and furnish the machinery. The property is thereupon assessed by the Inyo Assessor, and charged with the tax upon $1,000,000. Next the company in San Francisco is taxed upon its capital of $1,000,000; this is only "fiat property"—a mere book account—the real property for which it stands being the mine which has already been assessed. Finally, the individual stockholders are taxed upon their shares, which are only certificates of interest in the mine. Thus the same million of dollars is taxed three times over, and is made to figure on the Assessor's roll as three millions. It is clear that all taxes on the mine and the capital must be paid by the shareholders, either in the shape of a direct personal payment to the Collector, or by deduction from their dividends. If the rate of taxation is $2 on $100, the holder of a thousand share will pay the following sums: $20 on the share; $20 as his proportion of the tax of $20,000 on the capital; $20 as his proportion of the tax on $20,000 on the mine; total, $60. Yet the only property in his possession is one share, worth $1,000, so that although the law fixes the rate at 2 per cent., he is actually compelled to pay 6 per cent. But now let us suppose that a bonanza capitalist sees fit to buy up the stock. Taking all the shares at par, he becomes the purchaser of the whole mine for $1,000,000. With a scratch of the pen he annihilates the corporation. He puts the certificates of stock in the fire. There is no more capital to be taxed; there are no more shares; nothing but the mine, of which he is the sole owner; the three millions have shrunk to one million, the tax of $60,000 has become $20,000; and the rich man pays 2 per cent. on the same property for which the small shareholders were taxed 6 per cent.—and a capitalist is cinched!

ALL hands connected with the Bentonian establishment have been sorely afflicted with inflamatory rheumatism since Tuesday. They mostly suffered the entire length of his right leg and their left shoulder. He is gradually improving in all parts of us.—Bentonian.

Notwithstanding these wide spread "rheumatises," that "force" gets out a bigger and better paper than ever, and if the people up that way don't liberally help this Mark Tapley of a Jones in his efforts to help them, somebody ought to go after 'em with a pole.

A DISPATCH from New York of the 13th instant says the new Mining Exchange has elected the first one hundred members, Mark McDonald heading the list. There were four hundred and fifty applicants. Three-fourths of the new members are New Yorkers. The second hundred will not be elected until about April 1, and the Board will not get into working order before May 1. Jesse R. Grant, son of the ex-President, is one of the new members.

A MR. JOHNSON, of Lovett, Indiana, grew angry with his grown-up daughter the other night, and taking her by both wrists, gave her a slap in the face with his open hand. The effect produced was unexpected and altogether rather startling to Mr. Johnson. The daughter, as the report runs, "turned upon him and beat him up in a terrible manner, so that he had to be put to bed."

PRESIDENT HAYES has unbosomed himself to a correspondent of the New York Graphic. He says that the three years spent by him in the White House have been the longest of his life. He thinks one term of the Presidency is enough.

ADOLPH SUTRO has purchased a $150,000 residence near McAlister street, San Francisco, where he will reside in the future. He is also said to have purchased a handsome country seat on the Hudson river, N. Y.

ON the 16th instant there was a $25,000 fire at Eureka, Nevada, caused by the explosion of a lamp. This is the second conflagration Eureka has suffered in less than a year.

THE Anglo-American Cable Company is negotiating a contract for a new ocean cable, to be laid during the present Summer.

THE REVENUE BILL.

As the Revenue bill has passed both Houses and is now in the hands of the Governor, who will, perforce, likely sign it, it is well to take a look at some of its leading provisions. The bill as passed is the one providing for double taxation, known as the "Minority Bill." It declares

First—The term "property" includes moneys, credits, bonds, stocks, dues, franchises and all other matters and things, real, personal and mixed, capable of private ownership.

That is, every namable thing under the broad canopy of heaven (or so much thereof as may be found by actual metes and bounds projected vertically to the head of balloon navigation, as pertains, covers, bemantles and distinguishes the State of California), except such property as may be exempt by the laws of the United States, property used exclusively for public schools, owned by this State, or any county or municipal corporation within the State, growing crops—and, we presume, women and children, unless these are to be classed and assessed as "mixed," as they are to some extent in the matter of ascertainable "cash value."

Second — The term "real estate" includes: 1. The possession of, claim of, ownership of or right to the possession of land. [It will be noted that this clause settles the question of the right to tax "possessory" claims, even if such are within the lines of a military reservation.—EDS.] 2. All mines, minerals and quarries in and under the land, all timber belonging to individuals or corporations, growing on the lands of the United States, and all rights and privileges appertaining thereto. 3. A mortgage, deed of trust, contract or other obligation by which a debt is secured, when land is pledged for the payment and discharge thereof, shall, for the purposes of assessment and taxation, be deemed and treated as an interest in the land so pledged. 4. Improvements.

Third—The term "improvements" includes: 1. All buildings, structures, fixtures, fences and improvements erected upon or affixed to the land. 2. All fruit, nut-bearing or ornamental trees and vines not of natural growth.

This last should read in addition: "and is designed and intended to suppress the spirit of tree growing throughout the treeless plains of the State, and is offered as a merited rebuke to those States and counties which give liberal premiums to encourage tree-planting."

Fourth—The term "personal property" embraces everything not included within the meaning of "real estate."

Fifth—The terms "value" and "full cash value" mean the amount at which the property would be taken in payment of a just debt due from a solvent debtor.

Sixth—The term "growing crops" includes only those crops which require an annual planting or an annual harvesting.

Seventh—The term "credits" means those solvent debts not secured by mortgage or trust deed owing to the person, firm, corporation or association assessed. The term "debts" means those unsecured liabilities owing by the person, firm, corporation or association assessed to bona fide residents of this State, or firms, associations or corporations doing business therein.

The proportionate value of the capital stock of corporations, associations and joint stock companies, having their principal places of business in this State, for the purpose of assessment and taxation, shall be its market value, deducting therefrom the value of all other property assessed to them in this State or elsewhere for which such stock is the representative. Land and the improvements thereon shall be separately assessed. Cultivated and uncultivated land of the same quality, and similarly situated, shall be assessed at the same value. Mortgage, deed of trust, contract, or other obligation by which a debt is secured, shall, for the purposes of assessment and taxation, be deemed and treated as an interest in the property affected thereby. Except as to railroad and other quasi public corporations, in case of debts so secured, the value of the property affected by such mortgage, deed of trust, contract or obligation, less the value of such security, shall be assessed and taxed to the owner of the property, and the value of such security shall be assessed and taxed to the owner thereof, in the county, city or district in which the property affected thereby is situated. The taxes so levied shall be a lien upon the property and security, and may be paid by either party to such security; if paid by the owner of the security, the tax so levied upon the property affected thereby shall become a part of the debt so secured; if the owner of the property shall pay a tax so levied on such security, it shall constitute a payment thereon, and, to the extent of such payment, a full discharge thereof; provided, that if any such security of indebtedness shall be paid by any such debtor or debtors after assessment and before the tax levy, the amount of such levy may likewise be retained by such debtor or debtors, and shall be computed according to the tax levy for the preceding year; and every contract by which a debtor is obligated to pay any tax or assessment on money loaned, or any mortgage, deed of trust or other lien, shall, as to any interest specified therein, and as to such tax or assessment, be null and void.

Section 5 says the Assessor must extract from each taxpayer, under oath, a statement in detail of every item and atom of property held by him in any manner whatever at 12 o'clock noon on the first Monday in March of the year when the assessment is made. Among its many other provisions is one to permit the said taxpayer to deduct the sum of his debts (not secured) from the total value of his taxable property. But no such deduction is allowed in case of bank deposits, which are assessed as part of the capital stock of the banks, while the certificates of deposit for the same money are assessed to the same amount to the depositors or holders—which, we are told, is not taxing the same thing twice.

THE VIRGINIA VETO.

Gov. Halloway, of Virginia, is just now undergoing the fierce denunciation of the "Readjusters" of the State for vetoing a bill passed by the Legislature proposing to repudiate $13,000,000 of the public debt. He has the consolation of knowing, however, that his conduct is approved and applauded in every part of the country where honesty is regarded as the best policy. The veto message of Gov. Halloway is a sterling document, as will be seen from its closing language, which we copy:

This is a fearful lesson for a Republic to teach its citizens, how to break, not to keep faith; and it must return one day in some form with disastrous import. Could these things be done and be pronounced in accordance with the State and Federal Constitutions, both of which declare that no law shall be passed impairing the obligation of contracts, would it accomplish the end at which the bill professes to aim? It "eliminates"—I use its own term—more than $13,000,000 of hitherto acknowledged principal of debt by one stroke of the pen. It "eliminates" one-half of the promised interest upon the residue; indeed, it proposes to pay no certain amount of interest, but only such sum as may be in the Treasury after future General Assemblies have disposed of what may seem to them proper; it then "eliminates" nearly all that may be left by subjecting it to State, city and county taxation; and thus holders of the State's obligations abroad and at home are treated worse than civilized nations in these latter days treat a public enemy.

I may say, as we have ever done, that the State of Virginia does not mean to repudiate, but these declarations will not avail. The charge will be brought and fixed. Virginia's history will be stained with a deadly virus, which no efforts of ours or those who come after us can erase, and for which no future repentance can ever atone. With these views and convictions, I cannot put my signature in approval to this bill. I respectfully return it to your honorable body, in which it originated, because I believe it to be in violation of the Constitution of the State, in violation of the Constitution of the United States, in violation of the spirit which has ever moved and inspired the traditions of the Commonwealth, and made her name so dear to her own citizens and so honored among men.

IT must be some consolation to San Francisco and San Bernardino to know that they do not possess quite a monopoly of such rabbit-brained statesmen and political economists as Maybell, Satterwaite, Braunhart and such. No, they have some of the same sort in Washington, especially in that Commission of Postoffice officials, which recommends the suppression of the letter-carrying business of Wells, Fargo & Co's express, and for such reasons as these: that the express company successfully tries to make its service more reliable and effective generally than the regular mail service; that it employs some hundreds of agents, some of whom are Postmasters—as if they might not all be to public advantage, certainly not to its detriment, or that of either service; that these agents may sometimes express a letter a grain or two above stamp weight; that—but that's enough; if anybody wants correct portraits of the political economists like those here referred to he can have his wish pretty well satisfied by photographing simply the foreheads, ears, etc., of a proper number of jack-rabbits.

AN English Court of Inquiry indulges very little in the "whitewashing" process. It endeavors to get all the facts of a public disaster, and to hold the guilty parties—when guilt has been proved — responsible for their criminality. Such a court, after patient investigation, finds that the falling of the Tay bridge, by which a railroad train was precipitated into the sea and every soul of its many passengers drowned, was due to the parsimony of the bridge company and the practice of a "penny-wise-and-pound-foolish" police. The evidence went to show that the iron castings used in the bridge were of an inferior description, and that the columns were "of an unequal thickness, cracked and blistered." To hide the defective pillars, the holes had been filled with cement and painted over. The managers of the bridge will find it difficult to escape punishment after this exposure. They have reason to be apprehensive, when they think of the fate that befel the Glasgow Bank Directors.

JUDGE RIX, to the unmeasured satisfaction of all decent people, read Denis, even the great Denis Kearney himself, a lecture strong enough to have blistered the hide of an ordinary rhinoceros; but as Denis took it as a compliment to his personal consequence and much noted bravery, his Honor had to gave pungency to his remarks with this peroration: "Six months in the House of Correction and $1,000 fine." But wasn't Denis astonished! And for the first time since he had become a great man, he realized that even his dirty hide was not quite blister proof. And people rejoiced greatly thereat.

HERE IT IS AT LAST.

A Bill to "Bust Up" All the Poorer Counties in the State.

The San Francisco Chronicle of the 14th instant has the following relating to a bill introduced in the Assembly providing for county governments:

SACRAMENTO, March 13.—Assembly Bill No. 519, introduced yesterday by Mr. Felton, will be substantially the measure relating to county governments that will be adopted by the two Houses and enacted into law. The first section declares every county to be a body politic and corporate. The second section defines the power of the counties. The third section prohibits any county from incurring any liability exceeding in any year the income and revenue provided for the year, unless with the assent of two-thirds of the qualified and voting electors. It is made unlawful for the Board of Supervisors to contract liabilities or authorize the payment of demands against the Treasury in any one month for more than one-twelfth of the amount allowed by law to be expended during the fiscal year. For violation of these provisions all Supervisors and other officers authorizing or aiding the payment of any illegal claim are liable in person and on their official bonds to the person damaged by the illegal authorizaton to the extent of his loss by reason of the payment of the claim; and the Treasurer paying any illegally allowed claim is made liable on his official bond to refund the same to the County Treasury. Section 4 repeals section 4005 of the Political Code. Section 5 classifies the counties as follows: First class—Alameda, Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Santa Clara and Sonoma. Second—Butte, Humboldt, Nevada and Solano. Third—Amador, Colusa, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Mendocino, Placer Santa Barbara, Tulara, Yolo, Yuba, Calaveras, Monterey and Santa Cruz. Fourth—San Louis Obispo, Stanislaus and Siskiyou. Fifth—Mono, Shasta and Tuolumne. Sixth — Lake, Plumas, San Bernardino, San Diego, Sierra, Tehama and Ventura. Seventh—Fresno, Marin, San Mateo and Sutter. Eighth—Kern, Merced, Modoc and San Benito. Ninth—Inyo, Mariposa, Lassen and Trinity. Tenth—Alpine and Del Norte. In counties of the first class the Board of Supervisors must consist of seven members. Section 6 provides that each Supervisor must be an elector of the district which he represents, and must have been such for at least one year preceding his election.

SUPERVISORS.

By section 7 it is provided Supervisors shall be elected at the general election in November, 1880; their terms of office shall begin on the first Monday after the 1st day of January, 1881, and shall be for two years.

Section 8 specifies that the Supervisors shall be elected by districts, and that the existing Boards shall on or before the first Monday of September, redistrict the counties into Supervisor districts according to population.

Section 9 provides that vacancies in the Boards of Supervisors shall be filled by the Governor for the unexpired term.

Section 10 repeals section 4027 of the Political Code.

Section 11 provides for the election of a chairman of the Boards of Supervisors.

By section 12 the County Clerk is made ex-officio Clerk of the Board of Supervisors.

THEIR POWERS AND DUTIES.

Section 13 defines the jurisdiction and power of Boards of Supervisors. To them is confided the supervision of all offices in their respective counties charged with the assessment, collection or disbursement of the revenue. They are to divide the counties into townships, school, road and other districts, change them and create others as convenience dictates; to establish, abolish and change election districts, appoint Inspectors and Judges of Election, canvass all election returns, declare the result and issue certificates thereof; to control the public roads, provide for the care of the indigent sick, provide a work farm in connection with the County Hospital, and when there are no county buildings, to provide suitable rooms for county purposes; to have full charge of all county property; to cause the erection of a court-house, jail, hospital and other buildings; to dispose of county property; to examine and audit the accounts of revenue officers, and to examine, settle and allow all accounts legally chargeable against the county, except the salaries of officers. They are authorized and it is made their duty to levy such tax annually as may be necessary to pay the annual interest on, and to provide a sinking fund for the extinguishment of the principal of the indebtedness of the same within twenty years. In counties of the first and seventh classes the Supervisors are allowed to levy such sum as may be necessary, not exceeding 70 cents on each $100 of valuation; in counties of the second, third, fourth and eighth classes, not to exceed $1 on each $100; in counties of the fifth class, not to exceed $1 50 on each $100; in counties of the sixth class, not to exceed $1 40 on each $100; in the ninth class, not to exceed $1 80; and in the tenth class, not to exceed —— cents on each $100. Other prerogatives of the Supervisors are to equalize assessments, to direct and control all suits to which the county is a party, to insure the county buildings, to grant licenses and franchises, fix compensation of county and township officers not otherwise fixed, to fill vacancies, except those of Superior Judge and Supervisors; to regulate rates and contract for county printing and advertising in a paper of general circulation; to allow extra help to county or township officers, and to name the number of deputies to County Clerks, Sheriffs, Recorders, etc., at salaries according to the class of the county and not yet fixed in the bill.

Section 14 repeals section 4080 of the Political Code

Section 15 states that this chapter does not apply to any consolidated government of a "city and county."

COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

Section 16 names the officers of a county as follows: A Superior Judge, provided the counties of Alameda, Los Angeles, Sonoma, Sacramento, Santa Clara and San Joaquin shall elect two Superior Judges, and the counties of Sutter and Yuba, combined, one; a Treasurer. County Clerk, Auditor, Sheriff, Tax Collector, District Attorney, Recorder, Assessor, Surveyor, School Superintendent, Coroner, Public Administrator and Board of Supervisors. These last in counties of the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth classes, shall not exceed three in number, at a salary not to exceed $250 each.

Section 17 provides that the officers of townships are a Justice of the Peace and Constable, and the Board of Supervisors shall, on or before the next Monday in September next, divide the counties into judicial districts.

Section 18 repeals sections 4106, 4107 and 4108 of the Political Code.

Section 19 provides that county officers, except Superior Judge, Assessor and School Superintendent, shall be elected on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1880, and every two years thereafter. The Assessor and School Superintendent shall be elected in November, 1882, and every four years thereafter. The Superior Judge shall be elected in November, 1884, and every six years thereafter. Township officers are to be elected at the general election in 1880, and every two years thereafter.

Section 20 repeals sections 4110 and 4111 of the Political Code.

Other provisions of the bill are as follows: Sheriffs, Clerks, Recorders, Treasurers, Tax Collectors, District Attorneys and Auditors are required to keep open their offices from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. The Superior Judge, County Clerk, Auditor, Sheriff, Tax Collector and District Attorney must reside at the county seat. The respective duties of the different officers are set forth. The amount of salaries are left blank, to be filled out in committee except in the following instances: Superior Court Judges of Alameda, San Joaquin, Los Angles, Santa Clara, Yuba and Sutter combined, Sacramento, Butte, Nevada and Sonoma, $4,000; in other counties $3,000. Fees are prohibited except in Surveyors, Coroners, Public Administrators, Justices of the Peace and Constables, whose fees are to be in full payment of services.

MR. PACHECO'S BILL.

Mr. Pacheco, on the 1st instant, introduced into the House of Representatives, on leave, the following bill to donate Camp Independence for school purposes to the counties of Inyo and Mono:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress Assembled:

That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby authorized and required to convey to the counties of Inyo and Mono, State of California, for the purpose of creating, establishing, and maintaining a high school, that certain piece or parcel of land, and improvements thereon, known as Camp Independence, and located at Independence, in the county of Inyo, State aforesaid, and more particularly described as follows, to wit: The east half of lot one, in the northeast quarter of section one, in township thirteen south, range thirty-four east, and fractional west half of lot one, in northwest quarter of section six, township thirteen south, range thirty-five east, Mount Diablo base and Meridian, containing about eighty acres, together with the buildings thereon; provided, that the said property so conveyed shall not be sold, assigned, nor diverted by the said counties of Inyo and Mono, or either of them, for any other purposes than the one contemplated by this act; and provided further, that the Secretary of War shall require each of said counties, by resolution of their respective Boards of Supervisors, to accept and agree to the conditions of this act before making the conveyance, as heretofore provided; and he shall make the said resolutions of acceptance a part of said deed of conveyance.

Read twice, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

KANSAS votes in the Fall on the prohibitory amendment to the State Constitution, forbidding the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors. The temperance people, led by Gov. St. John, are hard at work in its support, through the press and on the stump, but the liquor dealers are as actively in the field, and voted to raise $100,000 at a recent convention at Topeka to defeat the measure.

SECRETARY SHERMAN received a telegram from the chairman of the Ohio Republican Executive Committee, stating as a result of the meeting held at Columbus recently, that he (Sherman) may rely upon a solid Ohio delegation to Chicago, pledged to vote for his nomination.

A BOY in Leadville, with only one arm, has made $1,400 selling apples. If he had had two arms he would have made—but he wouldn't have made a cent. He couldn't roll cigarettes was the secret of his success.

SATURDAY, MARCH 20.....1880

FIRE IN CERRO GORDO.—Last Monday night quite a destructive fire occurred in Cerro Gordo. We are indebted to a friend for the particulars, as follows: "About 12 o'clock [night of the 15th] we were awakened by the cry of "fire!" We soon found that the building, formerly known as Mrs. Moore's dance house, was in flames, the fire having originated in the rear attachment or kitchen; this was the largest and best building in the place. It was occupied as a dwelling by Matias Romero, wife and three small children. The latter would most surely have perished but for the coolness and bravery of Juan Espanoza, who happened to be up at the time, and saw the fire when it burst forth; he ran, kicked in the door, got the children out, and, wrapping them in his heavy overcoat, soon had them in a place of safety; but, before he got them out of the main building, the roof had fallen in upon the bed from which he had just taken the children. The flames spread with great rapidity, and were not checked till the following buildings, besides the large one just mentioned, were destroyed, viz.: Conception Flores' large saloon; Lola Trévis' dwelling and saloon; Brigida Mojardin's restaurant and residence; Martin Mayrath's blacksmith shop, and lastly, and last to fall, Rafael and Elutario Dias' large billiard saloon. By the hardest work possible of all in town—Americans, Mexicans, Indians and Chinese—Hoff & Co's store was saved, which was effected by means of keeping it covered with wet blankets. Luckily, there was no wind, but plenty of water, which came from the snow in the streets being melted by the heat of the burning buildings at the upper end of the street; in this way, quite a stream of water was produced, and was the means of saving a number of buildings; of those saved by hard work and wet blankets besides Hoff & Co's store, were Crapo's office and Antonio Moreno's saloon, the term of insurance on the latter having run out only the day before. Had there been a wind down the cañon, not a structure on the south side of Main street but would have been destroyed. There was no insurance on the buildings burned, and most of the inmates lost every thing, even to their shoes and stockings."

BIG PINE RACES.—The late races at Big Pine were well attended, though betting was not very extensively indulged in. The first day's contest was between Kangaroo and Brown Abby, 500 yards, won by the latter easily. For the following day there were entered: Billy Moore, Billy Baker, Gray Eagle, Kangaroo, Silver Tail and Chubb, the latter winning by 18 inches ahead of Billy Moore. The quarter race on the last day was won by Brown Abby, beating Brown Nell and Honest John. During the day a foot-race for $100 was run by Billy Hinkleman and Charley Conners, the last named winning the race and money. The Independence boys report themselves as having had a particularly jolly time of it.

SUSPENDED.—We are sorry to have occasion to note the suspension of two of our exchanges, more particularly as both were under the management of young men who for years stood at cases in THE INDEPENDENT office, thereby more especially enlisting its wishes for their success in subsequent ventures in kind on their own accounts. These are: the Mammoth City Times and the Tybo (Nevada) Sun, H. B. Yaney of the former, and D. M. Brannan, of the latter, being the young men referred to. By way of encouragement we can only quote what that apostle (Deuteronomy, perhaps) has to say about just such cases, viz.: "Pick your flint and try it another pop"—or words to that effect.

OFF FOR CANDELARIA.—A. K. Briggs, merchant at Bishop Creek, is preparing to move his entire stock of goods to Candelaria, there to open out and grow up with the country. We are truly sorry to lose citizens like A. K. Here we must add that, under the head of "New Advertisements," will be found a short address form him, substantially to the effect that all persons, regardless of race, color or previous conditions of servitude, who are indebted to him in any sum must come forward, on or before the 1st of next month, and settle their accounts one way or the other, or—he "will see you later." Better read the address itself.

CLUB WHEAT.—Messrs. Dugan & Blair, of the Bishop Creek flouring mills, will not put their brand on a sack of poor flour; a No. 1 article of flour, such as they will so brand, cannot be made out of club wheat. They know, so farmers will do well to heed their advice, given in a notice elsewhere in this issue, and not sow club wheat—unless they want to raise chicken feed, or something of that kind.

APPOINTMENTS.—Rev. F. M. Willis will preach at Georges Creek to-morrow at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and in this place at 7 the same evening, and on Tuesday evening, same hour, at the Post.

JURY ORDERED.—At request of counsel for the defense, a venire for seventy-five drawn jurymen, returnable at 10 o'clock Monday next, has been ordered by Judge Hannah to try Mike Welsh.

WHO WANTS LIME?—A. K. Briggs, of Bishop, has a quantity of lime to sell in lots and at prices to suit buyers. See ad.

SOLD OUT.—Sheriff J. W. Smith has sold his sawmill property to Messrs. Wm. Dickenson and James Garringer.

TO MEET.—The Supervisors meet on Monday next to award contracts on the several proposals advertised for.

LODGE MEETING.—The stated meeting of Inyo Lodge, F. & A. M., takes place to-night.

FOR TEXAS.—Early next week, Frank Blaney starts on his return to Texas, where he expects to remain permanently. He has just been appointed Postmaster for the Independence office, but having received advantageous offers from relatives in Texas, to go into business there, he finds it necessary to give up his lately contemplated plans of settling down in this place. Frank has many friends to regret his departure and to wish him success wherever he may go.

DESERT LAND ENTRIES.—Mr. J. H. Stoutenborough, of Bishop Creek, and Capt. Keeler have each made desert land entries of 520 and 500 acres' respectively. The latter embraces the site of the new mill the Captain is erecting on the east side of the lake, at the first stage station south of Swansea. He has surveyed a townsite there, and named the place Mill City.

WHITE MOUNTAINS.—Messrs. Greenly, Whiteman, Hedge, Wingard, Woodhull and Hudgin—all mining men of practical and wide experience, left town this week for the new mines in the White mountains, known as the Hedge discoveries. If half what is reported of these mines is true, there is a "boom" coming sure enough.

COMMITTED. — Charles Howell, of whose insane condition mention was made last week, was, after an examination by Drs. George and Colleau, committed by Judge Hannah to the Insane Asylum at Napa. The patient's age is about 62 years, and is a native of the State of Virginia.

ON APPEAL.—The Hutchison-Vaughn case was last week decided in favor of the latter. Notice of appeal was at once filed, and as the case will come up again, we will let it go without present comment.

MOVING IT.—Several loads of quartz mill machinery and lumber have been taken from Harris & Rhine's yard this week; destined for Captain Keeler's proposed mill at Mill City on Owens Lake.

FOR UTAH.—James Moffit, of Lone Pine, is preparing to start for Utah with a band of horses, which he proposes to exchange there for beef cattle to supply markets on the road home.

IN TOWN.—Gen. J. R. Kittrell arrived in town from the north on Thursday evening last. His mission is a peaceful one, of course.

FROM the way Don Cameron talks, it would appear that Grant has a "dead thing" on being nominated at Chicago. Being interviewed the other day by a reporter, he spoke very freely and said it was annoying to read the paragraphs respecting his (Cameron's) position. He said that he was in favor of Grant's nomination to the Presidency, and had no second choice. His confidence that Grant would be nominated on the first ballot was as strong as human confidence could be, and he believed the contest would be practically settled long before the convention met in Chicago. Maine and Ohio might cast complimentary votes for their favorite sons, but enough States would go there instructed for Grant to make a contest useless, and he anticipated that the first ballot would carry nearly all the States for Grant.

THE three Poncas chiefs, Jacob Esau, White Eagle and Standing Buffalo, who have been in attendance before the Senate Committee, in Washington, investigating their affairs, were paid off on Tuesday last. Their witness fees and mileage amounted to about $180 each. They are all old chiefs from 60 to 70 years of age. Quite a crowd gathered around to see them receive their money. They did not know what to do with it after they got it. Jacob Esau was able to sign his name, but the others made marks with a grunt.

MAINE threatens to become a rival of the Comstock. It is reported that thirty-eight silver mining companies have been organized lately, and shafts and money are being sunk in the most approved style. If the companies adopt native names, such as the Maine lakes and rivers bear, and the stocks ever get listed in the New York Exchange, half of the members will be cut off in their bloom with lockjaw.

THE Mining Record of the 6th instant has this to say of the New York lead market: "There have been some small sales of common domestic, say about two hundred tons at 5.95½ cents, and values are a trifle lower, stock being available at 5.95 cents, but the demand is still meager, and business mostly of a jobbing description. The market may be written quiet but steady, at 5.95@6 cents for common, and 6⅛@6¼ cents for corroding."

THE fresh extension of the Monroe doctrine, apropos of the Panama Canal, excites English opposition. It is understood that the London newspapers express the Foreign Office view in saying that the Government is bound to watch American pretensions and to resist them if necessary.

THE President has demanded the resignation of Minister Seward, United States Minister to China, and it is understood that if his resignation is not forthcoming, Mr. Seward will be removed.

Mammoth Items.

From the Mammoth City Herald of February 14, we obtain the followlng items:

As soon as the weather settles Tom Barker speaks of going down near Big Pine, Inyo county, to commence work on some placers which he and John Black purchased last Summer. They think they have a good prospect in that region.

About a week ago we mentioned the fact that a petition was being circulated in the valleys praying for a mail route hence to Bishop Creek. It is becoming every day more apparent that it is much needed, especially during the snowy season. Had we connection with the southern route our mails could be furnished with comparative regularity—the travel over the road would have kept it open. This is demonstrated by the arrival of Mr. Clarke with his team, and a team loaded with hogs for the Pioneer Market. Although we have had four days of fine weather, no mail has arrived from Bodie. That route does well enough in Summer time, but we need a southern route as well. Most of our business men receive their goods by the S. P. R. R. and the delay in receiving the way-bills by roundabout route to Bodie sometimes entails great inconvenience. Mr. Henry Dickenson is now in Mammoth with the petition, and it will receive unanimons support.

Bodie Items.

From the Bodie Standard of the 13th instant we glean the following items:

Samuel Argyle, foreman of the True Blue mine at Mammoth, arrived in Bodie yesterday afternoon, and reports the town stili very dull on account of the snow blockade. The Mammoth mill has not yet started up. The report that an important strike had been made in the lower tunnel of the Mammoth is confirmed.

W. T. Grant, a well known prospector and mining man, who left here nearly two months since in company with "Cooncañon" Smith, to prospect in the White Mountains, met with an accident near Candelaria about two weeks ago, by which one of his legs was broken two inches below the knee. He was riding up a steep hill in a buggy, accompanied by another gentleman, when the vehicle turned over. Grant fell without sustaining any injury, but his leg was broken by the other man falling on top of him. He was taken to Candelaria, where he has since been confined to his bed, but his many friends in Bodie will be pleased to learn that he is getting along well.

A LETTER was received at the Washington Postoffice recently, addressed as follows: "The Plumed Knight of the United States Senate, Washington, D. C." It was postmarked Knoxville, Tenn. The Postmaster of the Senate had an idea that it was intended for Senator Blaine, but he did not take the responsibility of putting it in Blaine's box, so he handed it to Sergeant-at-Arms Bright, and a consultation was held, in which several Senators of both parties were admitted. It was suggested by one that the letter belonged to Judge Davis; another claimed that Edmunds was the person addressed; still another that Thurman, or Voorhees, or Conkling was intended; but it was finally decided to give it to Blaine. So when he came to the Senate, Col. Bright handed it to him, and very gracefully indicated to him that the public seemed to recognize him as the owner of the letter. Blaine smiled and opened it. It was an invitation to James G. Blaine to attend some literary exercises at the University of Tennessee.

IT has been substantially decided by leading Democrats of both Houses of Congress that no legislation on the subject of counting the electoral votes will be enacted this session, and a committee of the Senate caucus had a long consultation a few days ago in regard to the expediency of reviving the old twenty-second joint rule to govern proceedings of the two Houses in ascertaining and declaring the results of the coming Presidential election.

A DISPATCH from Denver of the 15th instant says information of the late Indian depredations has been received there, which states that a terrible Indian massacre was enacted near the Blue Mountains. Most of the killed were miners, who were prospecting in that locality. The people of that portion of Colorado are thoroughly aroused, and are determined to avenge the death of the murdered men.

A MULATTO girl down in Georgia has sued one Frank M. Coker, President of the bank of the State, for $15,000 damages, alleging deliberate seduction. It is said this is the first case of the kind in the history of the State, and a sensational boom in consequence has been fully inaugurated.

THE Calloway canal, Kern county, is completed. It is twenty-six miles in length, has an average width of ninety-six feet, is four feet deep, and supplies at present about seventy-five miles of distributing ditches. It is now irrigating an immense tract upon which good crops are assured.

THE Mexican President has issued an order that prefects and army officers shall abstain from taking part in or interfering with the political campaign. The same rule is applied to Postmasters and telegraph operators.

ALL danger of starvation in Ireland seems now past.

NEVADA has always been characterized as a State where legal hangings were by no means frequent occurrences, and where the law of violence and bloodshed had the supremacy over the law of the land. The Bodie Standard congratulates the people of Nevada that there are five murderers in its jails under sentence of death. There are five men in the State at present upon whom sentence of death has been pronounced—Pritchard, Hymer, Lopez, Lane and McIntyre. It is not at all probable, however, that these men will ever be hung. In this country after a man has been sentenced to death he wakes up and begins to wrestle with his care in dead earnest. When a man is on trial for a murder, with the recollections of the dead still fresh in the minds of the community, he is convicted and sentenced, the sympathies of the community begin to warm toward him, and he gets a new hearing on some technicality, error in ruling, some flaw in the indictment, or some slight sin of omission or commission in the trial of the care. Then the whole machinery of the law is set at work, and although the mill grinds slowly it grinds for the criminal all the while, and in a few years a smart lawyer delivers him, sound in mind and limb, to the community where his crime was committed. Of the five men under sentence for murder not more than one will be hung, and that one is probably Lopez, a poor Mexican, who has neither friends nor money.—Carson Appeal.

IN the Police Court, in San Francisco, on the 13th instant, Denis Kearney was placed on trial for using vulgar language and threats to kill. The defense waived a jury trial. Testimony was introduced to show that the language was used as stated in the complaint. Kearney was the only witness for the defense, and in one of the cases only immaterially modified in his evidence the language as given in the complaint, and in the second case the language was admitted. Kearney's counsel moved a dismissal of the case on the ground that the language did not tend to create a breach of the peace, it being directed in one case against a person not present, and the other against no one in particular, being a vague general threat. The case was submitted without argument and taken under advisement until the 15th instant.

THERE are foolish people who are worrying themselves about "Mother Shipton's Prophecy." This frequently published yarn purported to have been written about 1448, and in it were foretold railroads, the admission to civil rights in England of the Jews, and of the end of the world in 1881. The whole poem or prophecy was written by Charles Hindley in 1862, and was a pure invention of his own, composed to insure the success of a business venture, and, after all, but one or two of the things named in it have come to pass. It was simply an ingenious and successful advertising fraud.—Virginia Enterprise.

THE "Gem Puzzle," which has been making such a furore in the East, has at last struck Carson. The easiest way to make the puzzle is to space off sixteen squares on a piece of card board, and take fifteen patent gun wads and number them. The puzzle is so well known by this time that no attempt will be made to describe it here. If a man has nothing else to do he can put in ten or fiften hours a day on the puzzle and derive lots of solid enjoyment from it. It admits of numerous combinations and illustrates the old adage, "That Satan is ever finding work for idle hands to do."—Carson Appeal.

THE announcement is confirmed that Gen. Grant will sail for home next week. The General will visit Galveston and New Orleans, and from the latter city, himself, in company with Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Kitty Felt, will take a trip to Denver, at which point the ladies will sojourn during the General's contemplated tour of the mining regions of Wyoming and Colorado. It is the intention of the party to return to Galena during the latter part of April or the 1st of May.

OAKLAND, the Athens of the Pacific Coast, has developed two first-class villains in the persons of P. T. Benson, the proprietor of the Grand Central Hotel and his porter. The hotel burned down the other day, and now it transpires that P. T. B. and his trusty servant set a match to it, and while the edifice was in flames robbed the guests of much valuables. There is more than one way to make money and this is one of them.—Bodie Free Press.

ON the Southern Pacific Railroad of Arizona, on the 15th, there were 9,800 feet of steel rails laid, leaving but three and a half miles more to complete the road to Tucson. There are enough steel rails between Sacramento and the point of construction to complete the road to Fresno by Friday evening, and should no unforeseen delay occur, a regular train will be run on 21st instant.—S. F. Call, March 17.

THE scarcity of fractional silver at Washington is said to be caused by its presentation for redemption under the recent law. There are $21,000,000 of such coin in the Treasury, which will be exchanged at all the sub-Treasuries for United States notes when an appropriation is made for this purpose by Congress.

THE Plumas National says they tapped a Lassen county patient in the Modoc Hospital the other day, and the result was three gallons of benzine whisky and three pints of pure alcohol. He died in three-quarters of a minute after the operation from "lack of nourishment."

WE understand that the surveyors for the Bodie Railroad were not permitted to run the lines across the Walker River Reservation, and consequently a temporary halt will have to be made until the right of way can be secured.—Reno Journal.

THERE is at present $45,000,000 worth of gold in the New York Assay Office.

CONNECTICUT has had several costly murder trials lately, the most expensive being the Hayden case, in which a clergyman was charged with the murder of Mary Stannard, one of his parishioners. The case ran for over two months at two separate terms; the prosecution employed eighteen experts to detect arsenic in the dead girl's stomach and to trace blood corpuscles on the clergyman's garments and carving-knife. To experts and witnesses $30,000 was paid. The court stenographer, who transcribed a million and a half words, received the neat sum of $605. And now Mr. Hayden is out of jail, lecturing on the fallacies of circumstantial evidence.

THE power of newspapers in influencing public opinion has been acknowledged by that "hard citizen," the Rev. Edward Cowley. On his way to Blackwell's Island he said: "It was the press that convicted me." The Shepherd, on the Island, will not fare so badly as the little children whom he starved at the "Fold," but his diet is rather spare and his daily occupation is punching holes in shoe leather.

Water will always find its level, which is more than a careless carpenter can always do.

There are two classes who do not bear prosperity—one of them being those who do not get a chance to bear it.

The man who built him a house out of his poker winnings said that his residence was built on a bluff.

Hundreds of years ago butter was used for illuminating purposes. And still some paragraphists still make light of it.

The alliance between Peru and Bolivia has been broken. Now look out for the Peruvian barks on the high sieze.

The best and most thoughtful newspapers now allow contributors to the waste-baskets to write on both sides of the sheet.

After a plank walk has been exposed to the weather until each particular board curls up like a bread-bowl, people are apt to get upon the warp path.

Though poverty stares him straight in the face, and hunger and want be his fate, a man, you will find, is never so poor but his carriage is seen by his gait.

A young man in St. Louis winked at a woman in a street car. His girl, who was also in the car, saw the wink and raised him out of his seat, which caused the young man to flush up as he drew toward the door.

"Aw, ya-as-s, the dinnah was not much in the line of a dinnah, aw," remarked Mr. Toplofty, as he wriggled his thumbs into his vest pockets. "It's demnition vulgah, aw, to eat, you knew, but the menu was very elegant, I assaure you, aw. Cost five times as much as the dinnah, aw."

A company of scapegraces meeting a pious old man by the name of Samson, one of them exclaimed: "Ah, now we're safe. We'll take Samson along with us, and then, should we be set upon by a thousand Philistines, he'll slay them all." "My young friend," quietly responded the old man, "to do that I should have to borrow your jawbone."

When a young lady tripped into a music store the other day and asked the bashful clerk in attendance for "Two Kisses," he jammed on his hat and rushed out of the back door. The clerk never having heard of the piece of music, thought he was the victim of a leap year proposal, and his salary was not large enough to support two.

Mrs. Brownsmith is a woman with a practical turn of mind. When Brownsmith had been knocked down and robbed, and was brought home in a dying condition, this wonderful woman didn't go into hysterics. Not she. She remarked, with a coolness and self-possession worthy of herself: "There, I knew it would be so; I told John he'd better leave some of his money at home."

If there is any place in this world where men live so locked in and guarded by solemn voiceless hills and quiet, peaceful valleys, so cloistered by the pathless forest and frowning mountains, that sin and penitence do not go trooping through the hearts of the people who live there, I would go there to-morrow. Or, at least, I would if I could get a pass over that road. I don't know as I would like to walk there.—Bob Burdette.

THE South Carolina Legislature, just before adjourning, passed a law making it a misdemeanor to entice away an agricultural laborer who is under contract to work in the State, punishable by a fine of $500 or six months in prison, or both.

Homer District.

To Jake Holsinger, who has just returned from Mill Creek, better known as Homer District, we are indebted for the following information with regard to matters and things in this new and promising mining region. Mr. H. says that there are about seventy-five men in camp at present, and most of them at work. The Homer Mining Company, incorporated, are getting along well with their tunnel, and have some eighteen or twenty men employed. A very rich strike is reported as having been made in this property a few days ago. The May Lundy, which was recently sold by Hon. Pat. Reddy in San Francisco, is expected to start work as soon as the necessary supplies can be put upon the ground. A large sawmill is in course of construction by Hall & Hill, and will be ready to run about the middle of the present month. They expect to sell lumber for $50 per thousand feet. The land upon which the town site is located having been preempted by Mr. Lundy, some difficulty has arisen between that gentleman and the lot jumpers. Mr. L. has the sympathy of most of the people and many of those who have located upon the ground claimed by him, and the affair is likely to be peaceably settled. There is one well kept house for the accommodation of travelers, over which Mrs. Lundy and her amiable daughter preside, and where the weary miner will be furnished with good meals at very reasonable prices. Joseph Hannan has a store well provided with the necessaries of life, and has tent accommodations for lodgers. Billy Rabjohn has a tent where he dispenses the fluid to the thirsty. The I. X. L. mine is owned by the Kennedy brothers, and gives great promise of being one of the leading mines of the district. Several Mammothites are in the camp, among whom are Mr. J. McPhee and H. E. Prosser. The snow averages about two feet with good sleighing to Bodie. Fast freight and sleighs run every other day to and from Bodie. Jake is confident that Homer will be a banger in the Spring, but that it is a little too soon to go there now, as no prospecting can be done until the snow disappears.—Mammoth Herald, March 6.

DECRY mining as you may, there is no other industry through which poor men can be so suddenly raised to affluence, and none which offer so many opportunities to men of energy and enterprise, as witness the following story, the substance of which appeared in our dispatches a few days ago: "The Shefflin Brothers (Edward and Arthur) on the 15th instant sold their interest in the Tombstone Mill and Mining Company, Arizona, which includes their interest in the Tough Nut, Defiance, Goodenough and Westside mines, on a basis of $2,000,000 for the whole property. This is the largest and most important sale ever consummated in mining property in Arizona. The Shefflin Brothers discovered and located these mines about two years ago, and at that time they were poor prospectors, without money or influence." "If we are not mistaken," says the Stock Report, "one of these brothers was less than five years ago a woodchopper in the mountains of Eastern Nevada, earning about $40 per month and board. To-day he is a millionaire. In any other country but the Pacific Coast region these brothers would never had opportunities better than to struggle along at hard work, and perhaps, if economical and industrious, making little homes for themselves. The case of these brothers is but one of the many that have occurred on the Pacific Coast, where poor men have suddenly become rich by a lucky mining strike."—Bodie Free Press.

IT is reported that the President will appoint two Commissioners to negotiate a new Chinese treaty.

A Mongolian War-Cloud.

A great war might be the salvation of China, rousing that vast nation from the lethargy of ages, and perhaps thinning out its densely-crowded population a trifle. When human beings get so numerous under one form of government that ten millions of them can perish from a famine and yet scarcely be missed, as was the case in China a couple of years ago, a war is a calamity not greatly to be dreaded by an ambitious ruling class. That China has been quietly preparing for war for years is well known, but the civilized world has been disposed to treat the matter with contempt. If recent reports are to be relied upon, Russia is just now in danger of encountering a great outburst of Mongolian rage. The difference that has arisin may be peacefully adjusted, but in case a war should actually ensue on a grand scale, no military struggle has occurred for years that would attract more anxious attention. China could probably put five men in the field where Russia could put one, and if gold and ammunition were needed the British Empire would doubtless supply them. According to some accounts the Chinese army is a mere mob that European forces could easily scatter. Other statements are to a directly contrary effect. The Chinese are fatalists, and while sometimes subject to unreasoning panics, they would, nevertheless, make desperate fighters if they should get partially accustomed to war, and were sufficiently drilled to be moved in battle in tolerable order. The Russian troops are well disciplined, but have been repeatedly vanquished by the wild Turcomans. Besides, the Czar has serious trouble at home.

There are more people in China than can be provided with food. Millions of them must come out. They cannot come out as peaceful laborers, for no nation will receive them in such enormous numbers. Colonization is contrary to Mongolian traditions. The only resource that appears to remain is war and conquest—armed migration in unnumbered hordes, such as the world has witnessed several times heretofore. In such an event Russia would stand as the bulwark of Europe, and would have a right to demand, and would doubtless receive, armed assistance on a colossal scale.—S. F. Chronicle.

A DETROITER who was out in the country the other day to look after some poultry, got stuck in a mud-hole, and although having a light buggy and a strong horse. He got out, took a rail off the fence, and was trying to pry the vehicle out, when along came a strapping young lady about twenty-six years of age. She halted, surveyed the situation, and said:

"You stand by the horse while I'll heave on the rail, and don't be afraid of getting the mud on your hands and boots."

Their united efforts relieved the vehicle, and the Detroiter returned his thanks and asked her to get and ride. She hesitated, looked up and down the road, and finally said:

"Stranger, I'm blunt spoken. Who are you?"

He gave his name and residence, and she continued:

"I'm twenty-six years of age, worth $500 in cash, know all about housework, and this is leap year."

"Yes, I know, but for heaven's sake dont ask me to marry!" he replied, as he saw the drift.

"See here," she continued looking him square in the eye, "I'm a straight girl, wear a No. 7 shoe, and I like the looks of you."

"Yes, but don't—don't talk that way to me!"

"Stranger, it's leap year, and I'm going to pop! Will you have me or not?"

"I—I'm already married!" he faltered.

"Honest Injun!"

"Yes."

"Well, that settles it, I won't ride. I'll take a cut across the field over to old Spooner's. He's got four sons and a fool nephew, and I'll begin on the old man and pop the crowd clear down to the idiot, for I've slummixed round the world just as long as I'm going to. Good bye, sir; no harm done."—Detroit Free Press.

A WRITER in the Scientific American gives his experience in taking coal-oil stain out of a carpet as follows: A kerosene lamp was carelessly dropped in the center of my parlor carpet. I drew the tacks nearest to it and the paper under the spot, and put in four thicknesses of paper in place of it. I then strewed over the spot common whiting to the depth of about half an inch, which I covered with a large paper to prevent tracking, etc. I let it so remain a week; then raising the carpet a few inches so as to switch the whiting loose, the latter was carefully swept off. The oil had disappeared. This was four years ago, and no brighter spot is on the carpet than the place so treated.

A SCHOOL-BOY got up to read a composition on "The Tree." He got as far "as the subject has many branches," when the teacher said, "Stop; you have not made your bough yet." "If you interrupt me again," said the boy, "I'll leave." "You give me any more of your impudence, I'll take the sap out of you," said the teacher and the regular order of business proceeded.

EXPERIMENTS are being made in Paris with the polyscope, a new apparatus for illuminating the interior of animal organisms, rendering bodies transparent so as to render an examination of every portion of a body feasible. The attention of scientists is drawn toward this remarkable discovery.

The Railroad Outlook.

It is now quite certain that Esmeralda county will during the current year secure railroad connection with the Central Pacific. There are at present three different roads talked of, and no doubt the construction of one or more will be commenced this Spring. The Virginia & Truckee Company have already completed the survey for their proposed extension as far as Stinking Wells in Churchill Valley, and a reconnoitering party has been sent out to ascertain the best route for the road. The promoters of the Battle Mountain and Austin narrow gauge are talking of extending their road, by way of Grantsville, to Columbus District, and perhaps to Lida Valley and other points southward. Another projected road is to connect with the Central Pacific at Wadsworth. The New York Evening Mail recently said of this road: "Mr. Davis, of Esmeralda county, Nevada, has succeeded in organizing a narrow gauge railroad company, to construct a road from Wadsworth, on the Central Pacific Railroad, south to Callville, on the Colorado river. The capital required, $1,500,000, has been guaranteed. The road will open up a region wonderfully rich in minerals, tapping the Columbus, Candelaria and Lida Valley Districts, as well as the remarkable borax deposits of Southwestern Nevada. It can be easily connected with roads across the Sierras, opening up the Owens river, Mammoth, Inyo and San Bernardino counties, and the road must, if pushed, find its way to Northern Arizona also. — Esmeralda Herald.

A FARMER had some wheat stolen a few nights since, and he was so sure he knew who the thief was, that he secured a warrant for a certain young man living near him. When the case came up for trial, the defendant said he could prove an alibi. In order to do this, he brought in "his girl," a buxom lass of twenty two. She took the stand, and swore that he sat up with her from seven o'clock in the evening until broad daylight next morning.

"People can be very easily mistaken," observed the plaintiff's lawyer.

"I don't care—I know he was there," she replied.

"What did you talk about?"

"Love!" she promptly answered.

"What time did the old folks go to bed?"

"I give 'em the wink about ten."

"Sure he was there at midnight, are you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Why are you sure?"

She blushed, looked over to her lover and laughed, and, getting a nod to go ahead, she said:

"Well, sir, just as the clock struck twelve, the old man jumped out of bed, up stairs, and hollered down: "Sarah, yer man wants some o' that catnip tea! And we got such a start we broke the back off the rocking-chair and went over backwards kerplunck!"

"Then the jury must understand that you were sitting on Samuel's knee?"

"I object," put in Sam's lawyer, and his Honor remembered the days of his youth, and sustained the objection.—Hawkeye.

THE Washington Star states that Senator Bayard, of Delaware, being asked by a newspaper reporter if he intended to make any explanation in regard to his speech of 1861, which has recently been republished, responded: "The speech itself is my reply, and that has been published. I stood in 1861 where I stood in 1871 and where I stand in 1880. I am in favor of this country keeping peace with itself. I was opposed to it in 1861; I am opposed to it now; "and if," he added, "they (the Republicans) desire to make the next fight upon the issue of opposing fraternal feeling, burying sectional strife and establishing a lasting peace, and are determined to revive the bloody shirt, I say that for myself, and without any regard to my position in 1861 I am now in favor of accepting such issue and making the fight upon it. I would present it to the people as often and as emphatically as possible, and I believe that we should be sustained by an overwhelming majority of the American people."

A WRITER in the Phrenological Journal admonishes parents to guard their children from the practice of snow eating, claiming that it has much to do with head colds of many girls and boys, because of the chilling effect of snow upon the palate or thin partition between the mouth and nostrils, producing congestion in the fine membrane which lines the upper surface. As this membrane is almost entirely constituted of delicate nerves and blood vessels, inflamation is likely to follow the congestion, and perhaps generating into nasal catarrh, an affection so common in northern latitudes.

THE United States Government has filed papers in a suit against the El Dorado Flume and Lumber Company for $87,000, for timber cut off of Government land by Yerington, Bliss & Co. et al. There is also a similar suit against Yerington, Harvey & Bliss for $12,000.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SIGNS IT.

The Governor, on the 23d, signed the Revenue bill, and transmitted it with a message, to the Legislature. In this he deprecates double taxation, and hopes that supplemental legislation may be had to relieve the savings banks and depositors; that he is too thoroughly convinced of the constitutionality of the bill to withhold his signature.

Commenting on this, the Record-Union thinks, as the bill is recognized as constitutional no legislative relief is possible without a violation of that instrument; that "a supplemental bill undoing any provision based upon the Constitution would consequently be open to the charge of unconstitutionality, and it is not easy to perceive how the Governor could justify his approval of such a bill supposing it passed the Legislature. The adoption of the Constitution entailed upon the people of California whatever mischief there was in its principles, and until they are prepared to change its provisions, they must make up their minds to the enforcement of them in their integrity."

The San Francisco Chronicle, referring to the same subject, is of the opinion that the more people get used to the double taxation bill and Constitution the more they will like it; in ten years' trial, if not sooner, they will realize that this much abused organic law is a noble thing. The Chronicle, it will be observed, has to say something to cheer itself.

THE United States Supreme Court, Fields and Clifford dissenting, rendered a decision recently touching the constitutionality of the election laws and the power of Congress to supervise the election of Representatives. The validity of those laws was sustained in every particular. The right of Congress to provide for the supervision of the election of members by supervisors and to provide for the appointment of deputy marshals, the paramount authority of the National Government rendering any legal conflict between the National and State Governments impossible—these and numerous kindred points were considered in detail. In political circles the decision is considered of very great importance, particularly as a quietus on a leading tenet of the ultra State's Rights partisans.

IT is reported from Washington that the "society" of that city is on the verge of a deluge of scandal. A vile procuress, as the story runs, has been placed in the Treasury Department, where hundreds of young ladies are employed. This woman entices her victims into back rooms, where they are drugged and ruined by Senators. The matter is being thoroughly investigated. The Hill scandal is reported as but the first ripple of the flood soon to follow.

AT the Carson Mint the buying price of silver has been advanced to 114 4-10. The Mint is now running one-third force; coinage operations have been temporarily suspended, nothing but assaying and melting being done. Silver purchases are still made, and gold deposits are received as usual. It is unknown at present when orders from the Director of the Mint will be received for a resumption of coinage.

THE homestead law recently passed in the United States Senate is of importance to many persons in this State. It provides that the land shall be given to the first settler whether he claims as a pre-emptor or a homesteader. It also makes provisions that the first settler on an abandoned homestead entry shall have the first right to acquire title to it after the original entry is canceled.

IN running a tunnel into a mine at Coulterville, Mariposa county, some miners uncovered, sixty feet below the surface, a wooden maul and several wedges. The implements are white oak wood, and in a good state of preservation, showing the marks of a sharp cutting instrument in their fashioning. Trees five feet in diameter are growing on the surface.

A DISPATCH from San Francisco of the 22d instant announces the fact that Kearney departed from his peaceful converson of a week ago, and resumed the defiant rolé, denouncing the Citizens' Protective Union, Police Judge and other opponents, and defying them to stop his meetings, or send him to the Penitentiary.

THE Board of Supervisors on the 22d instant, in San Francisco, passed a resolution increasing the police force to its maximum number of four hundred, over the Mayor's veto by an unanimous vote, thus forcibly replying to his insolent message.

THE JAMES RAILWAY.

The great need of this sage brush region is cheap transportation—in other words, steam transportion. Not being on a direct line, or any where near a direct line from any place in particular to any other place in particular, men who map out and build standard gauge railroads always manage to fix on routes for their proposed railways just far enough away to the east, north, west, or south, as to leave us as far from any and every other place, and hoped for advantage, as we were before. And until we build up a large city in our midst and business to correspond, no expensive standard gauge road is at all likely to be built to our doors, notwithstanding our well supported claims that such a road must inevitably soon create for itself a fair paying business; if we were able, under existing adverse conditions, to build up a railroad business without the prior aid of a railroad we would, so to speak, be able to build our standard gauge road without any outside help. But as we will not for some time to come be able to accomplish either desideratum without extraneous help, and as help equal to the construction of a costly road for our especial benefit is not subject to our present bidding, it becomes a matter of deeper interest to find out if the desired end cannot be attained by much less costly means.

Two cheap substitutes for the unattainable regular railroad are now up for trial. Either plan, if reasonably successful, would answer the requirements of this region very well—firstrate, perhaps. With the success of either or both plans demonstrated, a country as rich in natural resources as this can easily command its own steam lines of connection with the rest of the world. Feeling assured of that, we await results of pending trials of the two plans in question with no little interest. We have in times past referred at length to both these plans; most recently, to the one dubbed the "steam mule," or steam wagon line soon to be tried on an extended scale in Nevada close to our borders. It is not best for us to build very high hopes on the steam mule; rugged mountains and waterless sand plains are liable to bring out fatal constitutional defects in his elaborate make-up. But posssessing some of the leading virtues of a veritable mule, nothing short of an extended trial can determine the limit of his powers, or what there is in him, so, with a warm wish that he may yet be able to afford us an easy mode of egress out of the wilderness, we will await his development.

The other and rather more promising plan is "James' single track railway." Since our first published description of this unique railroad, it has been materially improved, and is now being subjected to an actual working test. The following extract from an Antioch letter in the Visalia Delta gives assurance of its success. The correspondent says:

I reached Antioch on Monday last in time to witness the trial of James' single track railway. At 2 o'clock on the afternoon of that day all the people in Antioch, and a great number from other portions of the State, went to the track, where Billy Worswick had steam up on the locomotive. The track was about one-third of a mile in length, and laid on a grade of near 250 feet to the mile. A platform car had been hastily improvised, and was attached to the locomotive, and on which at least one hundred and fifty women and children were seated. The whistle was blown, Billy let her loose, and away she glided as smoothly and nicely as though she was on a four-foot gauge. There was not the least perceptible rocking of the car, and she made the trip down and up the grade as easily as a ship sails the sea. The directors of the road, Messrs. Wyruck, Bradley, Doyle, Sullivan, Hackett and Reed were all present, as also was the inventor, D. B. James, and each expressed himself well satisfied with the result of the trial. Several old railroad men were present, and only one of them was heard to express a doubt as to its entire practicability. An engineer from San Francisco, who came up expressly to witness the trial, informed me that he considered it a success, and said there was no doubt but that it would revolutionize railroading in the matter of freight transportation.

AT Red Bluff, a few days ago, during the progress of a game of base ball, Wm. Kinser, while striking, was struck in the temple by the ball from the hands of Chas. Shoo, pitcher, which felled him to the earth. In an hour he was brought to town, where he suffered intensely until death relieved him. He was a young man of about 25 years of age.

W. J. PORTER, a hard character, shot and killed Thos. Carmody in Denver a few days ago. The murder was unprovoked, and in less than an hour about fifty unmasked citizens gathered at the jail and hung Porter to a ridge-pole of the jail. He swore until they put the rope about his neck. He then spoke a few words, and said: "Pull up the rope, boys."

WAR has broken between the Nucletaw and Nahwitteee Indian tribes, resident at the northern extremity of Vancouver Island, British Columbia. A grievance between the two tribes has at last resulted in the present collision, which it is feared may terminate in a bloody conflict.

THE ANTI-CHINESE LAW.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 22d instant says the decision in the habeas corpus case of Parrott was rendered by Judge Hoffman, and in effect declares the Anti-Chinese law enacted by the present Legislature to be in conflict with the United States treaty with China and the Constitution of the United States. In rendering his decision the Judge quoted an unusual number of authorities. He said that if the right of the Legislature to restrict corporations in the manner intended by the law in question should be admitted, there would be no limit to the harm which might be accomplished. The Chinese are here and are granted all the benefits of trade or travel by solemn treaty which are enjoyed by any other foreigners. If the Legislature has the power to declare that corporations shall not employ Chinese, they possess the same right to declare that Germans, Irish or Americans shall not be employed. Further, they could exercise the right to declare that the employés of corporations shall be of a certain creed. If the fact of the enactment were not so plainly before us, it would be difficult to believe that the Legislature could declare a law so seemingly a contemptuous breach of treaty obligations. In conclusion, Judge Hoffman remarked that it is generally admitted by the best classes on this coast that unrestricted immigration of Chinese is a menace to our peace, and even to our civilization. It is an evil, however, which the abrogation of the Burlingame treaty alone can remedy. The senseless cry of "the Chinese must go," is an insolent denial of the authority of the United States, and measures of police or health laws, or State legislation made in the spirit of that cry will be promptly set aside by the Court of the United States. The decision was prepared by Judge Hoffman and rendered by him. It is said an appeal will be taken to the United States Supreme Court. Ben. Butler has announced his willingness to act as counsel for the people.

THE House Committee on Indian Affairs on the 19th instant resumed the examination of Chief Ouray, but failed to elicit any satisfactory information in regard to the fight with Thornburgh, the Meeker massacre, or the subsequent ill-treatment of captive women of the agency by Indians. He did not deny that they might have been treated as alleged, but asserted that he knew nothing of it. Ouray's wife was still more non-committal, and the committee were unable to get any information upon the subject under inquiry.

JOHN A. T. OVEREND, a pioneer printer, died on the 22d instant at his residence in San Francisco. The deceased arrived in California in 1850. In early days he was employed as pressman for the Times and Transcript, and subsequently on other papers. During the last seven years he has been engaged in the printing business on his own account. Mr. Overend hailed from Albany, New York, and was 66 years of age at the time of his death. He leaves a wife and three adult children.

A SPECIAL from Washington of recent date intimates that something in the nature of a compromise is in the wind, the outlines of which being that Blaine is not to make an active canvass in Ohio against Sherman, and Sherman's friends to consider Blaine as an available second choice, and Blaine's friends to think favorably of Sherman as a second choice.

THE President has sent to the Senate the following nominations: Consuls, Bret Harte, at Glasgow; W. P. Mangum, of North Carolina, at Tientsin; A. C. IN the San Francisco Police Court on the 20th instant, agitator Gannon was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,000. A motion for a new trial was made, but was denied by the Police Judge, and in default of $3,000 bail, pending an appeal, Gannon was sent to the House of Correction.

THE majority report of the Committee on Elections has decided to oust Kellogg, United States Senator from Louisiana, and recognizes Spofford as the owner of the seat. It is said a lively scene ensued in the Senate when the fact was made known. A warm and angry debate was indulged in by several Senators in regard to the matter. Kellogg went after Hill, of Georgia, at a furious rate, accusing him of being instrumental in having him "bounced." The grounds for ejecting Kellogg are, as reported, that he excluded persons elected and admitted those not elected to the Legislature of Louisiana for the purpose of electing himself; and that Kellogg, knowing these facts, denied them in toto before the Committee on Privileges and Elections, thus inducing a majority of that Committee to declare him chosen as Senatorr.

BY using logarithms the "Gem" problem is made quite easy. The logarithms of numbers from one to fifteen will show how many different combinations can be made with fifteen blocks of the puzzles. The number corresponding to the particular logarithm is 1,308,674,368,000. We learn from the above figures that fifteen blocks may be placed in over 1,000,000,000,000 positions. It is also asserted by the mathematical sharps that to work the problem by the many combinations it admits of would occupy 92,000 years.

FOR the last few days there has been considerable excitement all over the United States owing to the fact that the City of Mexico, the ship on which Grant was traveling, had not arrived when due at Galveston, Texas. It was believed that the ship had been lost in a storm. On Tuesday last, however, the news was flashed over the wire that the steamer had arrived all right. If the General were to step out at this time it would inaugurate some material changes in the programme of the Fall campaign.

H. F. LEWIS, an old and respected citizen of Marshall, Texas, last Monday administered a dose of sulphate of morphine to a twelve-year-old son. The boy lived but a few minutes. Lewis was found that evening in a comatose state lying on his wife's grave, and died shortly after being discovered. He had evidently taken a similar dose as that administered to his child. Lewis has shown signs of insanity ever since the death of his wife, which occurred a short time ago.

GOV. ANDREWS, of Connecticut, is a thoroughly domesticated man. One of the reasons given for his not attending a dinner at Boston recently in honor of Gov. Davis, of Maine, was that he could not reach his home again before Sunday. However urgent his official or business duties during the week, he makes it a point to pass Sunday at home with his family, having missed doing so but once since he was married.

The preliminary examination of P. Benson, charged with purloining goods from the guests of the Grand Central Hotel at Oakland, was concluded in the Police Court on the 18th instant, and resulted in the accused being held to await the action of the Grand Jury with bail fixed at $5,000, which was given, and Benson is again at large.

The amount of base coin in the office of the Sub-Treasurer is about $14,000. The one, three and five cent coins are now in quite common use. The banks now pay checks up to the last cent, and grocers are beginning to return exact change. To the old Californians the new system seems very odd.

White Pine appears to be coming to the front again as a mining camp. It is said that several former residents of that place, now living in Eureka, Austin and adjoining camps, are going back to Hamilton in the Spring. The late developments that have been made in several of the old mines in that locality are of such a promising nature that it is expected that the lively times of 1869-70 in that section will be again inaugurated, but this time on a much firmer basis.

A few days ago, in San Francisco, a man named James Morrissy entered a room, in which Geo. Squires and two women were sitting, and in a few moments became involved in a quarrel with Squires. Morrissy seized a pitcher with which he knocked Squires down and began beating him, when the landlord ran in and pulled him off. Squires, on recovering his feet, attacked Morrissy with a carving knife, stabbing him in four places and causing his death in a few minutes.

Upon a rising vote the mule was immediately elected Financial Secretary, with power to send for persons and papers.—Carson Appeal.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL has been received at the Court of St. James with more marked cordiality than has been shown to any Minister since Motley spent his brief term of office there. Minister Lowell has been received with much honor at several great homes; he has had an audience with the Queen, and he has dined with Lord Ripon and met at his table Mr. Gladstone and other distinguished public men. This is better than the record of the commonplace Philadelphia merchant or the cunning General who injected poker into diplomacy.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

I. O. G. T.—Mount Whitney Lodge, I. O. G. T., was organized at Lone Pine on the 21st instant by Rev. F. M. Willis, S. D. G. C. T. He was assisted by Emma Willis, who acted as W. V. T.; Carrie Willis, P. W. C. T.; Charles Baxter, W. C.; Morton George, W. M. The following members were initiated, elected and installed as officers: J. M. Keeler, W. C. T.; Mrs. Chas. W. Johnson, W. V. T.; Wm. G. Crilly, W. S.; Mrs. W. K. Miller, W. T.; Ed. Chadwick, W. F. S.; E. F. Rowell, W. M.; H. C. Hamilton, W. O. G.; T. S. Hamilton, W. C.; E. F. Rowell, W. L. D.; Ida Adams, W. R. H. S.; Emma Duval, W. L. H. S.; A. H. Wimple, W. A. T.; Joseph Blaney, W. I. G.; C. W. Johnson, W. T. After appointing a committee of three to secure a suitable hall or room for the use of the Lodge, the meeting dissolved, to convene on Saturday, the 28th instant at 7:30 P. M. at the school-house in Lone Pine.

SUPERVISOR PROCEEDINGS.—Pursuant to adjournment, the Board of Supervisors met on Monday last, to receive proposals, etc., as advertised for. Present, Supervisors Westerville and Olds. David Stubblefield submitted a proposal to supply the county offices with piñon wood at $9 87 per cord; F. Lawrence offered the same at $9 50. Lawrence's bid was accepted. V. G. Thompson's bid to board county prisoners at 90 cents per diem each was accepted; no other bidder. On Hospital contract, Mrs. M. Lewis bid at $1,600 per annum for four regulars and $1 40 each per day in excess of that number; for the same, respectively, Dr. Gelcich bid at $2,000 and $1 50. Mrs. Lewis' bid was accepted; bond, $3,200, A. W. Eibeshutz and O. I. Mairs, sureties. On Tuesday Board adjourned to the regular term. Owing to sickness, Mr. Meysan was unable to attend.

STRUCK IT.—In sinking a well at the proposed town of Keeler an abundance of good water was struck at a depth of 33 feet. The well is to be sunk to 40 feet if not found too difficult to overcome the inflow of quicksand and water. The surface of the ground at the well is 50 feet, 8 inches above the lake, from which it is one-half mile distant. The ground toward the bottom of the well is a perfect river wash, out of which a fair "color" of gold can be obtained in nearly every pan of it. Capt. Keeler is firmly of the opinion that this was an ancient channel of Owens river, or some antediluvian stream which debouched into the Gulf of California. It is possible that "pay grit" might be found on the bedrock of this old river bed.

FROM BEVERIDGE. — Messrs. Peter Taylor, Chandler and McEvoy arrived yesterday from Beveridge District. This company made a clean-up of their arastra, after running through about thirty tons. The average shown of the bullion brought in is very nearly $50 per ton, gold. This is not as good as was anticipated, but does very well, nevertheless, as owing to the extreme cold weather which prevailed during the whole period, the arastra was run at great disadvantage, considerable of the precious metals being lost. There is an abundance of ore as rich and richer than this to keep a good mill constantly running, and it is the intention to have such a mill at work as soon as it can be erected.

COMMITTEE MEETING.—A meeting of the Republican County Central Committee is called to meet in this place on Saturday, one week from to day, for the purpose of choosing a delegate to the State Convention, April 29. As it is the fashion just now in nearly all the States to instruct delegates how to vote as between Blaine and Grant, but with no instructions respecting a possible "dark horse," the Republican part of THE INDEPENDENT would respectfully suggest that this Committee adopt the fashion, and instruct for—Blaine; also, that such members as cannot attend, take the trouble to signify by letter their wishes on this point.

SCHOOL, PUBLIC AND PRIVATE.—The term of the public school in this place ends next week. Mr. Daniel Crough, the popular and highly efficient teacher, will then begin a private school for a two months' term or longer if circumstances justify a continuance. The terms will be four dollars per month, per each pupil, except in case of two or more for the same family, when a liberal deduction will be allowed—that is, will then fix charges at wholesale rates, which, we take it, is a premium for big families.

WAUCOBA.—A couple of days since we received a call from Mr. W. C. Chapin, a mining man of much experience. He has just closed several weeks of the toughest kind of work hunting up and examining in deep snow the various mines in Waucoba District belonging to the old Waucoba Mining Company, and at whose instance the examination is made. He goes hence to Arizona, but expects to return here again in a month or so.

CHANCE FOR PICTURES. — Mr. Al. Smith, of Holister, is expected here in a few days to open a photograph gallery. We are assured by parties who know him, and from specimens of his work we have seen, that he is really a first-rate artist.

A COINCIDENCE.—But two men have ever been legally convicted for murder in this county. Both of these were of the name of Welch, and the victims of both were of the name of Moore, but no kinship between any two.

THE RACES.—As will be seen by the advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the races on the Independence track begin on the 27th of April and will continue three or more days.

Trial of Michael Welch for the Killing of Sheriff Moore--Verdict of Murder in the Second Degree.

On Monday last, the 22d instant, in the Superior Court, began the trial of Michael Welch for the killing of Sheriff Wm. L. Moore, on the 3d day of July, 1879. The history of the killing and the case up to this point may be briefly stated as follows. It is so closely connected with the Tessier-Welch difficulty as to render necessary several references thereto.

During the morning of the fatal day there had occurred some difficulty between Henry Tessier and Michael Welch. Both men were drinking considerably, and shortly after noon Tessier, through a concocted and plausible lie, succeeded in exchanging his own pistol for an English "bull dog" belonging to Judge Snelling. Then, at several places throughout town, he gave vent of threats to kill Welch, which were communicated to the latter, who was told to "look out for himself." Late in the afternoon the parties met in the Aldine saloon, when Welch advanced upon Tessier and slapped his face, at the same time applying foul epithets. Notwithstanding the efforts of bystanders to separate them, both drew pistols and engaged in a struggle, during which a shot was fired into the floor—by whom it is not positively known, but Welch's pistol, the only one ever recovered from the melee, was shown finally to have had two chambers discharged. Sheriff Moore reached the spot in a moment after this shot, but not until Welch had wrenched Tessier's pistol from him. Tessier retreated behind the billiard table, while the brave officer laid hold of Welch and commanded him to stop. Welch surged back toward Tessier and struck at him with the muzzle of his long pistol, reaching partially over the Sheriff's left shoulder. Instantly upon the return of the weapon Moore received the deadly wound which in a few moments laid him cold in death. Moore was assisted to the door, some say by Welch himself and County Clerk Crough; but whether this be true or not, all witnesses agree that up to the time of his arrest by Deputy Sheriff Mairs, Welch was crying and exhibited great mental agony at the occurrence.

Tessier made wild efforts to escape, and hid under Fromm's building, where he was discovered and captured by John Welch and lodged in jail. Upon a complaint sworn out by Michael Welch, July 10th, Tessier was by Justice Gardner held to answer to the Grand Jury for the crime of assault with intent to commit murder. September 9th a true bill was found against him by the Grand Jury. The trial began in the County Court on the 29th of September, District Attorney Snelling and Judge A. R. Conklin appearing for the prosecution and Geo. M. Gill, Esq., for the defense. The jury found him guilty as charged in the indictment, and on October 4th he was sentenced to the State Prison for three years, where he now is.

At the inquest held upon the remains of Moore, on July 4th, by Coroner Lank, a verdict was rendered that the deceased came to his death from a gun shot wound at the hands of Michael Welch. In this and subsequent legal proceedings was had the important testimony of two principal eye-witnesses which by reason of their absence could not be obtained at the late trial—Clark and Langer. Upon information filed by J. J. Moore, Welch was arrested upon the Coroner's warrant and taken before Justice Gardner. Welch waived examination and was held to answer to the Grand Jury without bail. September 10th he was indicted for murder, and on November 7th he was arraigned before the District Court, Judge Theron Reed presiding. District Attorney Snelling and Judge Conklin appeared for the people and Gen. J. R. Kittrell and S. P. Moffat for the defendant. His attorneys made an effort for a change of venue, but Welch refused to affix his mark to the necessary affidavit, and a doubt arose as to the defendant's sanity. A special jury was impanelled to try the issue, and after examination of witnesses and exhaustive argument by counsel the jury found that the accused was insane. On the 15th November Judge Reed signed an order directing Welch to be committed to the authorities of the State Insane Asylum at Napa, until such time as he became sane, when he should be redelivered to the Sheriff of this county. In about ten days the Sheriff was notified to come after his prisoner. While in custody since, Welch has manifested an abusive and troublesome disposition, at times yelling himself hoarse. In the present trial

THE JURY

Was obtained from a venire of seventy, drawn from all parts of the county. The following were impanelled and sworn to impartially try the cause: E. M. Hilton, Thomas M. Fulton, Benigno Aguirre, J. H. Gray, F. P. Blaisdell, James McCarty, W. F. Matlack, W. R. Berkley, C. W. Johnson, E. Marr, W. Bowman and A. K. Briggs. The readiness with which a jury was obtained seemed a matter of surprise to many. Of course the usual stress was laid upon whether the jurymen had "read the account as published in THE INYO INDEPENDENT;" all of them had, of course, though among those finally accepted there were but two subscribers to this journal. Further, had the point been pressed, we doubt if any one of the jurors summoned could have recalled a single word of THE INDEPENDENT'S account of the homocide; not a syllable has ever been published calculated in the slightest degree to bias or prejudice the case pro or con. Another pertinent fact may be stated right here: As is well known, the deceased officer was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and the wild vaporings of the prisoner before and during the trial might possibly lead some one to suppose that the order was prosecuting him. Then be the fact known that neither the Court, no member of the bar nor any one of the jurors in the late trial belong to the Masons or any other secret society. We trust this truthful statement will relieve the minds of Welch's Bodie friends.

The examination of witnesses and arguments of law and fact on the part of counsel occupied but two days, the case going to the jury on Wednesday evening. His Honor ruled out all extraneous testimony or matter not immediate connected with the case on trial, as distinguished from that of the People vs. Tessier. Considering this his first case of the kind, District Attorney Laird managed the prosecution with admirable ability, his closing address to the jury being especially effective. Gen. Kittrell, with his long professional experience, contested every point with marked earnestness and legal acumen. The Judge, lawyers and jury were annoyed by the frequent interruptions of the prisoner. At 12 o'clock at night Court was called and the jury returned and rendered the following

VERDICT:

We, the jury impanelled to try the case of Michael Welch for the killing of one Wm. Moore, find him guilty of murder in the second degree.

Messrs. Kittrell and Moffat, for the defense, fortified themselves for a new trial or an appeal by filing bills of exceptions at every point—as to rulings excluding evidence offered, instructions to the jury for the prosecution and by the Judge, and as to instructions refused on the part of the defense. It is with such a contingency in view that we refrain for the present in giving any part of the evidence adduced in the trial. The following notice of a motion for a

NEW TRIAL

Has been filed, and will be argued by Mr. Moffat and Mr. Laird on Monday next:

"In the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California. The People of the State of California vs. Michael Welch.

Please take notice that the defendant in the above entitled action will move this honorable Court, at the Court-room thereof, at the Court House in Independence, in said county and State, on Monday, the 29th day of March, A. D. 1880, at the opening of the Court on that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, to grant a new trial of said cause. Said motion will be made on the following grounds:

1. That the Court during the trial of said cause misdirected the jury in matters of law arising during the course of the trial.

2. That the Court erred in decisions of questions of law arising during the course of the trial.

3. That the verdict is contrary to law and against the evidence adduced on the trial."

DEEP SPRING VALLEY.—We learn from Mr. J. D. Hudgin and Mr. Woodhull, who returned from Deep Spring Valley on Thursday, that the new prospects near Gilbert's Ranch are opening up splendidly. There is said to be more rich ore on the surface than in any other district on the coast; the ledges are numerous and of good width, varying from two to six feet wide, and all containing pay ore between the walls. The croppings are bold and distinct. About 30 claims have been located. The ores are all of one class—all free milling—carrying about 20 per cent of their value in gold. A sample of one hundred pounds of the second class ore sent to San Francisco yielded $70 per ton. The better class will show an average of $200 per ton. Mr. Hudgin, who is here representing San Francisco capital, has bonded the Whiteman claim for 100 days, and work will soon be commenced on it. Gid Whiteman and Scott Broder are on the ground, hard at work, with smiling faces, as they believe they have the biggest thing out.

PERSONAL.—George M. Gill, Esq., and wife arrived from Mammoth a few days since. At this time Mammoth is exceedingly dull, dead, in fact, but does not expect to remain so any longer than till the bulk of the snow disappears, so that something can be done. George started on his return to that place immediately, Mrs. G. remaining here for a visit with her relatives.... Frank Blaney started early in the week for Texas, there to remain.... By virtue of subpœnas, summons, etc., pretty well on to a hundred citizens from all parts of the county were among us during the week, but few or none of them tarried any longer than legal politeness demanded, hence we are unable to report their sayings and doings.

KEELER.—We learn that the company of which Captain Keeler is the local representative, desires that the site selected for the reduction works, heretofore called Mill City, be hereafter known as "Keeler"—Keeler straight, no "ville," nor "burgh," nor "city," or any other tail of any sort to round it off, but simply Keeler, all the same as Bodie, Benton, Boston and the like. By the way, the legal name of the company is, to us, at least, quite unknown, which won't do for convenient reference to its operations, which promise to become the most extended and important in the county.

GOES BELOW.—Sheriff Smith will, on Tuesday or Wednesday next, start with Charles Howell, the aged crazy man, to place him in the Napa Asylum. No legal process springing up in the meantime to prevent, Mike Welch will also make one of the party as far as the Corte Madera Landing, near which he will probably go into business with the segregated branch of the co-operative sand-lot association which is carrying on brick-making and other industries in that neighborhood.

FAVORABLE.—We are pleased to inform the outside world that our weather symptoms now give some hopes of some Spring after while; how much, remains to be seen.

CAN GO.—About next Thursday, it being All Fools' Day, you can go fishing without violating any statute unless it would be one of common sense.

MRS. CHRISTIANCY is reported as being very indignant at the newspaper publications, and resents with indignation the imputation she has been unfaithful to her husband. She admits that their separation is final, but insists that it is her choice and not because of her misconduct.

FRANCE has more real cause for complaint at the position of certain classes in the United States on the question of building a Darien canal than on any question whch has been brought up since the withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico. A citizen of France organizes a company to construct a canal, free to the ships of all nations, across a belt of country which is quite a thousand miles from any territory belonging to the United States. He has the full consent of the Government that owns the land on which he proposes to go to work, to proceed with his enterprise; he offers the control of the whole of the stock of the company to American citizens, and still, while ridiculing the scheme and refusing to subscribe, a certain portion of the press and of the leading politicians of the country loudly assert that the work must not proceed until it pleases the United States Government or citizens of the United States to undertake it. And in justification the Monroe doctrine is pleaded, a doctrine that never had any but a political significance, which was aimed simply at restricting the despotisms of the Old World from planting branch despotisms in the new. The humiliating part of the business is that if these noisy talkers keep agitating the matter long enough a natural result will be that three or four European powers will unite and guarantee protection to the Frenchman and the United States will be powerless to resist. Doubtless all there is in the business is that certain of the great railroad incorporations of the country do not desire to have a canal constructed on any terms, and so they stimulate the cry that a great outrage will be perpetrated upon the United States if a quiet Frenchman exhibits the ability to raise a company and execute the greatest engineering feat of modern times. The words of censure in our country should cease at once and words of praise and encouragement be substituted.—Virginia Enterprise.

IT is certainly to be hoped that Postmaster General Key will open his mind to the unanimous protest of the Pacific Coast members of Congress against any action tending to impair the efficiency of the letter-carrying service of Wells, Fargo & Co. The protest is timely, and as it is signed by every Senator and Representative from the Pacific Coast, it ought to have some weight with the Department. It is a little singular that a private business which is an aid rather than a competitor to the Postoffice Department, and which pays precisely the same price for each one of the hundreds of thousands of stamped envelopes it orders as an individual pays for one, should be singled out by the Department in its efforts to reform the public service. Private enterprise has done what the Government seemed unwilling to do, and has aided the Government, while paying the Government the same as if the work had been done at public expense, and the Department so well served, is not satisfied. If the Department is earnestly determined on reform, it should not waste its ammunition in such uncalled-for attacks.—S. F. Call.

IT is our fixed opinion that, with a single exception, the Democratic party can elect no individual President of the United States this year but Mr. Tilden. That single exception is the candidate named by Mr. Tilden. It is our fixed opinion that we cannot maintain a ticket in the field six weeks unless it is headed or heartily supported by Mr. Tilden. We may further state, as within our positive knowledge, that Mr. Tilden does not seek the nomination, but that he is casting about for some one who may lift the burdens of the canvass from his shoulders without sacrificing the party. If he succeeds in achieving the misfortune of finding one, the party will lose rather than gain by the transfer. If we don't take Tilden we are fools; if we desert him we are cowards. And if it comes to a passage at arms he, and only he among the Democratic leaders, can set a squadron in the field.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE colored but respected President of the Lime-Kiln Club, Detroit, said to the members of the society at the last lecture: "Gen'len, Ize been poking 'round dis wurld about sixty yars, and it am my experience: First—Dat the man who groans ober the general wickedness of the wurld will steal a wheelbarrow ebery time he gits a chance. Second—Dat de man who goes 'round lamentin' dat he can't trust nobody is the very chap who'll give you away ebery time. Third—Dat de pussen dat tinks de wurld am full o' cheats and liars will trade you a blind hoss an' den sneak into de barn at midnight an' steal all the shoes off his feet. Dar's wicked folks on y'erts, of course," concluded this sound philosopher, "but de man who does the squar ting will neber run amiss o' squar people."

THE Cincinnati hotel-keepers seem determined to kill the goose before it lays the golden egg. They have demanded such unrighteous prices for accommodation during the Democratic Convention that the advance agents have intimated that there is ample time to select another place for holding the convention. This will probably bring the grasping landlords to their senses. What unholy joy would be aroused in St. Louis or Chicago should the disgusted Democrats really abandon Cincinnati for either of these cities.

JOHN I. GINN, for many a years a Comstock newspaper man, but now editor of the Bodie Standard, talks of starting a paper in Candelaria during the coming month.—Sutro Independent.

In the Bodie Standard Mr. Ginn denies this report.

IT is now rumored that D. O. Mills has at last realized that working Chinamen in Nevada is a thankless job, and he has concluded to employ white laborers on the Bodie extension. The Appeal predicted this course several months ago.—Carson Appeal.

GEN. FRISBIE says that Grant is "reaching out for fame" and is a candidate.

SENTENCE of death was pronounced in the case of H. E. Brown at Ukiah, Mendocino county, on the 22d instant. In the case of Gaunce, who has also been convicted of murder in the first degree, the sentence was postponed until the 12th of next month.

THE Poland, Black Warrior and Tuscumbia mines, Arizona, have been sold to a Fremont syndicate for an aggregate of $200,000. The money was paid on the 19th instant.

ABOUT one hundred and fifty miners are taking out from four dollars to an ounce a day to the man from placer mines situated about ten miles from Prescott.

BY command of Queen Victoria, a stone cross has been erected on the spot where the Prince Imperial lost his life in Zululand.

"A Sure Cure."

This is the language used by George Shepard Page, of Stanley, New Jersey—not by way of professional advertisement, but simply as an item of information for the people—in reference to that distressing disease, the whooping-cough. It was only a short time since the cause of the complaint was discovered. The eminent microscopist, Henry Mott, Ph. D., and Edward Curtis, M. D., find that its seat is at the root of the tongue, where countless facteria are generated, which produce spasms. Here is what Mr. Page tells us about his sure cure:

"A seientist in Providence, Rhode Island, examined the liquid dydro-carbon deposited in the bottom of the purifying boxes, used at gas works, and separated cresolene (C6 H5 CH3o)—a substance analogous to Phenol. He vaporized the cresolence in a closed room, in which there was a patient suffering from whooping cough. Recovery was effected in two days. Many other trials have been made, and with nearly unvarying success. No cough or other unpleasant symptoms remain. The patients are restored to perfect health. Eminent physicians have pronounced the discovery of equal importance to that of quinine."

If this suggested remedy for whooping cough is found to be effective, Mr. Page will be entitled to the thanks of the public for making it known.—S. F. Call.

It was at one time said that the mines of Columbus District would prove worthless on account of the scarcity of the fluid of nature, but will prove no hindrance to the working of the mines, for already a company has been formed to run water for all purposes, with a flume 22 miles in length. Capt. Overton, of the Virginia and Gold Hill Water Company, and other experts at the business, have visited Candelaria, and it is reported that the water right has been purchased at a high figure. The certainty of a water supply will draw thousands of prospectors to Candelaria and neighboring mining localities, and lively times in that direction may be looked for.—Carson Tribune.

The Edmunds Electoral Count bill provides for a meeting of Presidential Electors on the second Monday in January, instead of the second Wednesday in December, and provides for a State disposition of any controversy under such laws as it may have in existence before chosing electors—the two Houses of Congress to proceed in conformity with the decisions of the respective States.

At Roxborough, N. C., on the 19th instant, a white child was born with four hands, two trunks, twenty-four ribs each, and a head at each end, but no legs. In attempting to crawl each head is in an opposite direction, and each body is independent as to hunger and thirst, but both go to sleep at the same time. The child is apparently healthy.

Copper Mines.

Copper mines are now in demand in the New York market. This being the case it is probably worth while for people on this coast to give some attention to such mines. Copper is found in hundreds of places in California, and in this State we have some mines that promise well. There are many mines in the neighborhood of Peavine District that are rich in copper, though no work has been done on these except at a few feet below the surface. Gold and silver are associated with most of the copper ores of that district, and the work done on the veins was more on account of a hope of finding those metals than with a view of doing anything with the copper.

In the vicinity of Pyramid Lake in the early days seams of native copper were found, specimens of which were brought to this city by prospectors, but since that time nothing has been heard of the vein or veins from which the samples were obtained.

In the vicinity of Walker Lake are several large and rich deposits of copper. In that region some mining for copper has been done, the ore being used in the manufacture of bluestone (sulphate of copper) at Dayton. Parties who have given some attention to the matter say that there are several workable mines of copper in the direction of Walker Lake, and that at one place is a large hill or mountain completely covered with copper ore of an excellent quality.

When the branch road to Bodie is completed these mines are likely to prove valuable, as they cannot be far from where it will pass through. We must have in many places in this State ores that are richer than the majority of those now worked in the Lake Superior country.—Virginia Enterprise.

GEORGE MARKS came in from Mill Creek yesterday, bringing letters and a batch of favorable news. He says the new mill commenced to saw its first lumber yesterday. The whistle was blown several days before, but owing to some defection in the machinery no work was performed. The town is growing notwithstanding the snow. Rabjohn is doing a good business, and so is Jack Hall. The first demand will be lodging-houses, of which there are none at present to speak of. It is thought the snow will be melted off in six weeks, if no more falls in the meantime. Encouraging news comes regarding the Homer mine—the ledge is wide and shows a good character of ore. Just as soon as the snow leaves a daily line of coaches will be put on the road.—Bodie Free Press, March 28.

THERE seems to be a suicide mania among the ladies in California. San Francisco, Oakland and San José are scenes of this shuffling of mortal coils. The methods of suicide employed vary the same as those made use of by the sterner sex, but poison seems to be the favorite. The latest case was at San José, where a young lady, aged seventeen, committed suicide by taking strichnine.

SENATOR RYAN, of San Francisco, has introduced a bill making it unlawful to keep open a saloon or drinking place between 12 o'clock Saturday night and 12 o'clock Sunday night. The penalty for an infraction of the law provides a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100, or imprisonment not less than 30 nor more than 90 days.

A. C. PRATT, Superintendent of the Nevada and Telegraph Company, arrived at the Junction last Tuesday and left Wednesday morning for Belleville, Candelaria and Columbus. He will no doubt make arrangements for a commencement on the new line connecting those towns with Aurora.—Esmeralda Herald, March 18.

Long Winters.

Several old timers in this section were seated about the stove in the Chicago Brewery last night discussing stocks, when the conversation touched on deep snow and long Winters.

"When I was in Meadow Lake in '67," observed one of them, "it began to snow on the 28th of December and in two days there were twelve feet of snow on the level. During the storm you couldn't see a foot ahead of you; it was awful."

"Snow any more that Winter," said a small man behind the stove.

"Snowed! I should say it did. Taking it altogether over sixty feet fell, and old timers said it was a moderate Winter."

The man to his left thought it a hard place, but he said that he was up in Florence, Idaho, one Winter, and in his estimation it was the hardest place he ever got into. "It started up in the first part of December and snowed nineteen days; and cold! it beat the Arctic regions; fifty-one degrees below zero, and not a wooden house in town. I slept out of doors under one pair of blankets."

"How long did it last," chipped in the barkeeper, who began to grow interested.

"Until the middle of August. On the 4th of July there were three feet of snow on the ground, and we had a procession on sleighs; the orator froze his feet will praising the old Revolutionary boys and throwing glory on the American eagle. We couldn't do any work until September. One Winter there was enough for me."

Some having front seats were inclined to doubt the story, but a slim man seated on a beer keg, and who had never been further north than Reno, substantiated his statement by stating that he had spent the same Winter there.

"I was through this country long before Bodey had," said a man about thirty-five years of age, lighting his pipe, "and camped on High Peak. It snowed and drifted for five weeks. This basin was completely filled up. I recollect of starting from where the Con. Pacific works now stand, and walking in a bee line west half a mile on the frozen snow. This was on the third day of June, and in four days it melted entirely away. I never saw such a flood."

The man on the keg wanted to give his experience, but the convention broke up in confusion.—Bodie Free Press.

A CURIOUS story is going the rounds of the English newspapers of an exhibition in the show windows of one of the leading jewelers of Vienna. The object of attraction is a brooch magnificently studded with gems, in the middle of whose chasing is inclosed the most singular of centers—four common, old, bent and corroded pins. This brooch is the property of the Countess Lavetskofy. The pins have a history, of course. Seven years ago Count Robert Lavetskofy, as the story runs, was arrested at Warsaw for an alleged insult to the Russian Government. The real author of the insult, which consisted of some careless words spoken at a social gathering, was his wife. He accepted the accusation, however, and was sent to prison.

In one of those lightless dungeons in which the Czar is said to be fond of confining his Polish subjects, the unfortunate martyr for his wife's loose tongue spent six years. He had only one amusement. After he had been searched and thrown into a cell, he had found in his coat four pins. These he pulled out and threw on the floor; then in the darkness he hunted for them. Having found them, perhaps after hours and even days, he scattered them again. And so the game went on for six weary years. "But for them," he writes in his memoirs, "I would have gone mad. They provided me with a purpose. So long as I had them to search for, I had something to do. When the decree for my liberation as an exile was brought to me, the jailer found me on my knees hunting for one which had escaped me for two days. They saved my wife's husband from lunacy. My wife, therefore, could not desire a prouder ornament."

MR. SHEPHERD, one of our Consuls in England, has furnished an account of the English system of Postoffice savings banks, which has been looked upon with some favor in this country. They were established in 1861, when the money order system went into effect. The smallest sum depositable is 25 cents, the largest in any one year $150. The interest paid by the Government is two and a half per cent. on all amounts of a pound or over. Sums under one pound draw no interest. In case of a change of residence of the depositor, the account can be tranferred without dificulty or much expense. The system is said to be very popular with the people, as the aggregate of about three and a half million of depositors seems to attest. These are represented mainly by servants, laborers, and persons of small means.

A LAPLANDER will make three good meals of a tub of oleomargarine, his wife will use the hoops for crinoline, and the boys will use the staves for snow-shoes

WHEN ladies meet they always greet with kisses heard across the street; but men, more mild, don't get so wild; they meet, then part, when both had "smiled."

THERE are rumors that Keeler, the motor man, has invented a machine for sticking pins through a starched collar.

THE Journal last Saturday announced the finding of a new ore body in the Jones and Kinkead mine at Pyramid, and that on Saturday that Messrs. Kinkead and Leete had gone to see what it amounted to. These gentlemen returned on Saturday evening, bringing in a large number of specimens, and from them we learn that the development is a guarantee that the Jones and Kinkead is no longer a prospect, but a mine, and that the long-looked-for bonanza has at last been found. The drift passed through nine feet of black sulphuret ore, and then for ten feet was in ore that could not be told from genuine Comstock ore. The face of the drift was still in this ore when they came away, and Supt. Jones intended to keep on until he should reach the wall. This rich find is on the 400 level. There are hundreds of tons of $30 ore on the upper levels, but it was reserved for the 400 to show the first genuine Comstock quartz. The assays from the new find average nearly $200 per ton, and there is suffic ent ore in sight to justify the putting up of a mill, which we understand will be done immediately. The Jones and Kinkead folks have been working along for years, and up to this time have expended about $30,000, all the money being paid by Renoites. There is no mine in the State which can show as much work for as little money. Neither is there any outside mine which has as good a prospect, and we feel now, as we always have, the mine will prove one of the best opened in the State. Supt. Jones is anxious that all stockholders should visit the mine and see for themselves, and for that purpose will not disturb the ore for a week. We understand that there will be an "exodus" from Reno next Sunday to accept the invitation.—Reno Journal, March 16.

SENATOR CHRISTIANCY, a wealthy octenagenarian, married a young girl who was a poor clerk in the Treasury Department. At the time of the marriage the newspapers gushed over the good fortune of the girl; but after a few years of married life she has learned to her sorrow that all's not gold that glitters and that wealth alone cannot bring happiness. She married Christiancy on the principle, better an old man's darling than a young man's slave, but she has not been very much of a darling to the Senator. Her husband publicly brings charges against her character, which she offsets with charges of cruelty on his part, supplementing them with exposures of political corruption. The affair promises to result in a wretched scandal, which will show that the parties have led a miserable cat and dog life, notwithstanding that the husband's wealth is as great as any reasonable married couple might desire. Mrs. Christiancy might better have remained in the Treasury or married some young counter-jumper with a salary of forty dollars a month. As the young man's slave she could not have been any more unhappy as she has been as the old man's darling.—Stock Report.

SOME very unreasonable persons at Deadwood want to kill off all the newspaper men, and have declared a war of extermination against them, just as if they were rats or Indians. These would-be assassins are not posted or they would know that it is more impossible to kill a newspaper man than it is to kill a cat. There is no case on record where a journalist has died and staid dead. But the Deadwood journalists object to being perforated with bullets and have sent to Russia for shirts of mail, and meantime are strutting through the streets with Gatling guns strapped to their belts, ready to turn loose and mow down the entire population at a moment's notice. If anybody can be so utterly depraved as to desire to kill a newspaper man, he shows the utter degradation to which human nature can fall. Newspaper men are public blessings, per se, and the man who would raise a hand to one of them, except in the way of kindness, is no better than a rhinoceros.—Stock Report.

THE Hon. James M. Caldwell has just returned from a trip through Southern Nye and Eastern Esmeralda and reports everything very encouraging. He is of the opinion that they have some very rich mines at Candelaria, which will be a very lively camp this coming Summer. The Northern Belle mine is looking well and producing considerable bullion, and the towns of Belleville and Columbus are beginning to wear a prosperous look. The prospects of Lone Mountain are excellent and the district will be thoroughly prospected during the Summer.—Belmont Courier.

THE proposed square location mining law is a botched piece of business, with scarcely a redeeming feature. The present mining laws are good enough and do not need tinkering. The bill now pending in Congress to regulate the location of mining claims would, if it becomes a law, discourage prospecting, hamper and prevent mining development and involve the mines in endless and vexatious litigation.—Stock Report.

IN Germany, recently, a brewer spoiled 300 tons of beer, and turned it loose. It ran into a fish pond, and for several days the fishes therein were all on a big drunk. They raced about, jumped out of the water, and gave every evidence of inebriety.

IT is thought that the chances are favorable for the appointment of Hon. John F. Swift, of San Francisco, Minister to China, now that Seward will have to resign or be kicked out of that position.

THE FIGURES.

The Call, of March 31, gives the following in its display headings to its details of Tuesday's election in San Francisco: "James D. Byrnes [Rep.] elected Joint Senator; Byrnes, 15,893; Freud, 10,246; 5,000 votes to count. Citizens' Ticket [Charter Legislature], 16,339; Workingmens', 10,246." The ticket elected by the Citizens' Protective Union to frame Charter consists of 7 Democrats, 7 Republicans and one Independent of unknown proclivities. Says Dinis, says he: "Every vote you cast for Freud is a vote to keep me out of jail!" Poor Dinis! they didn't vote for Freud or Fraud or whatever his name is. Dinis is now the undermost dog in the fight. His late organ, the Call, always did hate the under dog in any fight—till he got on top or was likely to. After his six months of expected rest, Dinis will need to look up another "fearless" organ. Who'll care for Dinis now, also the Rev. Isaac?

ASTRONOMERS are now much interested in a lately discovered comet of immense proportions which is cruising about in the southern hemisphere. It does not appear that this celestial stranger has yet satisfactorily declared his intentions as to whether he will come north or not, but should he do so, as is probable, he is likely to produce quite a sensation. We read, however, that no great comet was expected to visit us this year, or, for that matter, for many years to come. Halley's comet is not due till 1911, Donati's, which appeared in 1858, will not get around again till some time in the thirty-eighth century, and the great comet of 1861, the most brilliant ever seen in this century, will not return before 2200. Of the few whose periods are short, all are small and but few of them can be seen without a telescope. This great comet said to be passing the sun northwards is, therefore, an entire stranger, and will receive great attention in consequence.

A LATE New York Herald special from Galveston says there is no longer any doubt that ex-President Grant has fixed his mind on another term in the White House. He is as silent about it as the grave, but those who accompany him and his family do not conceal their eager desire to enter the White House, nor their dislike of any opposition to their wishes. They have fixed all their hopes on his success, and the ex-President not only seeks the nomination, but does not mean to be balked in his design. He will not withdraw; there is no doubt on this point. He is a candidate, and he means that the party shall nominate him, no matter how bitter the struggle may be, or how narrow the majority may be.

THE April number of the Californian is, to us at least, the most interesting magazine we have read for many a day. There is a freshness and an originality in its entire style and manner peculiarly attractive, and now we are satisfied the Californian is, and will continue to be, a success. Dr. Gally's charming story, "Sand," is continued in this number, and has reached a point especially interesting to mining people; R. E. Desmond's "Story of New Zealand and Australia," Sam. Davis' "Hermit of Treasure Peaks," "Shepherds and Sheep-herding," by Robert. D. Milne, "Agua Tibia," by ———, are all very readable papers, and there is nothing in it that is not pleasingly written.

THE Legislature has but eight more working days before it, which time will be occupied in rushing through bills out of order. In fact, it is not likely that the regular file will be reached again at all, which will be quite as well for the State. The only thing better would be for the machine to stop now.

THE Candelaria Mining Company has filed articles of incorporation to conduct a mining business in Columbus Mining District, Esmeralda county, Nevada, with a capital stock of $10,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares.

UNDER the law abolishing slavery in Cuba, which has passed both branches of the Spanish Cortes, slavery will entirely cease in that island within ten years.

BLAINE is the only Republican presidential candidate now in the field who can carry a single Pacific Coast State.

JOHN NUGENT, former editor and proprietor of the San Francisco Herald, and a pioneer of the Pacific coast, died in San Leandro last Monday morning.

GOV. PERKINS has appointed O. Harlowe, G. T. Bromley and N. Young as Port Wardens of San Francisco.

WELLS, FARGO & CO.'S EXPRESS.

Petitions are being circulated everywhere over the coast, and being universally signed, protesting against the senseless proposition now awaiting Department action, to prohibit Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express from carrying letters and mailable packages. The feeling against the proposition is one of universal indignation. "What will those infernal fools in Washington undertake to do next?" is the substance of a query often submitted but never answered.

Says that wonderful Commission: "Wells, Fargo & Co., have established and been operating for years a letter carrying department of immense magnitude " which they endeavor by every means in their power to render more efficient than the regular servive."

The contemptible idiots! As if it was a crime for an express to be more generally efficient, more trustworthy, more serviceable in every way to more people than the regular service in the nature of things ever was or can be. Is it any business of Postmaster General Keys, any of his clerks and assistants, any of his mail contractors, of Congress, or any other branch of the Government, that a fully stamped letter is carried to its destination quicker and with more certainty by express than by regular mail? Does it concern those people or departments that the expressman travels dim roads and trails never seen by a mail carrier, as he has done for a generation past, and still does, throughout this coast. Cannot that Commission understand that owing to the very efficiency they complain of, especially in the last mentioned particular, thousands and tens of thousands of stamps or stamped envelopes have been sold and used which but for that would not have been sold or used? Can that Commission appreciate the reasons why in every place and hamlet west of the Rocky Mountains, the hearts of so many, especially of the gray haired, warm toward this express company? We will tell them why, in part: Because in many instances but for it no "letter from home" would ever have reached them; but for it they would for long periods have known no more of the great world than the great world knew of them—but that Commision knows nothing of sentiment; because, while every where doing the work of he regular service without cost or letriment to the regular service, it lid much more in fulfilling peculiar requirements of a peculiar country which are beyond both the duties and abilities of the regular service; because, while obtruding every where to help, it obtrudes offensively nowhere; while aiding every man in his business, it interferes with no man's business—in tha regard as well as others it is the model great corporation of the world; protecting the United States mails, travelers and their treasure without pay, it gets no protection in return. When entrusted with a letter addressed, say to "Dick Roe, San Francisco," it, contrary to Mr. Key's famous order to Postmasters, delivers the letter to Dick if he can be found, and does not send it straight up to the Dead Letter office, simply because the word "California," had been omitted in the address. Because it retains for agents, etc., none but men of acknowledged business capacity and integrity—and, by the way, what better indorsement for his responsible duties can a Postmaster have than that he is also Wells, Fargo's agent? Yet this Commission urges that such dual agency should not be permitted!

Our Postal service is efficient, our Postmasters, so far as we know them, are above reproach in any regard, and it is in no mood of fault finding with either that we suggest to Mr. Key that he had better not make a fool of himself in trying to break down the noblest institution of the Pacific Coast, and one that surely does nothing to detract from the efficiency of the service over which he presides.

THERE'S trouble in the air. The ballot paper used by the Citizens' Union party in San Francisco was not, it is said, of legal color, weight or texture, so the election is to be contested—and if the allegations are sustained, the C. P. U. party will and ought to lose their election. Meantime, Dinis, feeling that he is now himself the Great Defrauded with a sure enough grievance, is happy, and is going about like a great roaring sheep seeking whom he may devour somebody.

THE Reno Gazette says an association to be known as the "Piute Sugar Company" has organized at that place. The company have located a large tract of land in the sugar cane district, and a large sorghum mill will be erected forthwith. The company expect to have everything in full operation by the 1st of June. They believe they will be able to supply the Nevada market with choice sugar at lower prices than any of a similar quality can be imported.

A DISPATCH from Washington of the 30th ultimo says that President Angell, of the Michigan University, is in that city awaiting consultation with the Secretary of State with reference to his appointment as Minister to China. The Secretary first offered Angell the honor of serving as President of a commission to negotiate a treaty with China. This was declined. Then the Secretary offered to clothe Angell with the full powers of an Envoy Extraordinary, which was accepted on condition that he was not to be hampered by any policy of the Administration, nor instructed as to what terms to offer or accept from China. President Angell insisted on confining his official action to his own views of what was just and desirable. He agreed to commence an investigation of the Chinese problem without prejudice. These conditions were accepted by the Department, and he will go to China uncommitted to any policy, but prepared to investigate the subject of Chinese immigration thoroughly, both in California and in China. His instructions will therefore be nominal. When asked for an explanation of his views on the question he is to consider, Angell remarked that he had no views; that he should first learn the Chinese alphabet.

TEMPERANCE coffee houses, which have been so successful in drawing men away from bar-rooms in London, are to be tried in New York. They are simply bar-rooms without whisky, beer gardens without beer. Men can go to them and spend an evening as they do in a bar-room. They can listen to music, or play cards or billiards and order them, but they must be coffee, tea, chocolate, cider, milk, mead or lemonade. Everything that intoxicates is excluded. It is said that in Havana one can see bar-rooms thronged with men sitting around tables and drinking. But the drinks are light and harmless, and contain no fermented liquor. There is no doubt that such institutions will take in this country. It is the social feature of saloons that after all, constitutes their chief charm. A place where temperate and even religious men can be seen and chatted with will eventually be attractive to hundreds who now wander into a bar-room from sheer lack of somewhere else to spend their evening.

THE New York Mining Record of March 20, has the following in reference to the lead market: The market has declined, and at the lower range of prices, established buyers have taken a considerable amount of stock. Sales aggregate about 500 tons common domestic at 5¾ cents down to 5½ cents—the market closing quiet and steady at the latter figure. The jobbing demand continues moderate, but manufacturers generally report a good business. The reaction from the recent high level at which values have been maintained was by no means unexpected, and is merely a natural and therefore healthy decline, in consequence of long existing dullness. Corroding is nominally quoted at 5¾ cents.

REPRESENTATIVE DAGGETT and Delegate Maginnis appeared before the House Mining Committee on the 26th of last month and requested a hearing in opposition to the changes approved by the Public Land Commissioners in the present mining laws, and especially to protest against the contemplated abolition of the present system of ledge locations. The committee informed them that full opportunity will be given for argument of these topics.

THE possibility of a war with China is freely discussed. A dispatch from Berlin says that to keep the Chinese from Kuldja, the Russians are endeavoring to induce the King of Burmah to join the Japan-Siamese alliance against China. A new Japanese Envoy will leave for St. Petersburg this month. In court circles every allusion to France is studiously avoided, so strong is the displeasure at her treatment of the Hartmann case.

A DISPATCH from Eureka, Nevada of the 30th ultimo says it is an established fact that an important development has been made in the Albion mine. They claim 28 feet of ore. Assays made gave a return of $120 per ton. The strike is important, as showing a continuation of the great Ruby Hill lode to the westward of the Richmond mine.

IN San Francisco last Tuesday, Geo. Mitchell, a painter, was arrested on a charge of insanity preferred by his employer. He had become insane over the "15" puzzle and covered the floor and walls with figures in an attempt to solve it.

THE tumble in little Pittsburgh has caused a shrinking in the cash value of the Leadville mines all the way from twenty to fifty millions. It has been a real panic in that group of mining stocks.

MR. R. L. TILDEN, an old-time printer, well and favorably known in Nevada and this State, died in San Francisco on the 19th of last month.

A TRIP TO LOS ANGELES.

SAN JOSE, March 20.

MESSRS EDITORS: On the 23d of February the writer concluded to visit home, see his better half, boy and friends, and, by way of change, to see what was going on, etc., concluded to go by way of Los Angeles. The first day was spent in company of several Darwinites, in and around the Old Coso mines. These mines are all gold bearing ledges, the most prominent of which are the Refugio and Mariposa, or lately known as the Orion. The Refugio is a very promising prospect, being a well defined ledge of two feet in width, good walls, nearly a perpendicular vein with a shaft down on it some thirty feet, and from which from 12 to 20 tons of fine looking ore have already been extracted, which from rough assays made in the miner's rude and incorrect way, is believed will average from $50 to $75 per ton. The Orion or Mariposa is an established mine, containing an incline shaft, which is down on the vein some 230 feet, which has a very favorable dip, and a drift running upon the vein some one hundred feet or more, 200 feet from mouth of shaft, exposing a well defined ledge of from 10 to 15 inches in width of ore that will work at least $50 per ton. This vein, it is calculated by competent judges, to have sufficient ore already exposed to view to pay for the expense of a five-stamp mill. This ledge has been exclusively worked for the last two years by Mexicans, and the ore been ground up by the arastra, and has yielded by this slow process from $500 to $1,000 per month in gold bullion amalgam, with not more that five or six men working in the mine. Right in this locality of Old Coso is a splendid opportunity for a small mill, which in my opinion could be kept continually running and prove a profitable investment.

On the evening of the 23d reached Junction, and upon the arrival of the stage from Independence. Upon its arrival found the following gentlemen on board for company: Mr. J. D. Hudgin, of San Francisco, who is doing his best to bring into favorable notice and develop the mining interests of middle Inyo. Mr. Jamison, who so lately made the successful run of Modock ores for Messrs. Birchett & Parker. Frank Fitzgerald, the efficient Constable and keeper of the peace of Eastern Inyo, a man who will be jolly, lively and full of fun right up to the moment when his Master will call him from Mother Earth.

Our journey was a cold one during the night, and freezing of feet, etc., was only prevented by a free indulgence in four different preparations, bottled in Darwin, and taken in rotation during the night. An early application of the same decoction applied to friend Nestor at Indian Wells put the gentleman in good humor, and we all with one voice exclaimed, "The best breakfast we ever had here. Bully for Mike!"

At Mohave we began to see evidences of civilization in the shape of telegraph wires and the railroad, where we arrived at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Here we were hospitably cared for by Mr. Boyd, who knows how to keep a hotel, and treat everybody with respect. His bar also contains the best of liquors, beer and cigars, at one bit per drink. Here I met Mr. W. G. Halstead, agent of the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company, who extended me many courtesies, for which I feel very grateful, and found him to be one of those gentleman who deals out his history and life experiences in remarkably small quantities at a time, developing new specialties daily, requiring a lifetime to find out all his amiable qualities. One traveling around often meets people who tell you their whole history in an hour; you know all about them in a day, and the impressions they make upon you die out as quick. Here I also met Mr. Skilling, one of the proprietors of Borax Lake Manufacturing Company. The company are turning out about 60 tons of borax per month, which brings about nine cents per pound in the city. They have a capacity of manufacturing 200 tons per month, but the present demand and state of the market does not warrant over 60 being made.

After one day's rest in Mohave moved on to Los Angeles, where I arrived on the 26th of February. The country between Mohave and this point presents the most of the way a dry, monotonous and desert like appearance, until reaching Newhall and San Fernando. The San Fernando tunnel, some mile and a half in length, is the principal curiosity and point of attraction, and shows what science and money can do. The lights are lit in the cars before entering the tunnel, much to the disgust of newly married couples, and gentlemen with their sweethearts, who could if not observed remove the monotony of the journey for a few moments by an exchange of kisses and sweet words. From San Fernando on to the "home of the angels," the country gradually commences to improve in beauty and usefulness to man, and on the outskirts of the city commence to see farms, orange orchards, etc. Los Angeles did not come up to my expectations, so far as being a beautiful city. It was originally populated by Spanish-speaking people, and consequently the old portion of the city is composed and built with adobe buildings, possessing no architectural beauty, and there is hardly in the whole place a straight street. In this respect it is horribly cut to pieces, and the blocks are to be found in all possible and conceivable shapes. The present business portion is entirely separate from the old Spanish part of the town, and possesses considerable beauty. The Baker block is an ornament to the city, and the finest one in it.

The Cosmopolitan Hotel, kept by Hammel & Denker, is a first-class house, very gentlemanly men, who understand their business, set a good table, and will make any one at home who call upon them. They also keep the United States Hotel. The St. Charles is closed; also the Pico House.

Times here I found to be very dull, and everybody complaining, and real estate depreciated fully half in value during the past two years. Men who were rich then are now land poor. A large portion of the real estate and farms in the county are mortgaged. Many who went into the orange business have been compelled to dispose of their properties after having labored for several years upon them. One man told me he had expended $11,000 in that business, and becoming involved by borrowing money at high rates of interest had been compelled to let his orchard go for $4,000 rather than lose all.

There is nothing more beautiful to the eye than a large orchard of orange trees loaded down with this beautiful fruit, and now that the trees are in bloom the atmosphere is thoroughly ladened with the aroma. The lemon tree is also a beautiful sight when ladened with its golden colored fruit; and the lime tree, although much smaller, is a pleasing sight to the eye when its fruit is ripe and ready for market. There are several kinds of oranges, but preferable kinds are the Mediterranean and Naval, both of which are sweet and have no seeds. There seems to be no end to the lime crops in this region, where they lay and rot on the ground by the bushel. Why does not some enterprising genius commence manufacturing them into lime juice and acids? I think there is money in it.

Los Angeles has a population of about 15,000, and to guard and attend to its legal business 114 lawyers. The finest church in the city is St. Patrick's. They have two water companies, four daily papers and several weeklies. They have many beautiful drives, one of about 40 miles, which takes in Sierra Madre Villa, a fine resort for invalids and persons hunting pleasant abodes. Six years ago, where this fine hotel now stands up near the base of the mountains, it was a barren, sagebrush tract, but now some 50 or 100 acres possess a beautiful orange grove, hotel, mountain water, and is a little paradise on the hillside, and a lovely place for all seeking quiet and retirement. About four miles from here is the celebrated Baldwin ranch, the most lovely place I have ever seen in California. There is no end to the amount of land he owns, which is divided up into farms, orange, peach and apple orchards, etc.; hog farm and sheep ranch. He is just finishing a lovely stable for his carriage horses and carriages, which will cost only $15,000. Also a fine place for the accommodation of visitors. His stock of fast horses is in fine condition, and the ones which are to take part in the Spring races are daily being exercised upon his race track. Mollie McCarthy has been retired from the track, she having won him a pile of money last year at Chicago and a good record for herself, and henceforth will be a brood mare. From the improvements already made and in contemplation, this will, in my opinion, some day be the finest place, if not already, in the State.

From here a distance of five miles or more you reach the Sunny Slope Vineyard and Distillery, owned by J. L. Rose. This is a large establishment, the Vineyard having alone 775 acres in vines. Brandy, port, claret and white wines of a superior quality are manufactured, and all principally sold in New York city, Boston and Chicago. Here you also see orange trees of immense size. From here the next object of interest visited was the old San Gabriel Mission Church, a structure with walls four to five feet thick, resembling a fort, and nearly 100 years old. Visitors are permitted to enter it, and hear from the lady who tells its history the way it was made, how Indians packed the timber on their backs many miles which was used in its construction, which enables one to pass agreeably half an hour. This is the season of the year to visit Los Angeles, as the country is truly decorated in the most lovable foliage, and any one who desires to visit the home of the orange on the Pacific slope should go at once. More anon.

Yours, truly,

C. F. O'BRION.

OF the twenty-nine papers published by colored men in the United States al but seven are in the South. Seven are printed in North Carolina, three in Tennessee, three in Louisiana, two each in Alabama, Texas and Missouri, and one each in Mississippi, Virginia and Kentucky. Washington city has two of them, New York two, and Kansas, California and Pennsylvania one each.

THE Supreme Court of Nevada has granted John T. Pritchard, under sentence of death, a new trial, on the grounds that the Lower Court erred in refusing the defendant peremptory challenges to the jury. Judge Leonard gave the opinion, Beatty concurring and Hawley dissenting. The time for beginning the new trial has not yet been set.

THE construction of a canal across the narrow strip of land separating the waters of Nantucket Sound from Massachusetts Bay, which has just been commenced, will obviate the dangerous and tedious passage for coastwise vessels around Cape Cod. The storms off Cape Cod are noted for their destructiveness, and the saving in shipping by the new canal will be enormous. Its whole length will be seven and a half miles, and its cost between two and three million dollars.

THE Chilian Legation received at Washington a cablegram from Panama, stating that Moquequa has been occupied without resistance by 14,000 Chilians. Arica was bombarded for three days by the Chilian navy, during which time considerable damage was done on land.

THE Southern Pacific railroad track is completed 10½ miles beyond Tucson.

YESTERDAY afternoon an engineer on the V. & T. R. R. received orders from a committee of the Mechanics' Union of Storey county not to bring his engine back to Virginia to-day. This being the 1st of April the order made by the Union some weeks ago is supposed to go into effect. Supt. Yerington has decided to send his engines to the round house as fast as the engineers are ordered off, and if pressed to the wall suspend all traffic between Carson and Virginia City. This will cause a number of complications to arise. The mails will be stopped, and furnish solid reasons for calling out United States troops. The wood supply will be cut off from the mines of the Comstock, and Virginia City will in a few days be out of provisions. As yet the Union has indulged in no overt act beyond ordering the engineers to refrain from running their engines. What they propose to do in case the Railroad Company persist in sending non-Union engineers into Storey county, can only be determined in the future. That the Union may carry their point by peaceful means remains to be seen. If they go outside the law to coerce the Railroad Company there can be but one result. The State militia will be called out to preserve the peace, and if necessary the forces of the U. S. Government will be ordered to the scene of action. A peaceable settlement of the difficulty is the best possible thing that can happen. If trouble results it is likely to be something of a serious nature all round, and likely to work lasting injury to the State.—Carson Appeal, April 1.

DESPITE the present depression in business, the mining interest on this coast promises to take a more prominent position this year than any other time during the present decade. Our reports from the hydraulic and quartz mines af the State are most encouraging, and we know that Nevada will contribute some important developments in the near future. It is a fact that a number of our mining capitalists have gone East, but it should also be remembered that a large amount of Eastern capital is being used in developing our mines. When the Colorado boom loses it force, and already that boom is weakening, the mines of this coast, which carry ore to great depths, will attract more attention than ever. The people of the East will speedily learn the difference between the blanket ledge and the true fissure.—Stock Report.

MESSRS. BISHOP & SABIN yesterday showed us a letter, stating that the new railroad north from Battle Mountain is to be pushed ahead with all possible vigor. A considerable portion of it is to be constructed this season. The southern branch also will be crowded. Nevada just now is doing well in the matter of railroad building.—Eureka Sentinel, March 28.

THE first Republican County Convention held in South Carolina this year has instructed its delegates to the Chicago Convention to vote for Grant.

IT IS AN ACCEPTED AUTHORITY ON ALL questions relating to the great mining industries of the country. It is the oldest publication of its class in America, thoroughly independent; being of the trade and not in it, occupies a just and impartial position, which enables it to advise and teach without fear or favor. It devotes much space to questions bearing upon economical management of mines, and from time to time illustrates the more important improvements in mining machinery and engineering methods. Special attention is given to reliable mining news from all parts of the country, which is gathered by an efficicient corps of correspondents in every section, and from an extended exchange list. The metal and ore markets, and gold, silver and miscellaneous stocks are reported and commented upon weekly by experienced financiers, who are unbiased by private interests, and upon these matters it is accepted as a reliable guide and unfailing instructor. Gives statistics of production of coal and iron, and of our great gold, silver and other mines. Its scientific notes are an epitome of the latest researches, its trade reports full, and its editorials sagacious and comprehensive. It enjoys the widest circulation and greatest influence of any journal of its class in the world; its patrons and readers comprising the most select and intelligent men in every quarter.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, APRIL 3.....1880

The Close of School.

Following are the names of the pupils appearing on the Roll of Honor of the Independence school, for the term ending Aprtl 2, 1880; the first nine on the list having received prizes for a high average percentage in deportment, advancement in studies and regular attendance, each, and in combination. There were other pupils, we may state, with an equally high percentage in some one or perhaps two of these standards, but not in all, probably falling shortest in the matter of attendance, yet rating high for advancement, or vice versa. Other conditions or percentages being equal, these standing highest for lady or gentlemanly like deportment came in for first prizes. We volunteer this information that all may understand the basis on which the awards are made. No doubt the principle of prize giving in schools has its objectionable features to temper certain good results; and for similar reasons it is always a delicate task to undertake a newspaper review in detail of school childrens' efforts in declamation and other public exercises; and, on the whole, we shall forego such mention of yesterday's closing exercises in Mr. Crough's school except to say that as a rule the girls aquitted themselves rather better in declamation than did the boys, though two or three of the latter did very well, in showing that they understood the real intent and meaning of their respective selections. Here are the names of the prize winners, and of others highest on the roll of honor:

FIRST PRIZE.

Louisa Sherrer, percentage.....98
Annie Malone, " 97
George Willis, " 97

SECOND PRIZE.

Minnie Walter, percentage.....96
Maggie Conklin, " 96
Carrie Willis, " 95
Willie A. Chalfant, " 95
Minnie Harris, " 95
Maggie Graham, " 95

ON ROLL OF HONOR.

Della Willis, Johnnie Schalten, Norman Conklin, Sarah James, Maggie Schalten, Teresa Malone, Lena Harris, Allan Shannon.

INDIANS MURDERED.—Writing from Lookout District, under date of March 31, Deputy Sheriff Frank Fitzgerald furnishes us with the following decidedly unpleasant information: "I got back from the city eight days ago. During my absence a serious affair occurred (especially for travelers and prospectors) over here in Death Valley, to wit: An Indian known as Jim, together with his squaw and two papooses were all murdered by a white man aided by the notorious Indian, Tom, of Panamint. The murdered man and his family lived here for four years, and was always known as a hard working Indian. As soon as my horse comes in I am going to investigate the whole matter. The Indians here are very much excited. I have told them that I will arrest the white man, or try to do so, as soon as I get my horse. Please make a note of the above occurrence as a warning to prospectors, for the Indians are very revengeful, and might do mischief to some innocent parties if the opportunity should offer. I know the white man well by sight, but do not know his name. He is a Texan by birth, about 5 feet 11 inches in hight, and weighs about 185 pounds." It is to be hoped the scoundrel may be caught and turned over to the Indians for his reward.

GOOD PROSPECT.—Kelly, Byer & Co., are reported to have quite a promising mine located not far from Big Pine—just where, our informant fails to state. They have run over 200 feel of tunnel, and have some 40 tons of ore on the dump and any quan ity of the same kind exposed in the mine, which, by arastra process, is said to yield $60 per ton in free gold, while assays show that quite as much more from the same amount of ore is run off with the tailings. As this information comes in an anonymous letter we give it only for what it is worth.

GOOD.—The Kern & Inyo Stage Line, Wm. Hamilton, proprietor, has put on a buck-board from the lake to Cerro Gordo, upon the public necessity of which we preached a short sermon some two or three months ago. The new line starts from Independence on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, returning on the following days and connecting at Lake Station with the mails north and south. The first way-bill under this arrangement started out yesterday.

JUSTICES' COURT.—Justice Snodgrass' time, for a day or two of the present week, was occupied in a trial of James Malone, on a complaint charging him with the crime of battery, committed upon one Mrs. Mary Huff, growing out of a dispute concerning a line fence between two ranches near Camp Independence. The defendant was fined $10 and costs, and through a writ of certiorari the matter is to be taken to the Superior Court on appeal.

THE MODOCK.—Supt. Jerome Childs was expected at Lookout last Wednesday, and to immediately resume operations on the Modoc with a full force. We are assured that the new company is as strong as any on the coast.

TRANSFERS.—For the past week County Recorder Crough has had his hands full in recording location notices and deeds to mining properties in Beveridge, Deep Spring, Swansea and other districts.

RAIN.—It has been raining quite constantly and copiously since yesterday morning, and this P. M. bids fair to continue doing so indefinitely.

PRIVATE SCHOOL.—Mr. Crough's pr vate school begins day-after-to-morrow. It will be for but a six weeks' term.

OFF.—For the first time in a long while our county jail is just now without an occupant. Sheriff Jas. W. Smith started last Monday for the State Insane Asylum at Napa and the prison at San Quentin, having in charge Chas. Howell and Mike Welch. The latter was securely ironed, an operation which he underwent with becoming resignation, while Howell readily undertook a contract to see that his fellow prisoner didn't get away. The business of delivering, at one trip, both of the men to the proper State authorities, is by no means a pleasant job; still, the Sheriff is equal to the emergency.

SENTENCED.—On Monday last Superior Judge John A. Hannah heard an exhaustive argument by S. P. Moffat, Esq., of counsel for Michael Welch, for a new trial, upon grounds taken in accordance with the notice of such a motion as published last week. After a reply by the District Attorney, his honor overruled the motion, and sentenced Welch to a term of ten years in the State Prison—the minimum legal punishment for murder in the second degree. Exceptions were taken and it is possible that the case may be appealed to the Supreme Court and a new trial granted.

TOO CLOSE.—It is manifest our Board of Supervisors sailed a little too close to the wind while apportioning the tax percentage for a school fund. It will not amount to the $500 which the law says must be annually provided for each and every district. We hope they will cogitate a little on this subject between now and their May meeting; otherwise it may devolve upon the County Auditor to provide for the deficiency. We will present data touching this trouble ere long.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.—Letters addressed to the following named persons remain in the Independence Postoffice: Z. W. Bledsoe, A. Hamilton, Warren G. Kniffen, James McLaughlin, Frank Mracop, John Roy.

BIG UNDERTAKING.—A survey has been made by some parties from the White mountains to Candelaria, for the purpose of supplying the latter place with wood and water.

PREACHING.—Rev. F. M. Willis will hold divine service at the school house to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock, and at Camp Independence on Tuesday evening next.

THE House Committee on Coinage has agreed to report favorably Ford's bill to provide for exchange of trade dollars for legal tender silver dollars. A proviso was added that the Secretary of the Treasury shall cause to be exchanged at the Treasury and Sub Treasuries legal tender silver dollars at par and shall recoin trade dollars into legal tender dollars, and stop the further coinage of trade dollars; provided the amount so redeemed and coined into legal tender dollars shall not interfere with the minimum now authorized by law.

ONE of the most serious problems to be solved by the Southern States is the proper disposition of their convicts. The emancipation of the colored people has added largely to the increase of offenders against the law, and it will probably be many years hence before satisfactory results can be obtained. The cruelties that have attended the hiring out of convicts under contract for building railroads and other purposes have rendered the question pressing.

THE New York Observer offers a premium of $100 to students in theological seminaries for the "best essay designed to counteract one of the many forms of assault upon Christianity by modern infidelity." Now let Bob Ingersoll come forward and offer a premium and chromo to the other fellow.

CHEAP fares are stimulating not only a Chinese, but a white exodus to the Eastward. The railroad companies were in need of a boom, as travel was light before the reduction. Hand-bills distributed in the interior by the railroad company, recently, were headed, "Now or Never. Eastward, ho! for $35."

PROF. FRANK STEWART schedules mining expenses in the State of Maine as follows: Laborers, per diem, $1 25; wood, delivered, per cord, $2; coal, per ton, $5; building lumber, per thousand, $13; shaft lumber per thousand $6.

THE Salt Lake Tribune says fifteen Indians were put through the Endowment House recently. "They took the usual Mormon oath against the United States and will fight faithfully for the old lechers who run the Church."

HITTEL'S bill, providing for the removal of officers of mining corporations by shareholders owning a majority of the stock of any given corporation, has passed the State Senate by a close vote—27 to 26.

GOV. PERKINS has given it out that under no consideration will he call an extra session of the present Legislature, for which resolution the people of California owe him a debt of gratitude.

THE Denver papers publish further particulars of the massacre of seven prospectors in Southeastern Utah by Indians, and confirm the report that they were Mormon Indians.

The Fish Business.

The Mammoth City Herald of the 24th of March offers a few words to Commissioner Redding about stocking the lakes in that section with Cloud river trout: That journal says:

Last Fall the Herald called the attention of the State Fish Commission to the fact that this and surrounding districts had in their vicinity many beautiful clear water lakes, none of which contain a single member of the finny tribe, with the exception of Convict, some ten miles to the southeast of Mammoth City where immense quantities of "suckers" abound—one of the poorest of the fish species, and only fit for food immediately after being taken from the water. Our only other supply, and that very limited and hard to obtain, comes from the South Fork of the San Joaquin river, about twelve miles to the westward, over a rough mountain trail. That the lakes in this immediate vicinity are well calculated for the successful breeding of the finest varieties of trout, is beyond question, Lake Mary especially, being closed by a heavy dam on the north, with mountain streams innumerable emptying into it on all sides, some of the larger of which connect with lakes higher up toward the summit of the mountains. The lakes are generally surrounded with a luxuriant growth of grass and shrubbery. In Commissioner B. B. Redding's reply to the Herald, he promised to stock these lakes with Cloud river trout this Spring, and asking in his communication the best time of year and the best and shortest route for the delivery, saying that the fish could be put in by the middle of April. The distance from the railroad to this point is about equal from Carson across the mountains by way of Bodie from Sonora. Should the road now in course of construction between here and Fresno, on the S. P. R. R., be completed by the middle of May, the time from San Francisco would be greatly reduced; but it is not likely that it will be finished by that time. As to the time when our lakes will be free from ice, is a point upon which it is difficult to give a definite answer—the Winter has been so severe that it is not reasonable to suppose that the lakes will be entirely free before the middle of May or the first of June. We are not sufficiently conversant with fish culture to know whether or not it would be safe to put the young fish in before the breaking up of the ice, and must ask of the Hon. Commissioner. If he will communicate with this office we will keep him posted on all points relative to the object desired. Having the opinions of many who are conversant with fish culture, we have no hesitancy in making the assertion that more suitable waters for a fish farm cannot be found in any portion of the State. The waters are clear as crystal, fed by living streams flowing from fields of everlasting snow. The citizens of this portion of the country most respectfully ask the early and earnest attention of the Hon. Commissioner to this most important matter.

A REPORT has been issued by the Local Government Board on a sudden outbreak of scarlet fever at Fallowfield, near Manchester, England. The outbreak included 35 persons, belonging to 18 families, and of the individuals who suffered, not less than 24 were attacked within 36 hours, between Sunday morning and Monday evening. Dr. Airy was directed by the Local Government Board to investigate this outbreak, and the results of his investigation are, says the Lancet, given in the report now before us. The outbreak was quite local, and the different details elicited tended to the general result that the infection had been distributed to the families through the agency of a particular milk supply. The facts bearing on this point do not well admit of any other interpretation. The question of the mode in which the milk could have become infected was not so fully cleared up, but it is shown that one of the milkers on the dairy-farm lodged in a farm house where scarlet fever was present at the time when the milk presumably became infected, and it is suggested that the infection was communicated to the milk, in some way undeterminable but not inconceivable, through his agency.—Scientific Press.

MR. FRIEND has solved the Gem Puzzle in five different combinations in the last row. We give the following for 14,15, 13, because it is the shortest: R 14, D 9, L 12, U 13, R 14, D 11, L 13 U 15, R 14, D 13, R 12, U 11, L 14, D 15, R 10, U 9, L 15. The letters D, R and L stand respectively for down, right and left. When a number is to be moved which has no space next it, it is to be pushed along all the same, carrying one or two blocks with it, as the case may be, there being always a space in the same row where a move is made. The solution is perfectly correct. At the beginning all the blocks are arranged in regular order except the last row, which stands 14, 15, 13. Mr. Friend is, we believe, the only man in the United States who has solved all the possible combinations of the last row.—Carson Appeal.

AN Englishman, who has been traveling in that part of Siberia which extends down into the hollow of the earth, says that he rode through the country on horseback at an expense of a cent a mile, and that he saw a large district that produced splendid wheat which could be bought for sixpence for forty pounds. He also saw large quantities of linseed, flax, hemp, hides, tallow, wool, etc., that could be bought equally cheap. Iron mines were in great abundance, and he picked up at haphazard a piece of the ore so rich and magnetic as to support a large needle. Of this iron thousands of tons could be obtained that would make the finest cast steel. There were also copper mines in the valleys. The timber was splendid and in great abundance.

SEVERAL prominent business men have signified their willingness to contribute to the erection of a glass factory in Salt Lake, if experienced parties would start in.

THE ELECTION IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The following, coming from one of our own people, is good news, and worth its space at this juncture, though it does not give figures. It is dated at San Francisco, March 31:

MESSRS. EDITORS: The battle has been fought and gloriously won in this city by the law and order and business portion. The election yesterday passed off very quietly, and by a decisive and unmistakable majority resulted in the success of the Citizens' Protective Union ticket; also the Republican candidate for joint Senator for San Mateo and San Francisco counties. This has been a square fight between the advocates of law and order, composed of the best elements of the Democratic and Republican parties, as against the Workingmen's party, and a small element of the Democrats, and the result has been so overwhelming a defeat for the latter that the Sand-lot party has been virtually buried, and from now on quiet and an entire absence of agitation is supposed to be the future of the city, and that business will improve, and general prosperity will soon return. This election has demonstrated that a large portion who voted for the New Constitution were not necessarily Kearneyites, nor sympathizers with him in his agitation of the public mind. The ballot has finally settled in a most satisfactory manner the wish and will of the people, and their verdict will, I think, be received by all agitators, as a final adjudication of the topics and ideas which they have so long agitated, and they will accept, no doubt, the silent but forcible warning and lesson of Tuesday at the polls, and cease hereafter, upon knowing the people's verdict, upon their course, and quietly resume their natural sphere and position. The city by its patience and forbearance has passed through its trying ordeal without riot or bloodshed, and came out triumphant. It plainly says, agitation must henceforth cease, and it will. You can now look for better times and business revival.

Yours, truly,
C. F. O'BRION.

The Herald of the 24th ultimo contains the following:

The weather is delightful and the snow is fast melting away.

The Round Valley and Bishop Creek road is now open for travel.

The brown hills surrounding Casa Diablo are now free from snow.

The personal property at the True Blue mine was to be sold at Sheriff's sale to-day.

Since the last operation Billy Haines has been very weak, and his recovery is considered doubtful.

Parties owning mines on the South End were getting tools and grub in readiness yesterday, preparatory to commencing work on their rich ledges.

A CALIFORNIA genius has invented a skirt-lifter which is of incalculable value to ladies who have pretty ankles and fancy stockings to place on exhibition. It is worked by a spring, which travels along a surface indented like the edge of a saw. These surface indentations are to regulate the height to which the skirt may be lifted. The inventor presented one of the very first that came from the factory to his landlady, and for a day or two it worked to perfection. But yesterday, while the good woman was on the crossing at Bush and Kearny streets, she lost control of the spring, and the skirt was over her head in a minute. A compassionate policemen came to her assistance and got hold of the wire, when the skirt came down with a run, and trapped him like a quail under a coop. To make matters worse the lady's husband sailed out of a saloon wiping his mouth, and seeing his wife in this predicament, fell upon the unfortunate policeman and got a volley of tough body blows in before the affair could be satisfactorily explained. All three were around this morning hunting for the inventor, who has packed up his things and taking lodgings at Haywards for the Summer.—S. F. Stock Exchange.

ON Wednesday night last Billy Haines, who has suffered so long and so severely, was called to his long home. Bravely he has battled with the fell destroyer, Death—as bravely and heroically as he battled with the storm while doing his duty toward his employers and serving his fellow-citizens. Twice he has suffered the amputation of his legs and arms, and in the endeavor to save his life all that medical science and skill and careful nursing could do has been done. For the past two months a devoted and patient wife has been his constant companion, but his injuries were so severe that they availed naught. Billy was a man of a generous, social nature, and wherever known had many friends. The grief-stricken widow has the most heartfelt sympathy of this entire community. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. He was a native of Concord, N. H., where his parents still reside.—Mammoth Herald, March 27.

CAPT. EADS is in New York furthering his project of a ship railway, and is confident of getting it in course of construction in a few months after Congress shall have passed the bill introduced recently. He thinks the De Lesseps canal project virtually dead. Capt. Eads proposes to build the necessary works across the isthmus anywhere between North and South America, after securing from the Central American States the necessary connections. He thinks he can put it in operation in one-quarter of the time and for one-quarter of the money, and his plan has the approval of the ablest engineers and ship builders in America and Europe.

THE convicts and ticket-of-leave men all over the country are rejoicing at the death of Charles Vivian, who first introduced "Ten Thousand Miles Away" to the public. More mining machinery will be put up in Utah this year than at any time since the discovery of mineral within its borders. It will all be first-class.

Senator Edmunds is fifty-one years old, and from the fees of his law office has saved some $300,000. He reads a great many books and has a large art collection.

Roger A. Pryor has petitioned for a removal of his political disabilities. Mr. Pryor went to New York immediately after the war. He has amassed a handsome competence in the practice of the law, and now desires to re-enter national politics.

W. A. Starnes, Chief of Police of Atlanta, Ga., passed Omaha a few days ago for San Francisco, to bring back S. R. Hoyle, Tax Collector, who was recently arrested in San Francisco for the embezzlement of the sum of $219,000 at Atlanta.

The temperance people are making excellent headway in Ohio. They recently blew up a saloon with gunpowder. When the owner came down from the clouds, whither he had been hoisted by the explosion, he endeavored to speak in the Russian tongue, under the impression that he was in the vicinity of St. Petersburg.

EMIGRATION is the natural and proper cure for famine in Ireland, and there are indications of an extraordinary movement of the surplus population in this direction, which it is expected will set in soon. Queenstown is already teeming with emigrants waiting to take passage for America.

M. DAUBOURG, a French engineer, claims that he has devised a means for transporting large vessels over isthmuses, however steep, and an experiment is shortly to be made at Argenteuil by lifting a ship of 2,000 tons from the river Seine and taking it on rails to another point on the river.

AFTER all the talk of Secretary Sherman and other parties interested in preventing the circulation of silver as money, the real fact is that there are at present but about $6,000,000,000 of silver in the whole world, or a little less than $5 for each individual.

Lida Valley.

A correspondent of the Esmeralda Herald, writing from Lida Valley under date of March 29, has the following in regard to the outlook of matters and things in that section:

The recent sale of the Alexander mine at Grantsville, Nye county, to Hayward & Hobart, at the round sum of one million, is fraught with significance and vital importance to Southern Esmeralda. The notorious energy and unfaltering enterprise, coupled with the unquestioned ability of the purchasers are a guarantee of the speedy completion of the projected railroad from Austin to Grantsville. Eighty miles north from Lida Valley, with San Antonio, Lone Mountain, Silver Peak and Montezuma Districts between, adjoining Lida Valley on the south and west, are the Gold Mountain, Tule Cañon, Sylvania and Palmetto Districts. The extensive area embraced by the districts named have, since 1864, been known to possess great mineral wealth, but its isolated position—remote from railroads and other thoroughfares—the high price charged for supplies and the exorbitant cost of milling ore, have held in embryo the development of the mines. In addition to the placers of Tule Cañon and the innumerable ledges of gold and silver bearing quartz, copper, lead and iron are found in large quantities; also vast salt marshes and inexhaustible sulphur beds. The Alexander mine at Grantsville has many a peer in Southern Esmeralda, wating only the magic touch of capital to demonstrate the fact. Knowing as I do the energy characteristic of Alvinza Hayward, I hail his advent to this section as the harbinger of a bright future for Lida Valley. Railroads will be constructed when and where they will pay. With the inducements Southern Esmeralda can offer it requires no prophetic ken to see at no distant day the iron horse, with "ribs of steel and breath of flame," in our midst, on his way to the Colorado river. There is a marked improvement in all branches within the last few weeks at this place, in the mining interest especially. Work is being done on many old claims, and the Mining Recorder finds his services in demand daily. Joe Le Foy, Superintendent of the Centennial mine, is now at San Francisco for the purpose of selecting and shipping machinery for hoisting works, which will be set up immediately after its arrival. At the Buster the work of sinking and crosscutting is progressing with most satisfactory results.

COUNT DE LESSEPS, in an interview expressed himself as being delighted with his visit here. He was particularly impressed with the vast resources and unlimited possibilities of California. He said: "My visit has been short—too short—and I have actually seen but little of your great State; yet I have learned much. I am amazed at the extent and richness of the country contributing to San Francisco's welfare and wealth. It is the one country in the world most like France; possessing all the advantages of climate, soil, and commercial value of location, and also having many natural advantages—mineral and timber lands, and also, wonderful grazing ranges—which France has not. The future of this State is sure to be grand—grand. How can it be otherwise?"—Oakland Stock Report.

THE Homestead law recently passed in the United States Senate is of much importance to many citizens of California. It provides that the land shall be given to the first settler, whether he claims as a pre-emptor or as a homestead holder. It also makes provisions that the first settler on an abandoned homestead entry shall have the first right to acquire title to it after the original entry is canceled.

Put Him on File.

"Deadwood," said the stranger, putting down his half-eaten slice of lemon pie and taking a long pull at the milk, "I went there when the first rush was made for the hills. Rather a rough crowd the first lot, you bet; more wholesome now. When I got there I was dead broke—didn't have a dollar; didn't have a revolver, which a man'll need out there worse 'n a meal's vittuals. I was prob'ly the only man in the hills who didn't carry a firearm, and I was some lonesome, I tell you. The weapon I hed—I'm a blacksmith—was a rasp, a heavy file you know, 'bout eighteen inches long, which I carried down my back, the handle in easy reach just below my coat collar. Understand? Like the Arkansaw man carries his bowie-knife. I'm not exactly a temperance man. I jest don't drink an' don't meddle with any other man's drinkin'—that's all. One day—I hadn't been in Deadwood more'n a week—I was sittin' in a s'loon—only place a man kin sit to see any society—when a feller come in, a reg'lar bustler, with his can full and a quart over. Hed a revolver on each side of his belt an' looked vicious. Nothin' mean about him, though. Asked me to drink. 'Not eny, thank you,' sez I. 'Not drink with me! Me! Bill Feathergill! When I ask a tenderfoot to drink I expect him to prance right up an' no monkeyin'! You h-e-a-r me!'

Well, when his hand went down for his revolver, I whipped out my old file quicke'n fire'ud scorch a feather an' swiped him right accrost the face. When he fell, I thought I'd killed him, an' the s'loon fillin' up with bummers I sorter skinned out, not knowin' what might happen. Purty soon a chap in a red shirt came up to me. Sez he, 'You the man as ke-arved Bill Feathergill? 'Cos, ef so be as you are, ef you don't want every man in the hills to climb you, don't you try to hide yourself—the boys is askin' fur you now.'

It struck me that my friend had the idee, so I waltzed back and down before the s'loon for nigh three hours. I'd found out Bill wasn't dead an' was bad medicine, but it wouldn't do to let down. Purty soon I seed my man a-headin' for me. His face had been patched up till it looked like the closing out display of a retail dry goods store. There was so little countenance exposed that I couldn't guess what he was a-aimin' at, so I brought my hand back of my collar an' grabbed the file.

'Hold on there, hold on!' sez he, 'gimme y'r hand, I'm friendly; I've got nothin' agin you, not a thing, but—you'll pardon my cur'osity—what sort of a —— weepin' was that, stranger?'"—Hartford Courant.

SOME days since a farmer's wagon, containing father, mother, son and two or three neighbors, drove up to a stationer's in Detroit, and the son went in and bought the puzzle known as "15." Even before the wagon drove off the old man had the cover off the box, and was working away like an engine to solve the thing. Yesterday the son returned with the box in his pocket. He had a black eye and an awful lonesome look, and when he came to be waited on said:

"You know you sold me this puzzle the other day?"

"Yes, I guess we did."

"Well, we hadn't got a mile out o' town 'fore dad and a neighbor pulled hair over it. While I was doin' up the chores dad and mam called each other cheats. After supper we had a regular three-cornered fight, and the old man got his thumb unjointed and went to bed. Mam and I sot up until she hit me with a stick of wood, and then I went to bed. She sot up alone till she got mad and drove the cat out doors and upset the lamp. Do you hear?"

"Yes."

"Well, next mornin' I caught dad cheatin' and we had a little shindy. Then the Overseer of Highways came 'long and worked at it half a day, and he and I got into a row, and he blacked my eye. We took it to a barn-raising and the crowd had an awful fight. We took it to a dance and both fiddlers were almost killed. It has been kicked over the house, flung down the well and jumped on in the middle of the road, and now I came in to see if I couldn't swap it for something else. I guess it's a sort o' dander raiser, anyhow, and I guess, if you don't care very much, I'll let you take it back and I'll take a telephone in place of it."

A LADY on the West-bound train inquired of Conductor Hopkins, when the train reached here, how long it waited for breakfast, and on being informed that twenty-five minutes was the allotted time, remarked that that was ample time for her to masticate what food she required, but thought it might hardly be sufficient to accommodate her mother, who accompanied her. The speaker, though 70 years of age, evidently regarded herself as still quite a young thing, but the mention of her mother being present caused "Hop." to open his eyes in astonishment, and sure enough, came the mother of the 70-year-old lass, who accompanied her daughter to breakfast. The age of the elder lady was ascertained to be 103 years.—Elko Independent.

GUSTAVE DORE is exhibing in Paris a very original plaster cast representing the rescue of Angelica. Her deliverer, mounted on a hippogriff, is connected with the lower portion of the group only by the long spear that transfixes the monster's body. Nothing so bold has ever yet been attempted in statuary.

APELLS, from wh m so many "ben trovato" anecdotes in connection with art are derived, is reported to have painted a basket of fruit so accurately that birds came and pecked at it. It is, however, somewhat doubtful whether this may be accepted as evidence of the artist's skill when we consider how easily duped are these members of the feathered tribe who mistake a clumsily constructed scarecrow for a live peasant, or a piece of chalk for a new-laid egg. A far better instance of still-life painting is furnished by the story of George Moreland, who, being unable to pay the reckoning at an inn, where the thriftless artist had halted at during his vagrant wanderings, beat a hasty retreat by a low window. On the landlord entering the deserted chamber, he beheld upon a table what appeared an untouched meal of his fraudulent visitor, but which was actually a painted representation of the food with its corresponding plates and dishes. The landlord, at first much aggrieved by the non-payment of his bill and the damage done to his furniture, was easily appeased when a certain connoisseur, who happened to call at the inn, offered to purchase the painted table for a price which more than compensated the owner. Fiddles, flies, dead game and other objects have been imitated with such fidelity as to be regarded by all persons beholding them as original or natural productions, and in a church on the Continent there is a wall so cunningly painted as to lead the spectator to believe that he is gazing not upon a flat surface, but upon a continuation of the sacred interior.

SEVERAL petitions were in circulation yesterday indorsing as many candidates for the position of an additional Superior Judge, which it seems probable will be created. Among the lawyers holding Democratic political opinions, who are candidates for the office, are Messrs. T. P. Ryan, Frank Owen, J. A. McQuaid and Selden Hetzel. Without reference to the fitness of the gentlemen named, it is probable that the political barrier will be too great for either to surmount. Messrs. Paul W. Bennett, Frank V. Drake and Geo. C. Gorham, Jr., are considered candidates on the Republican side, and either one would make a serviceable Judge. Mr. Bennett is the elder of the three, is a good lawyer, and has enjoyed a considerable of popularity in the adjoining county of Inyo, where he practiced for many years. Mr. Drake is a gentleman who has not been long in our midst, but during his residence here has so comported himself as to win the esteem of the community. There is some doubt as to the length of residence required to render a person eligible to the position of Superior Judge, which might offset Mr. Drake's candidacy. Some reference was made in these columns yesterday morning, in a hasty manner, to Mr. Gorham, which upon consideration appears to have been misdirected. Mr. Gorham is twenty-six years of age, and was admitted to the bar when but twenty. He is sound upon political questions, being a stalwart Republican of the Grant order. Withal, he is a good lawyer and a pleasant gentleman, and one who, if appointed, would zealously guard the honor of the Court.—Bodie Free Press.

THERE is now in the museum at the City of Mexico a remarkable sword, made from a meteor that fell in the State of Durango, Mexico. A Mexican gentleman sent to Gen. Ord, of the United States Army, a small slab or tablet, about an inch thick and six inches square, which was sawed out of the meteor. It resembled iron, and, in fact, was what is known as meteoric iron. The piece weighed two pounds. Gen. Ord sent it on to the national armory at Springfield, to be worked up into a sword for Gen. Trevino, of the Mexican army, who has done so much to rid our border of the Indians who infest it. Considerable trouble was experienced in annealing the meteoric iron, but at last they succeeded, and, with the scabbard, it forms a very creditable specimen of American skill. The sword is a small, straight blade, and is a fancy-dress sword, the mounting representing an eagle with the olive branch and arrows, such as we see on a quarter of a dollar now and then. The grip is of silver wire, and the whole thing is very pretty. On the blade is the Spanish sentence, which, translated into English, reads: "Made of iron that fell from the skies of Mexico. Presented to G. Trevino, General of Division, by his friend, Gen. Ord, U. S. A."—Manufacturer and Builder.

A BILL has passed the Senate providing for the publication of a complete official history of the navy. This is to be a work similar to the one that has been in progress for several years in connection with the records of the army. It will include all orders, reports of movements and battles, and all the private official correspondence of the various naval operations during the late war.

IT was a little rough on the Prodigal Son to walk up the front steps reflecting that fat calves had been the utter ruination of him, and then to hear the old man add insult to injury by bawling out to the cook, "Fatted calf for one." Had the young fellow any pride left he would have left the parental mansion at once and gone to the hotel in the next block.—Carson Appeal.

PLEASE REPORT.

Parties to whom the petitions were sent for signatures asking Congress to donate Camp Independence for school purposes, are requested, if they have not already done so, to forward the petitions to Representative Pacheco and return to this office a statement of how many signatures were obtained. At this point the movement in favor of the proposition is unanimous, and Round Valley, Georges Creek and Camp Independence are equally so; none others have reported.

THE warm rain which has fallen throughout the State during the present storm gives a guarantee that a bountiful harvest will be reaped. Until now there was some apprehension in the great valleys, owing to the prolonged cold spell and blighting northers; but the reports from various sections concur in declaring that all fear has passed, and a good crop is assured. The rain has been plentiful and penetrating. Already its effects are apparent on fruit trees and vegetation generally. Abundance of food for sheep and cattle is found in the foothills. The outlook for the season is most promising.

OUR wine interests are becoming of great importance, and France must look to her laurels. The Panama newspapers mention the fact that the Pacific Mail steamer Colima on her present trip from San Francisco brought the largest shipment of California wines which has ever been made by one vessel. The total quantity was over 120,000 gallons. In addition two separate lots of 40,000 gallons each were offered for the same steamer, but could not be received for want of space.

THE late English Parliament was prorogued after six years of service, under Conservative rule and the leadership of Disraeli. The elections just held have upset this business and the Liberals, with Gladstone as the probable Premier, take charge with a "working majority." We suppose its all right, if Johnny Bull likes it; but he will have to excuse our lamentable ignorance of his system of politics, anyhow.

THE Freeholders on the Citizen's Union ticket, San Francisco, and J. D. ONE of the largest lumps of solid gold ever seen in San Francisco was on exhibition at the office of the Pacific Refinery, corner of Montgomery and California streets, for a short time last Saturday. It was about 14 inches long by seven in width, and six in hight. Its value was estimated at $55,000.

TOUCHING THE DEFICIENCY IN SCHOOL MONEYS.

Elsewhere in this issue Supervisor Meysan favors us with his views as to the cause of the shortness in our school money allowance this year, also how a similar occurrence may be provided against hereafter. He is right, in part perhaps, as to the cause, and quite so, we believe, as to a change in the law that would avert a recurrence—that is, that the law should require the County Superintendent to base his estimates of money needed, not on receipts and returns of the year next preceding, but on those of the year for which the calculation is made. This especially in all counties like our own where a twelvemonth is liable to witness such changing conditions of population.

But after all, it would seem that our Supervisors did not allow margin enough, in apportioning the school tax, for adverse contingencies, some of which would have been obvious had the matter been fully considered. First, when the assessment roll for the current fiscal year was submitted, it was made plain that the total amount of taxes receivable would be in round numbers $11,000 less than was receivable the year previous. (Note—The exact figures are: $43,357 71 for last year and $32,225 60 for this—$11,132 11, or 25⅔ per cent., less.) Second, that there was a similar falling off ($300 school money) in the amount receivable for poll taxes. Third, that there were 51 (not 71 as stated by Mr. Meysan) fewer children than in the year preceding to draw State money at $6 per child, equivalent to $306 more minus. Here, then, was a minus quantity, so to speak, to be provided against of $182, percentage of property tax not receivable, plus $300 poll tax, plus $306 State money, making a total of $788. Supt. Symmes, in his estimate submitted last September pursuant to section 1817, called the attention of the Board to one of these points in these words:

Please bear in mind that we have, this school year, fifty-one census children less than last year to draw funds from the State, which, at six ($6) each make three hundred and six ($306) dollars more to be raised by county school tax in order to give to each district $500.

In this statement Mr. Symmes had previously shown that for the year preceding the county had received from the State $2,688 15; that, on that basis, it would be necessary to raise by county tax $2,311 85 more to make up the required $5,000. But, as shown in the above extract, it was made plain that the receipts this year from the State must be at least $306 less than for the next preceding; and taking account of and including the other two items as we figure them out, and as they could then have been figured out with just as much certainty as at any later period, the total falling off in this year's school money was $788, which, added to the $2,311 85 reported by Mr. Symmes as necessary to be raised, would have been the amount for which the tax apportionment should have been proportioned. Instead of 10 cents as required out of every $3 of taxes, but 5 cents, the identical rate of the two preceding years, was fixed upon, and of course the sum resulting is lamentably short.

Section 443, referred to by Mr. Meysan, makes it incumbent upon the State Controller to apportion $7 of State money to every census child. Last year $6 60 was the amount given for each child. Mr. Symmes, as above, estimated it at $6 for this year. In fact, as near as we can figure it with the data at hand, it is nearly or quite $7, being the minimum for State money. So our deficiency is not chargable to the State Controller.

From the county direct our school revenue is derived as follows: 1. Percentage of property tax; 2. Poll tax, less commissions; 3. Fines; 4. dog tax. The whole of the property tax on the assessment roll, save only about $2,000, not collectable, has been collected and apportioned, and there is nothing more to come from that source, and all that has come from it at five cents out of each three dollars of the $30,000 (in round numbers) is $500. The amount derived or to be derived from fines is a mere nothing, although there are plenty of people who ought to be fined. The State has, be it known, already given us our full allowance for this year, the total from that source being $2,230 60, library fund included; total from the county, all sources, $1,126 55; grand total received, all sources, $3,126 55; deficit, $1,873 45—$187 less than each district is entitled to under the law. Remaining resources: dogs, polls, misdemeanors having a money value, and percentage of personal property tax collections, or such collections on any or all of these as may be paid in and apportioned between this time and the 30th of June, which is not far in the future. If the total to thus accrue to the school fund should amount to $1,000 in the aggregate we shall be most agreeably surprised.

The percentage of taxes set apart for school purposes in this county is the lightest of any in the State; the cost of maintaining any kind of a school is the heaviest; the full allowance of $500 per district never was sufficient by at least one-third to respectably maintain a first grade school in any of the districts; there is not one district attempting to maintain such a school on public cash alone but is in debt, and must be with no greater allowance; the present accidental deficit makes bad worse; the present percentage of the property tax for school purposes is only one-sixtieth of the maximum allowed by law; a more liberal allowance must be had hereafter or let the county resign its educational business in toto. A deficit in any other than the school fund would be susceptible to future reimbursement to its creditors by giving them interest bearing warrants redeemable sometime; that can't be done in this case. Debtor districts have two ways to get out of the woods, namely: repudiate; or pass the hat—but be sure to get a man with a rhinoceros hide to take the hat, if that played-out alternative should be attempted.

SOME years ago a wealthy old bachelor in Hoboken, N. J., named Joseph L. Lewis, died, leaving his property, valued at $1,000,000, to the United States Government, for which he appeared to cherish unusual respect. The singularity of the case excited the cupidity of several sharpers and a conspiracy was entered into for the purpose of producing a "widow" who would contest the will, secure the coin, and divide handsomely. In due time some of the schemers, including the woman, were arrested on suspicion, and, the case coming on for trial at Trenton a short time ago, the female turned State's evidence, implicating the villains whose dupe she had been, and detailing apparently without reservation, her own part in the mater.

THE disgraceful story of the failure of the Freedmen's Savings Bank is recounted anew in the report of Senator Bruce's committee, with an additional chapter, which is of a piece with all the rest. Since the institution went into liquidation, $50,000 has been paid as salaries to the commissioners appointed by the Government to wind up its affairs, $70,000 to agents, and $31,000 to attorneys, all of which has been taken out of the funds due the poor depositors. The report revives unpleasant memories of a recent régime at Washington of which this Freedmen's Bank swindle was but a circumstance among many.

THE foreign dispatches give evidence of a decisive victory for the Liberals in the recent English elections. This means the overthrow of the Beaconsfield ministry. Gladstone will now go to the head of the Government and a more liberal form of rule will be inaugurated under the leadership of Lord Hartington and Gladstone, who are recognized as having organized and won this fight. A beneficial change in State matters is hoped for.

THE timber trade of Canada is every year attaining greater importance. It is estimated that during the present season a thousand million feet will be cut, which, at present prices, will be $13,000,000, but will not be sufficient to supply the demand. Fortunately the forests of the Dominion are so vast in extent as almost to defy the inroads that are being made. Localities convenient to the coast, however, will soon be denuded.

IT is understood that arrangements have been made between C. P. Huntington and S. W. Pierce, of Newburyport, for the building of a railway between San Antonio, Texas, and El Paso, thus connecting Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio lines with the Southern Pacific, which will thus have an Eastern outlet independent of the Texas and Pacific.

A LATE decision by Judge Drummond of the United States Circuit Court is one of great importance to business men and married women. He holds that when the property of an insolvent debtor is seized and sold for debt, the wife has the same rights to her share of the estate as if her husband died instead of becoming a bankrupt.

INFORMATION from Ventura develops the fact that a renewed interest is being taken in the oil resources of that county, and that claims are being taken up and extensive preparations being made to bore new wells. The oil interest is now one of the most promising industries of Ventura county.

A. A. STICKNEY, one of the oldest printers on the coast, died in Sacramento on Thursday, where he had been employed recently in the State Printing Office. He was forty-seven years old, and leaves a wife and several children.

WHEN Hon. Jos. Wasson returns from the Legislature to mingle among his constituents in Inyo and Mono, in his pursuit of studying up our mining interests—as we so understand his intention—he should be received with expressions of the hearty gratitude and indorsement, which he has so ably earned. Though not figuring in the tedious debates on the floor, Mr. Wasson has effected more and better protected the peculiar interests of this side of the mountains than any preceding member from these counties. By his energy and tireless work he has made an enviable mark, a fact which deserves our recognition.

THE speech of Senator Logan on the Fitz-John Porter case is said to have been the longest one ever published in the Congressional Record. It will occupy forty-eight pages. Its publication will be held for the execution of a map which is to go with it, showing the battle-ground where Gen. Porter was alleged to have disobeyed orders.

CALIFORNIA parties have been in New York to ascertain whether the four-mile heat race for $30,000 to be run at San Francisco in November, would be patronized with reasonable liberality by the East. The proposition is acceptable to many, if Gov. Stanford and Mr. Winters will give personal assurance that the money will be paid.

THE American population of New Nexico has more than doubled in the past year and is now estimated at about 25,000. The total population of the Territory is about 135,000. Railroad enterprises are being organized, and will make that region more availiable for imigration.

THE accident on the Southern Pacific Railroad at Cabazon, Saturday morning, is the most serious which has yet happened on this line. The property destroyed and the cars smashed will cost the company not far from $200,000; and it is a miracle that any one on the flying train escaped death. Railroad engineers have long since established as a maxim that no car can be safely freighted with more than ten tons weight. The anxiety of the Directors of the Southern Pacific to push on the work of extension has been so great, however, that we understand they have been placing as high as fifteen tons of iron on single cars. Besides this, a false economy has induced them to reduce the number of brakemen below that required for a train in an emergency such as occurred Saturday morning. The destruction of nineteen cars and a vast amount of freight may possibly be due to this overloading and false economy. If so, the company will have to pay dearly for disregarding an established railroad maxim and enforcing a penny-wise and pound-foolish policy.—Los Angeles Express.

A WASHINGTON special to the New York Tribune says that a movement is on foot to make a second Republican nomination in the event of the nomination of Gen. Grant. The correspondent represents the work as having gone so far as to render such a result certain. These statements may be taken with the allowance usually made for political rumors. There are many Republicans who do not like a third-term nomination, and some who do not like Gen. Grant, but it is not probable that a third ticket would be nominated on such a basis. If Gen. Grant is nominated, and he is pretty sure to be, it will take a very popular Democrat to beat him.—S. F. Call.

SHOULD the Square Location bill become a law the location and development of silver or gold quartz must cease, for the simple reason that to be confined to vertical lines takes from capital and the prospector the only inducement they have for the investment of money or labor—following of their ledge in all its dips and angles that may leave the vertical planes at any moment, after spending fortunes in its development. Any change from the law governing this matter must inevitably lead to serious disaster in the mining interest.—Bodie News.

IN the controversy between the Mechanics' Union and Supt. Yerington the general public is more interested than either party, and either or both will be held strictly responsible for any injury that may result to the prosperity of the country. Mutual consultation and concession, with a view to the general benefit of the community at large, is the only legitimate course to pursue.—Gold Hill News.

SALT is undoubtedly beneficial to some crops in some soils. But it is not a universal manure, like bone dust or guano. It does not furnish food direct—or at least not much. It is composed of sodium 39.66 parts, and chlorine 60.34 parts. In some soil the soda may furnish direct food, but the best authorities think this is rarely the case. How, then, does it act? Undoubtedly by its chemical action upon unavailable elements, and in this respect may be classed with lime. It has the power, according to Prof. Voelcker, of liberating ammonia in soils, forming chloride of ammonia, which dissolves and becomes an active fertilizer. It has been observed that salt produced greater effect upon soils that have had nitrogen stored in them by the use of manures than upon land devoid of this substance, which confirms Prof. Voelcker's theory. Salt also aids in rendering insoluble phosphate soluble. It acts upon animal and vegetable substances also, promoting decomposition. It destroys inset pests. It dissolves silica, and whether by reason of this or not, the straw of grain where salt has been used is brighter and stiffer, according to nearly universal testimony.—Practical Farmer.

THE majority of the ranchers in Mason Valley, Nevada, are opposed to the railroad coming among them. They fear it will interfere with their freighting to Bodie and Aurora when their teams are not needed for farm work.

DURING last week there was a considerable decline in the prices of wheat, corn, oats, rye, iron, copper and tin, and a moderate decline in cotton, cotton print cloths, pork, bacon, coffee and sugar. In exception, prices of coal and lead advanced. Nearly all the stocks of the character deemed speculative declined, while there was general firmness, and, in some cases, marked advance in the prices of stocks which are regarded as surely dividend paying. It is believed in the street that large purchases were made at the decline last week by the heavy operators who wait for such periods of stringency and depression. The European advices of very large shipments of wheat from distant markets have not only caused a temporary depression of price, but have warned speculative holders in this country that it may be dangerous to hold too long or to insist upon too high figures. In the iron business it is noticed that the decline is caused by the necessities of a great number of furnaces which have recently started up with slender capital, because they have not the means to hold their products off the market as long as others. In every direction, in short, the tendency is toward a more healthy and solid improvement in the condition of trade and industry. But great care will still be necessary to avoid serious disturbances next Fall.—N. Y. Tribune.

CONGRESSMAN ROBERTSON, of Louisiana, has discovered the real animus of the interoceanic canal scheme, and his fellow-countrymen will wonder that they should have allowed the wily De Lesseps to deceive them so long as to his purposes. If the canal should be cut the Gulf stream, instead of distributing its bland and warming currents along the coasts of America and England, would pour through the canal into the Pacific Ocean, the steady supply of hot water for the British Isles would be cut off, and in Mr. Robertson's own picturesque language, we would "freeze out" a sister nation. By this time the malice of De Lesseps is plain enough. The humiliation of Waterloo is to be revenged by preventing England's importation of a mild climate, and the blooming island will be frozen into a state of barreness and desert sterility that will cause the heart of her ancient enemy to rejoice. Mr. Robertson's exposure of the diabolical scheme is enough. The Monroe doctrine expressly requires us as a nation to pour all the hot water we can into European politics, and we will not be found wanting in this patriotic duty.—N. Y. Tribune.

AN important decision has just been rendered by the Supreme Court. An application was made to the Court for a writ of mandamus to issued to the Assessor of Stockton in the case of Hyatt vs. Allen. The point of general interest in the decision is that the Constitution is in effect self executing, and that provisions of the Political Code are not in conflict therewith. It therefore follows that no legislation is necessary to direct Assessors how to proceed. They are to assess all property and to ascertain the value thereof under the existing laws.—Bodie Chronicle.

ASSESSMENT LISTS. — Assessor May has received from the State Board of Equalization the form required in making up assessments for the years 1880–81. They are a large, four-page mass of tables and rules, and will take an expert clerk something less than a month to fill out each one of them, in case of an extended list of property. The list includes all real or imaginary property, from a wooden toothpick to a railroad franchise. The statistical portion, required to be filled out by the tax-paying unfortunate, would seem to require a careful diary of each and every act of his life as a necessary reference, together with the same matters concerning his uncles, cousins and aunts. If his business affairs happen to be scattered somewhat, there are four additional and separate lists to fill out. The man who cannot prove himself rich by industriously working at the thing for the full ten days allowed would simply show himself a failure on every proposition. It's in the blocks; no 13-15-14 about its combinations. Notwithstanding the new Revenue bill, the new Constitution, the possible appeal of old laws and the neglect of our county dads to establish a lot of road, school and Supervisor districts, Tom May is getting the upper hand in the trouble and will be after you by the middle of next week.

THE UNCLE ABE.—This somewhat noted mine, of the Alabama Hills, is coming to the front again quite flatteringly. It is being worked, under lease by Green Hitchcock, J. H. Cook & Co., who some days since started up their mill with every prospect of a long and paying run. At a depth of about 200 feet the ore body and ledge is full sixteen inches in width, and the ore sparkles with fine gold. The mine is in such condition that two or three men can keep the mill abundantly supplied for an indefinite period with first grade ore, but what this ore will yield per ton remains yet to be seen. There is no question as to its richness, but there may be as to how much of its value can be saved by the present process.

INDEPENDENCE SCHOOL.—Following is an abstract of monthly summaries taken from the register of the Independence school for the term commencing October 13, 1879, and ending April 2, 1880: For the three months ending January 9, taught by Mrs. May—Whole number of days attendance, 1,236; whole number of days absence, 43; whole number of days tardiness, 3; number of girls on register, 12; number of boys on register, 18; total number enrolled, 30. For the three months ending April 2, taught by Mr. Crough—Whole number of days attendance, 2,257; whole number of days absence, 89; whole number of days tardiness, 35; number of girls on register, 25; number of boys on register, 32; total number enrolled, 47.

NIPPED HIM.—One Charles M. Moe (or More, perhaps,) was, after a jury trial in Justice Sneden's Court, at Bishop Creek, convicted of selling whisky to Indians and received a sentence of 500 days in the county jail or $500 fine. The convicted party couldn't or wouldn't pay the fine, so, escorted by Constable Wm. Goodman, he arrived here on Thursday evening, and at once started in on the 500 days of free board and lodging. Judge Sneden takes a very correct view of what is due for offenses of this kind, and it is to be hoped he may get a chance to impress his views on others like this Mr. Moe.

CERRO GORDO.—An unusual number of mining men and speculators, from San Francisco and the East, are at present at Cerro Gordo. The outlook is flattering for the grand old district, the great and solid merits of which should have been recognized by capital long ago. Certain influence have been steadily at work for a long time to bring about this new state of affairs, and will prove successful in spite of opposition. Those who imagine that Cerro Gordo has seen its best days, or that its immense wealth has ever been half developed, are badly deceived and know very little of the facts.

SNOW.—The bounteous snowfall of the present season will prove the greatest boon to those prospectors venturing into the dry ranges to the east of the Inyos. That vast country is prolific in minerals of all kinds, and because of the past dry seasons, is scarcely known. There will now be an opportunity for thousands of prospectors to safely seek mines, with room for numberless districts.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—His many friends will regret to learn of the very serious illness of Charley Johnson, a well-kown and old citizen of our county, residing near Lone Pine. He been stricken with paralysis, losing the use of one arm and the power of speech. Dr. Colleau is doing for him everything in the reach of professional skill, and it is to be hoped will pull him through.

CERTIORARI DENIED.—In a late hearing before the Superior Court, Judge Hannah denied a motion for a new trial and order of review in the case of the People vs. Malone, the latter being under fine for battery on Mrs. Huff. The decision was rendered mainly upon the point that the Justice's Court had jurisdiction in such cases.

GO IT.—Now let the fish fiends begin getting in their work on the trout planted in our streams, to the green envy of those of us who haven't the time nor skill, to go and do likewise. There's satisfaction left in knowing that they cannot hurt our special pets—the catfish in the river.

YGNACIO.—We understand that the owners have resumed work and further prospecting upon the Ygnacio mine, Cerro Gordo.

Where the Fault Lies.

LONE PINE, April 6, 1880.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Please receive my sincere thanks for the remarks in your las issue concerning the county school tax. The laws of this State command the Board or Supervisors to levy a county tax, which, added to the amount of money to be received from the State, shall amount to not less than $500 for each school district. It is evident there will be a deficiency for the school year 1879–80 of about $50 to each district, therefore there must be something wrong.

I consider, Messrs. Editors, that the best way to find a remedy (at least for the future) is to bring the matter before the public, as you have done, opening the field for "cogitation," not confining it alone to the county "dads;" and their constituents are hereby cordially invited to help them to a solution.

In regard to the action of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county in the matter of being too close in fixing the rate of county school tax, I have the honor to submit to the people the following reasons to sustain said action:

Acccording to sub-divisions 1 and 2, section 1817, Political Code, the County School Superintendent must furnish the Board of Supervisors an estimate of the minimum amount of county school funds needed for the ensuing year, calculated on a basis of $500 to each teacher [or district]; from this sum he must deduct the total amount of State apportionments received by the county for the next preceding school year, and the remainder is the minimum amount of county school fund needed. The Board of Supervisors received in due time the aforesaid estimate, and levied the school tax accordingly.

I am satisfied, Messrs. Editors, that the county school money received this school year, together with the amount to be received next June, added to the amount of State money given by the Superintendent on the aforesaid estimate, will largely foot up to $5,000, the required total. And if we do compare the amount of State school money given by the Superintendent in the aforesaid estimate, the difference will be sufficient to make up the deficiency.

Now, Messrs. Editors, we come to a point wherein the county dads have no more authority than any other citizen, any good suggestion from any taxpayer will be gratefully received.

Has the State Controller complied with the requirements of section 443, Political Code? Yes or no? If in the negative, the deficiency arises through that fact; and if only a certain part of said deficiency comes from the noncompliance with the said requirements, the balance must undoubtedly arise through the defects of sub-division 2 of said section 1817. It does not require a first class lawyer to understand that if in the fiscal year 1878–79 the number of census children in the county was, say, 71 more than it is in the year 1879–80, that the deficiency in State money would thereby amount to $497.

A direct remedy would lie in amending sub-division 2 of section 1817, Political Code, as follows [in the words italicised]:

2. He must calculate the amount required to be raised at $500 per teacher; from this amount he must deduct the total amount of State apportionments, less ten per cent., to be received during the ensuing year, according to the number of census children [then] in the county, subject to section 443, Political Code, and the remainder shall be the minimum amount needed, etc.

Very respectfully,

C. MEYSAN,
of the Board of Supervisors.

RETURNED.—Sheriff Smith reached home last Wednesday from his trip to Napa and San Quentin with Howell and Welch, having safely delivered both his men without unusual trouble. The unfortunate Howell was noticeably improving, and will probably soon be discharged from the asylum. Welch was somewhat sullen and morose, but seems confident of obtaining a new trial. The Sheriff states that Tessier, who is working in the hospital ward of the prison, was particularly pleased to learn of Welch's arrival.

KEELER.—We have been favored with a view of an elaborately drawn plat or map of the proposed town of "Keeler City," from the surveys of Mr. Seeley, embellished by the facile pen of Mr. Crilley. The artistic execution of the work is especially noticeable, and we trust the embryo town may realize all that fancy has painted it. Within a very few years there is bound to be a bustling place either at the point referred to or on the opposite side of the lake, or mayhap at both.

BEVERIDGE.—Through W. L. Hunter, just in from Beveridge, we learn that at the Mexican camp there are about 80 men at work. Eleven arastras were in operation on the 2d instant, and several more under process of construction. The ore yields from $12 to $64 per "cargo" of 300 pounds, free gold. The mines, so far as opened by this class of workers, are but seams, but exceedingly numerous and rich.

LET HER CLIMB.—The snow line is slowly but steadily climbing the mountains on either side. Spring is coming and with it the business b—lame that word. For this particular beautiful Spring time we have a box of dynamite for the benefit of anonymous poets, and are fiendishly happy thereat.

AFFLICTED.—Supervisor J. R. Westerville is at the Butte Station, suffering with an attack of neuralgia and throat troubles. He had been quite ailing for some days before leaving town for his home at Fish Springs, and got as far as the point stated.

TRAINING.—We hear of several good horses being put in trim for the coming half mile and repeat and the mile and repeat races.

FRUIT.—Oranges, lemons, and limes are now plentiful, from the Los Angeles market.

FIXED.—L. Wood, the popular merchant, is now comfortably esconced in his new location on the corner of Edwards and Market streets. His store building and residence apartments have been almost entirely rebuilt, the whole forming an attractive place.

GONE.—Supt. G. K. Phillips, who has been all the past season working a number of men on the old mines of Crysopolis District, has gone for a short stay at the Bay. Meanwhile, Mr. Woodhull is in charge of the work.

FOOT RACE.—Sher. Stevens and Hend. Barry are booked for a 100-yard foot race at Lone Pine to-morrow—so reported by Begole and Palmer, at least.

NICHOLAS RIDLEY and Hugh Latimer stood at the stake to be burned for heresy. Fastened to the body of each was a bag of powder, placed there by friends with the intention of bringing the sufferings of the victims to speedy termination. Latimer died first. The flames, rising rapidly, touched the bag of powder, and the torture for him was at an end. Ridley was not so fortunate. The wood, prepared for his execution, being green and tightly packed, the fire smoldered, and he was long in agony, crying out that he could not burn; until one of the spectators having loosened the fagots and admitted air, the flame swept up to the powder and brought death. It is certain that the use of powder was not included in the sentence of death. It was permitted, not authorized. Death being sure, the persecutors were magnanimous enough, at the last, to allow it to come quickly. As the Athenian tribunal granted the privilege of hemlock to Socrates; as the English executioners failed to carry out, literally, the horrible sentence of hanging, drawing and quartering; so the Marian officials did not insist on the extreme rigor of the sentence. But was this hastening of death, in a way unauthorized by law, either murder on the part of the friends of Ridley and Latimer, or suicide on their own part?

Under the old, stern common law, literally construed, the martyrs who used and the friends who furnished the powder were guilty, the former of suicide and the latter of murder.—Popular Science Monthly.

DOM PEDRO has never done anything which will tend more to elevate his name and give him a place, not only among the Kings of the earth, but among those wearers of majesty with whom he classses Victor Hugo, who have a grand love for their fellowmen and the growth of manhood in modern times, and who do their utmost to help in the world's progress, than his earnest and whole-souled efforts in behalf of the American Fair which is to take place in Rio Janeiro this year. He gives the use of the City Palace, admirably suited to the purpose, for twenty-five years, as the temporary exposition is to be succeeded by a permanent one, and he is exerting himself in every possible way to make the affair a success. The palace fronts on the water, is very large, and is close to the Custom-house. No duty will be charged on goods brought for the exhibition, and each exhibitor will be given space, rent free, for a year. The citizens of the United States ought to do their best to be well represented on this occasion, and prove to the South Americans that it would be to their advantage to transfer their commercial relations from England and other European countries to us.—New York Mail.

EVERY established local nawspapef receives subscriptions from the large cities, which puzzle the publisher to account for but which the New York Times of a recent date throws some light on, in the following: "A wholesale grocer in this city, who became rich in the business, says his rule always was when he sold a bill of goods to immediately subscribe for the local paper of his debtor. So long as his customer advertised liberally and vigorously, he rested, but as soon as he began to contract his advertising space he took the fact as evidence there was trouble ahead and invariably went for his debt. Said he, 'The man who is too poor to make his business known is too poor to do business. The withdrawing of an advertisement is an evidence of weekness that business men are not slow to act upon."—Ex.

THERE is no doubt that this county is again infested with organized banditti. The robbery and attempt at murder last night at the Mission, followed by the burglary and arson at Caldwell's store at Spadra indicate this. The boldness of the robbery at the Mission is of a piece with that exhibited in the late robbery of a store in Orange. We have little doubt that the same gang were the authors of both performances, and probably a detachment of the gang operated at Spadra last night also. Sheriff Rowland will be put upon his mettle to exterminate this band. He is just the man to do it. The Sheriff who could bring Vasquez to grief, will not be apt to take much time in crushing out the lesser bandits who are now infesting this county.—Los Angeles Express, April 1.

SEVERAL weeks ago Gen. E. Canavan cut a corn on his foot until it bled. The wound became an almost incurable sore, his foot and leg swelled, and he became afflicted with a severe and constant pain in his side. Fearing blood poison, he took a trip to the sulphur springs, where he remained until he found relief. He returned to the city a day or two ago, but thus far has been unable to wear a boot upon the injured foot. Cutting corns to the quick is a practice which has frequently resulted seriously. The death of the late M. Stamper resulted from blood poison caused by cutting a corn too deeply.—Stockton Independent.

EDISON announces that he has found out what's the matter with his lamps. Keeler insists that his motor is all right. Gen. Pleasanton says that the perfect cure is blue grass. Freud holds that he may be a sand-lotter and yet a good citizen. Kearney swears that he is a reformer. Kalloch proclaims himself a good Christian. The world is full of fools and liars.—S. F. Alta.

THE city is full of money just now. Much of it is in the owners' hands, too. They have drawn largely from the savings banks, in the unnecessary fear that if they did not draw their money before the Revenue bill passed, they could not get it without a deduction of about 2 per cent. to provide for the tax on deposits. Many holders of money are anxious to put it into real estate, but they keep backing and filling, thinking that property may yet go a little lower. One day they conclude to buy at once; the next day they think they will wait a little longer. The result of the election on the 30th ultimo may tend to make such undecided people invest at once. It may be that we have not yet touched the very lowest notch of prices, but certainly, to all human appearances, we have. There has not been as good a time to buy within twenty years. It should be remembered, too, that the taxation of mortgages, or money on hand, etc., will increase the public revenue greatly, and, therefore, very much reduce the taxes on real estate. Heretofore, real property has borne about five-sixths of the entire burden of taxation; now it should not bear more than one-third of it, even if the tax on savings bank deposits (which is the most odious feature of the Revenue bill), were abolished. This reduction of taxes on real estate cannot but effect its price favorably. The total number of sales made in March was 235, of the value of $953,833.—S. F. Real Estate Circular.

TOMBSTONE, the new center of mining interest on the coast, is situated at an elevation of 4,600 feet above the level of the sea, and about 600 feet above the level of the San Pedro Valley. It commands a superb view of the whole surrounding country, ranging for 40 or 50 miles. In Summer the mercury rarely rises above 90°, thus presenting a remarkable contrast to the San Pedro Valley, where, and in Tucson, 117° is a frequent experience. Two years ago there were not, in the whole Tombstone District, over 50 white men. Now, in the district, there are fully 3,000 people, and in the town of Tombstone there are fully 1,000. It is in every respect an American town. When we state there are quite 32 saloons in its corporate limits, this fact would be at once appreciated. Pessimism is at a discount in this portion of Arizona Territory. Money is abundant, and everybody is hopeful—as may well be the case, providing, always, that helpless and dependent people give the Territory a wide berth.—S. F. Alta.

PROF. FACETT, the blind member of Parliament, says that when at twenty-five he lost his sight there were many things of which he was passionately fond, and he resolved that those pursuits which he could follow he would. No one enjoyed salmon fishing in the Tweed or the Spey more than he did, no one more enjoyed throwing the fly in some quiet stream in Hampshire or Wiltsbury. He enjoyed it as much as any one did a gallop over the turf in company with some friend. He appreciated all the health-giving vigor of a long row from Oxford to London, and although the late severe frosts nipped up a great many people, no one in the whole country enjoyed better than he, with a friend, did a 50 or 60 mile skate on the Fens. He referred to these facts in no spirit of egotism, but as showing that there was still for the blind a store of happiness and pleasure, if they only had the courage and determination to avail themselves of it.

SINCE our last issue we have had several heavy falls of warm rain. The river rose to a greater hight than it has done for several years before. It was at the highest point Sunday. The head-gates of the McCord and Farmers Canals were so badly damaged as to be rendered useless until repairs can be made. The weather is the most favorable for grass and crops that we have had for a long period.—Kern Co. Californian.

A BULL which had escaped from a drove in the streets of Corvallis, Oregon, a few days ago, made an assault upon a Chinaman. The victim was hoisted up on the horns of the infuriated animal, carried several rods and finally dropped uninjured.

A CURIOUS decision was recently rendered by the Missouri Supreme Court. A man by the name of Ford, a well to-do St. Louis Catholic, willed his property to the church, leaving his wife in abject poverty. This fact being shown, the Court declared the will void.

A SPECIAL from Washington says the American Colonization Society undertakes to give free passage and support for six months to as many persons as possible within its means. Eighty or one hundred negroes will soon sail for Liberia under its auspices.

THE firm of Newcomb, Buchanan & Co., the great Kentucky distillers, who failed about two years ago, owing about $1,500,000, played a nice April 1st joke on their creditors by paying all their old debts on that day.

THE whisky in Leadville seems to be a dead shot. We read of two men falling dead in a saloon over there immediately after imbibing. Only one of them lived long enough to reach a chair by the stove.

THE Legislature will suddenly wind up its checkered career on Tuesday, leaving a vast number of bills—some good and some villainous—as dead documents in the hands of the Secretary of State.

THE Homestake Company, Black Hills, cleaned up on the 3d inst. $190,000 in gold, the work of two weeks' run. This is said to be the largest clean-up ever made in the Black Hills.

THE price of cotton has advanced $12 50 per bale of 500 pounds within six months, making a difference of $60,000,000 on this year's crop. As a result, it is stated, the effect is a cheerful animation in the South, such as has not been observed for nineteen years. The people of that section are buying largely of Western produce of nearly all kinds. St. Louis commission merchants dealing with the South are busy filling orders for mules, horses and wagons for planters, while the regular orders are greatly in excess of former years. The demand for mules has been so great that Missouri has been swept almost clean, the price paid for them being higher than has prevailed for ten years.

THREE well-dressed ladies, evidently strangers, took seats in the gallery of the Senate, and after awhile one asked a gentleman who sat next her if he would point out Senator Ben Hill. It so happened that the Senator from Georgia was at that time in the Supreme Court arguing a case, and the gentleman, regardless of propriety, pointed out the Senator from Maine. The lady immediately communicated her information to her companions, one of whom remarked, "Well, well," while the other said in a sad tone, "Who would have thought it?"—Boston Journal.

A NEW use for the telephone has been discovered in Milwaukee. It is a thief detecter. A business man had his house connected with his place of business, and one night not long ago a gentleman in the house placed the tube to his ear and said some one was moving about in the store. The merchant went on the run for the police and opened the front door of his store just in time to see a burglar going out of the back window, but fortunately he had not had time to take anything with him.

IT is shown by recent count that in Great Britain 2,113 individuals hold not less than 5,000 acres of land each, and that their aggregate ownership was 38,018,645 acres. As the entire acreage of Great Britian and Ireland is put at 77,513,600, it will be seen that very nearly half the entire territory is in the possession of about 2,000 persons.

THE ENGINEERING and MINING JOURNAL.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

DEVOTED TO

Mining, Metallurgy, Engineering and Science.

RICHARD P. RICHTHWELL, C.E., M.E., ROSSITER W. RAYMOND, Ph.D., } Editors.
WILLIAM H. WAHL, Ph.D., Department of Progress in Science and the Arts.

IT IS AN ACCEPTED AUTHORITY ON ALL questions relating to the great mining industries of the country. It is the oldest publication of its class in America, thoroughly independent; being of the trade and not in it, occupies a just and impartial position, which enables it to advise and teach without fear or favor. It devotes much space to questions bearing upon economical management of mines, and from time to time illustrates the more important improvements in mining machinery and engineering methods. Special attention is given to reliable mining news from all parts of the country, which is gathered by an efficient corps of correspondents in every section, and from an extended exchange list. The metal and ore markets and gold, silver and miscellaneous stocks are reported and commented upon weekly by experienced financiers, who are unbiased by private interests, and upon these matters it is accepted as a reliable guide and unfailing instructor. Gives statistics of production of coal and iron, and of our great gold, silver and other mines. Its scientific notes are an epitome of the latest researches, its trade reports full, and its editorials sagacious and comprehensive. It enjoys the widest circulation and greatest influence of any journal of its class in the world; its patrons and readers comprising the most select and intelligent men in every quarter.

Some Figures.

Elizabeth Thompson, of New York, and who is to the working people of this country what the noble Elizabeth Fry was to those across the water, has compiled, from authentic sources, statistics to show the cost of intoxicating drink in this country. Following is a

A COMPARATIVE STATEMENT:

Expended for drinks in the United States and Territories in 1879	$715,575,000
Retail drink venders in the United States	166,000
EDUCATIONAL STATISTICS.
Schools in the United States	141,629
Teachers	221,042

Annual expenses for education	$ 95,402,726
Estimated expensee for drink	715,575,000
Cost of drink over education	$620,172,274

It is computed that a direct taxation of $700,000,000 is entailed upon the people of this country by criminals and paupers created by drink. It is also stated that 18,000,000 people in this country use intoxicating liquors. The same authority presents the following:

RELIGIOUS STATISTICS.
Clergy in the United States	83,637

Those who are anxiously expecting a moral millennium can take these figures and calculate just how long they must live in order to be present to hail this good time.

THROUGH the politeness of Supt. D. M. Tyrrell, we were taken down into the Del Monte last Thursday. The machinery is working like a charm, and does its duty without even a rattle or jar; in fact, everything in and about the mine works like a clock. On the 300 level work is being done on the southwest lateral drift. A vein of bright, lively quartz, showing some metal, has been struck. Work on the lateral drift on the 500 level has developed some favorable looking quartz. A tank has been built at the 500 station to catch the flow of water from the drift, and in a few days sinking on the main shaft will be commenced. The water-flow has somewhat decreased, and the pump readily holds it, running at the rate of seven strokes per minute. The Ingersoll drills arrived here last week, but as the sub ends for the drills did not arrive, they have not been put in operation. However, as soon as they come and can be welded up, they will be put to work. This will greatly facilitate work in the mine.—Esmeralda Herald, April 10.

THERE is a poplar tree, about 18 inches in diameter, in Troy, Alabama, which was standing erect about ten years ago. A short time afterward the tree fell and lay prone on the ground for a considerable period, during which time a part of the top was cut up and used for fuel. No human agency has since interfered with nor in any manner attempted to move it, and now it stands erect and is growing beautifully.

THE Anti-Third Term National Convention is called to meet in St. Louis May 6, about a month before the meeting of the Republican National Convention at Chicago. Its avowed purpose, as stated in the call, is to "perfect a national organization through which a popular expression of the will of the American people against the principle of a third Presidential term may be secured."

THE snail is apparently a harmless thing, but what a terror do the scientists make it when they define it as "a terrestrial pulmo-branchiate, gasteropodus, conchiferous, heterogangliate animal."

Square Locations in the Mines.

The Federal Mining Commission, which spent some weeks in California last Summer, exposed its incapacity while here by looking after matters entirely beyond the limits of the proper jurisdiction, and after returning to Washington furnished another proof of incompetency, by preparing and urging the passage of a bill that would be almost ruinous to quartz mining. The chief feature of this pernicious measure is that the mining claim shall not be more than 600 feet wide, and 1,500 feet long, with the lode, and that it shall go down vertically. If then the croppings are in the middle of the claim, and the vein dips at an angle of 45°, the miner would reach to the limit of workings at a depth of 300 feet; and somebody else would get the benefit of the explorations from 300 to 900; and another claim would take it from 900 to 1,500; and another from 1,500 to 2,100, and so on. It is not necessary to explain to a person having any familiarity with such mines as those at Grass Valley, Sutter Creek, the Downieville Buttes, Virginia City or Bodie, that this system of square locations would crush mining industry. The miner cannot afford the time and expense of exploration unless allowed to follow the dip of the lode to the end of time. The rich ore of the Consolidated Virginia was discovered 1,200 feet from the surface; and the miners are now down in some of the Comstock mines nearly 3,000 feet, which depth could not be reached under the square location system without having seven parallel claims. Square locations might be good at Leadville, or in some other ephemeral camp with the same kind of irregular deposits, but will never do in the great fissure veins, which like those of Zacatecas, Guanajuato, Cerro Pasco and Potosi, are to last hundreds of years. There are many minor objections to the bill, but this is sufficient. It is prepared on the recommendation of men who have a very scanty acquaintance with the important and extensive interests about which they propose to legislate.—S. F. Alta.

EXPERIENCE is much — some say everything. Much has been written on the subject of butter making, and yet there may be much to learn, for we see continually new discoveries, and wonder why we did not discover this or that ourselves, or that some one did not think of it before. The question as to deep or shallow milk vessels has ever been a question upon which dairymen differ. Below will be found the process of a very old and successful dairyman, who says: After many experiments, I prefer low, shallow pans; the larger the surface the better. As soon as I take the milk from the cow I put one quart of cold spring water to each three quartz of milk. The cream will then rise immediately. I allow my pans of milk to set twelve hours. The same gentleman argues that this is necessary for two reasons; the first is, there will be no strong flavor to the cream that occurs from long standing; second, that the cream will all rise before the milk sours; and claims that if the milk has not all floated before the milk sours it will be retained. This reasoning seems to be entitled to credit when it is remembered that the butter is composed of small grains or globlues, and it would reasonably follow that when the milk becomes thinned by the water that these globules would more readily find their way to the surface.—California Spirit of the Times.

THERE was a feud between the Howrie and Westfall families, in Warren county, Iowa, and the Howries hired George Wheeler to kill the nine male Westfalls at $100 apiece, the price to be paid after the death of each, and $100 to be added to the ninth, making $1,000 for the whole job. Wheeler began work by shooting at the father of the Westfalls, but only slightly wounded him in the head. Nevertheless, he demanded $100 from the Howries. They told him that they would not pay for such bad shooting, and he could only get $10; so he exposed the plot, and all concerned in it are now in jail.

IT is getting to be a rare sight to see Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, on the floor of the House. Notwithstanding his gentle denials to his friends that he is feeling "right well," the fact cannot be denied that what little health he has left in his shriveled anatomy is gradually failing him. When upon the floor he is one of the figures upon whom the eye of the visitor alights. He sits propped up in a trundle chair, which is wheeled into the space immediately in front of the Speaker's desk, and always keeps his head covered with a slouched hat and his hands protected from unwelcome drafts with cotton gloves.

PRESIDENT HAYES' message on the canal subjects him to curious criticism in England. He is accused of Imperialism, Jingoism, Beaconsfieldism, Spreadeagleism and various other "isms." A London paper remarks with oracular solemnity that if there is one thing more striking than another in American politics just now it is that a very distinct foreign policy is growing up, which will shortly make itself felt elsewhere than on the American continent.

A MAN in Sandstone, Missouri, last week killed himself as economically as he could. He walked into a store and asked to see some revolvers. When one was put into his hand he said he would like to load it, and was given a cartridge. "Excuse me for using this a minute," he said to the shopkeeper, apologetically; and, stepping back from the counter, shot himself through the brain.

Alleged Jokes.

A household with a baby is founded on a rock.

One man eloped with the wife of another from a spelling bee in Tennessee. Such bees interfere with the honeymoon.

The waves of a woman's handkerchief have wrecked many a man, and the waves of a woman's hand without the handkerchief have wrecked many a small boy.

A young man said he kissed his girl under a lamp-post because he liked her. We guess nobody would be so foolish as to suppose he kissed her because he liked the lamp-post.

"Zephaniah," said his wife, with a chilling severity, "I saw you coming out of a saloon this afternoon. "Well, my dear," replied the heartless man, "you wouldn't have your husband staying in a saloon all day, would you?"

"Georgie," said a fond mamma to her little son, as they were walking on the beach, "see what a lot of nice little stones!" "Yes," grumbled Georgie as he cast a searching glance around, "but I don't see nuffin' to throw 'em at."

A young New Yorker was introduced to a Boston girl, and before they were acquainted thirty minutes she got so spoony that she called him an asterolepis, a Silurian placoid and a cartilaginous vertebrate. He returned to New York by the midnight train.

An Indiana girl, who sued for a breach of promise, found all her love letters confronting her in court, and rather than have the jury know she spelled it "mairy" for "marry, and "harte" for heart, and "hapie" for happy, she withdrew the suit. Young man, see the point? Save your love letters.

THE following is a literal copy of "rools" posted in a country school house in Jasper county, Iowa: "Each pupel is required to make a bow on entering the School House of a morning also leaving of Evening the school room. there shall be no pin sticken, pinchen, scratching, nor tagging nor no fiting, nor no unnessery whispering ing in school. No Pupil shall leave the school House without the permission of the Teacher. No unnessery moving from seat to seat. No fiting on the road from or to school, nor no nick-naming. Every pupill over eight years is subject to those rules and the teacher is to make allowance for all Pupills under eight years and enforce the rules according. If any scholar breakes these rules tha shall be punished by a switchen."

PIERRE VALCOUR, a Frenchman of Lockport, N. Y., claims to have invented a deep sea telephone, by which vessels can be kept in constant communication with the shore while crossing the ocean. He has discovered how to insulate a single wire so that immersion in water does not impair its transmission of electricity, and this wire is to be paid out from a cigar-shaped metallic float, thirty feet long, in tow of the vessel. Leaden sinkers are to be detached every 200 miles to keep the wire on the ocean's bed, and if the inventor's hopes are realized, an ocean trip will lose its present isolation.

A SOMEWHAT dignified resident of Virginia City entered a barber shop, which was full of men, and the boss barber greeted him with: "Hullo, Charley!" "I always like to come in here," said the dignified resident, blandly; "there's only one person in the city who calls me 'Charley' besides yourself, and that's my wife. If you'd call me 'dear Charley,' now, it would make me feel even more at home. I don't happen to know your first name, my friend, but it's real kind of you to call me by mine." The barber said no more.

IN a little town near Providence the venerable pastor called on a pious family one evening and was invited to conduct family worship. The three-year-old pet of the family noticed, as the preacher was kneeling, that the sole of one of his shoes was partially off at one end. The baby, who had been in a blacksmith shop watching them shoe horses, quietly ran and got a hammer and began to bang on the parson's shoe sole. The reverend brother kept on praying, but the rest of the family had to keep too much laugh in them to be much benefited thereby.

FIVE immense blocks of stone have been removed from the Great Pyramid of Egypt lately, by consent of the Khedive, for the purpose of being used in the construction of a mosque. It is argued that the whole civilized world should feel an interest in the continued preservation of this monument of a past age, and it is thought diplomatic influence should be exerted to prevent further inroads of the character referred to.

THE Chicago Times is about to adopt a novel plan of issuing its editions; that is, to print a sheet according to its supply of news. If the supply only justifies 48 columns, that will be the size of the paper; but if there is enough to fill 128 columns, 128 columns goes—no tripple sheet or anything of that sort, but a single newspaper containing as many columns as it has matter to fill.

A FOG BELL, weighing 3,000 pounds, has been placed in position at Fort Point, in this State. The new bell is operated by clockwork, and during fogs will be struck at intervals of ten seconds. The old bell, weighing 960 pounds, has been taken to Goat Island, where it will be used as an auxiliary signal.

THE San Francisco Post speaks in the following high terms of Mr Wasson's proposed Mining Bureau bill: "We give our unqualified support to the Mining Bureau bill in its present shape. It provides for a long felt want upon this coast. No other community in the world, possessed of the same wealth, and so deeply interested in mines, would have been without a mining bureau, where the mineral products of the coast could be graded and classified, and where impartial information might be obtained. Hitherto investors have been at the mercy of "mining experts," and many of whom were without scientific knowledge or experience. There were, fortunately, men of high character and attainments in this business on the coast, but the want of a State Department of Mines has long been felt. The bill before the Legislature is a beginning. It is a step in the right direction. It will save millions of treasure from foolish investment in the future, and disseminate a knowledge of mineralogy which must be invaluable. As an educational force the proposed Mining Bureau will be a great gain to California."

THE New York Tribune remarks: "The Select Committee of the Senate appointed to inquire into the removal of the Northern Cheyenne Indians, their escape from from the Indian Territory, and the Camp Robinson massacre, has developed some startling facts, showing terrible neglect on the part of the Government officers of the Interior Department. The treaty with the Indians was not fulfilled, they were insufficiently fed, and were allowed to suffer for months, and many of them to die for want of medical supplies, notwithstanding the urgent appeals of the Indian Agent and others asking that the supplies be forwarded." In the same issue from which the above is taken we find a report of the testimony referred to. Just now the civilized world is holding up its hands in justified horror because seven hundred human beings were buried alive in Burmah as a means to restore to health the beastly carcass of Burmah's drunken and consumptive king. The horror of this is more fully realized because it has just occurred. No doubt but the Camp Robinson commandant, those Interior Department saints and their chum Indian supply contracters, all being civilized and Christian gentlemen, were as deeply shocked at the superstitious barbarities of those Burmese astrologers as if they themselves had not been guilty of equally cruel but more sweeping murders. But the facts show that there was less beastliness and fewer sufferers from the acts of those ignorant Burmese astrologers than from the acts of commission and omission of Carl Schurz's mercenary gang above referred to. While ex-Commissioner Hayt and his sort lives, let self-respecting Americans keep very quiet about what wholesale murderers in India may do.

UNTIL a correct copy of the county government bill as finally passed shall be received, it will prove impossible to find out what it all amounts to—there being so many changes in the various sections. The Board of Supervisors, however, are granted many additional powers, and the position becomes one demanding the attention of our very best, practical business men, and then the people must see to it that they are held strictly responsible for all official acts.

WE are in recipt of a copy of Hill's Leading Land and Mining Cases, a large quarterly which gives all new laws, decisions, etc., as indicated by its title, which certainly must be of special value to lawyers, land and mining agents, and all others interested in such matters. It is by W. C. Hill, Washington, D. C., price one dollar a year.

THE Colton Semi-Tropic remarks: "The amount of railroad freight going to Arizona is something wonderful. Every car and engine that can be pressed into service is in use, and there is not nearly enough to do the business with."

A GREAT deal of bullion is now being shipped from Ivanpah, and the propects are good for wide extended mining operations all through the Mohave Desert region.

OUT of the 213 newspapers now published in this State only 74 are over ten years old, which fact induces a complacent, dignified sort of a feeling with this institution.

THE Fresno Expositor, one of our best country exchanges, has entered upon its eleventh volume, with bright prospects ahead for itself and Fresno county.

GOING OUT OF THE BUSINESS.

According to a bill now pending in Congress the Government proposes to close up its land business at once, and take in its sign. Its business in that line has always been very great, but not profitable except to agents; at the same time it has always been a great bother to Congress in trying to manage and understand it, and to end this bother and give more time for President manufacture, the leading business of the concern, a grand closing out sale is to be had, to which none but the rich are specially invited to bid, and at which the lands are to be put up by whole townships, buyers with the privilege of the remainder—anyway to close out the entire stock in trade the most expeditiously.

It is a bill to give all remaining public lands to the rich land sharks; to prohibit homestead, pre-emption, or other settlers' rights upon, around or about it; to create a landed aristocracy—in short, to overthrow the main pillar of free and intelligent government—the opportunity and the right of every poor man as well as the rich to obtain a home of his own.

The bill in question classifies all unsold lands as either Arable, Irrigable, Pasturage, Timber or Mineral. Arable lands, in lots of 640 acres, are subject to entry under the townsite, timber culture or homestead laws, the pre-emption law being repealed.

Irrigable and pasture lands, including swamp, are to be sold in unlimited areas, at 25 cents an acre.

Pasture lands are to be sold without limit as to quantity, at private sale without previous public offering. The price, to begin with, is to be $1 25 per acre, which by some unexplainable graduation law, is to be gradually reduced to 12½ cents an acre—but not one cent lower though you offerred to take enough for two counties. This Government is no fool and don't mark goods to be sold at a bit, all the time intending to take ten cents rather than spoil a trade. But a homestead may be filed on this class of lands on two conditions, viz.: you must pay $100 cash down and be satisfied with not to exceed 2,560 acres or four square miles. This wise provision is intended to give every such homesteader a chance to have some neighbors somewheres within a day's ride, also a church and a school house and such things, in reach by railroad.

Timber lands are to be disposed of in alternate sections; but it is only the timber, not the land, that is to be disposed of. Uncle wants to keep some land for his contemplated goose-ranch, of which Major Powell, the author of this bill, hopes to be major domo, for which he is much better qualified than to frame land laws for American people.

All mineral lands are to be laid off in straight lines on the surface, in squares if desired, and all right to minerals contained therein shall be confined to vertical planes passing downward throngh straight boundary lines. The Major and his co-commissioners have heard something about the blanket style of so-called "lodes" of Leadville, and having an idea that is the way it is everywhere, think the fair way to divide up the quartz is by big square chunks. At all events, this thing of confining the ownership of a ledge within vertical lines on all sides will save the expense of writing "dips, spurs and angles," etc., in every claim notice, and transfer, and that is some compensation for the loss of a ledge that dips out of boundaries. The same section provides further that within ninety days after location of claim the locator must apply for survey of same or lose his right of discovery, and within a year thereafter apply for a patent or forfeit his claim. Also that no adverse claims are to be settled by local courts or other authorities than certain officers in Washington. Neither is any local custom or law to be regarded in the settlement of such contests.

The Commission has been engaged ever since March, 1879, in evolving this land robbing law; they got $20,000 and two clerks to help them out in their grand conception; now, when it is proposed to repeal all existing land laws, and change the entire land system for which they are alone of any use, the House only the other day voted this same Commission $15,000 additional and plenty of clerks, to go on and codify all these laws and decisions relating thereto from the beginning!

A DISPATCH from Rangoon, Burmah, reports seven hundred men, women, boys, girls, priests and foreigners have been burned alive under the towers of the city walls, as a sacrifice for the restoration of the King's health. The panic in Mandalay is frightful, and hundreds of people are leaving the city. The King's illness is said to be leprosy. The instigators of this inhuman sacrifice are a lot of cracked brained astrologers in Mandalay, who argued that it was necessary to do this to save the life of his Royal Highness! The thing reads like fiction. And it is further stated that the people, while seeing the folly of drunken King Thebaw's acts, are powerless to effect a change.

CORRECTS US.

In another column we present a second communication from Supervisor Meysan relating to the school money question. In this he shows by dates and figures given that the actual deficit in our school money allowance for this year is $894 76, and not $1,873 45 as we had given it. By referring to the Treasurer's books, we find that his statement is correct in that particular, therefore we were in error. The question now before the house is, Where is that $894 to come from?

From further investigations, we conclude but very little of it will come at all. Whatever difference there may be between a legal or calendar year and a fiscal year adds nothing to the chances. The fiscal year, so called because it "pertains to the revenue, or fiscal arrangements of government," is identical with the school year, both ending on the 30th of each June. It has been the habit heretofore, and, we presume, a requirement of law, for the State to make but two apportionments of the school fund during the year. These two apportionments have already been made to the several counties, and by them received and apportioned to districts, together with all of the county fund on hands at the time, to be applied to the current expenses of the current fiscal year only, possible balances excepted. That is, should our next apportionment, by either State or county, be not made till the first of July next or thereafter the money so apportioned would be included as a part of the fund for the fiscal year beginning at that date and would not be available for the expenses of the one just closed, even though the taxes of the latter had produced the amount. Just such a "close shave," or condition where the tax receipts for the one year would in such manner be carried to the next is presumed never to occur or become necessary. But it may occur this year for these reasons:

Under a new law, which we understand, has just been made a law by the present Legislature, all receipts from delinquent poll taxes must hereafter go with other such moneys into the State Treasury, and thence apportioned like other State school moneys, instead of direct from the County Treasury as heretofore. Such being the case it is at least probable that we will, for this year's school purposes, be deprived of the benefit of such poll tax collections as may be made prior to the 30th of June next, all such collections having, as just stated, to first go into the State Treasury, where it is likely to remain till the first semi-annual apportionment for next year.

We find by the Treasurer's books that from the 1st of April to the 30th of June, 1879, the total of collections and apportionments to the school fund for that year amounted to $356; for the corresponding period in 1878 the amount of the same was $432. Except some small sums for fines, and personal property tax percentage, these amounts came from delinquent poll taxes exclusively. Like favorable conditions do not now exist for this year, saying nothing of the immediate effects of the new law referred to.

So we are still "in the woods." But, in addition to the two ways to get out, as mentioned last week, here is another: levy an assessment—that is, order elections for a special tax. Of course, many in every community, who have much taxable property together with most of those who have none at all, are likely to "kick" vigorously against this plan, and in case of a vote are most likely to join forces and beat it; but it is worth trying anyway to give the woe-begone rich a chance to realize that they have enough left to be worth looking after, after all, and notwithstanding their forebodings, rapidly verging to the chronic, to the contrary. If nothing else comes of it this plan would divert their thoughts into new channels, and might cause them to worry less about their imaginary sour mash. A special school tax is just the thing for that, and to inculcate a more wide-spread interest in the rising generation.

THE San Francisco Chronicle favors us with a beautiful book containing its own remarkable history. Time was when we couldn't conscientiously uphold the course of the Chronicle in certain respects, but there never was a time when we did not know it be a paper of wonderful enterprise and completeness; and now, allowing for notable improvements in certain matters always good as well as in some we did not deem commendable, we are constrained to say that we think it has no superior as a newspaper in any country.

RICHARD SEWARD, aged 72, and Millie Catherine Thurman, aged 70, both of San Gabriel, filed a document in the Los Angeles County Recorder's office agreeing to become husband and wife. They didn't want any marriage ceremony, claiming that they were old enough to adhere to the terms of an agreement without any further nonsense.

The Mining Bureau.

On the 7th instant, Hon. Joseph Wasson's bill to provide for the establishment and maintenance of a Mining Bureau, was called up in the Assembly, when the following debate, as reported in the Record-Union, took place:

Mr. Wasson, of Mono, said the State had no institution wherein any record of the variety of minerals of this State could be found—no institution whereby any intelligent conception of the mineral resources of California can be obtained. The State Geological Survey began at the wrong end. The State snubbed the State Geologist, Mr. Whitney, who in turn snubbed the State, by taking away all that was valuable of the survey and minerals. The question now is, how to remedy the failure of the geological survey. This bill, No. 415, proposes to establish in San Francisco an office, the State Mineralogist to collect the necessary data. In the Berkeley University the College of Mines pertains to the teaching of some knowledge of mining, but that can have no perceptible bearing upon the wants of the great mass of people who come and go from San Francisco—prospectors, miners and capitalists. This, if established would supplement the Berkeley institution, round it out and make the subject of leading importance. The funds to be used are drawn from the license tax imposed by the law of 1878 upon certificates of mining stocks. The first year the proceeds from this tax were about $30,000, but judging from the sales now, the funds will not amount to more than $10,000 annually. It would be paid in San Francisco, and through every mining stock company on the Pacific Coast mining people contribute to this, and though for the time being it will divert money from the treasury of San Francisco, that money will create a great State institution.

Mr. Tyler spoke in favor of the bill, and answered at some length objections urged by Mr. May and others.

Messrs. McIntosh Merry and McCallon said during the debate it was claimed that if the people in San Francisco desired it, that it should have been introduced through the representatives from that city.

Mr. Wasson, of Mono, closed the debate, and said that with regard to the bill coming from San Francisco, it was necessary that it should be sent to the Chairman of the Committee on Mines. He had been a resident of that city for years, and sunk thousands of dollars in land speculations on the sand lots before they had become historic. He felt a just pride in the mines, and particularly those of Mono. In Bodie, within the past three years, the population had increased from 100 to 8,000. The money from that place is expended in San Francisco. More than this, Mexico, Alaska and Australia are all intimately connected with that city, as a business center, and so far as furnishing needed information is concerned, the University is a mere schoolboy concern to what this Bureau will give in five years' time. It will be an honor to and pride of the city. There are donations of specimens from mines amounting to thousands of dollars ready to be offered to it. In referring to Mono county, I may say it is the most pronounced mining county in the State, and it lay undeveloped for years for want of such information as this Bureau will furnish. There is not a county in the State that is not a mining county, unless it is San Francisco; and there they mine in the pockets of the people. We have fully developed only mines of two minerals—gold and silver and quicksilver. The country is rich in mineral substance, and no record is made of it. No authoritative reports are published of the varied minerals that have a commercial value. We have no storehouse of information where the stranger can find out where these minerals are, and yet they are known to exist. We only ask a fair hearing upon this subject, and I am sure the people of San Francisco, within five years, will be proud of this institution. Place yourselves upon record, anyhow.

A vote was taken on the bill, and it passed—ayes 44, noes 24.

Mr. May gave notice of a reconsideration.

THE Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says: Senator Blaine is managing his own campaign. On the 6th instant he gave a reception to the Republican Congressmen and correspondents; a few nights later he had the Democratic Congressmen and correspondents, and on the 20th the Republicans are again invited, and the 27th the Democrats; so that honors are easy. His headquarters are in the billiard room in the upper story of his own house, and on the table are large piles of letters from every State, assuring him of aid and proffering support. Four clerks brief the contents of these letters, and write out the replies dictated in short hand. Another clerk furnishes paragraphs for publication in friendly presses, giving the cream of friendly correspondence. All this is done under Mr. Blaine's personal direction, and should he be nominated he will conduct the canvass himself, making three or four speeches in as many large cities.

MR. FLEUSS, of London, has discovered a method by which divers can remain under water for three or four hours at a time without the aid of an air pump. The peculiarity of the method consists in the diver's taking down with him, inside his armor, a full supply of air food, which is consumed at will wholly within the armor, and even the expired air does not escape into or even create a ripple or bubble upon the water.

THE opinion of Judge Pope, in the case of Dulaney vs. Branagan et al., recently tried in a District Court of Colorado, has an important bearing upon the rights of owners of cross lodes. In this case the plaintiff held under a Government grant; the defendant claimed under a location. Said the Judge, in substance: "The defendant, in making application for a patent, would have had to except so much of the ground as is covered by the previous grant to the plaintiff; othwise his survey would not have been approved. He did except that ground, and he got a patent for his lode up to the point of intersection with and for that portion beyond the previous grant. The Government grants nothing in the crossing, because it had previously transferred that to the plaintiff. By having the patent granted to him (the defendant) on each side of the previous grant, he acquires simply the right of way through it."

A NEW preservative process, of very general applicability for preserving animal bodies and plants has recently been devised by Herr Wickersacheimer, of Berlin, and has been deemed of such value that the patent has been purchased by the Prussian Government and given to the public. It consists of a fluid preparation of boiling water, alum, common salt, saltpeter, potash, arsenous acid, glycerine and methyl alcohol. The bodies of animals, or single parts thereof, plants, etc., soaked in and impregnated with this fluid, retain perfectly their form, color and suppleness, so that sections may be taken from them years afterward, free from corruption and insalubrious odors.

BILLY O'HARA, an old colored man, familiarly known to the inhabitants of Aurora and Bodie as "Uncle Billy," has just died at the former place. Uncle Billy came across the Isthmus with Wm. C. Ralston. Uncle Billy had acted as steward when Ralston was clerk upon a cotton boat on the Mississippi, and met Ralston again in Aspinwall, and was induced to try his fortune in this State. Uncle Billy prospered in California, and at the time of his death was worth $40,000.

A PRESCOTT, Arizona, dispatch says all the newspapers in that section, both Democrat and Republican, denounce in strong terms the charges preferred against Judge Silent and the motives of those preferring them, and assert that the California delegation in Congress has been misled by Chas. P. Egan, who went to Washington to prefer charges, and who is an agent of the Peck Mining Company, which recently lost a suit in Judge Silent's Court.

A PARTY, consisting of H. M. Yerington, D. L. Bliss, Chas. Foreman and H. L. Tickner left here on Sunday last for Columbus, going by the proposed railroad route from the Mound House, following the Carson river below Dayton; thence around Walker Lake and on to Columbus. The parties are to be absent about five days. The survey of the proposed railroad has been completed to the head of Walker Lake, the surveying party having returned to Carson last Saturday evening.—Carson Appeal.

SATURDAY, APRIL 17.....1880

THE COURT HOUSE.—It would be well for the Board of Supervisors to take into consideration the propriety of repainting and repairing the Court-house, not only for the general appearance of the thing, but from the absolute necessity of it. It has been the worst kind of economy which has so long neglected a thorough overhauling of the leaky roof, through which the walls have been damaged more than the first cost of a good job of repairing, if not replacing, would have amounted to. The matter of repainting the structure, outside and in, has been also so long neglected that to give it a thorough one now will cost as much again as it would had it been done at the proper time. This is something needed for the preservation of the wood. Notwithstanding all the talk and expense of advertising about a fire-proof vault, the records are still perfectly unprotected from fire. The rickety old redwood benches in the Court-room should be replaced by eight or ten dozen of well-ironed chairs, which would last for ten years and prove infinitely cheaper in the long run.

DEEP SPRING.—Mr. J. D. Hudgin, representing San Francisco parties who have under bond the Whiteman property, at Deep Spring, started over last Thursday. He will prosecute by night and day shifts the work of sinking 100 feet on the mine, which is to be completed within the ninety days during which the bond extends. The mine is centrally located upon one of the principal ledges of the district, and this development will to a great extent show up the rest of the property. Uncle Gid Witeman and co-workers will realize a handsome sum out of the sale.

DISMISSED.—In the case of the good people of the great State of California vs. Malone, Justice Snodgrass granted a motion for a new trial, on the ground that in the preceding one a trial by jury was not formally and legally waived. In accordance, about all the men in the town subject to jury duty were subpœnaed and in attendance upon the Court last Wednesday. Directly counsel for prosecution moved a dismissal of the case, the casus belli having been removed by defendant paying costs, doctor bills, etc. And by his honor it was so ordered.

DARWIN.—The revival of active operations on the Modock at Lookout, the Hartford mines at Lee District—the ores of which, we understand, are about to be worked at the Emigrant mill—together with work going on in the Custer and Lucky Jim mines, give Darwin a prospect for a vastly improved season of business. We consider the future great importance of th old camp as assured; it is only a question as to when capital shall take hold and inaugurate deep work upon such properties as the Defiance, New Coso, Lucky Jim and others.

ST. LAWRENCE.—Supt. Hedge, the other day, brought over from the old St. Lawrence mine, directly across the river, a number of specimens of very fine silver ore, taken from a lot of some forty tons on the dump, which will work about $200 per ton. This dump and the mine stands as it was left sixteen or seventeen years ago, in Indian war times, and from all accounts the property is well worth taking hold of to-day.

U. S. INTERNAL REVENUE TAX.—The special tax to be paid by dealers in manufactured tobacco or liquors, or both, for 1880-81, will be due April 30, 1880, and should be forwarded at once to H. L. Childs, Deputy Collector, Bodie. It you drop in at Harris & Rhine's office they will accommodate you with blanks and forward the money.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—Revs. F. M. Willis and L. Case will hold quarterly meeting at Bishop Creek Sunday morning, the 25th instant. Love feast 9½ A. M., and preaching at 11 A. M., to be immediately followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper. Temperance sermon at 7½ P. M. by Rev. L. Case.

SCARCE.—The number of unemployed men who have been about town nearly all Winter, have scattered out, leaving the place looking more or less depopulated. We have heard of several inquires during the week for good miners, for places which have not yet been filled.

NEW COSO.—The annual stockholders' meeting of the New Coso Company is called at San Francisco May 5th. It is probable that an assessment will be levied for the purpose of further sinking upon and propecting the mine.

KEARSARGE.—Supt. Gray, of the Kearsarge, arrived from the Bay city during the week, and is now at the mine. We hear that he is about settling up company affairs and will let a contract for work on the mine.

LOCATED.—Judge R. B. Snelling, our late District Attorney, has located at Candelaria for law practice, and while there will act as agent for THE INDEPENDENT and occasionally favor us with a letter.

RACE HORSES.—Johnny Williams arrived yesterday from Bishop, with three horses for the coming races. He reports that Jim Peregrine has "Black Harry" up in Churchill county, Nev.

TRY IT.—At a small expenditure each our citizens could club together and get a thorough cleaning up of all the streets and alleys, to the decided advantage of the whole town.

How It Foots Up.

LONE PINE, April, 1880.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Gentlemen: In regard to your statement about the school moneys given in your last issue when you say: "the State has, be it known, already given us our full allowance for this year," the same is correct so far as it applies to this civil or legal year, but cannot be applied to the fiscal year; and any accounts made up which gives only a certain part of a fiscal year and omitting the other part ought to be or may be incorrect. I do not mean to say, Messrs. Editors, that the omission on your part was intentional, for I am positive it was not; but said omission being an existing fact, the balance given as a deficiency cannot be accepted for the school year 1879-80. Hereunder please find the amounts of school moneys received this school year from State and county, library fund not included, viz.:

	State.	County
October, 1879	$ 372 83	605 86
March, 1880.....	2,016 74	1 109 81
	$2,389 57	1,715 69

Total $4 19 24
Balance needed.....$894 76

Very respectfully,

C. MEYSAN.

SPECULATION.—Last week some unknown, speculative genius raided the town for old whisky barrels and casks, and succeeded in purchasing them to the combined capacity of about 1,000 gallons. He was interestingly reticent as to what the same were to be used for, but the idea obtained that the waters of Big Owens Lake would go a great ways toward filling them—in fact, that the lake would be drawn upon to that extent. It being of unknown depth and about forty miles in circumference, we are convinced that the lake will not be so affected as to strand the steamers. Now, whether we are soon to have put forth a "Nature's Wondrous Cure of All Ills," or merely a new-fangled sheep-wash, deponent saith not. The lake water will cure a certain kind of disease; and would just everlastingly wash sheep. When fresh, it is splendid also for shampooing purposes; but that amount of it stowed away in San Francisco for any length of time would smell loader unto heaven than does Chinatown now.

A GOOD PLAN.—Bodieites are moving for a change of venue to the Bishop Creek Justice's Court, in certain cases where the defendant is charged with selling whisky to Indians. That sentence of 500 days in the county jail is what they admire. Our Sheriff objects: he is already trying to sell his man out for a year two, to save jailor fees and expenses of the prisoner's board.

PERSONAL.—Tom Boland, ex-Mayor of Swansea, passed through town today, bound for Darwin. He was accompanied by Mrs. Jos. Le Cyr and her mother.

Important to Attorneys.

Senate bill No. 118, introduced by Mr. Hittell, and which has been passed, approved and gone into effect, provides that all attorneys who have heretofore been admitted to practice in the Supreme Court may continue to practice in that and all other Courts of the State. No provision is made however, which will permit attorneys to practice in the Superior Court, even though they were entitled to do so in the County and District Courts, and makes it a contempt of Court for any attorney to attempt to do so until he has had an examination in open Court. Judges Denson and Clark say that the bill makes it necessary for them to examine each attorney who has not been admitted to practice in the Supreme Court, before he can be allowed to practice in the Superior Court, and that even then his examination and admission here will avail him nothing in the Superior Courts of other counties.—Sacramento Record-Union.

Now that we have every reason to believe that a season of great activity is about to be opened, not only in Lake but the many other rich surrounding districts in the main range of the Sierra Nevadas, would it not be well for those controlling the telegraph line running into Bodie to cast their eyes southward over the bountiful field with a view to extending their lines in this direction? Speaking more directly for this district, we can safely say that a vast amount of labor will be performed. In all probability two or more mills will be built, and six or eight more incorporations commence work, thereby increasing the population and the number of our business houses from which a large revenue could be derived in the onset. The line could be made continuous through Homer, Tioga, Prescott, and North Fork to Mammoth City; thence southward, passing through Laurel and other districts to the rich agricultural valleys, Round, Bishop Creek and Owens river, to Independence, the center of many new and rich mining fields, to Cerro Gordo; thence to Darwin, and near Lookout and Panamint, which are again coming to the front, on to a connection on the S. P. R. R. The line could be built cheaply; the poles could be put on the route at small cost, and we are satisfied that it could be made a paying investment from the start. Now that Mr. Pratt is out on a tour, would it not be to his interest to call over this way and take a look at the situation?—Mammoth City Herald.

"WE men of the Bourse," said a Paris stock broker to his friend, "are much calumniated. I have now been at the Bourse for more than ten years, and I never knew but two rascals who amounted to anything." "And who was the other?" asked the friend.

Let Him Speak or be Expelled.

Senator Kane's "word of honor" to the person who attempted to bribe him to vote for the Debris bill was not broken yesterday. This worthy representative of the Legislature persistently refused to divulge the name of the man who came to him with a roll of greenbacks and wanted to buy him. He still thinks his duty to that infamous wretch more "sacred" than his allegiance to the Senate or to the State. He still regards himself as bound, "like a priest in the confessional," not to tell who the criminal was, nor to aid in punishing the crime. Yesterday he added to his previous declarations that he would rather go to the State Prison for life than give the information that is demanded of him.

The more persistent and vehement his refusals grow, the more disgraceful is the whole occurrence. This ornament of the Senate chamber seems not to have the slightest appreciation of what is due to his office. He seems to look at crime and to reason about right and wrong in a way that is not only utterly incompatible with the position of a law-maker, but that is peculiar to the exclusively criminal classes. It is the professional cracksman who thinks it a crime to "peach" on a fellow-burglar.

The Committee of investigation has now reported to the Senate that Kane refuses to give the name of the person who attempted to bribe him, that he has made himself thereby guilty of contempt of the Senate and "amenable to prosecution for compounding a felony;" and they recommend that he be expelled, and also that he be punished in such other manner as may seem proper. To offer to bribe a member of the Legislature is expressly declared to be a felony by Section 35 of Article IV of the Constitution. All will agree that a Senator who refuses to divulge the name of one whom he knows has committed a felony is more dangerous to the State than one who has actually taken a bribe, for his refusal is a tacit declaration of intention to shield criminals and a literal defiance of the law. Indeed, it is so gross an instance of contempt, and so unblushing an exhibition of indifference to all the ordinary conceptions of decency, that there can be no difference of opinion among right-minded men as to the course that should be taken. The Senate cannot fail to expel Kane from the seat he has disgraced, and it will be stopping short of a vindication of its authority, and of the proper effort to bring a flagrant offense to light, if it does not commit him for contempt in addition, until he divulges the name of the person against whom his accusation of bribery is made, or at least until its authority expires. Not to expel him will lead to the inevitable conclusion that the Senate has not the courage to do it for fear of disclosures that he has it in his power to make. It will degrade the Senate not less than Kane has degraded himself. The Senator that votes against his expulsion cannot expect to be regarded otherwise than one whom Kane has in his power by what he knows of him.

As for Kane, the inference cannot be avoided that he dare not make the disclosure that is demanded of him; that he has been a participator during his brief career at Sacramento in doings that close his mouth. However obtuse morally, and however incapable he may be of a sense of right and wrong, it is hardly to be supposed otherwise that he would persist in the extraordinary course he has taken.—S. F. Chronicle, April 9.

A SINGUAR CASE.—Seehorn sued the Big Meadows and Bodie Toll Road Company for damages sustained from a blast fired off while plaintiff was on the road. The case was twice tried by a jury in the Superior Court—at a cost to the citizens of Bodie of about $16,000—and each time the jury disagreed. When the case was called, for the third time, in the early part of last week, it transpired that the plaintiff was missing. It seems that neither the plaintiff's nor defendant's counsel knew anything of a compromise having been effected, and the natural supposition was that plaintiff had been "bought off" by defendants. Gen. John R. Kittrell, of counsel for defendants, promptly washed his hands of the transaction and abandoned the case in open Court; but Hon. Pat. Reddy, counsel for plaintiff, insisted upon perpetuating the case, and proceeded to trial, and yesterday the jury, after being out half an hour, returned a verdict for plaintiff for damages in the sum of $10,000. During the trial defendants, as a bar to further proceedings, offered in evidence the receipt of plaintiff for the sum of $3,000, but Judge Briggs ruled out the document as inadmissible, to which defendants excepted, and upon which ruling they will probably appeal. The case has been the talk of the Winter, and the verdict is the sensation of the hour—the verdict of the public being, "Served them right—but will it stick?"—Bodie Standard, April 13th.

We will bet twenty-five cents that it will, provided we have three weeks time in which to raise the stakes. After two trials of the case, opposed by four or five of Bodie's ablest lawyers, most men would have given the job up when his client sold out and sneaked off, but Mr. Reddy wouldn't have it that way. Seehorn is reported to be at Bishop Creek, but we wouldn't advise him to visit his late attorney for a while yet.

A MINE which has recently been purchased in Denver, Colorado, for $65,000, was discovered by two children, aged nine and ten years. They were "playing mine" at the time, and had dug down four feet on the Little Chief, near Ruby Hill, drilling and blasting five feet more until a valuable body of ore was brought to light. Their father, who owned the claim, gave them $1,000 each, and now has sold his interest.

IT is probable that a sand lot will have to be built in Homer District. The miners passed a resolution that no Chinamen should live within a mile and a half of town. David Hitchell went in there with a Chinaman to start a restaurant. The miners told the cook to leave; David bade him stay, and the Chinaman obeyed his boss. The sequel is to come.—Bentonian.

A High School.

Our sister county of Inyo, on this side of the Sierras, is moving for the establishment and maintenance of a High School—something contemplating an advance upon the public school system, and if carried out, will afford our rising generation the advantages of an academical education without imposing upon parents the cost of sending our more advanced pupils to State or high-toned private transmontane institution of learning. The plan as proposed and advocated by THE INYO INDEPENDENT, invokes from Congress a donation of the grounds and buildings of the old military post of Camp Independence, which is most eligibly situated, and comprises within itself every requisite for the proposed school. The property consists of some eighty acres of well cultivated lands and six or eight commodious buildings and company quarters. It has been practically abandoned by the military since 1868, and is only now held by the Government through a well-salaried quartermaster agent, who, while not exerting himself in the care of the grounds and buildings, draws his pay with commendable regularity.

Congressman Pacheco has introduced a bill, which is now in the hands of the House Committee on Military Affairs, which will, if passed, give this property to the counties of Inyo and Mono, for joint usage for school purposes, under the management and control of a board of five trustees, which is to be appointed by the Supervisors of the respective counties. The bill will provide that the Supervisors, at their second regular meeting after the approval of the Act granting the property, shall appoint five tax payers to act as such trustees—three by Inyo and two by this county—who shall receive the deed and act as such trustees for three years after the first day of January after their appointment, or until their successors are appointed. The appointment of such trustees and the passage of a resolution by the Boards of Supervisors accepting the conditions of the grant, not to pervert the property for any other purpose than contemplated by the Act, etc., is made a condition precedent to the transfer by the Secretary of War.

Our citizens have had laid before them petitions praying Congress to pass an act granting the property for such purposes. The noble object in view commends it to the good will of the public, and we trust that the petition will be largely signed. It is not impossible that State aid may be granted, in the event of the success of the present bill in Congress, to establish a mining department in the new school.—Bodie Free Press.

THE differences between the V. & T. R. R. and Mechanics' Union, which have been of late the cause of much newspaper discussion and no little ill feeling, appear to have been satisfactorily settled yesterday. The settlement was brought about by a conference between the Executive Committee of the Union and Mr. Yerington, who had authority to act for the Board of Directors of the V. & T. R. R.

In an interview with a Virginia Chronicle reporter yesterday Mr. A. F. Mackay, President of the Union, said that matters had been adjusted in a way honorable to both parties. An agreement or contract was signed by Mr. Yerington and the Executive Committee on the part of the Union. We quote the following from the Chronicle as a part of Mr. Mackay's statement:

"The agreement provides that all engineers running into Storey county shall make immediate application for membership in the Union. Their initiation will not be insisted upon before the expiration of the constitutional limit, at which time a card from a Division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers at Carson (if one shall be formed by that time) will be accepted by the Union. If the Division is not organized at Carson by that time, the engineers are all to join the Storey County Mechanics' Union."—Carson Appeal.

THE gale which has prevailed for the greater part of the week has been more severe and of longer duration than any of its boisterous predecessors, and they have not been few, neither have they been insignificant. The heavy fall of snow which accompanied the gale has made even the strongest pedestrians keep close within doors. By what we glean from our exchanges it is evident that Mammoth has not had the Winter all to herself—has not been at all selfish in the matter of high winds and heavy snow storms—simply a little elevated and exclusive. In the Eastern as well as in the Western and Pacific States and Europe, old Boreas has been holding high carnival. It is to be hoped that when he gets over this spree he will give us a rest long enough to enable John Clark to bring the express matter from Bishop Creek. (We understand that he intends to start tomorrow morning.) At times on the Comstock the wind has attained a velocity of forty miles an hour by actual measurement, and it must have attained a greater degree at this place yesterday.—Mammoth Herald, April 3.

A LOT of lunatics, calling themselves the Greenback State Convention, met at Harrisburg, Pa., recently and indorsed Hendrick B. Wright for President. Wright has about as much chance to become President of the United States as a San Francisco journalist has to enter the Kingdom of Heaven. The gentleman is known out this way. He came here as Chairman of a Congressional Committee to investigate the depression of trade and labor. He investigated them at the Palace Hotel and at Yosemite, hobnobbed with Dennis Kearney and made silly speeches on the sand lot. He would make a beautiful President.—Mammoth Herald.

JUDGE R. B. SNELLING, of Independence, came up on Friday night. After receiving the congratulations of his Benton friends on Saturday the Judge left for Candelaria, where he proposes practicing law.—Bentonian, April 12.

THE New York Star publishes a sensational story to the effect that Tilden has been examined by a jury of prominent physicians. Their consultation resulted in an unanimous opinion to the effect that a strain of any unusual excitement would prove fatal to him beyond a doubt. Knowing why their judgment was particularly sought at this juncture, the physicians went so far as to affirm explicitly and positively that Mr. Tilden's brain is still clear and active, though left in a curious condition by the paralytic shock he has suffered, and would not bear the inevitable strain and stimulation following a Presidential nomination. As Tilden is thus shut out from the Presidency, he is determined to name the Democratic nominee, and the man he has selected is Henry B. Payne, of Ohio. The Star says he will quietly ask his friends to consolidate on Payne at Cincinnati. The whole story has a fishy flavor.—Bodie Standard.

A SHORT time ago Hess Yaney, one of the proprietors of the late Mammoth City Times, was taking a walk about town (the snow is thirty-five feet deep on the level), when he accidentally fell down a "shaft" in the snow. The drop was about seventy feet. He landed in front of a small cabin, and the proprietor seeing him, invited Mr. Yaney inside. "How are things on the lower levels?" asked the stranger on taking a seat. "First class. I was up on top a short time ago, but times were so dull and the snow so deep I thought I would remain here until Spring," replied the snowed in man. On the table were books on "Orange Culture," "Life in the Tropics," "The Heated Term," and a treatise on "Sunstrokes." As some one pulled up the rope ladder the two men are still in their Winter home enjoying each other's society and writing up their theory on the Snow Belt.—Bodie Free Press.

ONE of those road locomotives built in England for use on the deserts of Nevada, between Wadsworth and mining camps in the interior of the State, was taken through yesterday to its destination. It is a ponderous machine, weighing when equipped for travel, exclusive of fuel and water, twelve or thirteen tons. The drive-wheels are about eight feet high, with corrugated rims a foot wide, intended to prevent them from sinking in soft ground, or slipping on hard ground. The wagon is provided with a windlass and chains, to be used hauling loaded wagons up steep hills. Those who saw the machine are not sanguine that it will prove a success, or that it will supercede mule power for freighting purposes in this State on roads where wood and water are scarce.—Silver State

DELEGATE CAMPBELL, of Arizona, has preferred very serious charges against Judge Charles Silent, one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of that Territary. He charges that, in company with John C. Fremont, he is interested in the Peck Mining Company, which is in Silent's district; that since judgment has been been rendered against said property in Silent's Court, Fremont has made an offer to its San Francisco owners to bond it at an absurdly low figure, accompanied with an offer that he (Fremont) will settle the litigation. This same Judge is in receipt of three salaries, one from the counties of Yavapai and Mohave, obtained through the legislative influence of Tom Fitch.

GREAT excitement exists in Aurora, caused by the brutal murder of a little four-year-old child named Dolly Burner, who is represented as being one of the sweetest little darlings that ever lived, by a heartless, drunken, beast of a woman named Jennie Barker. The mother of the child left Aurora some time since, and was too poor to take her child with her; so she left it with this woman, who killed it. We are told that when sober she is a good, kind hearted woman, but when under the influence of whisky, to the use of which she is addicted, she is a perfect maniac. While in the latter state she murdered the poor little innocent.—Bodie News, April 9.

During the grand conclave of Knights Templar at Williamsport, Pennsylvania, in May next, poles 200 feet in hight will be erected on Market Square, from the tops of which will be stretched to the roofs of the eight corner buildings ropes wrapped with evergreens, the whole forming an immense canopy of evergreens, flags and banners.

THE other day P. G. met an old friend who was formerly a prosperous young lumberman up North, but "who had a sort of a tippling way," which resulted as it often does, though he has since reformed and is trying to do better.

"How are you?" said P. G.

"Pretty well, I thank you, but I've just been to a doctor to have him look at my throat."

"What's the matter?"

"Well, the doctor couldn't give me any encouragement. At least he couldn't find what I wanted him to find."

"What did you expect him to find?"

"I asked him to look down my throat for the saw-mill and farm that had gone down there."

"And did he see anything of it?"

"No; but he advised me if I ever got another mill to run it by water."

THE Sultan has ten servants whose special duty it is to unfold the carpets for him when he is going to pray; ten to take care of his pipes and cigarettes; two to dress his royal hair; and twenty to attend to his most noble clean shirts. There are a multitude of other attendants about the palace; indeed, it is stated that 800 families and about 4,000 persons live at his majesty's expense. He is an extravagant housekeeper; the annual expenditures of the palace are mentioned as nearly $14,000,000.

"WHAT is your occupation?" asked the Court, as the prisoner stood up. "I am a manufacturer," replied the three-card monte man. "And what do you make?" said the Court. "Wagers," calmly replied the prisoner. Sixty days.

IT IS AN ACCEPTED AUTHORITY ON ALL questions relating to the great mining industries of the country. It is the oldest publication of its class in America, thoroughly independent; being of the trade and not in it, occupies a just and impartial position, which enables it to advise and teach without fear or favor. It devotes much space to questions bearing upon economical management of mines, and from time to time illustrates the more important improvements in mining machinery and engineering methods. Special attention is given to reliable mining news from all parts of the country, which is gathered by an efficient corps of correspondents in every section, and from an extended exchange list. The metal and mine markets and gold, silver and miscellaneous stocks are reported and commented upon weekly by experienced financiers, who are unbiased by private interests, and upon these matters it is accepted as a reliable guide and unfailing instructor. Gives statistics of production of coal and iron, and of our great gold, silver and other mines. Its scientific notes are an epitome of the latest researches, its trade reports full and its editorials sagacious and comprehensive. It enjoys the widest circulation and greatest influence of any journal of its class in the world; its patrons and readers comprising the most select and intelligent men in every quarter.

Causes of Thunder and Lightning.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin discovered what lightning was, but it has never been fully explained what caused thunder. The general explanation of the report after lightning was supposed to be caused by the vacuum in closing the displaced space of the atmosphere. Col. A. W. Von Schmidt, a civil engineer of this city, has given us a brief outline of his views on the cause of thunder. His theory is new so far as we know, and appears to solve the question in a sensible manner. It is as follows:

The electricity, or lighting, in passing from one point to another, comes in contact with small particles of rain, either in suspension or descending. These particles of rain are turned to gas instantly, and, at the same time, the gas so generated is exploded, which causes some other particles of water to be in turn exploded, until all particles that come in contact of the lightning, or its influence, has been acted upon, which causes the loud report, or thunder.

If lightning can melt iron instantly it can also decompose water with the same rapidity, and fire the gas thus formed; and it is also well known that the sudden decomposition of water causes terrific explosions.

When in Acapulco, Mexico, October, 1877, the writer of this experienced a thunder storm, which to one not accustomed to such storms would be a very interesting study.

First there was a gathering of black and threatening clouds; then lightning was seen, and finally thunder was heard. As the storm approached it commenced raining. Flash after flash succeed one another, until it was as light as day. Then thunder claps one after the other, almost incessant. The effects were startling in sound, and the quick, sharp, tearing effects of the reports. The display was grand beyond description. The harder it rained the louder were the reports of thunder following the flashes of lightning, as if the artillery of the world were being fired off at the same time.

The streets were running full of water. As the storm passed the lightning became less demonstrative in effect, and the reports of the thunder became less and less, and after it ceased raining, what flashes of lightning did occur were almost without report. Therefore, I became satisfied that the decomposition of the drops of rain was the true cause of thunder. As when the clouds finally broke up in large masses, the lightning did occur between or in the clouds, produced but a very faint report, as I suppose, for the want of moisture, or rain drops to explode.

It was from these observations, principally, that I have come to the conclusion that lightning in its flight decomposes the many fine particles of water that it comes in contact with, changing the water into explosive gas and firing it at the same time, and is the cause of thunder, instead of the present vacuum theories."—S. F. Alta.

OFFICIAL letters of enthusastic mining superintendents are printed in the Eastern mining papers under big display heads. This detracts from their character as official reports and transforms them into flaming advertisements. The average mining superintendent, in writing reports for publication in the East, is given to embellishing dry facts with flowery puffery, and the Eastern mining paper tops off his production with sensation heads, making it look like an advertisement of the double-headed woman. A superintendent's letter should be a mere statement of facts, showing the condition of the mine, state of the workings and the progress made, and should be entirely free from puffery and superfluous remarks about the prospective value of the stock.—S. F. Stock Report.

The Bodie Railroad Extension.

The corps of engineers and surveyors who have been for the past two months actively engaged in the arduous work of breaking a pathway for the iron horse, between Mound House and Bodie, have at last completed their important labors, and we are now enabled to present our readers with the first complete and reliable report of the proposed line of the new road, as indicated by the elaborate survey just completed. We desire to state at the outset that this account, though not derived from official sources, will be found correct in every particular. The proposed "Bodie Extension" (as it has been termed) of the Virginia & Truckee Railroad involves the building of a road nearly twice as long as the company's main line, and if the project is carried through, as we believe it speedily will be, the branch will have the peculiar honor of far exceeding in length the parent road.

The starting point will be Mound House, a station midway between Carson and Virginia, eleven miles from either point. The line will run to Dayton, six miles, passing for a distance of two miles through Dana cañon, and will go directly through the town; thence three miles to Sutro, skirting that town on the east. From Sutro the road runs through the Carson Valley, a distance of seven miles, to the Divide between the valley and what is known as the Twenty-seven Mile Desert; thence nine miles to the Carson river. The river will be spanned by a bridge three hundred feet long, without allowing for necessary embankments and approaches, which will increase its actual length from fifty to one hundred feet more. The line then follows the Carson river on the south side, a distance of three miles, to Churchill cañon. At this point a turn is made and the route follows a southerly direction for ten miles. The country passed over so far is principally of a sandy, sagebrush character, with but few small cuts required; the largest will be a twelve foot cut, seven miles from Sutro.

The north edge of Mason Valley has now been reached. Here is a stage station at present, bearing the pleasant title of "Stinking Wells," so called from the sulphurous character of its water. Another switch off is here made in a direction due east. Six miles further on the Walker river is reached, and will be crossed by a bridge of 150 feet span. Three miles further, and the road arrives at the line of the Indian Reservation; there its direction is changed to a little east of south, and eighteen miles further the Walker river again comes in the way. At this point, which is about three miles from the head of the lake, another one hundred and fifty-foot bridge will be constructed. Five miles distant, the northeast corner of Walker lake is reached; thence the road will follow along the east side of the lake, a distance of twenty-five miles to its southeasterly extremity, where the road will terminate. Contrary to general impression, the road will run along the eastern shore, saving the necessity of steamboat connection. From its initial point, Mound House, to its terminus, the distance is 96 miles. From its ending at the southeast extremity of the lake, excellent roads lead to Bodie, Candelaria, Columbus and Belleville, each one of those important centers of mining industry being distant but some fifty miles. Grantsville is about thirty-five miles distant, and New Boston twenty miles. The road will naturally secure the entire Mason Valley trade. Mason Valley is about twenty-four miles long, and is now the principal source of hay supply to Bodie and the adjacent sections. Alfalfa is mainly raised. It is also likely that some trade will be secured from Smith Valley, though it is separated from direct connection by a range of mountains. The entire cost of this extensive enterprise will not be less than $2,000,000. From Mound House to Dayton the grade will be 116 feet to the mile, but for the rest of the distance the grades are light and the country passed over is mostly flat. One stretch of ten miles across the head of Mason Valley is nearly a dead level. Across the Twenty-seven Mile Desert, the road for four miles and a half will be absolutely level, not varying three inches to the mile either way. The finest land on the entire route is in Churchill cañon. All that is necessary is to utilize water from Walker river, and it will blossom like the rose. It is the common belief the land is up hill from the river, rendering it difficult of irrigation, but this, we have good reason to believe, is a mistake. The sagebrush in this remarkable cañon grows to a hight of twelve feet, and has more the appearance of trees than the usual stunted bushes which we are familiar with. This speaks well for the natural fertility of the soil. Fifteen miles east of Sutro, and one mile this side of the Carson river, Whiteman cañon is passed. Through this cañon a road can readily be built ten miles south, giving direct connection with the promising town of Como. The building of this extensive line of rail cannot but result in very marked and beneficial effect on Bodie, Carson and general business interests in Nevada. A large force of iron-workers, carpenters and laborers will necessarily be employed, and its building will do much toward relieving the present stagnation.—Carson Times.

IN Rochester, Ind., there is a fever of excitement over a spotted baby, the spots being of a bright red color, and extending from head to foot at regular intervals. Numerous bids have been received from showmen with a view of future profits in exhibiting the child.

Hints for Farmers.

Chopped onions are excellent for all kinds of fowls and quickly drive away all kinds of vermin.

The best herds of dairy cows in this country yield from six to eight hundred pounds of cheese per cow.

Cattle hoofs at the present time are worth $50 per ton. These hoofs are now made into horn buttons.

A farmer should look ahead—think in advance of his work—and have his plans well laid. The Winter is a good time for mental labor.

There are very few worms and insects for the poultry to pick up yet, and they should be fed meat three or four times a week with their other food.

The desire for large animals is not always judicious. With cows it is questionable if the largest are the best, when the cost of feeding is considered.

Horses have been known to go blind from standing in dark stables. The stables should be so lighted that the light will not fall directly on the horse's eyes. The windows should be at the rear of the stalls.

WHITELAW REID, in conversation, related some bits of experience upon this point of thirteen at dinner, not long ago, one of which is worth reporting. At the time of the Shepherd Ring scandals in Washington, Mr. Reid dined one day at a gentleman's house in that city. There were just thirteen persons at table, and the fact was commented upon. During the dinner Mr. Reid was served with a writ of arrest in one of the vexatious suits, by means of which certain persons at the capital sought to punish him for the Tribune's boldness of speech, and this untoward event appeared, according to the superstition, to mark Mr. Reid as the doomed thirteenth guest. The superstition being thus brought to mind, Mr. Reid made a list of the persons present, and although the dinner occurred many years ago, there is not one of the guests who is not in sounder health today than he was at the time when the thirteen dined together. One such fact as this is a complete, logical refutation of the teaching of the superstition.—N. Y. Post.

THE mining industry of America is still in its infancy. It is barely thirty years old, and deep mining—if, indeed, we can claim to have reached that yet—is not nearly as old as that. There is not in Colorado to-day, with all its wealth exposed, a shaft sunk to the depth of a thousand feet. But if improvements in mining continue as they have begun, there will practically be no limit to our means of developing our wondrous repositories of wealth. The miners, too, are beginning to understand the subject of mining as it has never yet been understood. What they learned in surface scratching five or six or ten years ago, they are unlearning now, to take valuable lessons in the serious work which the present importance of the mining industry calls for, and the present resources of mining men supply. For these reason, any statement to the effect that mining cannot be rendered permanently profitable, is diametrically opposed to the truth. Let this be borne in mind.—N. Y. News.

FAVORABLE news has at last come from Mexico in regard to the building of a road northward to the United States. President Diaz has confirmed the grant of a charter for the Mexican Central railway Company of Boston. He did this in accordance with the recommendations of the Mexican Minister to the United States. Over $5,000,000 have been subscribed to build the line, which is 200 miles in length and runs northward from the City of Mexico.

AN old Arkansan thus criticised a recent political speech: "The man got right up, and in the pleasantest voice, began his talk. Putty soon he said something I wanted to hear again, and before I knew it he said something else that eclipsed what he had said before. He kept on talking and he kept saying something. There are mighty few men that can talk two hours and say something all along."

TREELESS Iowa is being transformed into a forest covered country by a law which remits certain taxes for five years on every acre of fruit, and ten years on every acre of forest trees planted and kept alive. Over 55,000 acres of fruit and forest trees have been planted and $200,000 have been remitted in taxes.

THE Governor has approved the bills providing for the completion of the State Prison at Folsom, prohibiting the issuance of licenses to aliens ineligible to become citizens, and providing for a normal school at San José.

A VERY large body of cinnabar has been discovered in the mountains several hundred miles from Salt Lake. The ledge is said to be fifty feet thick, and can be traced nearly two miles in the ground.

THE Democratic State Convention for electing delegates to Cincinnati, will be held on the 19th of May. The basis of representation is one delegate for every 200 votes cast for Irwin in 1875.

OWING to the recently discovered defalcations of the ex-Treasurer of Merced county, eight or ten district schools are obliged to close for want of funds.

SATURDAY, APRIL 24.....1880

TO OUR FRIENDS.

The very many patrons of this office who will receive during the coming week statements of account are respectfully informed that we expect from each prompt attention and payment.

THE idea is fallacious that newspapers are printed merely for the fun of the thing. The glory of it is too thin to furnish necessary sustenance. A great many good and responsible men seem to have concluded, if they have thought about it at all, that a deferred payment to a newspaper is just as good as a prompt one; that, in fact, their individual bill is so small as to be of no particular consequence anyhow. When the principal business support of a newspaper is made of small amounts, the payment of such several sums is of vastly more importance to the publisher than inconvenience to the individual debtor. The obligation is all the same and the duty to pay just as great as if each sum covered the cost of a farm or a mine. The newspaper supports both, and all other interests as well. Hence its little demands should be the very last ones to neglect, or its services should be cheerfully paid for in advance.

KOHLER & CHASE, music dealers in San Francisco, advertise, among other things, that theirs is "the cheapest house in San Francisco." "Mason & Hamlin organs for $50, for $75," and so on upwards. A proposition to purchase one at or near the first named figure for the Sunday school in this place, was responded to thus: "Have no new organs for that price; but we have a second hand melodeon which we think will answer your purpose nicely." So it's plain those fellows know just what suits country folk, also, that they sabe how to advertise so as to get a chance to "rope in" such people. They might have told us something about their second-hand dulcimers. This may be one of the firms that did business and their customers at the same time in Cheapside, London, during the plague of 1478. Anyway, the money has been sent East for a Beatty organ, which firm and instrument can be relied upon.

THE New York Mining Journal of April 10 says: During the past week the lead market has been quite dull. The fluctuations in prices have been slight, and the volume of trade comparatively light. While consumers are steadily reducing their stocks they have had but little occasion to replenish by purchase in the open market, and with no speculative demand, the movement has been confined to the wants of small buyers. The business of the week comprised about 400 or 500 tons. Common domestic at 5.65 and 5.75 cents, and an equal quantity of corroding at about 6 cents. The market is firm at 6.75 cents, at which price the bulk of stock is held, and there is a moderate demand for jobbing parcels. Stock can be laid down here at about 5.75 cents, and some sales of Spanish have transpired at a cost and freight price, which is about equal to the above quotations.

ON the evening of the 21st instant a disastrous railroad accident occurred on the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, which caused the death of one man, G. H. Hayward, the road master, and the severe injuring of five others—all employés of the company. The accident was caused by a large rock which had fallen across the track, and, the engine striking it, went over the bank, fifty feet, into the river, drawing after it nineteen dump cars. This is the first accident, we believe, worthy of note that has happened on this road, and this one seems to have been inevitable.

MONO, it appears, is to have that additional Superior Judge, but Bodieites are still unhappy—he has to reside and hold Court at Bridgeport, all the same as Judge Briggs. The hash-houses and gin-mills of the latter locality are correspondingly elated; the place will immediately import more whisky and alfalfa seed. And Gov. Perkins, if he does justice to himself and the community, will appoint some one outside of the Bodie lawyers to fill the position. Judge Theron Reed is the coming man.

THE new gambling law for Arizona, which went into effect last Monday, requires each house wherein gambling is carried on to pay a quarterly license of $500. The money is to be paid into the County Treasury—one-half for general county purposes, and the rest for the County School Fund.

SECTION 3861.

In a communication elsewhere in this issue, Supervisor Meysan adduces some statute and new Constitution law to prove that the proceeds of poll taxes collected during the remainder of the present fiscal year must continue to go direct to the County School Fund as provided in Section 3861 of the Political Code, instead of into the State General School Fund. This section, until recently amended, read thus:

"The proceeds of the poll tax must be paid into the School Fund of the county."

The Legislature, which has just adjourned, amended this section, retaining its number (3861), so that it now reads:

"The proceeds of the poll tax must be paid to the County Treasurer, as provided by law, for the exclusive use of the State General School Fund, and shall by such Teasurer be paid to the State as other moneys belonging to the State."

This is certainly explicit enough, of itself, to warrant the Auditor and Treasurer in crediting all such proceeds to the State School Fund as directed, beginning at once, since the amended law took effect from date of approval; and such is their intention unless otherwise directed by competent authority.

Mr. Meysan cites law to show that to thus change an established course prior to July 1, the beginning of another fiscal year, and the time fixed in the Constitution during which certain laws should remain in full force and effect, would be retroactive, therefore contrary to a portion of that instrument and of the Code which he quotes, and as having a direct bearing on the question at issue. His position seems to be well taken; nevertheless, it would appear that this Legislature did not consider this amended section or any other part of the new revenue law as retroactive in fact; at all events, the State Board of Equalization has sent copies of the amended law to county officers for their guidance, and without other instructions or mention of conditions of any kind except this conclusive statement on the title page, to wit: "—embracing all laws relating to the revenue in force on the — day of March, 1880." In the face of all this, and in default of subsequent legislation deferring the time for Section 3861 to take effect, it is evident the proceeds of poll taxes must henceforth go direct to the State General School Fund. But it remains to be seen whether the amount will be returned in time to be of any benefit this school year, or otherwise; it is possible that it will, however. A bill numbered 580, just approved by the Governor, seems, to judge from its title, to promise some relief, and the following, which we copy from the Sacramento Advertiser and School Organ, probably give rise to that bill, and at anyrate, is pertinent to the matter in hand:

Owing to the provisions of the Constitution, requiring all poll taxes to be paid into the State School Fund, the county apportionments will be short more than a hundred thousand dollars, and in order to meet this exigency, a bill has been introduced upon the recommendation of Superintendent Campbell, allowing the County Superintendents to make requisition upon the Auditor for warrants against the August apportionment; and further, that should small outlying schools be cut short of six months terms on such account they will not be barred from future apportionments.

From that it would appear that those Sacramento authorities were not at all troubled about the retroactiveness of the immediate diversion of poll tax proceeds direct to the State Fund, but on the contrary, accept it as a direct constitutional requirement, though for the time being, as quite injurious in effect. The following circular is of interest in this connection, though not directly applicable to the point at issue:

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION,
SACRAMENTO, April 3, 1880.

Dear Sir:—Assembly Bill 576, introduced by Dr. May, proposes to raise for the State School Fund, for the 32d fiscal year, the sum of $1,000,000 only. This is a very much smaller sum than has been raised for many years past, as will be seen by the following table.

The number of children, by the census next June, will be about 228,000—estimated on the percentage of last year's increase.

$1,000,000 will give but $4.385 per child. The lowest per capita in the last six years, as shown by the following table, is $5.774, and even that for a census of 228,000 would require an appropriation of $1,306,472.

The highest per capita, as shown below, was $6.878, which, for 228,000 children, would require $1,568,184.

The average per census child for the last six years is $6.345. This is certainly as small as the per capita should be, and, on the basis of 228,000 children, would require that the sum to be raised be $1,446,560.

I would, therefore, recommend that the Bill be amended to read $1,400,000, instead of $1,000,000, as it now reads.

Fiscal Year.	Census Children.	Apportioned by Legislature.	Average per Census Child.
27th....	171,563	1,130,000	6.586
28th....	184,787	1,201,000	6.499
29th....	200,000	1,300,000	6.497
30th....	205.475	1,200,000	5.840
31st....	216,402	1,250,000	5.774

Average per capita, $6.345.

Respectfully submitted,
FRED. M. CAMPBELL,
Supt. of Public Instruction.

We do not know what action was taken in regard to this suggested amendment; but whether adopted or otherwise, this fact is plain, namely: that as a large portion of funds hitherto used to make up the county's quota of the school fund, is hereafter to be absorbed into the State fund; and as there is not at the best to be a corresponding increase in the per capita to be returned us by the State—the county tax for this fund will of necessity have to be proportionately increased. The title of Bill 580 is highly suggestive; it reads: "To protect school districts from injury by operation of new Constitution." What a blessing that grand conception, the new Constitution, is proving itself to be!

THE Giant Powder Works, in the district of Berkeley, across the bay, exploded on the afternoon of the 16th instant, killing twelve white men and twelve or fifteen Chinamen. This is the third explosion the company has sustained, all being attended with loss of life. The explosion occurred in the packing-room, and all at work there were killed. There were about 6,000 pounds in the room. All the victims were blown to atoms. There were six houses inside the works, all of which were blown to shivers, but the workmen in them escaped with the exception of one man in the magazine, no trace of whom was found. The cause of the explosion is supposed to have been carelessness. The workmen are hired by the piece, and directed to use wooden mallets in picking cartridges, but they found they could work faster and make more money by using iron hammers—a risky business around giant powder. It is supposed that some man hit once too many, and his cartridge went off, igniting the powder before him, which communicated with adjacent packages, with the terrible result noted.

THIS is a bad year for the sad-lotters. Gannon was first gathered in, then poor Dinis, and according to a late dispatch from San Francisco they are after King Sand-lotter himself—Kalloch—as the following would indicate. The dispatch says: "The Judiciary Committee of the Board of Supervisors, to whom was referred the task of learning whether Mayor Kalloch did or did not use incendiary language in his recent public speeches, has been at work on the matter ever since. The principal question now under consideration seems to be, so far as ascertained, whether or not Supervisors have power to impeach the Mayor." It is to be hoped that the Supervisors can establish the right to impeach him—if for no other reason than to be in company with and comfort his two former "pards"—Kearney and Gannon.

THE latest English advices speak of the excitement over the gold discoveries in Southern India as unabated. Some of the nugget stories remind one of the earlier days of this State's mining craze. In the district of Nevala, for instance, we read of pieces of gold as large as a man's hand being found in the Pand river, and on the slope of the Needle Rock range nuggetts as big as two hands could compass have been found. On the Pand river, below the Perishota crossing, layers of gold an inch thick have been brought to light.

THE Chicago Tribune receives $35,000 a column for one year; the New York Herald and Sun each receives $39,723 a year for their cheapest column, and the price for preferred position is three times that; the New York Tribune receives for its lowest column $37,794, and for its highest $45,948, and these papers are never at a loss for an advertisement to fill their columns. Their patronage comes not from any desire to assist their respective papers, but from business men who find it profitable to advertise.

THE Secretary of the Treasury has decided to resume coinage at the Mint at Carson on May 1, sufficient bullion having been accumulated to justify commencing operations. P. S. The Mint is now to be removed to the Mississippi Valley, according to the latest advices.

FROM information received at Colton it is learned that the mail driver from Mohave City down the Colorado river was killed by Chimehuava Indians a few days ago. The report says that a general outbreak among these Indians and those further south is feared in that section.

A TERRIFIC sand storm prevailed on the Colorado desert on the night of the 18th instant. The west bound train was ditched by a sand drift near Fortuna Station. Several cars were wrecked and the locomotive turned over.

A VISALIA dispatch of the 18th instant says a land slide occurred at Mineral King, crushing in a boarding house at the Empire mine. One report says fifteen men are inside. Four are known to be killed.

THE mysterious and sudden disappearance of C. W. Severance, manager of the Throckmorton ranch, at Saucelito, some two weeks ago, has created intense excitement at that place and considerable comment throughout the State. At first it was thought, by some, that financial embarrassments caused his sudden departure, but those who knew Mr. Severance as a boy and man never gave this suspicion a moment's consideration. Detectives were immediately put upon the track to ferret out the matter. The utmost secrecy was preserved by the detectives, and the general public became more interested in the affair. But after a thorough investigation by officers Lees and Avan the mystery has been unveiled. His body was found buried in a woodshed in the rear of the farm-house, four feet below the surface. A rope was found around his neck, with which he had evidently been dragged to his grave. A deep cut and two bullet wounds were found in the back of the head, one of which penetrated the left eye. A bullet wound was found just above the left nipple, and a jagged bullet wound perforating each wrist, showed the brutally barbarous way in which he met his death. On the body of the murdered man was found $101 50. Supicion at once fell on a Chinaman named Ah Lung, who has been employed as a cook on the Throckmorton ranch, and he was promptly arrested and lodged in the San Rafael jail. Last Sunday the Sheriff, on going to Ah Lung's cell, found him hanging stiff in death, he having committed suicide. The means devised to shut off his Celestial wind were accomplished by tearing his shirt into strips and making a rope of them. Thus ends one of the most brutal murders that has ever been committed on the coast. Plunder was the object for the commission of the horrible deed, as the detectives found buried under the floor of a wash-house that Ah Lung had been in the habit of visiting $1,225 in gold and silver coin, a revolver and watch—all the property of Severance.

THE Democratic members of the Senate Committee on Rules and of the Senate Select Committee on Counting the Electoral Vote held a private meeting in Washington on the 19th inst. and substantially decided to recommend Congress to adopt a new joint rule providing that in case only on certificate of the electoral vote of a State it shall not be rejected except by the affirmative vote of the two Houses, and in case of dual returns, neither shall be counted, unless the two Houses agree that one of them is the true and valid returns. The proposition is substantially the same as offered by Senator Morton in the Forty-fourth Congress and adopted by the Senate, which was in favor of the bill, which, however, failed to receive final action in that body in consequence of Thurman having entered a motion to reconsider its passage. The former twenty-second joint rule required every electoral vote to be rejected to which any objection was sustained by either House.

AT Decatur, Ill., a few days ago, while Gen. Grant was standing on the platform of the sleeper at that place to shake hands, a man named Kelly held on so tightly that the General threatened to kick him in the face if he didn't let go. Kelly loosened his hold, and Grant could with difficulty be persuaded to grasp other hands. This is the first time that Grant has been known to "squeal." That fellow Kelly must have a grip like a vise.

PROSPECTORS have arrived from the Providence mountains, eighty miles east of Colton, who report extraordinary rich silver leads, the ore assaying from $640 to $5,000 per ton. Considerable excitement prevails at Ivanpah, which is situated about sixty miles south of the new discoveries. The new district has been named Trojan. This district is fifteen miles south of what was known in 1863 as Macedonia District.

A PANAMA special, giving particulars of the South American war, says that Callao has been blockaded by six steamers of the Chilian navy. A great panic has arizen there and at Lima. The inhabitants are fleeing from these cities. The Peruvians have been completely defeated at Los Angeles, near Moquiqu. Admiral Montero is trying to escape from Tanqua.

THE steamer City of Peking arrived at San Francisco on the 19th instant from Hongkong and Yokohama, flying a yellow flag, and was at once ordered to quarantine. A case of small-pox occurred on the passage. The purser's bag was landed and the mails were put ashore after a thorough fumigation.

GOLD and silver mines have recently been discovered at Ashland, Wisconsin, and are being worked by Hugh McDougall and others, of Chicago, as secretly as possible. The mines are said to be panning out beyond all expectations. There is great excitement over the specimens forwarded to Chicago.

Bogus dollars are in circulation in various parts of the State. The coin has a neat appearance and produces a ring similar to that of the new American dollar. The only difference in the two is in the weight, the counterfeit dollar being thirty cents less than the other.

WE find the following in the last day's proceedings of the Legislature: The President of the Senate stated that another dispatch had been received from Bodie, and the Secretary read the same. The dispatch stated that the Senate amendments to the additional Judge bill destroyed its value. It wished the Judiciary Committee to withdrew its amendments and allow the Assembly bill to pass. Mr. Nye wished to have the Secretary of the Senate instructed to telegraph the people in Bodie that the Senate could not be held responsible for the requirements of the Constitution, but the President thought the motion would hardly be in order. In the Assembly in the evening, Mr. Wasson was moved to introduce a resolution declaring that, "Whereas the counties of Inyo and Mono belong, geographically and geologically, to the State of Nevada; and whereas, California has failed to enable those counties to organize municipal governments, therefore the Senate and Assembly consent to the withdrawal of those counties from the State, and consent to their living apart from it by themselves, or to their marriage with Nevada, as they may select.

THE County Government Bill is now in the hands of the Governor, and where we hope it may ever remain. During the closing hours it was so amended its own father wouldn't know it, and for that reason it is useless to attempt to give even a synopsis of its provisions till we obtain a copy of the amended bill; but here is one settled fact which, as things now appear, will pretty effectually flatten out this county in the matter of its finances. Hereafter the highest tax rate allowed for all purposes in counties of this class (the Ninth) is but $1 80 on the $100 of taxable property. Now, as $3 on the $100 has proved barely sufficient to keep us from drifting astern, won't the drifting in that direction be notably rapid with but little over half as much to stay us?

THE storm of last week threatens to play sad havoc with things on the other side of the mountains, especially in the vicinity of Sacramento. It is said to be one of the severest storms known for many years. In fact, the rainfall throughout the State has been tremendous. Along the Sacramento river the levees are reported to be breaking. The denizens of that neighborhood think these are "April showers" with a vengeance. Up in the mountains immense snow slides have taken place, and great damage has been done the railroad by the washing away of the track in many places.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, APRIL 24 1880

DIED.—John Schulte, one of Inyo's oldest residents, died at his residence in Lone Pine last Tuesday, in the 51st year of his age. The deceased has for many years been identified with the mining and butchering business of Cerro Gordo and Lone Pine; he was always an industrious worker, and well respected by all who knew him. He has been for several years so afflicted with rheumatism as to unfit him for hard work. The immediate cause of his death was pneumonia, the effects of a cold. He leaves a wife, but, we believe, no children. He was a member of a Detroit, Michigan, Lodge of I. O. O. F. His funeral was very largely attended at the Lone Pine cemetery on Wednesday last.

No Go.—Attention is invited to the italic addition to our table of rates, agents, etc., at the head of the first column of the first page, which sets forth that all legal and other advertising requiring it, must be paid for before proof of publication is made. Any further deviation from this rule is positively "no go." In every case the publication costs must be settled in full before the courts, land office, mining companies or what not, can have any legal knowledge that the same has been performed. Long experience has so emphasized the necessity of this rule that we have no apology to offer any one for making it.

WEATHER. — Here, as elsewhere throughout the State, the Spring, so far, has been remarkably cold and wet, more rain and snow having fallen during this month than in any preceding April within our recollection. There will be no scarcity of water for irrigating purposes this Summer; consequently we may safely anticipate bounteous crops, save in the fruit line, the earliest of which is likely to come to grief from the prevailing cold. Up to the present, however, it does not seem that much damage has occurred to fruit from the cold.

THE RACES.—The annual speeding troubles begin at the Independence track next Thursday. Quite a number of promising horses are in training, and the contests bid fair to be close and exciting, even though the times are such that there is no prospect of any vast amount of "yaller money" changing hands. Bishop Creek and several other valley localities will be well represented. Among sporting men Independence Jockey Clab has the reputation of conducting such contests honestly and impartially.

PERSONAL.—H. D. Bequette, Esq., who has "taken in" Owens Valley at various times since 1860, and was for several terms past County Clerk of Kern, is in town to-day, looking around among his numerous friends. Mr. B. is a lawyer and miner of very wide observation; but of all the mineral countries he has examined he expresses himself as having the most confidence in the immense wealth of the Inyo range from Cerro Gordo to Montgomery, which is unsurpassed by any district in Arizona or elsewhere.

TO HAVE AN ORGAN.—Through the exertions of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Willis a sufficient sum has been raised by subscription to purchase a low-priced organ for use in the Independence Sunday school and similar purposes, where such an instrument is of very great benefit. The instrument has already been ordered from the East, but cannot reach here under six weeks' or two months' time from this date. The freight money is yet to be raised.

FROM RENO.—At the solicitation of Postmaster Hardy, of this Postoffice, the order has been issued to discharge at Reno all mail matter from the East designed for this region. By this change the mails from the East will hereafter reach us some thirty-six hours earlier than if it had first, as heretofore, gone on via San Francisco. From the north, too, the mails come in seven times a week, while from the south it is but six times.

ACROSS THE INYOS.—Uncle Peter Taylor is in town, from his gold plant across the Inyo summit. Owing to the snow and extreme cold his steam arastras have not been in operation for some weeks. His force has been engaged in opening some newly discovered gold ledges, one of which, in particular, is reported as large, rich and very promising. The ore certainly looks to be all that is claimed for it.

FOR SALE.—The Centennial brewery, at Lone Pine, is this week advertised for sale. All the brewing arrangements were purchased and put in place by L. Munzinger, one of the bosses of the business in this county, and are complete in all respects. As a purchaser need not buy the buildings unless he wants, there is in this a show for getting plenty to start on in some new mountain mining camp.

PRESENTED.—Representative Pacheco has presented the petitions from citizens of this and Mono counties asking the donation of Camp Independence for high school purposes. These were referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, which will probably soon make a favorable report on the subject matter accompanied with an amended bill, in accordance with prayer of petition.

IF.—If Mammoth, Bodie and Cerro Gordo have enjoyed a proportionate taste of our present snow and cold, it is safe to predict a failure of their orange and lemon crops; even the beds of early strawberries will likely be injured.

F. & A. M.—A stated meeting of the Masonic Lodge will be held at the hall to-night.

What the Constitution Requires.

LONE PINE, April 20, 1880.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In reading Section 3861, Political Code, as amended by the last Legislature, I differ in toto with your opinion published in your last issue in regard to the same.

Our Legislature never intended to deprive any county in this State of the benefit of the poll taxes to be received this fiscal year, such having already been disposed of according to law. My opinion is that no county will be so deprived. Please find hereunder the reasons to sustain my interpretation of the law.

Section 12 of Article XIII of the new Constitution provides for the levy of poll taxes, to be paid into the State school fund, but which is inconsistent with said section 3861 of the law in existence at the time of the adoption of the new Constitution. And, according to section 1, Article XXII of said new Constitution, it is provided that all laws which are inconsistent with such provisions of this Constitution as require legislation to enforce them shall remain in full force until the first day of July, unless sooner altered or repealed by the Legislature.

Said section 3861 has been amended, but the Legislature has not declared that the amendment is retroactive, and said section being a part of the Political Code, the retroactive part is barred by section 3 of said Code, which reads as follows:

Sec. 3. No part of it is retroactive unless expressly so declared.

The poll taxes were levied, in conformity with the State laws, for the fiscal year 1879-80; the probable product of the same was, according to law, set off to the county school fund, and the poll taxes collected or to be collected from July 1, 1879, to June 30, 1880, pertain by rights to the school funds of the several counties. And if any part of it is diverted from the counties to the State it would be in conflict with section 2 of Article XXII of the new Constitution, which provides that: "All recognizances, obligations, taxes, due or owing to this State or any subdivision or municipality thereof, shall continue and remain unaffected by the adoption of this Constitution"—therefore, the State is by its own will under recognizances and obligations, for it has commanded the Board of Supervisors of each county to apply the amount of the poll taxes to be received during the fiscal year 1879-80, to the school fund, so that this amount added to that from other sources, shall produce a certain sum for every school district.

Very respectfully,

C. MEYSAN.

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.—A letter from J. P. M. Perham was received last week announcing the death, at Oakland, of John Lentell, who will be well remembered by most of our citizens and by all of the remaining Owens Valley pioneers. He died on the 10th instant, of ulceration of the lungs, after great suffering. Mr. Lentell was engaged in mining operations and merchandising in the early towns across the river, and pursued the same business at this place up to 1871 or '2, serving one term as County Treasurer. He was a man of many noble qualities, whose death will be sincerely lamented by his numerous old friends of this county.

EXAMINING THEM.—Judge Hannah is to day subjecting S. P. Moffat, Geo. M. Gill and John W. P. Laird to quite a rigid examination as to their qualifications to practice law in his Court, all as required by a new law.

A DANCE.—The Independence Jockey Club, through its authorized officers, is perfecting arrangements for a fine ball and supper on the evening of the 30th instant.

DENIS KEARNEY now wears the handsomely striped uniform of the House of Correction with his hair cut to regulation pattern; but this last job was not done by the prison barber, Denis having saved him that trouble by having it, some days previously, cut to his own order, by which it came to be considerably shorter than strict prison etiquette demanded. We do not doubt but the "immortal Dinis" is secretly glad of this chance for retirement, as it lets him, martyr-like, clear down from the bad eminence he had attained, but which such a dung-hill as he could not possibly have held much longer even he had been let alone. The Chronicle figures up some $60,000 he has salted down through his three years agitating and black-mailing.

A DISASTROUS hurricane, causing immense damage to property and frightful loss of life, visited the town of Marshfield, Missouri, on the night of the 18th instant. At least fifty persons are known to have been killed outright, and a great number are missing. The track of the storm is said to present a terrible spectable. Trees three feet through were entirely torn out of the ground, and telegraph poles twisted off. The town of Marshfield is completely demolished. The suffering of the wounded is described as heart-rending, and doctors and nurses are hurrying to the scene to afford the unfortunates relief.

THE Bodie Standard is now under the immediate management of its owner, Mr. T. S. Harris, who has been below for several months on account of impaired health.

THE Bodie Chronicle has stepped down from daily publication to a weekly again. Now let the proprietors make a good weekly of it and it may pay.

ACCORDING to New York authority, the business of the present, or rather the quarter corresponding to that of last year, exhibits a very gratifying increase and progress. Returns of exchanges from all the principal cities, with the exception of San Francisco and Syracuse, are encouraging. The gains are forty per cent. over those of the corresponding quarter of last year, notwithstanding the decrease in San Francisco. The aggregate gain is fifty-three per cent. And it is stated that no part of this is due to the activity of speculation. New York for the month, as compared with the corresponding month of last year, shows a gain of over eighty-four per cent., which is higher than that of any other city. This city falls off ten per cent. from the exchanges of a year ago. This statement, although not necessarily a certain indication of the business of the country, as many circumstances may vary the result, nevertheless is a tolerable indication, showing that the country has probably seen the worst of the depression for some years. The flattening out of the sand lot and the greasing of the wheels of the new Constitution, the distorted progeny of the Communists, may and probably will cause a revival in this city, unless the legislation of the semi-sand-lot Legislature continue to block business. Whatever several of the sand-lot members could do to kill the business of the city and State they have done or are still doing. But it is hoped that their day is about passed, so may their influence be.—S. F. Atta..

IT is now almost an assured fact that the Virginia and Truckee Railroad Company will build a branch road commencing at the Mound House and extending in almost a direct line to the southeastern extremity of Walker Lake. It is understood that it will not end at that point but go on through to Candelaria, fifty miles further. It is an enterprise of great moment, and definite news of its construction will be received with pleasure by the people of Mono, Esmeralda and Inyo counties, as well as the hundreds of working men who will be employed in grading and laying the track. It is an enterprise that will open up an immense mineral territory, and will assist in developing many a locality that has never been explored, as well as putting new life into places that are now lying dead, and only waiting the hands of enterprise and capital to develop them. The plan is to build a wagon road from Walker Lake to this place, a distance of about thirty miles. Owing to the almost insurmountable difficulties in constructing a railroad from the lake here, it is not likely anything more than a wagon road will be undertaken. There will be an immense amount of freight hauled to this section and the teaming business will be proportionately large. The route has been surveyed but it is said the engineers will go over the ground again and make a few alterations, but in the main it will remain the same as now laid out.—Bodie Free Press.

INDIANA furnishes the most horrible case on record. Gordon Truesdale, a handsome South Bender, had a desire to procure a collection of human skulls, being an amateur phrenologist. He dug down into the grave of Sarah Platts, cut the flesh around the neck, and, placing his foot on the breast of the corpse, wrenched the head off by main force. He disjointed and threw away the lower jaw. He poisoned his nose with some of the matter from the corpse, and his head swelled up so that incisions had to be made in his nose and forehead to prevent the skin from bursting. His eyes actually decayed and became sightless, and the odor was so horrible that attendants were at first obliged to flee from the house, and afterwards handle him with gloves. He confessed his crime and died in awful agony. As soon as the breath left the body it was placed in the coffin, but it swelled so as to burst off the lid, and the remains were hurried to the cemetery in the night and buried.

MR. HIRSHFELD, who was in San Francisco last week, had an interview with Mr. D. B. James, and at his suggestion he is now engaged in preparing the plans, specifications and estimates of his road from Bakersfield to Sumner. He thinks it can be built for five thousand dollars. If built, he is willing to take charge of it, run it and pay a net profit to the investors of 2 per cent per month on the investment. His invention is exciting a growing interest in San Francisco, and its value is admitted by all practical engineers, some of whom are constantly engaged in studying it up, and have suggested improvements in the engine that may be adopted in the next one constructed.—Kern Co. Californian.

WE are sorry to learn that Hon. C. C. Goodwin has determined to sever his connection with the Virginia Enterprise. It is his purpose, we understand, to abandon journalism for the business of mining. Well, who can blame him? There is less worry and a vast deal more money in the latter, when it pays. The good wishes of the people of Nevada will go with the Judge in his new calling.—Eureka Sentinel.

THE Baltimore Sun says: A letter received lately from a prominent Pacific Coast politician, now in New York, and who is on confidential terms with ex-Gov. Seymour, says he will most positively not be a candidate for President under any circumstances, and that he will use whatever influence he can command in behalf of Mr. Justice Field.

THE Walla Walla Statesman says there are more stock buyers in that city and vicinity than ever known before. They appear to be pouring in from all points with the intention of purchasing horses, cattle and sheep. Of the latter many thousands are desired; but as wool will most certainly command a very high figure this year, holders are not over-anxious to sell.

MILTON S. LATHAM has definitely accepted the position tendered him by the New Mining Stock Board of Brokers in New York, and left San Francisco last Monday for his new field.

The State Mining Bureau.

Assembly bill No 415, better known as Wasson's Mining Bill, which provides for the establishment and maintenance of a State Mining Bureau in San Francisco, has passed both Houses and gone to the Governor for signature. We have before this given the provisions of the bill in full.

It provides for a State Mineralogist, who is to collect and preserve, in San Francisco, geological and mineralogical substances, mineral waters, etc., properly identified and labeled, not only from this State but from others. The Mineralogist is to hold office four years and receive $3,000 per year and his traveling expenses. When the funds in the Mining Bureau are sufficient, he is to provide and maintain a library of works on mineralogy, geology and mining, models and drawings of mining and milling machinery, etc.; to correspond with established schools of mining and metallurgy, and obtain and preserve for public inspection such information in respect to mining and milling machinery as will be practically useful to the people of the State. He is to visit the different districts of the State from time to time and at the close of each year make a report to the Governor. He may appoint assistants, fit up rooms, etc., all to be paid out of the Mining Bureau Fund, which fund is to be derived from the proceeds of taxes on mining corporations, milling companies, ditch companies, etc.

We should have been better pleased to see the collection of information and statistics come first, and that of geological and mineralogical specimens come last. The miners want information more concerning mining and milling than they do concerning minerals. Under the provisions of the Act, however, it seems as if the mineral collection will be made first, although its greater or less prominence will no doubt depend greatly on the person who is appointed by the Governor to take the position of State Mineralogist.

As we have before remarked, a bureau of information concerning mining matters is sadly needed here, and this is the first step which has been taken by the State in that direction, for which Mr. Wasson deserves the thanks of the entire community. We still hope, however, that the collection of minerals will not be carried on to the exclusion of other work which will be of more value to the practical miner. The State has now large collections of geological and mineralogical specimens at the University which are ready for reference.

The Bureau can be made of a great deal of benefit to the mining community, if carried out by competent men having a knowledge of mining matters.—Scientific Press.

LAST evening, the kitchen of the Bon Ton lodging house was turned into a Shakespearean temple. A small stage was constructed and seats provided for those youngsters who were so fortunate as to be present. The low price of a bit was charged for admission. There was a critical audience present, when the curtain (a horse-blanket) was drawn to one side. The piece was "Deadwood Bill; or, The Roaring Waterspout of the Rocky Mountains." The scene opened with a bloody fight between Bill and Pete Dickson, a terror from Tar Flat, for the possession of a lovely maiden, who was seated in a stage coach (a large dry goods box). Two toughs had stopped the stage, killed the male passengers, and secured $19,000 in gold dust. The fight was long and desperate. Each was loaded down with revolvers and knives (which were borrowed from every young hoodlum in town). But Bill got his man and secured the prize. There were nine murders in the first act, and in the second four stages were robbed and a band of Indians were routed. It was a hair-lifting, blood-freezing, nerve-shattering piece, and several in the audience had to be carried out. Another performance this evening.—Bodie Free Press.

THE New York Times' has a definite knowledge that Mr. Tilden has by no means given up his Presidential aspirations; on the contrary, he is as sanguine as ever. In fact, he has always been an optimist, and has always bulled stocks. He has made most of his money by picking up decaying enterprises in which other men had lost faith, and this characteristic is most marked in him. Now his disease is not paralysis, but Bright's disease of the kidneys. He does a tremendous amount of work, and uses stimulants freely. He exercises daily on horseback, but is always closely followed by an attendant, for his friends fear he will some day fall from his horse in a fit of weakness. His most trusted friends are Henry Watterson, Andrew G. Green, and Abram S. Hewitt, with whom he has become reconciled and is on intimate terms. No doubt New York will send a Tilden delegation to Cincinnati.

CLARENCE E. DAVIS, the commercial traveler with marrying proclivities, who now languishes in jail in Chicago because he loved not wisely but too many, is certainly entitled to the championship in his peculiar line. Thus far twenty-three females, each of whom claims to be his lawfully-wedded spouse, have been heard from, and it is suspected that more reports will be received in a few days.

Two hundred years ago the shaft of the turquoise mine in Chalchuti mountain, New Mexico, caved in, and a hundred Indians below at work were killed. The Spaniards tried to force the Indians to work the mine, and the result was a rebellion and the expulsion of the Spanish. Now it is said that some American capitalists are about to reopen the mine, which is the only one of its kind on the continent.

THE Empress of Russia is 56 years old, was married at the age of 17, and is the mother of seven children, six sons and one daughter, the last being the Duchess of Edinburgh.

IT has been decided by the Democrats to hold their State Convention at Oakland on the 19th of May next.

A LETTER received by a citizen of Tucson, from James P. Hague, a distinguished attorney of El Paso, Texas, states that engineers of the Texas Pacific Railroad and also of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé and Southern Pacific Railroad, are at present in El Paso, camped near old Fort Bliss. The Southern Pacific have surveyed their line to within ten miles of El Paso. The Atchison Company have seized upon the El Paso cañon, and are grading it for the purpose of holding it against the other two. The Texas Pacific have purchased two tracts of land next to old Fort Bliss for $11,500. The town is full of strangers and the railroad booms at fever heat. There is great excitement in that section. Boss Sheppard, of Washington notoriety, and family are here, en route to Chihuahua to take possession of rich mines recently purchased, in which he has a large interest. Gen. Dodge, Chief Engineer of the Texas Pacific, has established his headquarters at El Paso.—Record-Union.

WHEN the Board of Election Commissioners call the special Freeholders' election, there was a very generally expressed doubt if the Board had authority to issue the call. It was not then known how the election would result. But since the election there has been much less said about the legality of the call. In fact, some very good lawyers have changed their opinion on this point. But the Board of Freeholders set the question at rest on the 15th instant by refusing to take any steps to test the legality of the call. Probably the decision in the main is a wise one. Lawyers could make an argument on both sides of the question, but if the Freeholders make a charter which is accepted by the people and ratified by the Legislature there is no doubt the Courts will affirm its legality.—S. F. Call.

THE first city in the world to be fully lighted with electricity is Wabash, Indiana. An experiment was made with four electric lamps, each of three thousand candle power. They were suspended from the flag-staff of the Court-house, two hundred feet above the business part of the town, and were furnished with electricity by a seven-horse power engine. According to the contract, these lamps were to light one mile in diameter from the Court-house, and to be equal to an ordinary gas burner at a distance of half a mile. The test was entirely satisfactory, and the city is now to be permanently lighted by electricity.

THE proposed new Territory of Pembina, to be composed of the northern part of Dakota, has from forty to fifty thousand people more than any of the other Territories had in 1879, except New Mexico and Utah, and four times as many as several of them had at that time. Twenty thousand of these came in 1879, with a prospect of a much larger immigration in 1880, this section having become famous for its large wheat farms and the superior quality of its wheat.

AT Cassiar, B. C., during the recent cold spell, quicksilver balls were fired with muskets through inch boards. Both there and at Glenora the thermometer was standing at 48° below zero. Nitric acid and whisky froze solid. Case brandy froze solid enough in 20 minutes to roll up in lumps like marbles. During the intense cold breathing was very oppressive.

Dead business men tell no tales in the advertising columns.

An Arkansas ferryman posted the following notice on a tree: "If enny-body cums here arter licker or to git across the river, they can jus' blow this hear horn, and ef I don't cum when my Betsy up at the house hears the horn blown, she'll cum down and sell them the licker or set them across the river when I'm away from hoam. The examiner is trying to explain to the class the character of a miracle. He asks a scholar, "What is a miracle?" "I don't know, sir." "If—all at once—the sun appeared in the heavens at night, what would you say it was?" "The moon." "But, if you were told it was the sun, what would you say?" "I'd say it was a lie." "Now, I never lie. Suppose I told you it was the sun?" The scholar, after a moment's deep reflection, bobbed his head. "Please, sir, I'd say you were drunk."

IT IS AN ACCEPTED AUTHORITY ON ALL questions relating to the great mining industries of the country. It is the oldest publication of its class in America, thoroughly independent; being of the trade and not in it, occupies a just and impartial position, which enables it to advise and teach without fear or favor. It devotes much space to questions bearing upon economical management of mines, and from time to time illustrates the more important improvements in mining machinery and engineering methods. Special attention is given to reliable mining news from all parts of the country, which is gathered by an efficient corps of correspondents in every section, and from an extended exchange list. The metal and ore markets and gold, silver and miscellaneous stocks are reported and commented upon weekly by experienced financiers, who are unbiased by private interests, and upon these matters it is accepted as a reliable guide and unfailing instructor. Gives statistics of production of coal and iron, and of our great gold, silver and other mines. Its scientific notes are an epitome of the latest researches, its trade reports full, and its editorials sagacious and comprehensive. It enjoys the widest circulation and greatest influence of any journal of its class in the world; its patrons and readers comprising the most select and intelligent men in every quarter.

A Word to Our Workingmen.

Here are two or three significant facts taken from our dispatches of the last week, to which we wish to call the attention of American workingmen and women:

1. During the last six days thirteen large steamships have left the Mersey for North American ports, loaded with emigrants, nearly all of whom are bound for the United States. The number is unprecedented.

2. During the last month the tide of emigration has increased to an unexampled extent at this season of the year, not only from Ireland but Germany, England and the Scandinavian nations. Most of the emigrants from every country except Ireland are reported to be mechanics, skilled workingmen or servants.

3. The demand for this foreign labor is still greater than the supply. The superintendent at Castle Garden has hundreds of applications for women servants in advance of their arrival. Swedish, Danish and French women are preferred, because they are skillful, respectful and neat, or, in other words, because having taken up domestic service as men do a trade, they carry into it the qualities which enable them to succeed. Good homes and liberal wages are waiting for them. Now, every American city and village is full, on the one hand, of housekeepers who want such servants, and of American girls, shrewd, nimble-fingered and intelligent, who either prefer to starve at some other work, or if they go to service scorn to make themselves either skillful, neat or respectful.

There is a fact for the consideration of our workingwomen; now for our workingmen:

4. Applications are sent in, far beyond the supply of emigrants to fill, for mechanics of every grade, carpenters, weavers, gardeners, workers in every kind of metal, etc. As our readers know, bodies of skilled workmen have been imported during the last six months by our manufacturing firms by the hundreds, to so large an extent as to close many of the mills in England. Yet every American town and village is crowded with idle boys and young men; not idle of their own choice, but seeking vainly to find work as bookkeepers, clerks, or perhaps starving as briefless lawyers and patientless doctors. Comfort and a competence await the foreign mechanic, while the American of the same class goes hungry. The principal cause of this is that our trades a generation ago closed their doors on apprentices in order to keep down competition.

The owner of the largest printing establishment in Philadelphia tried in vain, a few years ago, to find admission for his son as an apprentice in his own establishment. The same rigor is being established in almost every trade. While, however, they can keep their own and their neighbors' sons out, they cannot exclude the foreign mechanic, who, as we have shown, is coming by the hundreds and the thousands to step quietly into the comfortable places from which our own people are shut out.

It is time that our working people should waken to the policy of this suicidal policy. It is all very well for us to boast that America offers a refuge for the oppressed of every nation. She has done it in the past and long will continue to do it. But it is hardly consistent with such a character of universal benevolence that her own children should be the only ones forbidden to earn their bread in the manner which seems best to them.—New York Tribune.

AN applicant for citizen's papers appearing before one of the departments of the Superior Court was asked the question: "Were you a minor when you came to the United States?" "No, yer Honor," he replied, "I wos a carpenter."—S. F. Chronicle.

Various Things.

J. M. Ryan, of Montana, has purchased 25,000 sheep in California to be driven to that Territory.

A Guadaloupe paper tells of three sheep recently sheared in Santa Barbara county, the fleece of which weighed respectively 17, 17½ and 18 pounds.

Joseph Russ, of Humboldt county, lost his entire herd of cattle, 1,000 in number, which were pastured in Lake county, Oregon. They were worth about $15,000.

Under a special Act of the Legislature, the Yuba city schools have been reopened. The Act restores the poll tax to the county fund for this year, which furnishes the necessary funds.

Water for the town of Candelaria is hauled from Columbus, six miles distant, and retails at five cents a gallon. The Northern Belle shaft is down 800 feet, and there is not yet a sign of water.

It is reported that Louis Dondero, of Knickerbocker Flat, in cleaning up an old lot at Martinez, Tuolumne county, unearthed an old tin can containing $8,000 in coin, supposed to have been buried in early days by some lucky miner.

A double-headed jack-rabbit is the latest novelty in Helena, Montana. It was killed the other day near that place. Both heads are perfect, and it is a remarkable curiosity. It is to be sent to the Smithsonian Institute.

There are about 800,000 head of cattle in California, and 8,000,000 sheep. The stock breeding was begun in 1796 by Spanish friars at San Diego, who went there from Lower California with 200 head of cattle and 100 sheep, besides a few horses and some hogs.

The contractors on the Northern Pacific extension say they will have 1,500 men at work within thirty days. It is expected that the road will be completed to the Yellowstone by November without fail. A section of 100 miles is to be completed by the 1st of June.

Destructive prairie fires are raging north of Sioux Falls, Dakota. Several farmers have lost buildings and crops, and it is reported that several persons have been fatally burned. Only one name is given, that of Peter Berge, a farmer near Sioux Falls, burned to death.

Suit has been brought by Charles A. Strong against the Sacramento and Placerville Railroad, in the Superior Court of Sacramento county, to recover $20,000 in reparation for the loss of an eye by the plaintiff in October last, when he fell from his wagon, his horse having been frightened by a locomotive of the defendant corporation.

The bonanza silver ledge of Shasta county has been discovered. It is reported as being from seventy-five to ninety feet in width, and traceable for a distance of six miles. Assays from the ore give returns of from $160 to $600 per ton. Locations have been made by wholesale, and great excitement exists in mining circles.

A threatened outbreak of the Pintes and Umatillas in Northern Humboldt county, Nevada, is exercising the people in that section very greatly, and families are moving into Fort McDermitt for protection. Reports are to the effect that the Duck Valley Reservation Indians have murdered two families near Mountain City, and it is said that the Indians in that vicinity were never more restless than at present.

AN ingenious method of measuring the quantity of moisture in the air has been devised by Herr Ruderff, who lately announced it to the German Chemical Society. It consists in admitting to a measured volume of air, contained in a suitable glass chamber, a small quantity of sulphuric acid from a graduated tube with stop cock. The acid absorbs all the aqueous vapor contained in the air, thereby reducing the pressure in the chamber. This diminution of pressure is shown by means of a manometer connected with the vessel. Sulphuric acid is then admitted in drops until the original pressure is restored. The absorbed aqueous vapor is thus replaced by an equal volume of sulphuric acid; by calculation the percentage of vapor that the air had carried can be readily ascertained. The method is said to give very accurate results, and the operation makes a good lecture experiment.

PUBLIC sentiment in the East is in favor of the abolition of the national snob factory at West Point. The Whittaker outrage has aroused public attention to the fact that the Military Academy is a worthless institution. If the cadets did not care to associate with Whittaker they had a perfect right to abstain from such association, the same as they would choose their company among whites; but it was their duty to to treat him courteously, and nothing can justify the brutal outrage to which they subjected him. The young men ought to be sent home and put to learning some useful trade. Having no standing army in this country, we do not need to educate soldiers. The experience of the war shows that in an emergency competent military officers can readily be drawn from the ranks of civil life.—S. F. Stock Report.

THERE is just a chance that Congress will put salt, paper pulp, printing paper, rags, waste and shorts, cod-liver oil, books, chrome ore, condensed milk, extract of hemlock, type metal, refined opium, morphine and salts of morphine, flax, jute butts, other fibres, waste and flocks on the free list.

DAN DE QUILLE recently welcomed Mr. Kelly, a new reporter on the Virginia Chronicle, with the information that he would find it somewhat harder work hunting about shafts for remnants of men, than finding the dead all whole in California. Kelly comes back in the following pleasing strain: "The reporter of a contemporary appears to be very anxious lest the ex-cow-county editor, who has recently become a reporter of this journal, finds a great deal of difficulty in accustoming himself to the sanguinary nature of the Comstock local items, and intimates that nothing ever happened in the lowlands that need give a reporter any trouble. An instance may serve to correct that impression. A few months ago an explosion occurred at Wright's Station. The gas ignited in a railroad tunnel, and thirty-one men were projected from the mouth like grape shot out of a cannon. The reporter accompanied the Coroner to the scene of the explosion and spent two days in finding enough Chinamen to hold an inquest over. The men were blown across a gulch and plastered all over the rocks on the opposite side, about a mile and a half distant. They were spread out so thin that the Coroner could not find them at first, supposing the grease on the rocks to be petroleum exuding from the crevices and flowing down over the ledge. The aroma of opium on a slate ledge gave the business away to the keen scent of the reporter, and a jury was summoned to sit on that rock. Four of the jurymen declined to sit, on the ground that they would get their trousers greasy, but the Coroner furnished them with overalls and proceeded with the inquest. As he is paid by fees, the Coroner made a calculation of the area that one man would cover when well spread, and hired a surveyor to lay off the ledge in squares. He then began holding inquests on each section of greased rock, and was still at it when the reporter emigrated in disgust to Virginia for a little rest." He'll pass.—Carson Appeal.

THE millers of the West and Northwest are to have a grand International Convention at Cincinnati on the 30th of May. Crediting the statements of the newspapers in that quarter, it is to be an affair of no ordinary magnitude. "With everyone in this country, and, indeed throughout the civilized world, at all connected with the flour or grain interests," says a correspondent of one of the Chicago papers, "this convention and this exhibition will be the event of a life time. Provision has been made for the entertainment of over 50,000 millers and manufacturers from this country, while between 1,500 and 2,000 Europeans engaged in the milling interests have signified their intention of being present. From another source we learn that every State in the Union is to be represented, and every State, it is expected, will make an elaborate display both of cereals and flour. Manufacturers and grain-raisers from Budu-Pesth and Berlin, from England, Switzerland and from along the Danube are also expected to be on hand, as also many citizens of Russia and from the regions of the Rhine. Even the owners of the Egyptians granaries will send representatives to Cincinnati to learn of American industries and American ingenuity. Ten complete flouring mill be set up in the exposition buildings, and two of them will be from Europe. The millers show promises to be a bigger one than either the Democratic or Republican Convention.

ALL decent men will be gratified to earn that the five men who offered bribes to the Pennsylvania Legislature have been convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 each and one year's hard labor in the Penitentiary. Their names are Kemble, Crawford Petroff, Solter and Rumberger, and were employed by the railroads to secure the passage of a bill authorizing the payment of $4,000,000 to the railroads for the damages by the riots of 1877. It was estimated that the damage was about half that sum. W. H. Kemble was at one time State Treasurer of Pennsylvania. All were men of wealth and position, and their summary conviction and punishment falls with terrible weight on them and their aristocratic families. The Virginia Chronicle exults that these men were Republicans. As far as their political complexion is concerned they were Republicans simply because they lived in a strong Republican State and went with the majority. They belong to a class of political tricksters who follow any party that pays them, and flop from one side to another where there is any dirty work to be done. It is to be hoped that the lesson will have a salutary effect upon all bribers throughout the country, and teach the railroad lobbyists that there is a power in the land above corporations.—Carson Appeal.

RAILROAD earnings for the first three months of 1880, as reported by the Railroad Chronicle, show an advance, compared with 1879, of over 25 per cent. Last year the earnings, month by month, averaged an advance of about 20 per cent. over the year before. The advances in gross receipts over 1878 is therefore from 40 to 45 per cent. for the railroads reported, which do about a fifth of the railroad business of the country. The rise in running expenses will make the advance in net earnings, which increases profit, altogether less than 40 per cent.

IT is reported on good authority that Postmaster General Key will shortly be appointed to a life position of United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Tennessee, vice Judge Trigg, deceased.

A FEW nights ago, the residence of Mrs. John W. Paul, at Santa Clara county, in this State, was entered by a masked man, who confronted the startled woman with the words, "I have come to kill you." Mrs. Paul begged for life on her knees. The villain fired two shots at her, one inflicting a painful wound. The lady then drew a pistol and fired at him, but missed. He took her weapon from her and beat her over the head with it until he left her for dead. Her injuries are serious. The man was a robber against whom Mrs. Paul had once given evidence. Mrs. Paul is known in equestrian circles as "Miss Cook."

SATURDAY, MAY 8.....1880

In a recent letter Hon. Jos. Wasson says that the Governor has promised to appoint Henry G. Hanks, of San Francisco, to the position of State Geologist, created by the Mining Bureau law. Such a selection would be of decided advantage to Eastern California, as aside from the fact that Mr. Hanks is one of the most, if not a long way the most, distinguished scientists and metallurgists on the coast, he is a pioneer of Inyo and an enthusiast over its immense though undeveloped resources. Wasson says he won that legislative fight over the Bureau bill "alone and single handed, from the pure love of God."

ON Sunday morning last at Eureka, Nev., a shooting affray occurred between Billy Martin, a notorious desperado, and John Brent, who is Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger between Eureka and Palisade, which resulted in the killing of Martin. The immediate cause of the affray is not known. Martin had killed several men in his time, and was considered a desperate man. Brent was known to be quick and game, and the most trivial disagreement between two such men was sufficient to lead to a fatal encounter.

THE New York Mining Journal has this to say of the lead market: The market is quiet and weak. There has been a business of about 100 tons of common at 5 and 6 cents. Corroding is quoted at from 6 to 6½ cents. Foreign lead is quoted at £16 15s. The receipts of lead at St. Louis, by the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad for the week amounted to 44 tons.

JOHN WILLIAM OAKDEN, nineteen years of age, the champion 500 yard shot of England, challenges any man in the world to shoot forty shots, distance 500 yards, at a target one foot in diameter, with eight-inch bull's-eyes, or he will give eight points of eighty shots, for £150 a side and a 100-guinea challenge cup. He will give or take £50 for expenses to any part of the world.

THE Judiciary Committee appointe to take into consideration the acts and utterances of Mayor Kalloch, of San Francisco, with a view to his impeachment, have placed their report in the hands of the Board of Supervisors. The report was very severe on the Mayor, who himself put the question of its adoption and declared it carried. A resolution was adopted that judicial proceedings be at once commenced against the Mayor.

SPRING POETRY.

Just now editor men throughout the civilized world feel somewhat pleased, and a good deal inclined to fraternally congratulate each other. It is gratitude that makes these good men feel that way—gratitude to Delegate Stephen W. Downey, of Wyoming Territory. This is how it comes about: This Stephen is a sort of a half fool—he writes miles of Spring Poetry; being a half fool he is of course a terrible egotist; possessed of these peculiar attributes in such marked degree, he was of course the best man to be found in Wyoming to make a hermaphrodite or voteless Congressman out of, so they made him the Territorial Delegate. Stephen's mission in Congress is to work certain reforms of a religious and poetical nature, particularly in reference to the medium by which Spring Poetry should be published to an unsuspecting world. Stephen believes that a good article of such, such as he himself is in the habit of manufacturing, should be published by authority of Congress only, and in that staid newspaper, the Congressional Record. That is what pleases ye editor men so mightily.

It is a common creed among editor men and type-stickers: (1) that not a speck of Spring Poetry should be permitted in print without an especial enabling act by Congress; (2) that such publication should be made in the aforesaid Congressional Record exclusively.

The arguments to be adduced in support of Stephen's notions of what constitutes a great national sanitary reform are too obvious and numerous to mention in detail; we shall refer to but two or three, leaving readers to make logical connections for themselves: all the public and many private insane asylums are full now—cause: gin and the indiscriminate publication of Vernal Poetry—it is the last, not the first, that peopled those institutions with so many demented printer-folk; and, realizing this, all of that kind of people rejoice much at the new turn of affairs, and want to hug Stephen for his new method of damming this Spring flood—a thing the class in question have been vehemently but bootlessly working at for years. If his plan will only stick!

It seems Stephen's mind, as he himself poetically states it, became ——a temple filled

With forms intangible, immortal sprites,
From chaos rising, back to chaos borne.

Of course, it did not take many of those things, whatever they may be, to uncomfortably crowd so small a "temple" as that, and Stephen sought relief. With all due gravity, he introduced some "whereases" and a resolution or bill into the House. The whereases recite the Apostle's Creed, and the bill appropriates an even half million for the decoration of the walls of the capitol with paintings commemorative of the history of our Lord as given by the four Evangelists, said pictures to be painted by "living" artists—he was particular about that; he would not have them painted by dead artists at all. The House gave him leave to print his "argument" in the Record as part of the regular proceedings. The paper appeared next day with no less fifteen double columns, equal to 2,700 lines, of the blankest kind of blank Spring Poetry, entitled the "Immortals," and dedicated to Congress, subheaded as follows: "Argument of Hon. Stephen W. Downey, of Wyoming Territory. [Copyright, 1880. All rights reserved]."

The whole thing was such a success, so appropriate withal, and gave fame to the poet with such suddenness, there is a loud demand from verse men and women and newspaper publishers alike for the enactment of a law making it illegal to publish any kind of Spring Poetry in any other newspaper than the Congressional Record, at Government expense, and under Congressional supervision. Hence these remarks.

THE present immigration from Europe is extraordinary. The condition of the peasants in many Continental countries may be summed up in a recent Winter's account of the dwellers in an Irish fishing village: "Their one dread, hunger; their one hope, America." Five ships recently landed 4,291 immigrants at Castle Garden, and it is stated that 250,000 are waiting at the various ports for berths to this country.

MAYOR KALLOCH has caused the arrest of M. H. He was subsequently released on bail.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.

MESSRS. EDITORS: This city is now all quiet, and everything is going along again as usual. The Kalloch-De Young tragedy is hardly spoken of, and if young Kalloch would only commit suicide it would save the county a great bill of expense and be a great benefit to this community; besides it would be so much more honorable to fill a suicide's grave than a man who had been hanged. There is no earthly show for Kalloch to escape punishment unless the Sheriff lets him make his escape from the county jail. He may get out under the plea of insanity, but that is hardly probable. He should not be allowed to escape from jail, for he is not certainly fit to live, and I am sure he is not fit to die. What use they could make of him in the other world is beyond my comprehension, unless they converted him into a saddle animal for a six mule team. That family has made a good deal of trouble for San Francisco, and the sooner they take their departure the better it will be for this place.

We are to be inflicted with another walking match, to commence next Wednesday at the Pavilion. This time it is to be a six days' go-as-you-please race among women. There are some from New York, some from Boston and some from London; but I don't think any she "niggs" will be allowed to enter. These female walkers won't do to bet on, especially if they are white, and I don't propose to go around and witness their big feet swelling up to the size of an ordinary watermelon, or their legs giving out when they are in a good position to win.

Denis Kearney has at last got to be a workingman in dead earnest, and Mr. Provost intends to make him work as long as he remains in that institution. Denis wanted a piano brought out there so that he could practice during his leisure hours. Well, he don't get any piano. There are several good Republicans trying their utmost to get poor Denis out so that he will be able to keep up the organization among the Workingmen, and thereby elect the Republican ticket next Fall. Denis still holds a large number of the most ignorant of his followers, but all the intelligent men of his party have seen through his dirty tricks and abandoned him.

The Democrats in this city are all quarreling among themselves. The State club does not agree with the County Committee, and the County Committee does not agree with the district clubs, and none of them agree with themselves. What they will do between this time and election remains to be seen. There will be a primary election held here on the 14th of next month, and a lively time is anticipated.

The Geary street railroad is now in good running order, and a great many people go out to the Park every day instead of going across the bay. The Park will be a great place of resort next Summer, as it will afford all pleasure seekers a good opportunity to have a good time at a very little expense. The fare out there is five cents, and there are some good houses going up where a person can find all the accommodations he may want. There are already a large number of saloons out there, and beer is sold at five cents a glass.

Your townsman, Billy Welch, was here a couple of weeks ago and he has mysteriously disappeared. Where he has gone no one can tell. I have made inquiries for him at Miss Maggie Belmont's, Miss Ada Clark's, Miss Mary Ellis', and also at the colored woman's house in the alley, where he used to go, but none of them could give me any information concerning him. He promised to meet me at the Alhambra saloon, but he did not keep that promise.

There is a new dance hall opened on the Barbary Coast, where they employ ten or fifteen good looking girls. Those girls often get boosiers drunk and have them shanghaed. It may be that Billy had to leave here in a hurry and did not have time to come and bid his old friends good bye, and I can assure you there are a large number here who would be pleased to hear of his safe arrival at Independence or some other safe place.

Mining stocks are going almost out of sight, and how much lower they are going no one can tell.

Business of all branches is very quiet, and even the churches cannot get a good attendance. I went there last Sunday night and the church was so near empty that the preacher's voice sounded like a bullfrog's voice in a bass drum. I got tired and went out before the contribution box reached me. It is quite a task for me to go to church, but when I have to put ten cents into that long-handled box and do without my beer, I tell you that's very rough.

The picnic season is now in full blast, and every Sunday morning the streets are thronged with people following a brass band down toward the ferries. The first picnic started in well. A young man named Stanton got into a fight with some others as bad as himself, and Stanton was shot and almost instantly killed. It would be good for this community if our Mayor would attend one of those picnics.

Mike De Young has been arrested for libel on I. S. Kalloch. If those two families would only make up a picnic of their own and settle all their difficulties over in some secluded spot on the other side of the bay, it would be one of the greatest blessings ever bestowed on this people.

Our people breathe a great deal easier since that Legislature adjourned, and well they may. Senator Kane may be seen almost any day on Montgomery street, and he is well worth looking at. Any one would know by looking at him that he would not take a bribe. He looks as if he would not accept of an umbrella if it was raining. The next calamity which will befall this city will be a big earthquake which will swallow us up entirely. We have stood about as much as any ordinary people could stand, and if we could only get Henry Ward Beecher out here we would be fixed.

The California horse Santa Claus is matched against an Eastern horse called Maud S., to go five races, mile heats, best three in five, for $5,000. Each race will be trotted in the Eastern States, and the way it is made up it looks like a hippodrome, or going for gate money. However, there is considerable talk here about the race, and horsemen think it is all on the square. The owners of Santa Claus have plenty of coin and they are not afraid to back the horse for any amount, for he is certainly one of the finest young horses in the world.

The daily stream of bullion that goes forth to the world from the Tough Nut and Contention is awakening a great interest among capitalists to get their share of it.

There are now thirty-five stamps running on ore from the Contention and Tough Nut mines, while the latter alone could raise ore enough to keep double the number constantly at work.

The recent finds in the Tough Nut and Good Enough mines have not been overrated, and it is now clear that the Tough Nut is the great bonanza mine of the camp. Others may come to the front in the near future and eclipse it; but, then—such is life.

The Merrimack and Sunset mines are each about to apply for a patent.

Work is to be commenced on the New Year and Telephone in good earnest and kept up until both become mines in the true sense of the word; and such they will undoubtedly prove by the application of sufficient work.

The Randolph is rising again, being now a No. 1 property. A shaft of 100 feet and a level of 40 feet from this mine are all in good ore.

On the Juanita claim, which is a part of the Randolph, a shaft thirteen feet has a large vein of ore, from which assays went from $140 to $1,000.

All the workings of the Randolph, Juanita and Clipper are on the same vein, and all are owned by the same parties.

The Monitor still looms up as the shaft goes down, and every day makes it more and more apparent as being a valuable mine.

The Baker mine is looking well and has a large vein of ore the whole size of the shaft, which is now twenty-five feet in depth.

On the Cincinnati—the one near the Contention — they have two shafts, both now over 100 feet deep, and both in good ore.

The Bonanza mine looks better every day, the assays from which go very high, and the vein is regular and large.

The Vizina is being worked in good style, and turns out a rich and beautiful quality of ore from a large body of it, and the size has not yet been determined.

About one and one-half miles northeast of this town is a large out-put of ore on the mesa that is fully 1,800 feet wide covered by three locations in width, having the surface covered with good-looking float. There are several shafts from five to ten feet in depth, but no vein disclosed. It is all alike, and everywhere assays from $4 to $41. At a depth of ten feet it runs into a dark gray dust that looks and feels like ashes; and all this ashy stuff assays from $8 to $12 in silver. It is a curiosity and shows the general richness of everything in and about this argentiferous boneyard.—Tucson Star.

Indian Troubles.

Nathan Berry, the driver of the Resting Springs stage, arrived from that camp this morning, and brings the alarming intelligence that the Shoshone tribe, numbering about 500 warriors, have threatened the miners with complete annihilation. The provocation seems to have occurred in this manner: A man named Rockwell stole a mule from the Shoshones, who live in a valley called Ash Meadow, about thirty miles from Resting Springs. The Indians pursued the thief and overtook him while he was in the act of making jerked meat out of the aforesaid mule. They captured him and stripped him of everything he had, and allowed him to depart without any bodily injury. In the evening Rockwell armed himself with a miner's pick, and creeping into the Indian village slew three Indians with that instrument, and mortally wounded another. Some of those killed were squaws. Rockwell made his escape, and started for the Muddy, in the direction of Utah. The Shoshones immediately informed the miners at Resting Springs of the occurrence, and threatened an attack on them if Rockwell was not delivered up to justice. A white man and an Indian were dispatched after the fleeing Rockwell, and on the success of their mission the fate of the miners seems to hang. They have sent in by Mr. Berry for a supply of Springfield rifles and some ammunition. There are about thirty men at Resting Springs, with perhaps double the number in the immediate vicinity. The killing occurred about three weeks ago, but the means of communication are so slow that the news only reached here this morning. The Shoshones are a numerous tribe, being scattered through the northern part of this county, Southeastern Nevada and Southern Utah. They have generally been peaceful, devoting themselves to agricultural pursuits; but they have a fierce nature, and if provoked to it would make a determined fight. Capt. Carr told the reporter of the Times this morning that in past years he had had considerable business with them, and that we had better "raise the devil than get into trouble with them." Berry's stage will return to Resting Springs in a few days.—San Bernardino Times.

THE bill in regard to the world fair to be opened in New York city in 1883, on the hundredth anniversary of the peace between the thirteen States and England, has passed both Houses and gone to the President for his signature, which it will no doubt receive.

A DISPATCH from New Orleans announces the fact that yellow fever has already broken out in that city.

REPRESENTATIVE DAGGETT, of Nevada, through his arguments before the House Committee on Mines and Mining, has, in all probability succeeded in preventing the proposed amendment to the mining laws whereby the law governing all mining locations was to be based on the necessities of the case as regards the blanket ledges of Colorado. The law in such shape would work a great injury to prospectors and miners in all sections where there are veins, lodes or fissures, and the proposition to so amend it drew out an emphatic protest from the press of the Pacific Coast and the people of the mining districts. Mr. Daggett suggested that in case the committee believed it necessary to enact a new provision on the subject of the boundaries of mining claims, they might frame a provision which would be acceptable to all parties, by limiting the system of square locations to such lodes as have a dip less than twenty-five degrees, or, at most, not greater than thirty degrees. Such a provision would provide for the blanket mines, and at the same time no injury would be worked to vein locators. A subcommittee to put the proposed amendments into shape have agreed upon the following, which will be formally adopted by the full committee at the next meeting: "Section 3. That all mining claims located after the first day of September, 1880, shall be bounded as to surface by straight lines, and the right to minerals contained therein shall be confined with vertical planes passing downward through the end lines, but may be followed in its downward course to any depth beyond the side location." Mr. Belford stated that at the next meeting he would offer an amendment continuing in force the local laws as to record and the like. This action removes all apprehension of injury to the mining interests of the Pacific Coast through the operations of the national mining laws, and must prove satisfactory to all concerned.—S. F. Stock Report.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, MAY 8.....1880

RECOVERING.—From Supervisor Olds we learn that John Roland, of Round Valley, is slowly recovering from his dreadful hurt. On the 6th of February last young Roland left his station near Round Valley to go up into the cañon, carrying a Henry rifle. At a point some three miles from home he slipped and fell; in attempting to throw the gun from him it someway turned, and the hammer striking a rock, the bullet passed through the bones of his left knee. By using the gun as a crutch he managed to get home, and it was three days before medical attendance could reach him. Dr. Bicknell, from Bishop, found the whole leg in a very bad condition, but attempted to save it. However, amputation was found necessary, and about three weeks ago the operation was performed by Drs. Bicknell and Howell. Roland's life was several times despaired of, but, as stated, he is now reported as slowly recovering under the hands of his surgeon.

TOO LATE.—An investigation shows that the present session of the Board of Supervisors is just about a week too late to comply with the law providing for a reregistration of the voters of this county. Their neglect in this matter, the necessity and manner of doing which was called to their attention by this paper months ago, will result in the printing of hundreds of obsolete names from the old Great Register, at a cost of say $200 to the county. This item is no particular set-back to the printers, but is unfair to our taxpayers.

A LONG SESSION.—The present meeting of the Board of Supervisors will necessarily be a long one. The new County Government law is a complicated affair, and makes it mandatory upon the Board to redistrict the county into Supervisor, Road and School Districts; to provide for the courts and juries, prepare for the coming election and perhaps fix salaries, etc., etc. We shall next week endeavor to give an outline of what has been and what is to be done.

TAXES.—It appears that in the levy of taxes for county purposes the Board of Supervisors are not restricted to a levy of $1.80 on the $100, as stated. That provision applies to the maximum allowed for the payment of principal and interest of funded debts. For all purposes the maximum of $6 per $100 may be reached; but it is not likely the levy will be increased more than 50 cents over the $3 of preceding years.

FIRE.—At Round Valley, last Monday, the corral and haystack of C. S. Swan somehow caught fire during a high wind, and was totally consumed. Five out of six horses were burned, together with harness, saddles, farming tools, etc. The loss falls particularly heavy on Mr. Swan, as it will be with difficulty that he can go on with getting in his crops for the season.

BIG PINE.—The developments of the Winter in the old Black Warrior gold mine, in the mountains to the west of Big Pine, have been of unusual importance. The district will boom ahead during the Summer, as the plentitude of water will allow more extensive workings of the rich placer claims. A forty-niner from this office proposes visiting the scene soon, and will give a full report.

CORRECTION.—It was S. P. Moffat, Esq., who got out and argued the habeas corpus arrangement whereby Moe, the Indian whisky seller, was released from jail, and not A. R. Conklin as stated last week. The Judge doesn't want to be charged with all the mean things that are done.

CAUGHT.—Sheriff Smith started a day or two since for Bakersfield, where the officers have in custody the Mexican who appropriated Johnny Lucas' valuable horse and rig. The fellow will be brought back and prosecuted to the law's fullest extent.

FAVORING IT.—The Mammoth City Herald, in a sensible article upon the subject, heartily supports the Camp Independence school project, and wants a chance to sign some of the petitions to Congress. The blanks will be supplied.

DELEGATES. — At a meeting of the Democratic County Central Committee, held on Tuesday last, S. P. Moffat, Esq., Jos. Schalten and J. E. Parker were chosen delegates to the Democratic State Convention at Oakland.

TO THE BAY.—S. P. Moffat, Esq., sailed out, per the Southern line, for San Francisco on the 3d instant. He goes on law, political business and some matters connected with the Blaney orphans.

LOST.—Near Big Pine, sometime last Monday, Mrs. P. Reddy lost a fine, black sealskin glove. The finder will be thankfully remembered upon its return to Judge A. R. Conklin, of this place.

FOR BODIE.—Mrs. P. Reddy, under escort of Mr. Simon Ryan, started in a buggy last Monday for Bodie. The little social world of Independence has a hearty wish for a pleasant journey for them.

LOST.—A certificate of deposit has been lost, and payment stopped. The finder will confer a favor by leaving it at this office. See notice.

OFF.—T. A. Gardner, the popular painter and confectioner, accompanied by Lew Schalten, set out for Candelaria day before yesterday.

PANAMINT.—See notice elsewhere of Geo. M. Pinney, Jr., relative to what is known as the Pinney mines in Panamint.

C. D. Begole was authorized to procure timbers, etc., for culvert at Lone Pine.

Petition to establish election precinct at Resting Springs laid over.

Petition to rebuild Bend City bridge laid over.

CERRO GORDO.—Mr. Wm. Crapo has had a good force at work on the Crapo property—the old Buena Vista ledge at Cerro Gordo—drifting into its immense croppings preparatory to sinking. The outcrop is visible as far as Buena Vista mountain can be seen, and consists of an ore body 300 feet in length and from 30 to 50 feet wide, sampling $102 per ton in silver and gold. It would require years for a 20-stamp mill to make a respectable hole in this bonanza, which is pronounced by all mining men who have seen it as almost marvelous in its extent. The only wonder is that Eastern speculators have not corraled it at any price, but we understand there is something of that kind on the tapis now.

I. O. G. T.—The following are the elected officers of Busy Bee Lodge No. 250, I. O. G. T., for the ensuing quarterly term, and who were duly installed last Monday evening by Rev. F. M. Willis, S. D. G. W. C. T.: Henry M. Isaacs, W. C. T; Miss Maggie Conklin, W. R. H. S.: Miss Carrie Willis, W. L. H. S.; Mrs. Mary N. May, W. V. T., S. P. Moffat, W. S.; Mrs. A. R. Conklin, W. A. S.; Mrs. Annie Brown, W. F. S. Mrs. Amalia Isaacs, W. T.; Norman Conklin, W. M.; Mrs. M. George, W. D. M.; Miss Addie Lewis, W. I. G.; Chas. Dugal, W. O. G.; Mrs. M. Q. Parker, W. C.: A. R. Conklin, P. W. C. T.; H. P. Cartier, L. D.

ANTELOPE.—While coming in from the Deep Spring mines, a few days ago, Mr. J. D. Hudgin saw three fine, fat antelope. Although in easy range, he had neither pistol nor gun, with which to bring one down, so he contented himself by simply feasting his eyes on them.

AT BIG PINE.—Dr. W. P. Swain will be at Big Pine (at McMurry's hotel) to-morrow, Sunday, and will remain a few days at that point. The Doctor is one of the very best in his line of business who has ever visited this county.

Presidential Speculations.

Just at present there are certain curious analogies in the condition of the two great political parties, both being confronted with perils within their respective organizations which present features of striking similarity. The Tammany anti-Tilden revolt has assumed a shape which implies that in case of a failure to defeat the Claimant at Cincinnati, the rebels against party discipline will bolt the nomination and give the State of New York to the Republicans. In like manner the anti-third term revolt in the latter party, which has had such rapid development during the last month, threatens to be attended by the gravest consequences in case the ex-President should receive the Chicago nomination.

In regard to the embittered spirit and thorough earnestness of the Democratic opposition to Mr. Tilden, there can be no question. And it is not by any means confined to his own State. It crops out in all sections of the country, and is exceptionally strong and vehement in the Southern States. The Charleston News and Courier calls him "tricky," declares him mean and illiberal in spirit, too timid to lead and too arrogant to follow; alive always to his own interests, and oblivious to the needs of his countrymen; an old man, in short, "who joins the rooted prejudices and sour grudges of age to the whimsical irresolution of second childhood." The Memphis Appeal demands that he "be sacrificed for the public good." The Augusta Chronicle denounces him as a "disturbing element." The Vicksburg Herald declares that "the South would rather sustain defeat led by Bayard than be the means of electing Tilden." These are all Democratic papers, and we could multiply such disparaging expressions of opinion almost indefinitely by citations from organs of that party in every State south of Mason and Dixon's line.

On the other hand, the opposition to Gen. Grant within the Republican party—an opposition mainly based upon the objection to a third term—seems to be scarcely less violent. Influential Republican papers in most of the Northern and Western States are energetically arguing against his nomination at Chicago. This opposition, however, is almost invariably respectful in its tone, involving nothing derogatory to Gen. Grant's personal character, his patriotism, his great abilities, or the distinguished services he has rendered his country. A few of the hostile journals indulge, it is true, in criticisms of his eight years' administration, but in the main the opposition is based upon hostility to the principle of a third term; while there is another and smaller class of opponents, who without claiming that there is in reality anything objectionable in a third term—with an interval of four years between the second and third—argue that as a matter of fact a strong and wide-spread prejudice exists on the subject, which the Democrats could effectually appeal to during the canvass, and that therefore a nomination so handicapped should be avoided on the ground of political expediency. The journals of this class say in effect: We admire and honor Gen. Grant; we believe he would make a good President; we think the talk about "imperialism," and all that, is very silly; but still the fact remains that the anti-third-term feeling is deeply seated, and it would not be wise to disregard it.

Yet, strange as it may seem, these very candidates, against whom so powerful an opposition inside their respective parties has been developed, appear from the present prospect to have the best chance of securing the nominations at Chicago and Cincinnati. It is certain, at any rate, that the leading Grant and Tilden managers profess the most unshaken confidence in their success before the conventions. Don Cameron, of Pennsylvania, is reported as declaring, only two days ago, that he "is certain of Grant's nomination on the first ballot as he is of anything in this life." On the other hand, Speaker Randall is no less positive that Tilden will sweep everything before him at Cincinnati, in spite of Tammany, Kelly and the rebellious South.

Meantime, the anti-third-term movement is becoming every day more threatening and aggressive. The convention called to meet at St. Louis on the 6th instant—next Thursday—to consolidate and vitalize the opposition to the candidacy of Gen. Grant, may, if it should prove as imposing a demonstration as is predicted in some quarters, produce important results. But in case the confidence of Cameron and Conkling on the one side, and of Randall on the other, should be justified by the action of the two National Conventions, the journals and party leaders that have committed themselves against Grant and Tilden will find themselves in an awkward dilemma. They will be obliged either to go over to the enemy, to nominate and support a third candidate, or to partake, with such appetite as they can command, of a very ample and unpalatable dish of crow.—S. F. Chronicle, May 3.

I. O. G. T. INSTALLATION.—Follow- is a list of the names of the officers installed at Bishop Creek by the Good Templar Lodge of that place: Wm. Hull, W. C. T.; Mrs. S. E. Drake, W. R. H. S.; Mrs. C. GOV. PERKINS has vetoed the Truckee and Quincy Railroad bill, much to the disappointment of the Truckee people.

The White Mountains.

Commencing at a point directly east of and about fifteen miles distant from Benton, Mono county, is situated the northern end of the extensive mineral-bearing chain known as the White Mountain range. Beginning near the southern line of Mono county, they extend through to about the center of Inyo county; and that they contain many rich deposits of gold, silver, copper, lead and other valuable minerals, there is and can be no doubt. In the extreme northern end is situated the rich gold ledge owned and worked by the Indian Queen Company, which has produced many thousands of dollars and enriched its owners. In Montgomery cañon, about twelve miles southerly, much rich rock has been found, but as yet no large ledges. Thence, following south along the skirt of the mountains, deposits of iron and galena, with carbonates of lead giving assays in silver, are found in the lime formation for a distance of about twenty miles to where Birch creek flows down to the valley. From this point the character of the country rock changes, and a formation of slate and porphyry is encountered carrying quartz in many places deeply stained with copper, and small strata of gold-bearing rock and silver ores are sometimes found. In Piute District, about fifteen miles distant from the flourishing town of Bishop Creek, quite a number of gold-bearing ledges are found, upon which considerable work has been done and upon which a mill has been running at different times for a number of years, but for want of skillful management the ores have not paid very well. Directly opposite and east of Bishop, on the summit of the mountains, are situated a series of rich silver-bearing ledges on which Messrs. Russell and Bevins have done considerable work; a long tunnel has been run, but the main ledge has not been struck—the ore from which assays from $100 to $500 per ton. This section, which the writer has visited, certainly offers a fine field for the investment of capital. The formation is lime and the ores are rather base in character and would require roasting, as does most of the silver-bearing rock found in the range. Going still further south, some six or eight other districts are passed through, in which small rich ledges, carrying mostly gold, are found, until near Independence, the county seat of Inyo county, where the ledges appear to increase in size. There is a gold mill working some six miles from this place, operated by an English company, but like many other properties, it has been unskillfully managed. Thence still further southward, on the eastern borders of Owens lake, the rich base mining fields of Swansea and Cerro Gordo are situated, from which millions of dollars of precious metals have been taken, and which are still producing enormous wealth. This is all upon what might be termed the foot hills of the western slope of the mountains, which are skirted by one of the most fertile valleys in the State, and where vast quantities of low grade ores could be obtained and worked by proper appliances at small cost for reduction. The eastern slope of the mountains also contains many large deposits of low grade silver ores, and many large and rich gold ledges, which are now being worked mostly by arastras and other rude machinery. Constantly, as the work of prospecting has become more thorough, are more and richer mines being discovered. The higher portion of this famous range have been but little explored, and but superficial work done anywhere outside of the Indian Queen on the north and the mines of Cerro Gordo on the south ends. The great want has been capital. Any one who has been over the ground will bear us out in the assertion that in the near future this hitherto neglected country will come to the front as a rich bullion producer, and add another star to the many new shining in our new and undeveloped region. The whole field is easy of access, and wood, water and provisions abundant and cheap. And now that many new contrivances for the reduction of low grade ores are being introduced, mineral lands which in the past have been ignored are fast claiming the attention of the miner and the capitalist, they being confident that the reduction of such ores can be made both easy and profitable. There is no reason why rock cannot be worked in this portion of the country as it is in the Black Hills and other portions of the Rocky mountains, where five-dollar ore is worked to a profit—the expenses in some instances being down as low as $1 80 per ton. With the new appliances for working low grade ores, this range of mountains could be made to yield untold wealth.—Mammoth City Herald.

JOHNNY KELLY, an old Bentonian, has struck a gold lead on Big Pine creek, about seven miles from the town of Big Pine. The location is on a ridge about five hundred yards from the stream. The other day when Tom Brown was down there he went over to Kelly's mine, which is called the Black Warrior, and thoroughly inspected it. He pronounces it a rich mine. A new arastra has been put up and the hauling of ore commenced. A shaft has been sunk eighty feet and a drift run one hundred and eighty feet from the bottom. Assays so far average $110. The ground in the vicinity of the Black Warrior has been known to be rich for a long time, and has heretofore produced largely in gold. What a staggering blow it would be to our Big Pine neighbors if they should suddenly become the center of a rich mining development?—Bentonian.

MR. H. M. DE YOUNG informed a Call reporter the other day that the Chronicle would be kept on an even keel. He said he should retain the position of business manager, and shape the business of the paper in accordance with the oft-expressed wishes of his brother.

COL. RYAN, of Independence, passed through Benton, having under escort Mrs. P. Reddy, who goes to Bodie to meet her husband.—Bentonian.

GOV. PERKINS has signed the Wasson Mining Bureau bill.

IF printing paper continues to advance, newspapers will be forced to use common white satin with a plain gilt border instead. They will much dislike to resort to so cheap a substitute, but when rag print puts on a pair of telegraph climbers and the paper men plunge their thumbs into the armholes of their vests and ask you what you are going to do about it, something must be done; and it is to be hoped that the reading public will gracefully submit to having their newspapers printed on inexpensive material until these bloated straw-stack and rag-bag holders can be driven to the wall, and publishers can afford to return to the use of paper. We're in for barking down the giant monopoly, and if it becomes necessary to print the paper on a bleached rubber blanket and have men go around and hold it while people read it, we shall not shrink from our duty when volunteers are called for.—Bristol Observer.

THE Prince of Wales, as Grand Master of the English Free Masons, has definitely fixed on Thursday, May 20, for laying the foundation for the new cathedral at Truro. It will be, it is stated, the first ceremony of the kind ever performed by His Royal Highin England as Grand Master, and will be the first ecclesiastic building ever constructed under the Grand Lodge of England.

JAY GOULD is only 45 years of age. He learned the tanner's trade and worked a long while for other people, but got poorer every year. Then he went to work for himself and got rich. Stock operators think he is not very benevolent in his business operations, but when he gets home with his pockets full of money he, it is said, deals it out unsparingly for all deserving charities.

MARYLAND and New Hampshire have declared for Blaine. Blaine seems to have taken a fresh start, and will now, with what States have already declared for him, go into the National Convention with as much strength as he did in the last National Convention.

Honor at West Point.

The trial of cadet Whittaker is showing up the calibre of the cadets at West Point in a way which must by this time have made the country thoroughly ashamed of most of them. On the question of "honor" of this dispicable class of snobs the Stockton Mail has the following sensible remarks:

We are hearing, in connection with the Whittaker affair at West Point, a good deal of talk about honor. Gen. Scofield would seem to think that the cadets are endowed with a particularly fine species of it, and actually issued an order the other day expressing his unshaken and unmistakable confidence in them, their honor and all the rest of it. We are told that such a thing as lying is never permitted at West Point and the cadet who lies is immediately ostracised by his fellows. Unfortunately this fine business is shown, by the evidence of the cadets themselves, to be a mere hollow sham, a miserable aping of the old code of honor which we all admire so much and by which so few of us are ruled. The truthfulness of young gentlemen is shown to be of much the same quality as their chivalry. They were officers and gentlemen, but they snubbed and ill-treated, in a cowardly, prolonged, deliberate and brutal manner a fellow cadet, as good as they in every respect, and in many respects better. They would never tell a lie, but they were in the habit of evading the officials who trusted them, breaking the rules of the institution, and stripping off their uniform for the purpose of visiting forbidden haunts outside the Academy; and their sense of honor is so high that they feel constrained to betray the saloon-keeper who sheltered them on their midnight forays and kept their disguises for them. Such are too often the honor of the lips and the honor of the hands and heart; so it begins to be that the man who stickles most for outward points of honor is most likely to be at heart a blackguard and a coward

We have further particulars concerning the intended visit of the King of Siam to this country on his tour round the world. His name is Khoulalon. The Cabinet meeting in reference to him was held in obedience to the recommendation of our Consul at Bankok, in Siam, who wished the King well entertained when he comes to the United States. This is what a Washington correspondent of one of the New York papers says concerning the action taken by the Cabinet: "It was concluded to inform the Congressional Committees on Foreign Affairs of the King's anticipated visit, and to recommend an appropriation sufficient to receive him. The practicability of sending a United States man-of-war to convey him from England was discussed at some length without action, it being thought best to defer the question until the King shall have arrived in Europe. The entire party, including servants, it is thought, will be larger than can be accommodated on a man-of-war."—S. F. Call.

THE fact that the United States now import forty-eight million pounds of wool a year should give much interest to the International Exhibition of sheep, wool and wool products, to be held in the Exhibition Building, at Philadelphia, next September. Wool-growing will repay more careful attention by our ranchers, and whatever stimulates the industry is commendable.

DURING the month just past the public debt of the country has been reduced to the extent of $12,000,000, which is the greatest monthly reduction on record.

IF there is any truth in the following, which we find in an Eastern journal, the millions of acres of desert lands lying between the Rocky mountains and the Pacific Ocean can be utilized for agriculture. The story sounds rather big, but as the seed came from a mummy perhaps the cereal in question has accustomed itself to getting along without water. This is the story:

"The new cereal called 'rice-corn,' recently discovered in an Egyptian mummy, and brought to this country by a Mennonite, of Russia, will thrive vigorously and yield largely on the arid plains of Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona, without irrigation. Drought does not affect it; heavy rains do not injure it; hot winds do not burn it up; grasshoppers won't touch it, and the worms leave it alone. One farmer planted forty acres of it (says a Kansas exchange), and for weeks no rains fell on it. Then came a heavy shower, followed by days of dry, hot weather that withered and parched up all other vegetation. Strange to say, the new cereal took root, grew up to stalwart maturity and actually yielded sixty bushels to the acre, each bushel weighing sixty pounds. The meal resembles that ground from Indian corn, though it is said to be much more nutritious. The stalks furnish fuel, and the leaves make a palatable fodder for cattle."—S. F. Stock Report.

AN intimation has been telegraphed that the Pennsylvania Board of Pardons will pardon Kemble and the other legislative bribers. Kemble is rich and politically influential, and if he is pardoned the charge will hold good that wealthy criminals can purchase immunity in this country. To pardon the bribery gang will be an outrage on the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, whom they sought to rob. If Kemble is pardoned, let Pennsylvania shut up her courts of justice and throw open her prison doors. In spite of his money he was tried, proven guilty, convicted and sentenced, and should be punished like any other criminal. In all likelihood there has been this week some poor wretch sent to the Pennsylvania State Prison for stealing something of value just sufficient to constitute grand larceny. He may have committed the theft to save his wife and children from starvation. His crime against society was not as great as Kemble's, nor could it work so much mischief; but no merciful pardoning board attempts to save him from the penalty. If the bribers are pardoned, the State of Pennsylvania will stink in the nostrils of the entire world.—S. F. Stock Report.

THE order which has been issued by the Russian Government commanding all Jews of foreign birth to quit the Czar's dominions, is said to owe its origin to the fact that a large proportionate percentage of the Nihilists arrested by the Russian police are Jews. This story is, however, contradicted by statistics published in one of the Russian newspapers, which show that of all Nihilists so far arrested 22 per cent. are soldiers; 19 per cent. gentlemen—that is to say, persons whose fathers were serfs; 9 per cent. the sons of priests; 7 per cent. shopkeepers, and only 3 per cent. Jews; all others mechanics. The criminal records show that it is only in the Southern provinces that the Jewish people have been strongly imbued with revolutionary principles, while in the northern provinces, where they enjoy many privileges, they have kept aloof from any participation with the Nihilists.

I. E. JAMES, the well known civil engineer, started last Tuesday over the route of this proposed extension of the Virginia and Truckee railroad in company with James Oliver, who has had general charge of the survey, in order to give the benefit of his experience, and to decide finally just what route to take. The road will soon be begun, and will be a narrow gauge, three feet wide. Steel rails, varying in weight from 35 to 45 pounds to the yard, will be laid the entire length, and all freight and passengers will necessarily be transferred at the Mound House. We understand that the lot of 56 pound steel rail purchased in England several months ago by D. O. Mills have been exchanged for those of lighter weight, suitable for the narrow gauge. The company will save by the adoption of a three-foot gauge not less than $250,000 in cost of construction.—Carson Times.

SIX of Brigham Young's daughters have been cut off from the Mormon Church for daring to defend in court the right to a large slice of their father's estate that the Church authorities had stolen. As they won the suit and got the money, they are probably not much troubled about their excommunication. Some of Brigham's daughters are intelligent women, who, even in their father's lifetime, expressed their disgust with polygamy and the attendant barbarous tenets of the Mormon Church. During Brigham's lifetime, when one of his daughters would express her dislike to polygamous marriage, he would punish her rebellion by sending her to another part of the Territory and giving her in polygamous marriage to some septuagenarian bishop.

THE Spanish Government has ordered the collection of $43,000,000 revenue from the unfortunate Cubans this year. It requires this sum to maintain the army of 40,000 men who must be kept ready to put down insurrection, to keep up the men-of-war who guard the coast against the landing of arms and supplies for insurgents, and to furnish stealage for the hordes of speculating officials who have for many years fattened on such plunder.

AN important meeting was held at the residence of Senator Jones in Washington on the 6th instant to discuss the features of a proposed new mining bill. There were present Senator Jones and Congressman Daggett of Nevada, Campbell of Arizona, Maginnis of Montana, Belford of Colorado, and Berry of California. The bill proposed, being satisfactory to the Western members, will be introduced in the House. Following is the amendment offered: "And in all cases where the main dip of the lode does not exceed twenty-five degrees from the horizon the right to follow the mineral shall not extend beyond the side lines of the location drawn downward vertically, and on any mineral land where there is no outcrop of a vein or lode on the surface of the ground." The party seeking to make a discovery is authorized to locate a prospecting claim of the same size as the claims now allowed by law, and he shall have the exclusive possession of said claim so long as he shall expend $200 worth of work each in exploring for mineral, and when a vein or lode is found a patent may be obtained as is now provided by law. In case the locator fails to perform the annual labor required, the claim shall be forfeited and shall be open to relocation the same as though it had never been located; provided that the original locators, their heirs, assignees or legal representatives have not resumed work upon the claim after failure and before such location.—Carson Appeal.

THERE is no season of the year when it is safe to discontinue advertising. When business is dull it is needed most, and should be most energetically used, because most people are attracted at all times to the house which takes the most pains to invite the trade, and advertisers then get the largest share of what is doing. "Dull times," it is said "are the best for advertisers;" because when money is tight, and the people are forced to economize, they always read the advertisements to ascertain who sells the cheapest and where they can trade to the best advantage. If your goods have special seasons build up a name for them when out of season; and that reputation will largely aid your sales when the season arrives for putting them into the market. If "no pent-up" season limits the demand for your wares, it is clear there is no time when you can judiciously withdraw from the public eye your announcements. — Toledo Commercial.

A CORRESPONDENT the Helena (Montana) Herald, writing from Assiniboine, represents the desperate condition of the Sioux, and says: "While the subject of the Ute massacre is still fresh in the public mind, it would be well perhaps, if a thought were given to the probable movements of the Sioux the coming Spring. Sitting Bull is reported as being in camp near the big bend of Milk river, a distance of eighty miles from here, surrounded by his warriors, fully equipped and ready to resume his hostile depredations as soon as the grass is green. Should there be a general uprising of the Sioux, the country would be swept here from Buford to Benton, and there would go up from the helpless settlers of the Missoula valley such a wail of woe as has not been heard since the dreadful massacre of 1862, of which this same cruel tribe were the perpetrators."

A NEAT story is told about the way in which Jay Gould makes use of the few social opportunities he enjoys. Being invited to a private dinner upon his recent return from the West, he declared to the dozen or so gentlemen present that he had made more money than he could possibly find use for, and that the great object of his life henceforth would be to improve the great consolidated lines which he now controls, and to place them on the basis of solid dividend-paying securities. He suggested indirectly that the Union Pacific would be the first to benefit by the new consolidation arrangements. Upon hearing this an old gentleman present went next morning to his broker and bought a thousand shares of the stock at 93 and a fraction. He had to sell it out a few days later at 88.—N. Y. Sun.

EVERY man who fancies he can distinguish ore from porphyry who goes to New York, immediately sets himself up as a mining expert. He has himself interviewed by the mining papers and talks knowingly of shafts, winzes, stopes, hoisting works, stamps, amalgamating pans, formations, gangues, lodes, veins, seams and faults, and manages to make the interviewer think him the man who built the Comstock lode. Some of these experts talk as if they could put ore in a barren mine, or make granite assay $10,000 a ton. There are mining men in the East who know a mine when they see it; but the majority of the self-constituted expeats now spreading themselves in the East are frauds.—N. Y. Mining News.

A THOROUGH examination of the eyes of all the school children in Philadelphia is being made. Almost one-half of the eyes thus far tested were found in conditions other than perfectly normal, and many were so diseased as to make rest imperatively necessary. The acuteness of vision is ascertained by means of the ordinary cards used by opthalmic surgeons, upon which are printed letters of different sizes. Other points of inquiry are the preception of color, the range of vision and the field of vision—that is, the extent of the distance around the head covered by the sight of the eye. Some persons while looking straight ahead, can easily see motion, form, and color at the side.

WILLIAM A. HOWARD, whose death was announced the other day, was a Michigan Republican, and led the delegation from that State in the Cincinnati Convention. On the third ballot he carried the solid vote of Michigan from Blaine to Hayes, thus virtually deciding the latter's nomination. He was quick to demand his reward, and got it. Hayes made him Governor of Dakota. He has paid everybody who had a hand in his election, except Jim Anderson, and he proffered Jim a place even, in a "warm climate."

THE New York Tribune says: Six hundred of the 756 delegates who compose the Cnicago Convention have been elected. Ten States and three Territories are still to elect. Of these 600 241 are for Blaine, 224 for Grant, 91 for Sherman, 31 for Edmunds and 13 for Washburne. This gives no candidate a majority of the convention—379 votes. Blaine lacks 139 votes and Grant 155.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, MAY 15.....1880

THE New York Sun says: What a narrow escape the prosperity of New York has had in the prompt vetoing of the bill taxing foreign capital, as shown by the news from San Francisco. When Kearney and his followers were doing all they could to have the new Constitution adopted they represented that they were defending the sons of toil against the bloated capitalists, but the capitalists packed up bag and baggage and brought all their belongings to the East. The consequence of refusing to protect capital was, of course, to make it seek softer places for investment, and Kearney's political economy was not without its drawbacks. The Bank of Nevada has just dismissed seven of its principal employés because there is no work for them. How long will it take to batter into the skulls of legislators that money is as likely to emigrate as labor. San Francisco has almost ceased to be the market for mining stocks. When a lucky prospector strikes something fine, he rushes off to the East, and the uptown hotels in New York are at the present moment so crowded with mining men that in one of these establishments a notice has been posted, "No mines received in payment for board."

THE Secretary of the Interior transmitted to the Senate on the 10th instant a letter from Commissioner of Pensions Bentley, explaining why his previous estimates for the arrears of Army and Navy pensions, which were submitted by the Secretary on March 5, were insufficient. Bentley, in his letter, says that his observations of two months, which have intervened since his former estimate was made, render it certain that those estimates are inadequate, and in order to provide for the payment of pensions which will fall due prior to July 1, it must be considerably increased. The revised estimates which he submits are as follows: For army pensions, $8,500,000; navy pensions, $225,000; pay and allowance, $17,000. Total, $8,740,000, which is an increase of $2,085,000 over the estimate of March 5.

MR. ELLIS, of Louisiana, has introduced a bill in Congress for an experimental trial of the postal telegraph. It is to be confined to the cities of New York, Boston and Washington, and the intermediate postoffices, and the bill authorizes the Postmaster-General to establish by purchase or construction a telegraph line between the points named. The experiment, says the New York Tribune, would be a costly one, and it is doubtful whether the bill ever emerges from the committee's hands.

IN the churchyard of Heydon, Suffolk, there is a stone, it is said, with the following inscription: "Here lieth the body of William Strutton, of Paddington, buried May 18, 1734, who had by his first wife twenty-eight children, and by a second wife seventeen; own father to forty-five; grandfather to eighty-six; great-grandfather to ninety-seven, and great-great-grandfather to twenty-three; in all two hundred and fifty-one."

THAT the California Republicans are solid for Blaine is manifest from this circumstance: At the late Convention a motion was made that the Delegates to the Chicago Convention should vote as a unit for some other candidate if Blaine had to be withdrawn. This motion was lost by a vote of 124 to 122. Then a motion to give Blaine alone the benefit of a unit vote was carried unanimously.

THE fact has been brought out before the Exodus Committee that there are from three to five thousand negroes in and around Topeka, Kansas, in a deplorable condition. These negroes have not been in so unhappy and friendless a condition since the war.

ANY woman in Oregon who is over 21 years of age, and has property in the district upon which she pays a tax, may vote at the school meetings in such district, provided she be a citizen of the State and has resided in the district thirty days.

HOMER BILLINGS, agent for Clugage's United States Stage Company, was in Dayton a few days ago. He stated that it was the intention of the company to run a line of coaches daily from Carson to Candelaria, via Dayton and Mason Valley.

A LIQUOR dealer in Bennington, Vt., has been sued by one of his steady customers for selling him two hundred drinks, each one requiring a separate indictment.

THE President tendered to Gen. Kilpatrick the office of Governor of Washington Territory, but the offer was declined.

FOR A DIVISION.

Newspapers and persons in several of the counties in the southern part of the State, particularly San Bernardino and Los Angeles, are moving for a division of the State—a divorce of the southern half from the northern half. The former prays a divorce on the usual grounds — incompatibility of temper; neglect; failure to provide enough offices for the sun-burnt sufferers down that away; that San Francisco hogs everthing, politically and commercially, from everybody else and every other place; that she is lacking in refinement —except the refinement of meanness— in short, that she is no gentleman, and Sacramento is no better, especially during legislature times; and, finally, that the State now embraces too much territory for one set of State officials to look after as it should be looked after, and so on and so forth.

There is, doubtless, a good deal of truth in these allegations, particularly the last mentioned; there is too much territory for one State; too much by just about the full area of all this portion lying east of the summit of the Sierra Nevada range, all of which would be better cut off and attached to Nevada. And that is what this region will vote for whenever divisions of the State get to be fashionable. Geographically considered, we, of this section, have nothing to say about the division scheme under consideration. We are not recognized by either of the coast sections as being anybody in particular. In the matter of climate and plenty of it, and vast expanses of desert, nothingness, and sparseness of population, we are of southern proclivities, and to that extent could fraternize and go with that section when it gets the expected divorce; but on the other hand we are just within the latitude of the northern section, in common with which we have solid merits and some energies on which to base some hopes of future greatness; but our merits are chiefly of an undeveloped mineralogical character, and are likely to bind us quite as closely with Nevada and New York as San Francisco. And as we live a long ways eastward from both coast sections, and about on a line between the two, and are cut off from both by an impassable range of mountains, and are quite indifferently rated by both, and as we are not at all intimately associated with either, and are taxed too heavily now, we think it will far better become the next generation to begin the agitation of this two-State question; by that time it is possible there may be a taxable population sufficient to decently maintain two State governments; there are now but barely enough people to respectably sustain one.

THE facts relating to the settler troubles in Tulare county, as near as can be learned, are as follows: At about 11 o'clock A. M., on the 11th instant, United States Marshal Poole and W. H. Clarke started out to dispossess one Storer and another party whose name has not as yet been ascertained, settlers on railroad land about three miles north of Hanford. The Marshal was followed shortly afterwards by M. D. Hart and W. J. Crow, purchasers of the land in question. When the Marshal's party arrived at the ranch they found a number of members of the Settlers' League on the land, and the latter summoned Poole, Clarke, Hart and Crow to deliver up their arms. The Marshal refused to comply with the demand, and firing commenced at once, resulting in the death of the following settlers: W. Henderson, Iven Kneutson and James Harris. Archie McGregor, a settler, was mortally wounded. M. D. Hart, one of the purchasers from the railroad, was also mortally wounded. Walter J. Crow, the other purchaser, is reported as having been found dead in a potato patch near where the shooting occurred. After the shooting was over, Major McQuiddy, in command of a detachment of the Settlers' League, detailed four men to escort United States Marshal Poole and W. H. Clarke to Kingston. The escort left them two miles from Kingston. The Leaguers took possession of the telegraph office and ordered the operator to leave. This was done to stop telegraphic communication. Great excitement prevails at Hanford.

THE news from Arizona for the last two weeks has been of a very exciting nature. The Indians in a portion of that Territory are now on the warpath. A dispatch from Tucson of the 8th says at Fort Thomas Victorio, with his warriors, killed Geo. H. Stevens and about twenty families of Indians who were living on his ranch. It is thought a general uprising of the Indians throughout Arizona is imminent.

THE Grand Jury of San Benite county found an indictment of manslaughter against G. W. Carlton for the killing of S. H. Brummett, editor of the Enterprise, in February last.

THE day for the execution of Sprague, at San Buenaventura, for the murder of T. Wallace Moore, has been named a third time—August 13 being the last.

JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE.

The marshaling of the hosts for the impending Presidential battle goes rapidly but not smoothly on. Within the lines of both the great contesting parties there is noise, and confusion, and bitterness and acrimony enough for the great battle itself. With so much of this under each banner in merely getting ready for the grand fight, what may we not expect when that fight itself comes fairly on? "Three buckets of blood" at the least calculation, or a political cyclone which shall uproot political decency, if there is any such thing. However, let us hope that the very heat of these internecine preliminary contests will be sufficient to burn out undue bloodthirstiness when the two big banners come to be finally pitted against each other.

But, so far, the mass of the people watch the political gladiators fight each other, not without great interest, but still with remarkable indifference as to which wins either in their own or the opposing party. A great majority of Republicans and Democrats alike, alike feel that the candidates most likely to get their respective party nominations for President are the very ones least wanted by the rank and file of the said nominees own respective parties. That is to say, Grant, who is most likely to get the Republican nomination, is, as a Presidential candidate, undoubtedly distasteful to a far larger number of the rank and file of that party than any other prominent candidate whomsoever. And the same is no less true regarding Tilden and the Democrats, save, perhaps, this difference, viz: that while Tilden is personally less popular generally in his own party than is Grant in his, he (Tilden) has apparently a heavier mortgage on his party and is more essential to its success than any other man in it—is better able to make or break his own party than is Grant in his. These two men, whether of their own election or as mere figure heads does not matter, each has a commanding hold on his own party, and yet are the most abnoxious as candidates to their own parties. Out of this we have these apparent anomalies, namely: Grant, among Republicans most honored and respected as an individual, is the one least able to command their support when he is made their Presidential candidate, and of their prominent party leaders, is likeliest to lead his party to defeat. Among Democrats Tilden as a leader is personally the most unpopular, yet is the most likely man in the party to lead it to party victory.

The conditions of leadership in both parties are now so peculiar and so little to the liking of the masses withal that the largest number in both parties watch the manuvering of their respective party managers, and say, "Pull Dick, pull devil; it don't matter which wins," precisely as if they had no direct interest in the result at all.

The latest news relating to the contests within the parties indicates dangerous dissensions in both. Kelly will not bury the hatchet unless Tilden will quit; Kelly claims to control 70,000 votes; Tilden won't quit; on the contrary, the results of late county and State Conventions show that he is forging right ahead, and will certainly go into Convention at Cincinnati with very nearly the requisite two-third vote on the first ballot, certainly with enough to enable him to say whom the Convention shall not nominate. It is asserted as a fact, though, that Tilden is only striving for a chance to decline to run, after the compliment and vindication of a square nomination. Perhaps.

In the meantime a bitter contest is going on between the Grant and Blaine factions in Illinois, which has become the pivotal State as between those two. It is thought this split will become permanent should either Grant or Blaine receive the Chicago nomination, and that in view of this, that neither of them will receive it—some dark horse is to get away with the baggage after all. So it looks at this writing.

THE President is understood to be strongly in favor of the Nicaragua route for an inter-oceanic canal, and if the report cabled be true, that an American company has received liberal concessions for a canal from the Government of Nicaragua, it will receive prompt encouragement from the White House as against De Lesseps' scheme.

THE Conference Committee on the Diplomatic Appropriation bill a few days ago increased the item for salaries and expenses of the Chinese Commission to $34,000. This allows $20,000 for salaries of Commissioners Swift and Trescott, and the balance for a secretary and interpreter and incidental expenses.

SENATOR CHENEY, of Plumas, and Assemblyman Hartson, of Napa, are understood to be candidates for Congress on the Republican ticket in the Third District of this State. McKenna will not be a candidate this year. Berry, it is thought, will have no opposition for the Democratic nomination.

The Felton Mining Law.

Subjoined is the full text of the new mining law, known as the Felton Mining Bill, as passed by the late Legislature. As it is now the law of the land, mining superintendents of incorporated mines will have a chance to earn a portion of their salaries, as will be seen in the following:

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of every corporation formed under the laws of this State for the purpose of mining, to keep a complete set of books, showing all receipts and expenditures, and also all the transfers of stock. All the books and papers shall at all times during ing business hours be open to the inspection of any bona-fide stockholder; and if any stockholder shall at any time so request, it shall be the duty of the Secretary to attend at the office of the company at least one hour in the day out of regular business hours, and exhibit such books and papers of the company as such stockholders may desire, who shall be entitled to be accompanied by an expert, and he shall also be entitled to make copies or extracts from any such books or papers. It shall be the duty of the Directors on the first Monday of each and every month to cause to be made an itemized account or balance sheet for the previous month, embracing a full and complete statement of all disbursements and receipts, showing from what sources such receipts were derived, and for what and to whom such disbursements or payments were made; and for what object or purpose the same were made; also, all indebtedness or liabilities incurred or existing at the time, and for what the same were incurred, and the balance of money, if any, on hand. Such account or balance sheet shall be verified under oath by the President and Secretary, and posted in some conspicuous place in the office of the company. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent, on the first Monday of each month, to file with the Secretary an itemized account, verified under oath, showing all receipts and disbursements made by him for the previous month, and for what said disbursements were made. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent to file with the Secretary a weekly statement, under oath, showing the number of men employed under him and for what purpose, and the rate of wages paid to each one. He shall attach to such account a full and complete report, under oath, of the work done in said mine, the amount of ore extracted, and from what part of the mine taken, the amount sent to mill for reduction, its assay value, the amount of bullion received, the amount of bullion shipped to the office of the company or elsewhere, and the amount, if any, retained by the Superintendent. It shall also be his duty to forward to the office of the company a full report, under oath, of all discoveries of ores or mineral-bearing quartz made in said mine, whether by boring, sinking, drifting or otherwise, together with the assay value thereof. All accounts, reports, and correspondence from the Superintendent shall be kept in some conspicuous place in the office of said company, and be open to the inspection of all stockholders.

SEC. 2. Any bona fide stockholder of a corporation formed under the laws of this State for the purpose of mining, shall be entitled to visit, accompanied by his expert, and examine the mine or mines owned by such corporation, or any part thereof, at any time he may see fit to make such visit or examination; and when such stockholder shall make application to the President of such corporation, he shall immediately cause the Secretary thereof to deliver to such applicant an order, under the seal of the corporation, directed to the Superintendent, commanding him to show and exhibit such parts of said mine as the party named in said order may desire to visit and examine. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent, on receiving such order, to furnish some person familiar with said mine or mines to accompany him in his visit to and through such mine or mines, and every part thereof. THE Representative from Nevada, Daggett, will shortly introduce a bill in Congress requiring all unsurveyed lands within railroad limits to be surveyed. The purpose is to make the railroad lands subject to State taxation, the practice of the companies being to refrain from asking for surveys or patents until they find purchasers.

A PETITION will be presented to Gov. Perkins for the appointment of Hon. Niles Searles, as one of the Drainage Commissioners under the Debris law.

IN compliance with Senator Farley's resolution, the Secretary of War on the 10th instant transmitted to the Senate copies of the majority and minority reports made by the Board of Engineers under the authority of an Act of March 3, 1879, which appropriates $150,000 to be expended by the Secretary of War in the commencement of the construction of a breakwater and harbor of refuge at such a point in the Pacific Ocean, between San Francisco and the Straits of Fuca, as may in the opinion of a majority of the Board of Engineers of the Pacific be most suitable for the interest of commerce, local and general being considered.

THE projection of American railway lines across the boundary and even to the Pacific ports of Mexico, the development of mining and other industries by American energy and capital in the parts of Mexico which these highways of commerce will traverse, and the permanent establishment of Americans and American interests in these regions, which must be the concommitant of such enterprises, will be the pioneer steps in the fulfillment of the destiny of Mexico to become American.

AT a party of young people in Paris, conversation happened to turn on the subject of kissing, and the question was propounded, who of the young men present could boast of having or being able to give "his girl" the most kisses. Various were the replies this question called out. Finally the young man and the girl to whom he was betrothed bet 200 francs that they could kiss 10,000 times in ten hours, providing they would be allowed an occasional glass of wine "between." Two persons were appointed a committee to count the kisses, and the work began. During the first hour they counted 2,000 kisses. In the second hour the kisses were not nearly as numerous, for the committee only counted 1,000. After the third hour, during which they managed to score but 750, further operations were brought to a sudden standstill. The lips of the young man were seized with a cramp, and he was carried off in a fainting condition. The girl a few days later was stricken with brain fever, which nearly carried her off to a land where kissing of any kind is unknown. When the people who had won the bet demanded the money the parents of the girl refused to pay their share of it. The matter was then taken to the courts, and there it was decided the debt must be paid.

THE Anti-Third-Term National Convention met in St. Louis on the 7th instant, and was called to order by John B. Henderson, who, on taking the platform, briefly outlined the scope and purpose of the convention. The question was whether the great unwritten law of precedents and immemorial custom, which was at least as far reaching as a written code, should be observed in the nomination of a President. He quoted Grant's speeches at Bloomington and Little Rock to disapprove the need of a strong government, and asserted that of the States which had declared for Grant, Pennsylvania alone will be able to give him a single electoral vote. Even Illinois is doubtful in its choice, and is almost certain to oppose the election of Grant in the event of his nomination. If the Chicago Convention forces him on the party, said the speaker, it may become necessary for the anti-third-term Republicans to declare an eternal dissolution of all connection with them, and affirm the right to call a convention and act independently.

A GOOD story is told about Spurgeon that demonstrates the preacher's force and aptness of illustration. His text one day emphasized the sluggishness whereby men attain Heaven, and the oiled lightning ease with which they gain the other place. The pulpit was considerably elevated above the auditorium and the stairway leading to it was in plain view of the audience. When Mr. Spurgeon began his discourse he stood upon the lowest step of the stairway, and ascended step by step, slowly and deliberately, preaching several minutes at each halting place. "This," said he on reaching the platform, "is the way men climb to heaven. Now I will show you how they go to hell," and throwing one leg over the baluster rail he slid to the bottom like a bicycle on the down grade.

QUICK WORK.—One Phillipi Gonzales, the Mexican who on the 27th of last month appropriated Johnny Lucas' fine saddle and race horse, should have at present some idea of the swiftness of justice under the present system. He was landed here by Sheriff Smith on the 10th instant and on yesterday, the 14th, was committed by Justice Parker for trial. At 2 P. M., upon information filed by the District Attorney, he was arraigned before the Superior Court and plead guilty to the charge of grand larceny, whereupon he received a sentence of two years in the State Prison. Dan Crough will politely escort him to that institution next week. Judge Conklin conducted the prosecution in the main, the prisoner declining any legal assistance. Gonzales is young California-bred Mexican, a recent comer to this county. He understands English fairly, but declines to use it on legal occasions. After missing the way and badly using up the animal, he got into Bakersfield, where he pawned the saddle and started out for a good time. On receipt of information of the facts the officers of Kern county searched the stables and found the horse. The thief, having had a personal acquaintance with the officials down that way, was not so easily pickedup. When they espied him he dodged under a house, which they searched through and through. As they were leaving, Gonzales slipped out and started for some horses picketed a short distance away. He was in some of a hurry, and he ran. A Deputy Sheriff saw him, mounted a horse conveniently at hand and got there first. Mr. Gonzales was then disarmed and conducted to jail, but he says if he had got to those horses there would have been a fight. In the meanwhile, Carrasco, sent by Lucas from Lone Pine after the fellow, had been hobnobbing with him around the dance houses, in order to "make him gentle." All in all, at a direct outlay of some $200, Mr. Lucas has recovered a ruined horse and the State has gained another boarder.

NEW AGENTS.—The following newly appointed agents, authorized to receive orders, and more especially coin, will represent THE INDEPENDENT at their respective localities: C. Novacovich, Aurora; Geo. M. Gill, Mammoth City; James Watterson, Benton; Judge R. B. Snelling, Candelaria; D. P. Macarter, Big Pine; E. H. Edwards, Lone Pine, and H. R. Gregory, Resting Springs, whose name will appear with the regular list next week.

HURT.—On Tuesday last Dr. George was called upon to visit Deep Spring, involving a ride there and back of about 120 miles, to attend a man named Ed. Thompson, who had been injured by a flying rock while blasting out a new road. He found the man with a bad wound in the leg, near the knee, though the bone was not seriously injured—first reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

DIED.—Last Sunday night James B. Probasco, a well known old settler of the county, died at Fromm's hotel after an illness of only a few days. He has been a resident of Fish Springs for twelve or fifteen years past, where he was engaged in mining and stock-raising. He was a quiet, unobtrosive citizen—one well respected by those who knew him best.

TO LOS ANGELES.—A day or two ago Dr. F. T. Bicknell, of Bishop, after a short stay here, passed through en route to Los Angeles, where he will spend a week or two visiting his brother, a very prominent lawyer of that region. The Doctor said he would come back alone, but we are somewhat skeptical on that proposition.

THE DISTRICTS.—Under the head of "Board of Supervisors" will this week be found the boundaries of the county's legal subdivisions, published for the benefit of our subscribers and such others as may see fit to pay 25 cents for an extra copy containing the article. The information can be had in no other form, and will be found worth preserving.

ON A TRIP.—Dr. J. D. Blair and Jos. Schalten started out northward three or four days ago on a general tour of observation, intending to take in Candelaria, Aurora, Bodie and Bridgeport. When last heard from were at Deep Springs, vigorously expressing some opinions about the wind and cold weather.

EXPRESS.—We learn that an express box, office material, etc., has arrived at "Keeler City" for the establishment of a regular office at that point. Since the agent to take charge will find it difficult to exactly locate the "city"—as yet—it would be more advisable to establish an agency at Cerro Gordo.

AT WORK.—John Ely, the noted miner, and Bob. Stein, late of southern Nevada, are on hand figuring around some mining properties of Cerro Gordo. The ball will be kept rolling until that long-neglected district takes a solid boom.

COURT.—In the Superior Court last week his honor Judge Hannah overruled the demurrer in the cases of Henry M. Isaacs vs. Nathan Rhine and Henry M. Isaacs vs. Isaac Harris, and set June 7th as the time for answering.

PREACHING.—Rev. F. M. Willis will hold divine service at the school house to-morrow evening and at Camp Independence on Tuesday evening, at the usual hour.

EARLY.—Of late the Southern stage has been giving our citizens an agreeable surprise by arriving before dark in the evening. Keep on doing so, Mr. Taylor.

MEETING.—Saturday evening next occurs the regular meeting of the Masonic lodge for May.

Adjourned till Tuesday, July 6, 1880.

MILITARY.—A private letter from Lieut. W. W. Wotherspoon to a friend in this place gives some items of interest relating to the whereabouts of some of the officers and men formerly of Camp Independence. The Lieutenant, as we knew him at this post, has been promoted to a captaincy, and with his company is now en route from Arizona to Resting Springs, in this county, to see about the reported Indian troubles at that place. It is possible he may make us a flying visit, and should he do so will be warmly welcomed by many old friends. Capt. McGowan is with his old company (D), at Camp Rucker. Lieutenant Haskell, formerly of Company B, has also been promoted to a captaincy, and is with his company, perhaps with Capt. Wotherspoon, on the Colorado. Dr. Matthews and wife (nee Wotherspoon) is stationed at Camp Bidwell, Modoc county, in this State. Military Honor Lodge No. 4, I. O. G. T., still lives and goes as Company D (Capt. MacGowan) goes. C. B. Terry, well known to many of our local readers, is its Secretary.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION—MEETING CALLED.—Pursuant to Section 1768 of the Code (new school law), the Board of Supervisors at their late session appointed S. P. Blaisdell, Daniel Crough (both professional school teachers), A. R. Conklin and P. A. Chalfant, members of the Board of Education for Inyo county, County Superintendent Symmes being also a member of the Board, ex-officio. Circumstances demand the immediate organization of the Board, therefore, all the members are hereby requested to meet for that purpose and other business, at the court-house next Monday at 10 o'clock.

EXPECTED.—A number of prominent mining operators are expected here this or to-morrow evening. They come with the view of examining the Deep Spring mining properties in particular. Can't give names of the party just yet.

COLD.—The nights during the early part of the week were freezing cold, and the days almost ditto; but no material damage to fruit or other crops has resulted.

THE Federal Census to be taken next month, it is thought, will show a total population of 46,000,000, an increase of about seven and one-half millions over that of 1870. The coming census will doubtless show marked changes in the drift of emigration and in the center of population. The "star of empire" will be found to have moved westward in a surprising manner. The ratio of representation under the last census was 131,000. If it should be found that the total population has increased to 46,000,000, the ratio will be advanced to 157,000. Under the change the Bulletin estimates that the States that are like to lose seats in Congress are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont and Virginia. Of the seats in Congress which they will lose, it is pretty certain that two will fall to the share of California. There were cast in the last Gubernatorial election 160,214 votes. These multipled by the low average of 5 would give a total population of 801,070. This will entitle us to about six members of Congress under the new apportionment.—Los Angeles Express.

FOLLOWING is a list of the delegates to the Chicago Convention elected by the Republican State Convention at Sacramento on the 6th instant: The San Francisco delegation selected Wilmerding, Alex. Sharon and Mosgrove; Frank Pixley, Hecht and Kinne were selected as alternates. The Third District selected H. S. Fairbanks, of Sonoma; Joseph Russ, of Humboldt; E. A. Davis of Yuba. Alternates—F. A. Leach, Scott and S. C. Helborn. The Fourth District nominated Lieut. Gov. Mansfield, of Los Angeles; V. S. Payne, of Santa Clara, and Frank M. Pixley, of Calaveras. The last named was finally nominated by acclamation. The Second District nominated Creed Haymond, of Sacramento; Socrates Huff, of Alameda, and J. Doak, of San Joaquin.

Various Things.

Eastern Washington Territory is said to be filling up at the rate of 1,200 immigrants per week.

The Grant men have lost Illinois, the Blaine and Washburne men securing a majority of the delegation.

Nick Meadows, the man who attempted to assassinate a Mrs. Martin in Bodie some months since, escaped from the jail at Bridgeport a few days ago.

Last Saturday, at Bakersfield, Kern county, Wm. Denver was kicked in the face by a horse he was harnessing, and had his jaw broken in two places.

G. A. Leonard, a native of Massachusetts, committed suicide by shooting himself near Berkeley, Alameda county, Saturday.

Jos. Abbott, a juror in the Wyoming murder trial at Patterson, New Jersey, became insane a few days ago. The trial was abruptly closed.

In Los Angeles there stands an elder tree (the elderberry bush of the East), which measures two feet across near the ground. It is thirty feet high, with branches extending at least twenty feet across.

Less than fifty years ago one man could not make over fourteen pins a minute; now he can make over 1,400. Then one girl could stick on papers about 10,000 pins a day; now a fair day's work is from 800,000 to 1,000,000.

The three sons of Z. D. Bowen, of Wadley, Ga., all use crutches. Their bones are so soft and brittle as to often break even from a slight jar. The oldest, Sylvester, has already sustained twenty-six fractures.

The effort to oust the Sheriff and Treasurer of San Francisco from office, because of the withdrawal of certain of their bondsmen, has failed. The Commissioners to hear the application declared by resolution that the withdrawals were prompted by malice.

The House Committee on Ways and Means have perfected the tariff bill. The additional changes are: Wood pulp duty is reduced from 20 per cent. to 10 per cent. Salt is stricken from the bill entirely; the duty upon it therefore remains as at present. The subject of sugar is put into an extra bill.

A Washington dispatch has the following relative to the letter carrying business of Wells, Fargo Express Company: Representative Page and John J. Valentine called on Postmaster General Key to learn his decision in the Wells, Fargo matter. They were informed by him that he thoroughly sustained the correctness of their arguments, and that he will decline to interfere with Wells, Fargo & Co.'s letter carrying business.

Col. Scott's Retirement.

The retirement of Col. Thomas A. Scott from the Presidency of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the other roads of that system is an event of too much importance in the railroad world to pass without comment. Col. Scott has been probably the ablest of the practical railroad men at the head of large organizations in this country for the past fifteen or twenty years. Rising from the ranks he had demonstrated his ability in every successive stage of his promotion, and in the technical work of managing and operating a railroad it is probably the general judgment of our railroad men that he had, in the United States at least, no superior. Whether he carried equal ability and success into the broader fields of railroad combination and extensions, will be a disputed point. Certainly there was a time when the Pennsylvania road seemed to have been injured by heavy losses on some of the lines Col. Scott had leased; and the Texas Pacific will always stand a monument of mistaken judgment and ambition. Personally, Col. Scott has always been regarded by his subordinates with a loyalty and affection bordering upon enthusiasm. He inspired the whole force of the road with his own spirit, and made the discipline and efficiency of the Pennsylvania service a model for the railroads of the country.

In private life he is a man of the best character, and he will be followed into his retirement by the warm friendship of men in every walk of life and every section of the Union. It is understood that while his health is such as to make protracted intellectual labor unwise, it is not such as to forbid the hope of many years of peaceful enjoyment. It is pleasant also to know that, although not perhaps so wealthy as he was once reputed, he still retires with an ample competence, and free from any occasion for business anxieties.—N. Y. Tribune.

A SPRING-STREET youngster, about knee-high to a grasshopper, went for his first time to Sunday school the other day. On returning home he remarked to his maternal parent, "Mamma, some of the boys down town are for Blaine, some for Grant and some for Tilden, but all of them at the Episcopal Church are for Jesus."—Eureka Leader.

THE State Convention of Nevada instructed its delegates to vote solid for Blaine in the National Convention, for the Presidential nomination, and also to continue to vote in that manner as long as his name is before that Convention. These are the most pronounced instructions that have been given by any State so far.

ONE of the cyclones which passed over Ohio recently lifted people in the air and carried them along for miles. A dispatch from Brown's Station states that a man and woman were seen going over the place at least a hundred yards above the ground. The woman was ahead.

THE Eureka Sentinel says that there will be a big "hoop up" with the Democracy this year. According to our notion of thinking the Democracy had better gather up the staves of Tilden's barrel and "hoop" them up.—Carson Appeal.

CALIFORNIA has about 100,000,000 acres of land, of which 43,000,000 acres are unsurveyed. Not much over 4,000,000 acres are under cultivation, although something more than 6,000,000 are inclosed with fences.

Atmospherical knowledge is not thoroughly distributed to our schools. A boy being asked, "What is mist?" vaguely responded, "An umbrella."

Photographer—"You look too sober—smile a little." He smiles, and the photographer says, "Not so much, sir; my instrument is too small to encompass the opening."

Apropos of names: First swell—"I never did like 'May,' not nearly so pretty as 'Mary;' wonder they don't change the name of the month to 'Mary.'" Second swell—"Clevaw idaw, bah Jove! Make awstaws good to June, you know."

Johnny wanted to go to the circus, and his father said: "Johnny, I'd rather you'd go to school, and study, and maybe you'll be President some day." Said Johnny: "Father, there's about one million boys in the United States, isn't there?" "Yes." "And every one of them stands a chance of being President?" "Yes." "Well, dad, I'll sell out my chance for a circus ticket."

A Cleveland lawyer, defending a handsome young lady charged with larceny, closed his appeal to the jury thus: "Gentlemen! You may hang the ocean on a grapevine to dry, lasso an avalanche, pin a napkin to the mouth of a volcano, skim the clouds from the sky with a teaspoon, throw salt on the tail of our noble American eagle, whose sleepless eye watches over the welfare of our nation; paste 'For rent' on the moon and stars; but never for a moment delude yourself with the idea that this charming girl is guilty of the charge preferred against her."

COUNTERFEIT half-dollars are numerous, and chiefly dated 1857, 1875, 1877. The counterfeits are well executed, but a close scrutiny will reveal a flaw under the talons of the eagle, and an imperfection in the letter "f" in the word "half."

The True Mineral Wealth of California.

We have in California boundless sources of mineral wealth which are little known, and less utilized. Our gold and silver mines have received all the attention they stand in immediate need of. Our agricultural resources are being rapidly developed. Our forests are furnishing their lumber; our granite quarries are being rendered available. But we have besides all these, and so far unknown and untried, minor mineral products, which would richly repay those who would make use of them either for export or in many branches of manufacturing industry as yet unrepresented on this coast. We might not only produce numerous articles for which we now pay heavy tribute to the East, but might make them in such quantities as to supply Mexico, South America and Eastern Asia.

Take, for instance, the finer kinds of clay. Clay is a substance of no mean importance as a material entering largely into manufactured articles. Prof. Cook, State Geologist of New Jersey, has written a voluminous work regarding the various kinds found in that State, and its adaptability to different uses. Out of the finer species are made ornamental tiles, the best terra-cotta wares, and even china of superior quality. All of these things can be manufactured from clay found in abundance at Lincoln, Tulare county, and in two convenient localities in Sacramento county. A little rill of capital diverted from Pine street might be used in starting a manufactory of common cookery, that might in time make wares comparable to the finest in the world. The uses to which fine clay can be put are positively enormous. Besides those mentioned, it is used in finishing paper and making fire brick and crucibles. The art of making brick floatable in water, known in the time of Pliny, and mentioned by him, and lost for many centuries, has been recently discovered in Italy. It might be practiced advantageously in California, and would be very useful if the construction of a large furnace were desired in places where but a frail support could be afforded.

Gypsum has been found in Kern, Los Angeles and other southern counties, though not in large deposits. Borax is found in Lake, San Bernardino and different parts of Nevada. Natural soda is abundant in many parts of California. It is used in making soap. Chromic iron is plentiful in Sonoma, San Luis Obispo, Santa Clara, and in fact, nearly all over the State. It is used in dyeing and making paints. Kruse & Euler, of this city, are extentensively engaged in gathering and exporting it. One of the most elegant and useful mineral products of the State is marble. It is so plentiful and of such fine quality that it should entirely supersede the imported article. One of the handsomest species is the Suisun marble, or properly called onyx. A very fine quality of marble is found in Monterey county, equal in all respects to the Siena, and having its delicate yet brownish shades. In Monterey is also found an excellent white marble. A gray marble is found in abundance near Columbia, in Tuolumne county, and a fine white marble near Colton. There are deposits of dolomite, a beautiful magnesian limestone, in Mono county near the head of the Owens river, which give the mountains a cloudy appearance, sometimes mistaken for snow. These various kinds of this admirable stone should not only supersede the Italian importation on the Pacific Coast, but should take its place in most of the Eastern States, where it could be more cheaply laid down. It is unsurpassed in beauty for mantelpieces, and slabs for furniture, and should be generally used for building purposes. Some enterprising quarryman may yet arise, who having found San Francisco redwood will leave it marble.

Tin, which is closely associated with the primitive rocks, has only been discovered in the Temescal mountains, San Bernardino county. The veins, which cropped out on the surface, have been little worked, on account of a disputed title. It is to be hoped that what is called "streams tin" will yet be discoved in the streams of the Sierra. Australian tin, which is of this kind, is now generally in use, and has nearly closed the Cornish mines by rendering them unprofitable. Manganese is obtained from Santa Clara, Marin and Contra Costa counties. Red Rock, in the bay, is composed almost of pure manganese. It was worked for a while by a private company, until operations were stopped by the Government, which has never parted with the title to the island. Almost the only use of this mineral, an extensive one, however, is in the production of chlorine gas, which is employed in separating gold, and for chloride of lime. The chief market for manganese is on the Pacific Coast.

There are some good beds of iron in the State, but not much is known of them. There are extensive deposits of copper in Calaveras, Del Norte, Inyo and Nevada counties. The ledge in the last named is said to be 100 feet thick. The product of these mines should be utilized by local manufacturers, but it is all sent East. Barytes is not abundant in the State. It is found in Shasta and inyo counties. Its chief use is to adulterate paper. Our quicksilver mines are pretty well understood, but nothing is manufactured from the mineral in California, though we should at least produce our own vermillion, mercurial ointment, calomel and corrosive sublimate. Platinum is abundant in Humboldt and Mendocino counties. It enters largely into the manufacture of jewelry, but has not been much mined and sent East, because the $2 an ounce, which it is valued at, is not considered to repay the expense of obtaining and sending it to market. Large beds of asphaltum exist in the southern counties. It is doubtful if it would pay the expense of exporting, but it finds a ready sale in San Francisco, where it is used for pavements, and in making artificial stone. Petroleum is plentiful, but it is of the heavy kind better suited for lubricating than illuminating purposes. It finds an ample market. Of coals there is but one true carboniferous deposit in California, and that is near Shasta. There is another in Arizona. The other coals found are lignites, which are more or less available. Natural cement is one of the most useful products of the State. It will be seen from this list that California would be rich in mineral wealth even if her gold and silver mines never had an existence.

In the hot pursuit for gold, these sources of wealth have not been entirely neglected. The State Geological Society, a quiet and unobtrusive organization, has for the last four years been collecting information and gathering geological specimens, with the avowed object of presenting them to the State on such terms as might be mutually agreeable. The conditions to be exacted by the Society were the providing of suitable rooms where the specimens might be properly exposed in cases for public inspection, and their retention in San Francisco. An Act of the late Legislature creating a Mining Bureau, and the appointment of Henry G. Hanks, President of the Society, to take charge of it, has rendered the presentation possible. Mr. Hanks will, as soon as possible, select suitable rooms, and have the specimens given by the Society and one or two of its generous members, duly labeled and placed therein. They are about twenty-five hundred in number. He intends to have all the maps, books of reference and mining periodicals provided for those who may require the aid of the Bureau, and make them accessible through the medium of a reading-room. The Act provides that necessary expenses shall be paid by a small tax on mining securities. There is but one opinion regarding the competency of Mr. Hanks to the task he has undertaken by reason of his personal fitness and scholarly acquirements. It will, moreover, be pleasant for every practical citizen who is interested in the thorough development of the State to know that, while the chief of this important Bureau is looking after the mining interests of the State, he is gathering and disseminating information regarding every species of its mineral products, and so adding to its wealth and greatness.—S. F. Bulletin.

YESTERDAY Superior Judge Halsey heard arguments in a habeas corpus case. The petitioner is S. P. Moffat and the respondent the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylnm. The object of the petition was to obtain possession of a girl named Charlotte Blaney, 14 years old, now in care of the Sisters of the Asylum. Petitioner is executor of the estate of the child's mother, who died in Inyo county, and produced a letter of appointment as guardian, but not stating guardian of what. The child prefers remaining at the Asylum. The writ was dismissed, and the girl remanded to the custody of the Orphan Asylum.—S. F. Bulletin.

THOSE notorious steam road engines, of which we have read so much in the different newspapers, are now on the road from Wadsworth to San Antonio, where they will be put to work, and will be given a fair show to prove their ability.

IT is reported that the President will call an extra session of Congress if the bill for the pay of Marshals is not passed.

The Mining Bills.

Following are the sections of the mining bills passed by the last Legislature:

SECTION 1. Section (299) two hundred and ninety-nine of said Civil Code is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

No corporation hereafter formed shall purchase, locate, or hold property in any county of this State, without filing a copy of the copy of its articles of incorporation filed in the office of the Secretary of State, duly certified by the Secretary of State, in the office of the County Clerk of the county in which such property is situated, within sixty days after such purchase or location is made. Every corporation now in existence, whether formed under the provisions of this Code or not, must, within ninety days after the passage of this section, file such certified copy of the copy of its articles of incorporation in the office of the County Clerk of every county in this State in which it holds any property (except the county where the original articles of incorporation are filed); and if any corporation hereafter acquire any property in any county other than that in which it now holds property, it must, within ninety days thereafter, file with the Clerk of such county such certified copy of the copy of its articles of incorporation. The copies so filed with the several county Clerks, and certified copies thereof, shall have the same force and effect in evidence as would the originals. Any corporation failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall not maintain or defend any action or proceeding in relation to such property, its rents, issues, or profits, until such articles of incorporation, and such certified copy of its articles of incorporation and such certified copy of the copy of its articles of incorporation shall be filed at the places directed by the general law and this section; provided, that all corporations shall be liable in damages for any and all loss that may arise by the failure of such corporation to perform any of the foregoing duties within the time mentioned in this section; and provided further, that the said damages may be recovered in an action brought in any Court of this State of competent jurisdiction, by any party or parties suffering the same.

BILL NO. 2.

SECTION 1. It shall not be lawful for the directors of any mining corporation to sell, lease, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of the whole or any part of the mining ground held by such corporation, nor to purchase or obtain in any way any additional mining ground, unless such Act be ratified by the holders of at least two-thirds of the capital stock of such corporation. Such ratification may be made either in writing, signed and acknowled by such stockholders, or by resolution, duly passed at a stockholders' meeting called for that purpose.

SEC. 2. All stock in each and every mining corporation in this State shall stand in the books of said company, in all cases, in the names of the real owners of such stock, or in the names of the trustees of such real owners; but in every case where such stock shall stand in the name of a trustee, the party for whom he holds such stock in trust shall be designated upon said books, and also in the body of the certificate of such stock.

SEC. 3. It shall not be lawful for any such corporation, or the secretary thereof, to close the books of said corporation more than two days prior to the day of any election. At such election the stock of said corporation shall be voted by the bona fide owners thereof, as shown by the books of said corporation, unless the certificate of stock, duly indorsed, be produced at such election, in which case said certificates shall be deemed the highest evidence of ownership, and the holder thereof shall be entitled to vote the same.

THAT Mr. Tilden himself is in a disturbed condition of mind there is ample evidence. He confines himself now almost constantly to his home, on the parlor floor of which, in the rear of an enormous library, utilized by a corps of clerks, secretaries and attendants, who are constantly examining books, marking papers, filing documents and sending packages, of this that and the other to various sections of the country. I doubt if there is a detective bureau in the world more admirably organized than that which, centering in Gramercy Park, conveys to the interested cipherer all manner of secrets and all kinds of information. While it is utterly impossible for the average visitor to gain access to Mr. Tilden's presence, he is ceaselessly occupied in entertaining, listening to, advising with and instructing his friends and those in his employ. No busier man lives than he, and how his attenuated physique sustains the labor imposed upon it by his restless, energetic and suggestive brain, is one of the marvels of the day. Coupés and carriages rattle to his door, a stream of eager and interested parties constantly tug at his bell, the patience and slippers of his servant are well nigh exhausted, and there is every evidence of a brisk and desperate campaign afforded to the neighbors, or to such who care to put a watch upon his movements.—Correspondent Chicago Times.

THE Republican State Convention of Nevada met at Austin and elected the following delegates to the Chicago Convention: E. Strother and C. C. Stevenson, of Storey county; Dr. J. J. Meigs, of Elko; W. W. Bishop and M. D. Foley, of Eureka, and T. Edwards, of Ormsby, and instructed the delegation to vote as a unit for Blaine.

THE revenue cutter, Thomas Corwin, designated for the Arctic relief expedition, will leave Mare Island about the 24th instant. She is provisioned for forty men for one year, besides which merchants of San Francisco have donated some three tons of wines, cordials and delicacies for the relief of the crews of the ice-bound vessels when found. The voyage is expected to last eight months. Unless other orders are received she will carry ninety tons of coal from this port. At Ounalaska she will take on board six hundred tons of coal, and Norton Sound, on Behring Straits, some six or seven hundred miles further north, she will take in a full supply. The vessel carries a large spread of canvas and can steam ten and a half knots an hour. Her capacity for coal will enable her to steam twenty-one days.

THE Chicago Times has the following regarding the late terrible massacre of white prospectors by the Utes: On the 3d instant, while the party was widely scattered, three hundred mounted Indians galloped down on the camp, and after slaughtering the whole party, cut their bodies into pieces. A man named Allendorff witnessed the affair from a mountain, whither he had gone hunting. The Indians had carried off all the gold and mule outfit. Allendorff escaped and walked for several days until he reached a settlement. He is the only one of the party left to tell the tale. The Indians are making preparations for the war-path, and it is thought that Colorado is on the eve of an extensive and bloody Indian war.

AN interviewer asked Matt. Carpenter the other day if he had any personal feeling against Blaine. His reply was: "Not the slightest. Blaine is a brave, magnetic, fighting Republican. Should he be nominated I would do anything in my power to secure his election. We have had one or two little tilts in debate in the Senate, but without the slightest personal feeling on my or upon his part, I belisve. His training in the House of Representatives has made him fond of a fight. He gives hard blows and expects to take as hard as his opponents can give, and after it is over shakes hands and invites you to dinner. It is only a weak or mean man who bears a grudge from a contest, and Blaine is neither weak nor mean."

THE Whittaker investigation is about as mixed up a piece of business as any thing we ever recollect reading about. The Government has had a corps of experts on chirography employed for some time endeavoring to ferret out who was the author of that note of warning which the colored cadet received. After thoroughly investigating the whole matter their conclusions are in brief about as follows: That Whittaker penned that epistle, slit his own ears, and otherwise maltreated himself. All this is strongly denied by the Whittaker, who asserts that he has been the victim of a conspiracy. And this is just how the case stands as far as heard rom.

THERE is just now a chance for a first-class Indian war being inaugurated by the Utes of Colorado. Already they have commenced the work of slaughtering. The cause of the trouble in this instance has been occasioned by prospectors, who discovered mineral ledges on their reservation, invading that territory. It is claimed that this outbreak could have been averted had Congress acted promptly in the matter of consummating the treaty negotiated by the Indian Department. Of course the Indians will be defeated, but probably not until it has cost many lives and dollars.

THE Carson and Colorado Railroad Company filed articles of incorporation a few days ago in the office of the Secretary of State, Carson City. The road is to run immediately from the Mound House to Candelaria, and will be about 150 miles long. The officers are: President, H. M. Yerington, who is also General Superintendent; Treasurer, S. P. Smith; Secretary, D. A. Bender; Chief Engineer, D. Olliver.

THE Democratic State Convention convened at Oakland on Wednesday last. S. P. Moffat, Esq., representive of this county in that body, was probably in attendance. We are not advised whether the delegation received instructions or not, but the probability is if any were given they were those favoring either Tilden or Thurman.

A VERY large shipment of wool was made from San Diego on Sunday last, consisting of 401 bales, weighing 121,325 pounds. This is by far the largest shipment of the season from that point, and includes some of the best wool in the State. It is to be sent direct to Boston.

THERE is nothing for a State like having a representation in an important committee. Tennessee, for instance, gets as liberal a slice of the appropriations in the River and Harbor bill as the entire Pacific Coast, unless the present bill be amended.

THE Government is beginning to reap profit from the political campaign. The fact that the sale of one-cent stamps at the Washington Postoffice increased from 90,000 in February to 300,000 in April indicates what gains are to be expected from mailing political pamphlets.

IN Lafayette, Iowa, on the night of the 14th instant, a drunken farmer ravished his three daughters, aged 9, 15 and 18 years, respectively. Their screams were heard by the neighbors. A large party of men are in pursuit of the fleeing fiend.

PRESIDENT STONE, of the San Francisco Board of Education, refuses point blank to approve the swindling text-book contracts recently made by that delectable gang of ringsters.

THE President notified the Cabinet a day or two ago that he had decided to appoint Horace Maynard, Minister to Constantinople, to succeed Key as Postmaster General.

THE Debris bill has "gone over indefinitely" in the House of Representatives

THE TEXT BOOK TROUBLES.

San Francisco has, for some time past at least, been especially unfortunate in her choice of managers of her public schools. Without reverting to past evidences of scoundrelism in that management, we need give but some facts of a very recent transaction to show that scoundrels still manage educational matters in that city, and at the same time, too, to demonstrate that the agents of those Eastern publishing houses are quite as mean as has so frequently been charged against them.

The San Francisco Board of Education, on the 10th instant, met and adopted a full set of text books for the schools of that city and county. The manner in which this was done, and the fact that they also then perpetrated a glaring, broad daylight swindle, has called down upon the majority bitter denunciations from all quarters. A good share of these are directly aimed at Mr. State Superintendent Fred. M. Campbell, who, with others, seems to have fallen an easy victim to the wiles of the accomplished McGuffey-Reader agent. This agent hob-nobbed with Campbell and with members of the City Board; drank good wine with them, so it is alleged; made them think they were men too great to need to pay attention to public opinion; wool-wound the whole pack; put up a job with them, and an infamous job it was. Here is a small part of the mildest part of a city newspaper article addressed to this conclave:

"Your conduct on Monday night was a simple outrage upon all the decencies and proprieties of official life. You violated all the ethics of business. You stamped yourselves with the brand of suspicion, and it is burned in upon you. You awarded the control of supplying our San Francisco schools with McGuffey's Readers, printed by Van-antwerp, Bragg & Co., of Cincinnati, at the regular retail price of $2 50 per set for all supplies from date, including the first supply for introduction.

This means a change of readers. The readers now in use resemble the new ones only in title. The change is as complete and entire as though you had adopted Appleton's or Bancroft's, and you knew it; and to assume that they are the same readers is a bold, transparent, audacious fraud. The publishers of the readers advertise them in the Pacific School and Home Journal for $1 52 per set for first supply, and yet you awarded a contract for 66⅔ per cent. above their advertised and regular price. This difference, as we are informed, amounts to not less than $100,000 for four years' supply.

This was in comparison with the Bancroft series, a better book (to so de nominate the set), manufactured throughout by Pacific coast white labor. The same proscriptive rule was carried out against every solitary text book of whatever character of which that firm was publisher or agent, and, with one exception, every book adopted by this Board was at rates proportionately as much above advertised prices of the same as in the case of the readers. In this matter the Board seemed to be actuated by a desire to proscribe any and every book with which Bancroft & Co. were interested either as agents or publishers, or else with the view of lining their own pockets by collusion with the the McGuffey man in an open robbery. Certain it is that a pretty strong case is made out against them, not that the books chosen by them were of themselves especially objectionable, but that in each and every case the terms of the contract gave a chance for one or both of the high contracting parties to make a "good thing" for themselves at the expense of those who are compelled to buy the books. The writer above quoted winds up his address to this Board in these significant words:

These are a few—a very few—of the questions we have to propound; but they are sufficient for the present. Will any class in first class deliberate villainy please step forward and answer?

WHEN President Hayes and Secretary Evarts conceived the adroit idea of appointing a commission to visit Pekin and ascertain the views of the Chinese Government on the proposition to modify the Burlingame Treaty, the fact was pointed out as significant that such action should be taken, after three years of inaction, on the eve of a Presidential election. The movement, however, has been successful. Congress is reported as having agreed to defer all action on the Anti-Chinese Fifteen-Passenger bill until next December. By these tactics the Republican Administration has partially succeeded in evading an issue on the Chinese question for the present. In one sense the Democratic majority is responsible for the postponement of the bill; but a consideration of such a bill by Congress while the Commission is negotiating a treaty, or trying to, would, perhaps, be regarded an act of discourtesy to the Chinese Government. But if a satisfactory treaty is not produced by December, there will be no excuse for further delay on the part of the legislative branch of the Government.

THE New York Senate, by a vote of 17 to 14, passed the concurrent resolution to amend the Constitution so as to extend the elective franchise to women.

CROPPING OUT.

The beauties of the new Constitution are beginning to crop out pretty much as its apponents all the time said they would. Its most ardent supporters were farmers whose lands were under mortgage, and who thought the mortgage tax provision of the new instrument would in that particular especially lighten their tax burdens immensely. But, someway, it don't seem to operate that way exactly, but rather the opposite. Here, for instance, it is told of a farmer of Marin county who used to pay taxes on a land valuation of $20,000; his land was heavily mortgaged, so he became a venomous new Constitution advocate, under which, like many others similarly situated, he expected that the fellows who held the mortgages would have to pay pretty much all his taxes for him. He was so far right in this calculation that he now has to pay no less than $600 actual taxes more than he did last year, notwithstanding that safety clause to shield the mortgager. This farmer man begins to see the point of that joke about the man who went out to get wool and came back badly shorn. In fact, to judge from this, also, the unimproved condition of workingmen, who thought that the new instrument would not only assure them "two dollars a day and roast beef," but would cinch capital in a very satisfactory manner: also, some other misworkings—judging from all this, it is evident the new Constitution is quite a success as a cinching machine, but not so discriminating as its inventors promised, for, if any difference, it cinches the inventors rather worse than anybody else — mortgagers, savings bank depositors and owners, the "unemployed," and so on— these are the very first to squeal at the preliminary turnings of the screw, and all before the thing is fairly in operation. And the way it spreads the text book and other questions pertaining to the public school system all over the State, is proving another striking feature of the same imbecile machine.

THERE is a chance for Sprague, the man who killed Moore at San Buenaventura a year or so ago, and who has been thrice convicted, to be granted another hearing in the matter. What transpired during the last trial was this: Judge Temple decided that he had no power to settle a bill of exceptions, but has determined that the refusal of Judge Fawcett to do so may be reviewed by the Supreme Court, and that the bill formerly presented to Judge Fawcett was not, as Judge Fawcett testified it to be, "the reporter's notes, with argument of counsel," etc., but find that it was amended from the notes in more than three hundred particulars. The opinion of Judge Temple is reported and will go before the Supreme Court, and is deemed strongly in the defendant's favor, as leading up to a new trial. The Judge then, counsel on both sides agreeing, fixed the 13th of August for the execution, thus allowing more than one hundred days for an appeal to the Supreme Court.

THERE can hardly be a doubt that the British training ship Atalanta is lost. She left Bermuda on the 31st of January with some 300 boys on board, besides her officers, and has not been seen or heard of since. It is known that on her first night out from that port a terrible gale was encountered. The captain of a merchantman, who sailed from Bermuda on the same day, reported on his arrival in England that the night of January 31 was the worst he ever witnessed. He was compelled to take in every stich of canvas. A stout tarpaulin to keep the ship's head to the wind was all he dared to expose. If the Atalanta were still afloat she would, in all probability, have been met by other vessels in some part of the high seas, and not having been spoken, takes away all hope of her safety.

ENGLAND is said to be making prodigious exertions to regain its control of the trade which hard times alienated, directing especial effort toward China, a country which has proved its most profitable customer. The hope of the United States in the task of taking the trade of the Chinese from the hands of England is in avoiding the adulterations which the English practice, and in patiently studying the wants of China and establishing faith in our manufactures and methods.

WASHBURNE once, when a member of Congress, secured the passage of resolutions denouncing Simon Cameron as a rascal. He also, when in Congress, had trouble with Conkling. Neither Conkling nor the Camerons ever forget, and there is consequently but little hope that Elihu will become the residuary legatee of the Grant boom.

TILDEN, Thurman, Bayard, Sherman, Blaine and Hendricks will have each the indorsement of his own State. Grant will probably have that of his State, Illinois. Hancock and English failed to secure such indorsement, and are out of the fight.

WORSE THAN THE GEM PUZZLE.

The figurers on the Chicago nomination are getting even more confused than they were a couple of weeks ago. Even the newspapers published near and at the proposed "scene of action" (Chicago), are at as much loss to say who will head the Republican Presidential ticket, as are we isolated individuals in this region. However, the guessers have but little time now to do their speculating, for the convention that will quiet all this uneasiness convenes at Chicago on the 2d of June (one week from next Wednesday). The general conviction seems to be that Grant has no sure thing. To illustrate the truth of this, let us take the last reports from Illinois, whose delegation may once more name a President. It is now clear that unless the Grant and Washburne delegates vote together for the former or the latter, neither will have a majority in the Illinois delegation. But nearly all the Washburne delegates were elected by anti-Grant Republicans. It is asserted that these delegates cannot be transferred to the Grant column, because of the openness and sincerity of the Washburne movement. It is also stated that Mr. Washburne has done all he could to discourage the election of delegates pledged to him, and that his friends had a right to use his name and take the chances.

But Senator Logan—who has been a bitter and unrelenting enemy of Mr. Washburne for many years—does not hesitate to charge the latter with insincerity and double-dealing, using, it is said, pretty strong language.

The New York Mail (Republican), in reviewing this Illinois matter, advances the following questions:

"Does the Senator represent the convictions of most of the Illinois Grant men, when he makes this charge of treachery? Could he prevent them from going over to Washburne as a second choice? Will the leadership of the Senator be strong enough to overcome the unquestionable strength of Washburne, whose record is blameless and whose services to Gen. Grant have exceeded those of any other man? These inquiries, and many others, naturally arise, and there are few, even in Illinois, who know how to answer them now."

If Washburne should capture the Illinois delegation the contest would, without doubt, at once assume a very spirited and dubious character. If he should do this, it would be still more likely that a combination of the ablest politicians in the Chicago Convention would agree on some nomination not now expected.

IT is stated, from official data, that in the last thirty years Germany has sent us 2,500,000 immigrants, and that every able-bodied immigrant is worth $1,000,000. Speculating upon this fact, an Eastern journal sets down our gain in brain, bone and muscle, at $2,500,000,000, or two and a half times as great as the indemnity exacted by Germany from France, and considerably greater than our own national debt at this time. The same journal truly remarks: "No intelligent American statesman would be willing to accept $2,500,000,000 in the best gold ever coined, in exchange for these 2,500,000 German immigrants and their descendants. They have been of infinite advantage to us, and their sudden removal, if such a thing were possible, would leave yawning an empty chasm throughout our social, industrial and political structure."

THE proud mother of seventeen children, the eldest of whom is eighty-two years of age and the infant forty-eight, Mrs. Brassett, of Grand Rapids, Mich., is just rounding a century of life. She is in good health, with unimpaired intellect.

THE unit rule might work this way: Of eleven delegates from a State, five support one candidate and five another. The eleventh sells out to one side or the other, and six delegates thus cast the State's entire vote.
